THOUSAND TREES READY FOR MILL

Graham's Lumber Camp In Cavan Is Humming With Industry--Weather Aids Thieves.

CAVAN, Dec. 10.— The work is progressing rapidly at Graham's lumber camp. The ties are laid for the siding which the C.N.R. are building to ship the lumber out on.

The men, already, have one thousand trees down; and this week, Mr. Graham is bringing his saw mill down from Cartwright to commence sawing.

A road job on the eight line is being hurried along to-day, that of putting a new top on the bridge over the big creek, so that Mr. Graham may move his engine across it.

Farmers Have Fuel

Almost every person in this vicinity has enough wood for home consumption, a few sell some, but as yet there has been very little doing in this line.

The exceedingly mild weather has been so easy on fuel and the farmers busy getting other jobs out of the way that not any have yet gotten in to the woods.

The fine weather has been a boon in many ways, but it has also allowed those people, who are thieving, to get around in cars and fancy they can get away safely and speedily. Chickens in many places have been stolen and stores entered. Now at last they have found that Millbrook is on the map, as shown by the events of Sunday.

Exchanged Pulpits

The Rev. R. T. Richards exchanged pulpits with the Rev. Mr. Weir of Warsaw on Sunday.

The Cavanville Sunday School will hold their annual Christmas tree and entertainment on Friday evening December twenty-first.

Next Sunday the services on Cavan Circuit will be in charge of the pastor, Rev. R. T. Richards.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Fisher, Peterboro were guests of T. A. Kelly and sisters on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Perrin and Meredith were guests of J. D. and Mrs. Hunter on Sunday afternoon, remaining to attend Cavan Church services on Sunday evening

RADIO EXPLAINED BY REV. MR. SPENCE

Apsley Pastor Gave a Demonstration of Wireless Communication at Owenbrook Church.

APSLEY, Dec. 10—The ladies of St. Andrew's Church, Owenbrook, headed by Mrs. Pearce and Mrs. Rosebush, organized a very successful and pleasant fowl supper and entertainment on Friday evening. Indeed so encouraging was the event that they decided to make it a monthly affair. Supper was served at Mrs. Mace's house and was well patronized, the tables groaning under the liberal supply of provisions generously donated by the residents of this district. The schoolroom where the entertainment was given could not comfortably accommodate the large crowd that assembled. the feature of the evening was a Radio demonstration by Rev. Spence. Unfortunately a weak battery affected the successful operation of the loud speaker, but all in town listened in with the head phones, an experience that was quite new to everyone and gave unqualified pleasure and satisfaction. A hearty vote of thanks ws accorded the ladies, who so willingly devoted their time and labour to the enterprise.

TIGERS PATCH UP FAMILY QUARRELS

All But Two of ast Year's Players Will Don Yellow and Black This Winter — One of Best Teams.

TORONTO, December 11 (Canadian Press). — Hamilton Tigers have lost the services of Jimmy Herberts, big defence man, who is now on his way to Eveleth, Minn., where he expects to play this winter.

From near official circles it was learned some time ago that there was friction in the Tiger camp, and that many of the best players were through with the Tigers, but since that time the affair has been patched up, and it is now said that all of last year's players, Herberts and Hughes excepted, will wear the yellow and black colours again.

This means that the Tigers will have one of the best teams in the O.H.A.

George Redding can more than fill the vacancy left by the defection of Herberts. In fact, last year the opinion was general that Redding was the more effective player.

Harold McMunn, star forward of the Winnipeg Falcons, notified the Canadian Olympic management yesterday that he will accompany the team across the pond.

He will report to the team at Sault Ste. Marie on 29th December, when the Greyhounds will meet the champions in an exhibition game.

No word has been received from Bill Phillips, of the Soo, and it is not thought that he will be able to accept.

PANSIES BLOOM IN MARMORA BED

Ladies' Aid of Methodist Church Realized $157 From Their Bazaar—Old Resident Passes On.

MARMORA, Dec. 11.—As some of the Toronto dailies have been frequently mentioning the unusual sight of pansies blooming in December it is interesting to note that a lady resident in town picked some very choice blooms last week.

Died Suddenly.

Another of Marmora's old residents passed to the great beyond rather unexpectedly on Thursday morning in the person of Mrs. Ellen Sophia Gray. Deceased was the wife of Mr. Geo. W. Gray who predeceased her eight years ago. Her death took place in Thurlow township where she had took up her home only two months ago. On Friday the body was brought to Marmora to the home of Mrs. John Bateman, her daughter. The funeral service was held in the Methodist church the following afternoon and many attended, showing the respect in which the deceased was held. The Rev. D. R. Clare spoke on the good qualities of the deceased in the course of a service which was very impressive. Interment took place in the Marmora cemetery. Surviving the deceased are three children, Lorne and Mr. John Bateman of Marmora, and Gordon of Belleville. Also surviving her are two brothers, Marshall Gerow of Brighton and George Gerow of Monetta, N.Y. and one sister, Mrs. Benjamin Way of Wellington. The pall bearers were her six nephews, all brothers and all residents of Marmora. They were James, John, William, Thomas, Fred and Frank Grey.

Ladies Aid Bazaar.

On Saturday a very successful bazaar was held by the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church. The ladies had a splendid display of aprons, shopping bags, children's clothes and fancy work. The fancy work was composed of embroidery crochet work and tatting and sold very quickly.

The booth which the "Thoughtful Worker's" class of the Sunday school superintended was well supplied with fancy work of all kinds. The girls also had a candy booth which was well partronized.

The Jackie Coogans which the ladies made sold very quickly.

The home made cooking table was full of all kinds of cooking but was soon entirely sold out.

The fish-pond was very popular with the children and did a good business all afternoon.

Many guesses were placed upon the weight of a ham which finally proved to be eight pounds, eight ounces. Mrs. H. Wright, Mrs. Finnegan and Mrs. F S Pearce guessd 8 pounds, but on the final draw Mrs. F. S. Pearce won the the ham.

Afternoon tea with hot beans or ice cream as extras was served to many of the visitors to the bazaars.

The ladies made over $157 and the girl's class over $37.

Mr. James H. Smith of Belleville and Miss Cassie A. Fry were married on Saturday, December 8, at the Methodist parsonage.

Mr. Bert Brown and Mr. Kenneth Simmons were visitors in Tweed on Sunday.

Work has been resumed on the stone fence enclosing the grounds of St. Paul's church.

The Marmora Council of Chosen Friends meet on Tuesday for their annual election of officers and other business.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Dafoe of Rawdon township were visitors at Mr. Wm. Coy's on Saturday.

The dance held under the auspices of Marmora L.O.L. No. 219 on Friday evening was as usual a decided success, a record crowd attending.

Mr. Carman Kennedy, Oshawa, visited his parents, over the week-end.

Messrs. Gordon McWilliams, Horace Leonard and Charles Auger motored to Toronto on Sunday.

Turkey Market Idle.

The mild weather, although desirable to most people, is having a bad effect on those who raised turkeys for the Christmas market. Farmers complain that the mildness of the weather is delaying the marketing of their fowl as the dealers will not take them in until the cold weather sets in.

RESTORE YOUTH FREE TO NEEDY

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11. — (United Press).—An unusually large number of persons seeking restored youth and vigor have been treated at the Gertrude Atherton Gland Clinic, which opened here last Friday, Dr. C. E. Wheeler announced to-day. Most of the persons operated on today, he said, were old men and young women.

Dr. Wheeler estimated that five hundred persons had received new glands at the Clinic since it opened. The operations are free to the poor.

A check to-day of the operations to date showed almost all of them had been on women of between the ages of 30 and 40.

Mother - in - Laws Fest Home - Busters In America Say Legal Aid Officials

NEW YORK, Dec 11.—Mother-in-laws, laugh or not, are still the best little home busters in America Officials of the legal aid society after forty-seven years of service among the poor, gave this judgment to-day.

Father-in-laws, according to the officials, are harmless old duffers, rarely causing martial difficulties. The society explained:

"There are three reasons for this mother-in-law complex, according to our statistics:

"First, no mother thinks any other woman's child is good enough for her own.

"Second, a mother frequently sees in the marriage of her child the thwarting of her own plans and ambitions.

"Third, where the boy or girl has been a wage earner the mother dislikes sharing her accustomed income with another."

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11. — (Canadian Press.)— Pancho Villa, world's flyweight champion, won the judges' decision over Patsy Wallace of Philadelphia, last night, after ten comparatively slow rounds.

Both men entered the ring overweight, Villa's weight being announced at 112 1-2 pound and that of Wallace as 11 1-2.

DEMPSEY SEEKING BOUTS THIS YEAR

Three Wanted, and Firpo, Wills and Gibbons Are on Top of List—Offers Asked, But Shelby Barred.

NEW YORK, December 11 (Canadian Press). — Jack Kearns strolled into Tex Rickard's office in Madison Square Garden yesterday, and announced to an assemblage of boxing writers that champion Jack Dempsey will be in New York on Thursday, but that there was no chance of Dempsey boxing anywhere this winter.

Kearns said that the champion had several theatrical offers to consider, and that they might make a trip to London.

Kearns said Dempsey wanted three bouts next summer, and that promoters were invited to get busy with their proposals.

Candidates on top of the list are: Firpo, Wills, and Gibbons, said Kearns.

Dates suggested for Dempsey's meetings with these three were: Decoration Day, Fourth of July, and Labour Day.

Kearns and Dempsey don't care a whit where the bouts are staged, except that Shelby, Montana, is off their visiting lists.

TUNNEY DEFENDED HIS STATES TITLE

Went Fifteen Bristling Rounds With Harry Greb and Won on Judges' Verdict.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Gene Tunney of Greenwich village, successfully defended his United States light heavyweight title last night in a bristling 15-round match with Harry Greb of Pittsburg at Madison Square garden.

Tunney's body attack earned him the judge's verdict despite a whirlwind rally by Greb in the last round.

Tunney forced the milling from the start despite frequent and spectacular rallies by Greb.

He checked the effectiveness of the challenger's peculiar attack and gradually weakened him with a crushing drive to the ribs and stomach.

At time Grebs tactics bewildered the champion, but though the challenger often landed with long swings to the jaw and body he seldom stopped the champion's steady body fire.

Tunney had Greb in distress in several of the closing rounds.

Setting a terrific pace in the closing round Greb pummelled Tunney about the head and body, jarring the champion to his heels with several smashes, but it was Greb's last desperate stand.

Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia's light weight, was awarded, the Judge's decision over Roland Todd, British holder of the European middleweight championship, in a ten round match, semi-final to Greb Tunney contest.

A CHANCE FOR TEAM WORK.

Various local organizations are planning their Christmas activities and preparing to dispense good cheer to the families in Peterborough to whom Christmas would be devoid of joy were it not for the efforts of such organizations.

There are many people in Peterborough who are in no position just now to provide any holiday cheer for their families so that there will be a large field in which the philanthropic organizations may operate.

In undertaking this splendid work, however, some effort should be made to see that so far as possible there is no over-lapping.

With so many agencies engaged in dispensing Christmas cheer there is a very strong chance of some families receiving more than their share and of others being overlooked by all the societies.

This has happened in other years and should be avoided this Christmas if some simple machinery can be devised by which the various organizations can supply each other with information as to their activities.

There should not be a home in Peterborough without Christmas cheer, and won't be, if a little team work is developed.

THE RED ELEMENT.

Although there is natural sympathy for the majority of the men brought out from Great Britain as harvest hands and who now find themselves without means because of their failure to secure either the work or the remuneration they were promised, there are evidently in their number a few Red leaders who should be deported as soon as possible.

Men who talk about showing the Toronto unemployed what organization can do and call upon workers to bind themselves together to secure the co-operative commonwealth are not likely to ever become useful citizens of this country.

They have been demoralized by the unemployment doles of the old land and believe that they can frighten the Canadian Government into making conditions equally as easy for them here.

The Government may have some responsibility in the matter so far as seeing that something is done for Britishers who were brought here under false pretences, but the demand of the Socialist members of the unemployed harvesters should be met by an order for the deportation of the ring leaders.

President Coolidge said the other day that people who were not prepared to adopt the United States attitude of mind should not settle in the United States, and with the word Canada substituted for that of the United States his statement applies with equal force to this country.

THE FARMERS' ROW.

Although the complexity of the British political situation continues to intrigue Canadians, it is to be fancied that the interest this week will shift to the United Farmers' convention in Toronto, when the Ontario agrarians will decide upon their future political action.

Their decision will be of vital importance not only to the farmers, but to the Province generally, as it may involve the disappearance of the United Farmers from the political arena.

The clash lies between the factions, headed respectively by Secretary J. J. Morrison and ex-Premier Drury.

There has been armed neutrality between the two groups for some time, but the issue has never been fought out to the last ditch.

It probably will be tomorrow when the resolutions regarding the organization's future political status are to be considered.

The Morrison faction will press for the disappearance of the U.F.O. from politics, while the Drury party is expected to argue in favour of continued political action and a broadening-out policy that will take into the U.F.O. camp, regardless of their occupation, everybody who sympathizes with their views

And the queerest twist in the whole controversy is that the Drury candidate for President is R. H. Halbert, M.P., the same Mr. Halbert who in 1919 said in a speech at Woodstock: "We will never have a Grit or Tory upon our platform even if it's necessary to use bare knuckles to keep them off."

That was in 1919, and Mr. Halbert is now all for broadening out.

Some of the delegates at the convention are likely to refresh his memory as to his former views on this question.

THE PRETTY GIRL.

The beauty contest that wound up in New York by one girl from Toronto being awarded the prize for the continent, has set the papers talking. And why not? says the London Advertiser.

One paper says the victory will turn the girl's head—it is a bad thing for a girl of 16 or 17 to be made so much of, etc.

Another claims that sensible girls will keep out of such contests; that a sense of modesty should go along with a special allotment of good looks, etc.

A third claims that the rural districts, were they searched, could produce equally attractive types of beauty, but these people never get a chance, etc.

Then one more critic sees in the whole thing nothing but a money-making scheme that should be stopped, etc.

So you see the question of good looks has been fairly well threshed out and turned up on edge.

If you think over your list of acquaintances you will come to the conclusion that you know a very few "stunners." You probably know a number of women who are almost plain, and if you keep on thinking you will agree that among those who have been endowed with just an average amount of cheerful good looks you have found your best friends, your capable companions, your best-informed conversationalists, and those with whom you generally feel most at home.

After all a pretty girl has her handicaps. She finds it easy to make her way on the strength of her appearance; it is hard for her to realize that she must have accomplishments and ability to hold her circle of friends; she is subject to flattery from foolish people, and it is not hard for her to form an exaggerated opinion of her own real worth.

From the standpoint of the average man a sweet disposition, a happy, helpful mind, and a sufficient amount of wholesome womanly refinement will weigh down pretty well in the balance against an extra amount of good looks.

UNFORTUNATE STRATEGY.

Despite the counsel of the former City Solicitor and the present one, the local Council has proceeded to involve itself in a mess of litigation over the question of its power to prune the expenditures of the Police Commission.

The Chief of Police has already been given judgment in an action brought against the corporation to recover a portion of his salary, and this verdict is being appealed against by the city, while in the meanwhile all the other members of the Police Department are also suing for the wages due them.

The situation should never have been allowed to develop into such a tangle and would not have if the advice of the City Solicitor, appointed to guide the Council in its legal difficulties, had been listened to by the Aldermen.

Leaving on one side altogether the question of whether or not it would be advisable to put police departments under the control of the City Council and thus bring them into the arena of municipal politics, it looks as if the Council's board of strategy has been led by its own enthusiasm into an impossible position.

Attempting to fight this point out in a controversy with the Police Commission when their own legal advisors declared that the Aldermen's interpretation of the Municipal Act was at fault is beginning to look to many people as unfortunate tactics on the part of the Council.

The logical battle-ground is in the Ontario Legislature, and it would have been a cheaper, less vexatious and more satisfactory policy for the Council to have provided the Police Commission's complete estimates for this year—under protest if they liked—and to have organized their forces and lined up other municipalities for a joint effort when the Legislature meets to have the system changed or clarified so that there would be no doubt in future as to the power of City Councils in regard to police estimates.

WHAT LAW PROTECTS.

A young farm hand died on a farm near Regina last March, and the evidence in the case has just been completed at the fall assizes, says the London Advertiser. It showed that the young man had been brutally treated by his employer, that he lived in insanitary quarters, and died suffering from double pneumonia.

The prosecutor for the crown could not show that the man was compelled by law to get medical attention for his employee.

Not being able to show this, the court could do nothing but dismiss the case. Mr. Justice Maclean, in doing so, said:

"I am dismissing you because by law it has not been shown that you were criminally liable; but it has come out in evidence that you were harsh with this young man. You were most harsh. You have been brutal and displayed a violent temper in your action toward him. It was a cowardly procedure. I am mentioning this to you so that you can govern yourself and treat your men accordingly."

It is strange that law can touch one thing and not another. Had this farmer failed to pay his taxes the collector or the bailiff would have been his accuser; had he gone to town and stolen a bag of sugar out of a store where he dealt, he would have been asked to appear in court at once; had he driven down the left side of the street he would have had the traffic officer after him in short order.

Yet while the law protects the collection of taxes, the bag of sugar and the traffic regulations, it is possible for a man to have a human being abused by him, left in an insanitary location, dying of double pneumonia—and all that can be done is that the judge shall give him a scolding and tell him not to do it again.

There is certainly a nut and a bolt loose some place.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

You have waited too late to shop early. Shop now and enjoy the rush.

If this weather continues the story of the first straw hat of the season may be expected any day.

An article in these columns yesterday entitled "The Uprising against Taxes" should have been credited to the Ottawa Journal from which it was republished.

The controversy over the Council's powers in regard to police expenditure should be fought in the Legislature—not in the law courts.

Nomination day is just around the corner. Who will be the next man to announce himself as a candidate for municipal honours?

There is one person who always has the last word in a squabble over the cost of repairing a motor car—whether it be the police car or not—and that is the garage man.

Mr. E. A. Peck says the police must be paid eventually, and why not now? The question is passed on to the Council.

London declares that it would not think of going back to the old system by which municipal elections were held on New Year's Day. The earlier date seems to have given satisfaction wherever it has been tried out.

This autumn will be remembered in Toronto not only for its fine weather, but as the year of no rugby championships. And to tell the truth, everybody outside of the Queen City seems to be delighted over the lack of success of the Toronto teams

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Dr Commelles, famous French hygienist, says he cant' see why girls wear silk stockings. We can.

Silk stockings are worn for more than two reasons. Millions of reasons, and every one a man.

The chief reason for silk stockings is trim ankles trim men.

A blind man is the only man who can't see any use for silk stockings.

Average man can see why girls wear stilk stockings with one eye shut. He often looks that way.

A hypocrite is a man saying he can't see why women wear silk stockings.

A liar is a man who says he likes cotton stockings better than silk.

A optimist is a man buying his girl a pair of silk stockings.

A pessimist is a man buying his girl a pair of cotton stockings.

You have heard the expression "the shank of the evening." That's what shanks in silk are.

A well known dance has married again. Famous people seldom just marry. It is always "again."

An actor has had six wives, a dancer three husband. Three or four of this kind really equal one.

Irene Castle married an heir and they can build their castles.

It's cheaper to marry than it is to give her a Christmas present.

Being famous has its drawbacks. Just when you are getting used to a husband it's time to change.

Christmas story: The family has had dad's swell present charged.

Tomorrow, they say, never comes. Just the same it's bills do.

Christmas is dashing toward us at the rate of 60 seconds a minute.

"Dear Santa: Please bring us another month in which to do our shopping before Christmas.

If a woman's place isn't in the home today the man's isn't there tonight, and what of tomorrow?

"I'm so worried. I am giving my fellow a tie pin and I just know it will scratch my face."

"I am going to give my husband another shirt so he won't have to stay home on wash day."

Constant Headaches And Dizziness.

It is hard to struggle along with a head that aches and pains all the time, and in nine cases out of ten the persistent headaches are due to some derangement of the stomach, liver or bowels.

Undoubtedly the cause must be removed before permanent relief may be had.

Burdock Blood Bitters removes the cause of the headaches, as it acts on every organ of the body and strengthens, purifies and regulates the whole system.

Mrs. Peter Curran, 27 Morrison St., Sydney, N.S., writes:—"I have been troubled for the last five years with constant headaches and dizziness. After trying several remedies, which I found to be of no avail, Burdock Blood Bitters was recommended to me.

B.B.B. did me a world of good, and I cannot praise this remedy enough."

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—Receipts yesterday morning were 5,759 cattle, 364 calves, 4,019 hogs, and 4,808 sheep and lambs. There were not many heavy export cattle in, and thes exporters only bought about 100 of these and some short keeps to hold over till next week. The steers were bought from 6¼ to 7 cents a pound.

Baby beeves were plentiful, but the real finished animal in this class did not go above 12 cents a pound, and other good ones sold at nine cents. Some poor ones were sold at 6½ and 7 cents. Jas. Walters, of Clive, Alberta, had 12 loads of cattle from his own ranch. These were sold through Corbett and Hall, and sixty of the steers. Herefords went to the Harris Abattoir at 6¼ cents a pound

There was a lot of very indifferent butchers on sale, and the trading in these was not improved by reason of the carry over from last week of 600 head. Choice handyweight butchers in singles sold up to 7 cents a pound, but the majority of good heifers went around 6 cents. Medium butchers sold at about 4½ cents. The demand for butcher's cows was poor, and fair cows sold at 3 cents. The light trade this morning portended quite a good-sized carry over.

Some good veal calves were wanted, but the supply of these was light, and tops were 11 to 12 cents. Other calves were not so keenly desired, but prices were steady.

The bang up close to last week's lamb market encouraged higher asked prices this morning, but these were not met. Some fairly good lambs sold at 11½ for the ewes. The lamb quality in general was not good, and prices were down 50 cents a cwt. from last Thursday.

Hog prices were regarded as firmer, but the market was unsettled. Some packers were bidding $8 a cwt. f.o.b., but salesmen were holding for a little advance.

ENGLAND LEARNING TO APPRECIATE ICE CREAM

LONDON Dec. 11.—(Associated Press)—About 20,000,000 gallons of ice cream were sold in England during the summer of 1923, or five times more than the quantity sold in the boom year of 1919, said Robert G. Reid in the course of a paper read before the British Cold Storage and Ice Association.

The expansion, Mr. Reid said, concurrent with the introduction of the American method of manufacture was fostered by the changing attitude towards alcoholic beverages, and the fact that ice cream is nourishing and digestible.

RAIL RECORD IN GRAIN LOADING

Estimates of Half Billion Bushel Crop Justified—Large Part Is Already Marketed.

WINNIPEG, December 11 (Canadian Press). — A survey of the grain movement over Western lines of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways shows that since the opening of the crop year, 1st September, 281,790,960 bushels of grain practically all wheat, have been loaded to date, according to figures issued by the railway companies here yesterday.

This is a marked increase over the same period of last year, when 249,566,248 bushels were handled, and justifies the early estimates of a 500,000,000 bushel crop for Western Canada.

In Alberta according to local reports nearly 50 per cent. of the crop is yet to be marketed, while Saskatchewan has 35 to 40 per cent. of the crop still on hand.

Manitoba's crop was estimated at 40,000,000 bushels, of this 70 per cent. has been marketed.

The total yield for Saskatchewan and Alberta was estimated at 400,000,000 bushels, which leaves about 180,000,000 bushels unmarketed as yet. Each province, however, will retain large quantities of wheat for seed.

Co-operating with Cleveland and Montreal, local shippers, exporters, and vessel-men are urging Canadian and United States authorities to extend navigation closing one week.

Under the present schedule, the last boats will leave the head of the Lakes on 12th December, and the Great Lakes locks will be closed two days later.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR DOMINION STUDENTS

In Imperial College of Science and Technology Has Been Accepted.

LONDON, December 11 (Canadian Press Cable). — Correspondence has just been published showing that the chairman of the governing body of the Imperial College of Science and Technology recently informed the Duke of Devonshire, the Secretary of State for the Colonies, that a private friend desired to offer two post-graduate scholarships at the college of £300 apiece for students from universities of each of the Dominions—Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa and of India, for the session of 1924-5.

The selection of the students is left to the overseas Prime Ministers.

The Duke of Devonshire, replying, says he was authorised by the Prime Ministers and Lord Peel on behalf of India to gladly accept the munificent offer.

The Prime Ministers will take the matter up immediately on their return home.

The Duke is asking the college board for further information for guidance in making arrangements for the selection of the beneficiaries.

MORE COMMENT ABOUT WEATHER

Do Not Delay Picking Flowers Too Long is the Warning.

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—(Canadian Press)—Spring like weather prevails in practically all parts of Canada and continuance of high temperatures for next few days is predicted by officials of Dominion Meterological office here. Exceptional temperatures were registered yesterday, particularly in Ontario where with mecury hovering betwen 45 and 50 degrees. Amateur weather prophets are unanimous in belief that winter will be one of moderate temperatures but Meteorological experts, while admitting that present conditions are extraordinary, refuse to make definite predictions.

"We do not predict any change in weather conditions for few days at least but if you are going to pick any flowers reported blooming in many sections of province we would not advise any undue delay," says weatherman yesterday morning, when questioned as to prospects for continuation of unusually mild weather that has prevailed throughout country. He would not admit that there has been any record breaking heat wave for December.

Compared with temperatures prevailing a year ago when advocates of "good old fashioned winter" had their innings. Thermometer readings for yesterday and this morning are most interesting. On December 10 of last year prairies were enjoying bracing cold dry weather with temperatures of 28 below at Edmonton, 18 below at Calgary and 20 below at Saskatoon. Yesterday thermometer reading ranged from 36 above at Calgary to 32 above at Edmonton. Toronto was 32 degrees warmer yesterday than a year ago with temperatures of 18 last and 50 yesterday. Difference at Montreal was even more pronounced with 4 last year and 44 yesterday. At Quebec where mercury dropped at 2 below a year ago yesterday it was recorded as 42.

INDIANS STILL SEEKING RIGHTS

PARIS, Dec. 11. — (Canadian Press)—Deskaha, Chief of the Six Nations, who dwell on the Canadian shores of Lake Erie gave a touch of picturesqueness to yesterdays' inaugurate meeting of Councilof the League of Nations here. While council was discussing agenda in private session, the Iroquis chieftain was pacing the corridors outside giving voice to grievances of the Indians against Great Britain in Canada. Supported by his lawyer, H. T. Scott Huntington, of Seattle, he complained that the council at its September session in Geneva failed to grant due consideration to his petition that the Six Nations confederacy be recognized as sovereign people by virtue of a treaty with King George III. Deskaha declared he would never abandon battle for recognition of his people's independence and would come daily to the council sessions until the complaint of the Indians had been taken up officially. He has a new application asking that council appoint a commission to investigate the evidence with object of ascertaining whether it justifies the assembly of the league recognizing the applicant as sovereign State. Indian chief and his attorney talked to members of council as they were entering an leaving the meeting, seeking support for the Indian's cause.

CAUTIOUS MANILA GETS STACK OF MANY WEAPONS

MANILA, Dec. 11.—(Associated Press)—The authorities have redoubled their watchfulness at public meetings, and especially at sporting events, as a precaution against disorders. This step is taken because of the feeling engendered by the recent campaign and election.

An example of the necessity for such watchfulness was recently given at a cock fight in the suburbs. All spectators on entering were admonished to park their weapons. After the crowd had assembled officers found a stack of knives, bolos, "knucks" and pistols large enough to equip a small army or stock a museum.

NEEDS CHANGE IN ACT

Peterborough, Ont.,
Dec. 8, 1923.

To The Editor of The Examiner,—

I am sorry—and no doubt are many others—that so far the Council has made no provision for payment of the members of the Police force for the present month. This should not be. They are in no way responsible for differences existing between Police Commission and Council, and payment, particularly at the present season, should not be postponed.

The troubles in question have arisen through the ill-considered legislation of recent date—legislation which I am sure was never submitted for consideration to the Law Officers of the Government.

The Police Commission has proceeded to act in good faith in performing the duties imposed upon it. The members are forced to act by virtue of their office. These gentlemen have no choice in the matter—they must function, and they have, we must freely acknowledge, done all in their power to give us an efficient police force and a wise administration of its affairs.

The City Council—as representing the ratepayers—has, however, quite properly a right to take exception to the existing legislation, under which the Police Board is constituted. This legislation violates the general principle giving to the tax payer a voice in the expenditure of his money. The people will not submit to violation of this principle—notable examples being Cromwell's rebellion and the American War. We now have the taxing bodies—the Council, School Board, City Trust, Utilities Commission—all appointed directly or indirectly by those who contribute to the moneys these boards expend. The Police Commission (through no assertion of authority by its members as I have pointed out) constitutes an exception.

It would be right, I should consider, while retaining the valuable services of the present members of the Board to add to their numbers at least two, to be elected by direct vote or by the Council—the majority of the Commission being thus representative of the tax payers.

Other Municipalities are facing the same question, and it is quite probable, at its next session the Legislative will deal, and deal satisfactorily, with the whole matter.

Under these circumstances the Council might well, without prejudicing its position, advance the small sum required to meet the monthly salaries. These will have to be paid through the Council ultimately—why not now?

Yours truly,
E. A. PECK.

SPECIAL SPEAKERS IN THE CHURCHES

Rev. G. I. Campbell and Rev. T. A. Moore Here

Special speakers at George Street, Trinity and St. James' Methodist churches during morning and evening services Sunday were two representatives of the Departments of Social Service and Evangelism in the Methodist church; Rev. G. I. Campbell, B.D., of Ottawa, one of the associate secretaries, and Rev. T. Albert Moore, D. D., general secretary of the Department of Social Service and Evangelism. Rev. Mr. Campbell spoke at George street church in the morning, and at St. James' Methodist church in the evening. Rev. Mr. Moore was the special speaker at Trinity church's morning service, and at the evening service of George street.

Rev. Mr. Campbell's morning address at George street church dealt with the responsibility of the church to the outsider, to the person who had no vital interest in the church or in Christianity. He outlined some of the phases of the activities of the Department of Social Service and Evangelism in connection with the prohibition campaign in all parts of the country.

Speaking at St. James' Methodist church in the evening, Rev. Mr. Campbell stressed particularly the furtherance of social and moral work, as carried on by the departments he represents, referring to the temperance situation in the province, to the growing evil of narcotic drug addiction, and to the prevalence of gambling, not only on the race tracks, but among society women at bridge parties. He also alluded to the dangers in the spread of social diseases.

Rev. T. A. Moore, at the evening service in George street church, answered his own question as to whether or not the Church was a failure by an exposition of the three-fold work of the church, which he declared had been triumphantly vindicated: first, in keeping alive in the community it served the consciousness of God, second, in fulfilling its mission by the exaltation of human values, which were held in low esteem by pagan peoples; third, in being an active force for social betterment. Mr. Moore illustrated his arguments by examples taken from the everyday work of the two departments he represents.

At Trinity church in the morning, Rev. Mr. Moore outlined the work of the Departments of Social Service and Evangelism, speaking with regard to the former subject on the progress made in rescue work amongst delinquent boys and girls in the various homes maintained by the church from Halifax to Vancouver, and, with regard to evangelism, instancing the newer methods in use which take into account the rescue of the entire life.

He retailed also some statistics showing the advantages accruing in prohibition endeavor from the enforcement of the O. T. A. as compared with Government sale of liquor, as carried out in the provinces of British Columbia and Quebec.

At all three churches, there were splendid congregations to hear the speakers, both eloquent and well-informed men. The musical programmes prepared for the occasion were exceptionally good.

MIDLAND EXPECTS BRANCH OF C.P.R.

MIDLAND, Dec. 10. — Rumors are afloat to the effect that the C. P. R. would like to secure a connection at this point. It is understood that surveyors have been about the waterfront at different times, but no definite information has been given out that action of any kind was to be taken. One thing that appears to lend weight to the idea that some move was to be made appears to be the action of the company in failing to carry out their proposed big changes at Port McNicholl. Extensive changes in their line at that point were under contemplation for some time that were to take the form of improving the approach to that port, which would run into a very large sum of money. Plans were prepared for this work but all of a sudden the whole scheme was abandoned, and almost immediately after surveyors and others close to the company were looking about and securing information concerning this point. It is understood that the company might be assured of ample waterfront at this point now and other changes might be made that would be beneficial to the company should they decide to extend their line to Midland. The obstacles in the way of the company reaching Midland are not great and their assurance of good business would appear to be bright. The company this year handled a tremendous amount of grain to the head of the lakes and by increasing their activities here they could handle an enormous quantity from this point east. Independent elevators might be established that would take care of part of that end of the business for them.

"I knew it! But I am afraid it's too late now. They not only will resent your indifference, but they are extremely averse to anything like sensational drama in private life. And your appearance here tonight is extremely dramatic! They'll never forgive you," he reiterated solemnly.

"Really? Well, let us enjoy the next act," she added indulgently. "I hope you will remain here."

The curtain had gone up. The audience, balked of the private drama in which they had manifested no aversion whatever from playing their own role, transferred their attention to the stage, although Clavering saw more than one glance wander across the house, and those in the adjoining boxes felt themselves free to peer persistently.

Farrar had not finished bowing and kissing her hands before the next curtain when the door of the box opened once more and Mr. Osborne entered. After a few words with Madame Zattiany he went out and returned almost immediately with three other men, two of his own generation and a tall, dark, extremely good-looking young man, whose easy negligent air was set askew by the eager expression of his eyes. Clavering, not waiting to be introduced, fled to the smoking-room and took a seat in a corner with his back to the other occupants lest some one recognize him and speak to him. A hideous fear had invaded his soul. If this world, so indisputably her own, did accept her—as he had not a doubt it would if she demanded it: he made light of Dinwiddie's fears, knowing her as he did—where would he come in? Sheer luck, supplemented by his own initiative, had given him a clear field for a few weeks but what chance would he have, not only if her house were overrun with people, but if she were pursued by men with so much more to offer, with whom she must have so much in common? He might be the equal of the best of them in blood and the superior of many, but his life had not been of the order to equip him with those minor but essential and armorail arts, that assured ease and distinction, possessed by men not only born into the best society but bred in it, and who had lived on their background, not on their nerves. To be "born" is not enough. It is long association that counts, and the "air" may be acquired by men of inferior birth but the supreme opportunity. He had managed to interest her because he had no rival, and he was young and his mind in tune with hers. That alone, no doubt, was the secret of her imaginative flight in his direction. For the first time in his life he felt a sense of inferiority, and for the moment he made no attempt to shake it off. He was in the depths of despair. He did not even light a cigarette. . . . He could hear a group of young men discussing her, . . . as one of their own kind . . . with no lack of respect . . . some new friend of Mrs. Oglethorpe's—they were too young to remember Mary Ogden. . . . She would have many "knights" on the morrow . . . he felt on the far side of a rapidly widening gulf . . . and he had once sought to dig a gulf! Disapproved! Questioned! Tried to forget her! He wished he had abducted her.

A bell rang. The men moved toward the foyer. In a few moments he followed. The attendant opened the Oglethorpe door and he entered the ante-room he saw that the box was still filled with men. They had evidently taken root. He was possessed by a dull anger, and as it spread upward his sense of inferiority took flight. He'd root them all, damn them. After all he had more brains than any man in the house and his manners could be as good and as bad as their own. Moreover, he was probably more strongly endowed in other ways than the youngest of them. The wise thing for him to do was to let her find it out the next time they were alone.

COULD HARDLY LIFT HER HANDS

Terrible Weakness Caused by Digestive Disorders Quickly Relieved by Dreco. Peterborough Lady Now Has Splendid Appetite, Sleeps Soundly, and Strength Is Returning Every Day.

"For years I had suffered from stomach trouble and indigestion," says Mrs. Eliza Killingbeck, of 200 Edinburgh Street, Peterboro, Ont. "I had a very poor appetite and would bloat terribly after eating. I had frequent dizzy spells and felt very weak and run down. My nerves were all on edge and I couldn't sleep at night. Sometimes I was so weak I could hardly lift my hands to my mouth. My kidneys, too, were bad, and I suffered no end of misery from them. I was also chronically constipated.

"I took all kinds of medicines and dear knows how much money I spent trying to get relief, but nothing did me any good. Finally my son advised me to try Dreco, and after taking four bottles I can truthfully say that I feel 100 per cent. better. While I still have to watch my diet, everything that I do eat agrees with me and my nerves are steadier than for years. I sleep soundly, have no more dizzy spells or bloating and my kidneys are in good condition. My constipation is also relieved and I feel that my experience with Dreco justifies me in recommending it very highly."

Dreco is the most reliable corrective and tonic for digestive disorders made; it stops suffering by stopping the cause of it, which in most cases is nothing but weak, lazy digestive organs. Dreco strengthens and regulates these organs till they do their work properly. It contains no mercury, potash, or habit forming drugs, being a purely herbal preparation with absolutely nothing injurious in it.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterborough by Bond's Drug Store. Go there to-day and ask for Mr. Vaughan, the Dreco Expert, and let him explain the merits of this great remedy. There is no charge and he will tell you honestly if he believes Dreco will benefit you. Dreco is also sold in other cities as follows: Lakefield—E. H. Northey. Campbellford—J. E. Birks, and by a good druggist everywhere.

A TORONTO MAN FOUND DEAD BED

Defective Gas Jet Believed to Have Been Cause

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—(Canadian Press). — His bedroom filled with gas escaping from an open jet, Peter Rogers, veteran of the 216th Battalion, was found dead here yesterday afternoon. Inspector Mackie of Dundas Street East Division examined the jet and found it was defective. Rogers, when he retired, had evidently thought he turned the light out, but in turning it he turned it out and then on again. He was 62 years of age.

A MODERN MOSES IS BEING CARED FOR

Ten Months Old Child Found in the Wake of a Flood.

BERGAMO, Dec. 11. — (United Press).—Young mothers of Louvers are taking turns nursing a ten months old infant found by the soldiers floating in some rushes on the edge of the Oriboglio River, nine days after the destructive flood that followed the bursting of Lake Gleno Dam. The child has been christened "Moses." It is believed that the parents perished in the flood, but how the infant survived is a mystery.

Rub Baby's Cold Away With Vicks

"Is a Wonderful Remedy," Says New Brunswick Mother.

Treat one cold with Vicks VapoRub and, as in the case reported below, you will adopt this external method for all the cold troubles of the family.

When the little ones come in wet and sniffling, just appy Vicks over throat and chest and cover with a flannel cloth. Repeat at bedtime.

Vicks acts like a liniment or plaster. In addition, its ingredients, vaporized by the body heat, are inhaled all night long.

The child is usually better next morning and the bad after-effects of internal dosing are avoided. Just as good, of course, for adults.

Mrs. Emanuel Albert, of Ramsay Street, Campbellton, New Brunswick, writes: "Vicks VapoRub is a wonderful remedy. My children were all sick with colds and I rubbed their chests with Vicks, always obtaining the best results. My two months old baby was very ill with a cold in his chest and I was afraid he would have inflammation of the lungs for he coughed so much. I applied Vicks and it relieved him. I can't speak too highly of Vicks."

At all drug stores 50c a jar. For a free test size package, write Vick Chemical Co., 344 St. Paul St., W., Montreal, P.Q.

Though Vicks is new in Canada it has a remarkable sale in the States. Over 17 million jars used yearly.

CHURCHILL ON WITNESS STAND

Figures in Libel Suit Against Lord Alfred Douglas.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Winston Spencer Churchill while on the witness stand to-day in his libel suit against Lord Alfred Douglas, was accused of having been an entirely discredited person throughout war when he held several high cabinet posts successively and of having been dominated by his friend, Sir Ernest Cassel, "a full-blown German, naturalized in England." Charges which were called "suggestions" by their maker, Cecil Hayes, counsel for Lord Alfred, failed to ruffle Mr. Churchill, who kept both his temper and his sense of humor, as to being discredited, he said "I repudiate your suggestion I don't believe it is true, if it were it would be undeserved," Sir Ernest Cassel was sent to Germany in 1912 by Premier Asquith, Mr. Churchill then being head of admiralty.

With reference to this the former first lord explained that Cassel was persona grata with the Kaiser and also faithful to the British Crown. "I put it to you, you were influenced by Cassel in their German overtures and were dominated by his personality," suggested defense counsel, to which Mr. Churchill replied "Certainly not I was influenced by an earnest desire to prevent a breach between England and Germany." Witness denied that he had seen a communique on the battle of Jutland before it was published in newspapers.

WOULD PARTICIPATE IN THE CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, December 11 (Canadian Press). — The Washington Government "would view with favour" the participation of United States experts in the Reparations Commission inquiry committees now under consideration, it was announced at hte White House.

It was emphasised that the Government itself could not participate in any official capacity or appoint representatives on committees.

CHRISTMAS PARCELS FOR THE UNITED STATES

Those who post parcels of merchandise for the United States should understand that these parcels are sent by the Canadian post offices to a United States' border customs office and not direct to the office named in the address. At this border customs office, the parcels are examined for customs duty. Owing to the immense volume of business at the Christmas period, there is apt to be delay in the handling of the parcels and the public are advised to post all Christmas parcels for the United States in exceptionally good time.

Parcels for the United States may be insured at the same rate as in Canada.

TIME LIMIT NOTICE C.G.E. STOCKHOLDERS

Saturday Last Day for Exchange of Stock—Meeting After December 15

TORONTO, Dec 11.—Saturday of this week is the last day shareholders of the Canadian General Electric Company can take advantage of the offer of the American company to purchase their shares under the proposed plan outlined in October last. December 15 is the last day the trust company will accept deposits of certificates, and after that date the company will call a special general meeting of shareholders to approve of the deal.

No official information on the number of shares deposited will be given out until a later date, but the street is of the opinion the number they seek will be deposited.

Unless the market for the shares shows an improvement this week brokers who are carrying large blocks of Canadian General Electric will offer their shares to the company, as the terms are more attractive than the present market offers.

ANNUAL MEETING DOMINION GRANGE

Ex-Premier E. C. Drury Gave a Spirited Address

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Characterizing the Protective tariff as "a species of Socialism," ex-Premier Drury, in addressing the annual meeting of the Dominion Grange here last night, declared that the farmers of the Dominion would have to learn that the tariff was the most serious stumbling-block in the way of their permanent prosperity and would have to concentrate all their energies on the removal of that obstacle.

Mr. Drury's address followed a discussion on the co-operative movement.

Mr. Drury expressed his belief in the soundness of the co-operative principle, but warned that its application, no matter how successful, would never lift the farmer from the slough of economic depression in which he was wallowed so long as the tariff was allowed to interfere with the freedom of industry and commerce.

"I believe strongly in the potentiality of properly directed co-operating," said Mr. Drury, "but I doubt if that alone can solve all of the farmers' ills.

"We must hold aloft the torch of economic good sense in this country. We must see to it that freedom prevails. I have very little faith in schemes that are built on the proposition to interfere with the natural course of trade and industry. There is no question but that the condition of agriculture in this country is very serious. We must not devote our time to cure-alls or quack remedies. We must concentrate all our efforts to attack that which interferes with free production—protection—a species of Socialism. There's the thing we must attack."

GEORGE STREET SUNDAY CLASS HELD A MEETING

Plans were discussed for future work and for distribution of Christmas cheer.

The business session was followed by a pleasant social hour, when contests and games were indulged in, awards going to Mesdames Strong and Payne. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mesdames Spence and Hales. A vote of thanks, moved by Mrs. Woods and seconded by Mrs. Wylie, voiced the gratitude of the members to Mrs. Curtis for her hospitality.

FOLKS SUFFER IN RHINELAND

Grave Danger of a Conflagration Unless Conditions Improve.

DUESSELDORF, Dec. 11. — (United Press). — One hundred thousand Rhinelanders are already starving, or are on the brink of starvation. If this continues, there is grave danger of a conflagration, a leading article in the Rheinsche Zeitung declared to-day, as a Rhineland committee of sixty met at Cologne to consider the questions related to the proposed Rhine Federal State. The programme for the committee of sixty included the formation of a directorate to hear the report of negotiations between the committee of fifteen and the French High Commissioner, M. Tirard.

Leading Rhinelanders are impatient at the failure of the German Government to clarify its position regarding the proposed state; they declare it imperative that Chancellor Marx indicate immediately whether the Rhineland is to be given independence or declared an inseparable part of the German Republic.

THE WEATHER.

A cold wave has overspread the prairie provinces, coming i from the north. The Pass yesterday gave 10 below zero, Winnipeg zero, and many points in Northern Ontario had zero or below last night. The cold wave is passing north of us, and we are still favored with beautifully bright weather. In continuation of my remarks upon the mild weather, a gentleman informs me that having occasion to dig a post hole he was surprised to find many large sized fish worms, showing that the ground was unfrozen.—W.P.

RECITAL IN THE CONSERVATORY

The Conservatory of Music Hall was filled last night for the vocal recital given by the pupils of Mrs. Dorothy Allin Park. Each contribution to a lengthy programme received merited applause, and floral tributes were presented to many of the singers, including handsome bouquets to Mrs. Park and Mrs. W. Harold Young, whose skilful work as accompanist added much to the enjoyment of a major portion of the programme. Accompanists for the balance of the vocal numbers were Mrs. Park and Miss Isabel Donnelly.

The programme, handled with excellent effect by those taking part, was an ambitious one, and ranged all the way from songs by the English Purcell to the modern bits by Cadman and Sanderson. Opera and oratorio in selections from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" and Handel's "Messiah," alternated with the songs of Chaminade and Landon Ronald. Schubert, Gounod, Brahms, Elgar, Puccini, Bach, Liszt, Grieg, and Liza Lehmann made their contributions to a varied and interesting recital. Two numbers were sung in Italian, Voi che sapete (What is this feeling?) from "Nozze de Figaro" rendered by Miss Ina Allen, and "Ch'ella mi creda," from Puccini's "Girl of the Golden West,' by Mr. Maurice H. Park. Songs in French were given by Miss Mary Elliott and Mrs. Ford Turner, singing "Sans Amour" and "Quand tu chantes."

Mrs. Park's skill as a teacher was well exemplified last evening in the quality of the work of her pupils, whose clear tones, careful attention to phrasing, and excellence of enunciation, combined with confident execution and attractive platform manner, make their individual contributions to the programme very pleasing. The pretty gowns worn by the ladies taking part added their quota to a charming recital.

The contralto numbers by Mrs. F. Turner, sung in pleasing fashion included Schubert's "Evening Boat Song,' and two numbers by Gounod; 'Quand tu chantes," and "Now's the Time to Live," and Miss Alice Price's deep tones had good scope in Elgar's "Like to the Damask Rose," and Landon Ronald's "Cradle Song." Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland gave a dramatic interpretation that focussed the attention to her rendition of "The Sailor's Wife" and "Down in the Forest." Miss Ina Allen sang with ability and ease the Italian number, "Voi che sapete," and two other songs; Bach's "My Heart Ever Faithful," and Liszt's "Lorelei." Mrs. L. Spriggs had a pretty double number in "Flower of my Heart" and Purcell's quaint "Passing By," and Miss Mary Elliott sang one of the always-popular negro spirituals, "Deep River," and gay Chaminade number. "Sans Amour." Miss Mabel Gardiner gave a fetching rendition of her trio of charming melodic morceaux; Liza Lehmanns "The Swing." Brahms' "Little Sandman" and the charming "Birthday" song by Woodman. Miss Geraldine Collins' clear, sweet voice was effective in "Babye Myne" and "I hear a Thrush at Eve," by Cadman, and Miss Berenice Cain made a splendid impression with her strong, soaring tones in "When you Come Home,' and "My World."

Miss Leah Black had two lovely numbers in "Vale (Farewell) and "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses," Miss Bertha Hill gave a capable rendition of her two songs, the odd "Melisande in the Wood," and "My Dear Soul," and Miss Frances Robertsons sweet high tones were noticeable in 'Ma Curly Headed Baby" and "The Enchanted Glade."

Several of the most pleasing contributions to an effective recital were made by the three men whose vocal efforts gave a note of pleasing contrast to the lighter feminine voices. Mr. M. H. Park, Mr R. A. Brown and Mr. Stanley Willis sang eight songs that were received with hearty applause.

Mr. M. H. Park's splendid voice was at its best in his Italian number, "Ch'ella mi creda," which was rendered in outstanding fashion. He sang also "An Indian Love Song" by Lehmann and Handel's "Where'er you Walk."

Mr. R. A. Brown gave, in his usual excellent voice and capable manner, John Irelands "Sea Fever", and two songs of the fair; "Come to the Fair" and "The Ballad Monger."

A young singer whose voice gives promise of being something out of the ordinary was Mr. Stanley Willis whose ringing tenor has a clear, pure timbre very pleasing to listen to. Mr. Willis sang the recitative "Comfort Ye" and the aria, "Every Valley" from Handel's "Messiah," and finished the programme with two short songs, "Obstination" and Grieg's "I Love Thee."

At the conclusion of the programme, Mr. R. Gliddon voiced the appreciation of the audience in a few words, complimenting Mrs. Park on her ability as a teacher and vocal artist, and recording the complimentary remarks on Mrs. Park's ability made by her late teacher, Dalton Baker, now of New York city.

LAUDER SONGS WERE A FEATURE

Jack Smith and Bob Hendry Help to Entertain Rotarians.

At yesterday's luncheon of the Rotary Club the entertainers were Messrs. Jack Smith and Bob Hendry whose numbers delighted the Rotarians. Mr. Smith sang a solo in excellent voice, and Mr. Hendry contributed Harry Lauder's 'Rotary' song, which made a big hit. The two led the Rotarians in singing a number of Lauder choruses, including "Roamin' in the Gloamin'" and "It's Always Nice to Sing," and the work of the two entertainers added considerable life to the luncheon.

Severe Kidney Trouble

Mrs. F. Rinehart, Campbellville, Ont., writes:

"I had trouble with my kidneys and very frequent urination. This was followed by pains which at times were very severe. The doctor said I had inflammation of the bladder and that an operation might be necessary. To this I refused, and began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. From the first few doses I felt the benefit. The pains left, urination was corrected, and I have had no recurrence of these ailments."

CURLING CLUB REACHES LIMITED TOTAL OF 165

Number of Scheduled Rinks Increased From 36 to 39 — Enthusiasm Is Keener Than Ever.

TANKARD SKIPS.

Curling club ballots last night admitted forty-two new members bringing the total to the limit of 165 as prescribed by the constitution and that settles the membership question for the season, and any men who may have intended to join but deferred sending in their notices are now left on the outside looking in on what promises to be a big winter at the Charlotte Street rink. They may find occasional places on No. 8, but vicarious curling from the gallery is about as tame and remote as a prize fight or musical comedy by radio.

More than eighty members turned out last night for the drawing of the scheduled rinks. Thirty-nine of them were filled up for the inter-club games, an increase of three over last year's list. The scheduled series will keep 156 members in action, the remaining nine being unattached.

Before the membership roll was closed by the addition of last night's batch of fortytwo, the renewed applications previously and promptly received totalled 123, setting up a new record for the club with seven more than the last largest number of renewals that had stood at 116. All of which graphically presents the growth of the curling club, its flourishing conditions, the enthusiasm of the players themselves, the game's hold upon those who follow and appreciate it, and finally the prospects for the approaching season.

Skips Selected.

Several changes were made in the personnel of the Tankard and District Cup rinks as follow: Ray Best and Alex Kay were appointed to skip Peterboro's Tankard rinks, Kay succeeding J. W. McDermid; and J. Wells Fraser and George Boucher will captain the District Cup rinks, Boucher taking the place of Walter Oke.

District Growing.

The Peterboro curling district this year will be enlarged by the inclusion of the Campbellford and Hastings clubs and Warkworth should register considerable progress this winter if their ambitions of a year ago are realized.

WILL PRESENT MEDALS TO DE LAVAL SOCCER CLUB

A meeting of the Peterborough and District Junior Football Association was held last evening in the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. W. Willis presided. It was decided upon to present the De Laval football team the junior champions of the city, with medals at some future date. The meeting was adjourned till the 3rd of January.

HASTINGS HOCKEY MEETING

HASTINGS, Nov. 10.—The Hastings Hockey Association held their annual meeting in the Clarendon hotel on Friday evening, but are very impatient as there is yet no sign of the rink opening. They expect to have a short season of the winter's sport.

SCHOOL LEAGUE ALL SET AGAIN

Thirty Representatives at Annual Meeting in Port Hope — C. S. Browne Convenor.

The Eastern Ontario Hockey League is all set for a most successful season this year providing old man Winter sends around the necessary ice. At the annual meeting of the league, held in Port Hope High school Saturday afternoon, about thirty representatives of the different schools in the league were present.

Last year the league comprised teams from the High schools or Collegiates of the following places: Colborne, Bowmanville, Port Perry, Picton, Peterborough, Orillia, Port Hope, Bracebridge, Deseronto, Napanee, Belleville, Gravenhurst, Lindsay, Whitby, Oshawa and Cobourg. There are indications that this year the number will be increased. Peterborough Collegiate and St. Peter's school each had a representative at the meetinng.

There were no changes in rules, O. H.A. rules being followed throughout. Small ice surfaces proved a "bugbear" to some, but it was decided to stick by the O. H. A. opinion in this matter also.

The convenors of the different sections were designated. Mr. C. S. Browne, last year's president of the league, was appointed convenor for this district.

The local district will likely consist of St. Peter's school, P. C. I. and Lindsay C I. or perhaps, if Woodville and Fenelon Falls enter, the Peterborough schools will form a group of their own.

The team winning the championship of the East will, if the season admits, play off with the Toronto champions, if Toronto schools are agreeable. Last year Bracebridge H. S. won the championship. They were a fast crew and would have given any of the Toronto school teams a hard battle.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Dear Sir,—In a report of the action of the police constables against the city, which appeared in yesterday's paper certain so-called comment of mine was published. I have no recollections of making this comment and certainly made no comment for publication. Moreover, I could not have said that a case of this kind only comes up once in twenty years. As a matter of fact they are not unusual.

Yours truly
JOSEPH WEARING.

Dr. Ray Scott was summoned, dressed the wound, and removed the boy to his home.

COLLINS MAY GO TO WASHINGTON

Is For Sale or Trade Frank Chance Announced at Baseball Meeting.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—The International League voted yesterday to play 168 games next season, opening April 18. This action was taken at an executive meeting of club owners held here to-day in connection with the convention of more than 1,200 baseball leaders, who have assembled to set their house in order for the 1924 season.

The International League owners also approved the sale of the Newark Club to Newark business men and settled other routine questions. It was reported that Charles (Buck) Herzog, the former National Leaguer, was under consideration as manager.

Eddie Collins, premier second baseman of the American League, and Captain of the Chicago White Sox, is for sale or trade and may become manager of the Washington Club, for the 1924 season.

Frank Chance, newly appointed manager of the White Sox, made the startling announcement last night that Collins had been cast into the players' market.

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Club, while not denying that he had talked over the prospects of landing Collins, intimated that he was in a receptive mood. He declined to make a flat statement, saying: "I can't say a thing now."

Collins, if he is traded, will be one of the last two players who remained on the club wrecked in 1920 as a result of the world series scandal of 1919.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE OPENS

Young Men and Roamers Will Clash Tomorrow Night.

The City Basketball League will get under way to-morrow night in the Y.M.C.A. Gymnasium, with a game between the young men, last year's winners, and Doug Loomis' team, the Roamers. Both outfits are strong and the game should be a rattling good exhibition. The League battle will be preceeeded by a preliminary exhibition struggle.

It is likely that the fast Chicago quartette of which Tom Pogue is a member, will be seen in action here soon. Their visit will be one of the features of the basketball season.

Bowling

GOOD BOWLING LAST NIGHT AT WATER STREE ALLEYS

There was plenty of bowling last night at the Water Street Alleys, when several leagues were in action.

In the City Ten Pin League, the C.G.E. took two from the High Rollers. All three games were hard fought battles, the High Rollers losing the second game by only eight pins. There were three men on the C.G.E. team who rolled over 500, namely, Foster with an even 500, Stanton with 501 and Jackson going 512. For the High Rollers Gifford was high with 502. Solomon had the high single splitting the wood for 216.

In the Westclox Ten Pin League, the Big Ben and the Bay Ben split even each winning a game. The Big Ben outfit pulled the last game out of the fire, by the small margin of one pin. DeGraw was high man on the evening's play, rolling 362 for two games. He also grabbed the high single with an even 200 score. Curry was high man for his team, the Big Bens, with a total score of 309, for the two games.

In the Mercantile Five Pin League the Bell Telephone took all three from the Locks Works. Some big league bowling was turned in by the Bell Telephone gang in their last game, the wire tappers crashing the pins for a total of 928. The Bell Telephone outfit have been rolling some great scores in their games in the Mercantile League, and will likely prove to be the team to beat for the honors. Elliott was high man of the evening, rolling 578 for three game and having the high single of 212. Lush of the same outfit rolled 554. Nicholls was high man for the losers rolling 479.

In the Westclox Ladies' League, the Owls took two out of three from the Wrens. Good scores were rolled by the girls, Miss Wolfe of the Owls having the high score for three games with 287. She also had the high single of 128. Miss Martin, also of the Owls, rolled 267 for three gains. For the losers Miss Curry and Miss Graham rolled 249 and 248 respectively, for three games.

With the appointment of J. P. Bond to the O.H.A. Executive, the East will be again well served. Mr. Bond lost out in the annual elections by a single vote, when few of the clubs in the East were represented.

Although the weather is more suitable for summer and fall sports, and there is bound to be difficulty in lining up teams for the Junior City Hockey League, another meeting of those interested in this organization will be held this week.

Arthur Lipsett's death is a loss to sport. This young man always played to win an honorable victory.

STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 11. — (United Press.)—Irregularity marked the opening stages of the stock market to-day. Some issues showed decided gains. General Electric started at 199 up 2, and Corn Products at 140, a gain of 1 1-2.

Among the Rails, Union Pacific at 129 1-2 and New York Central 105 1-8 made advances of 1-2 and 1-4 respectively, while Southern Railway lost 18 ,selling at 37 3-8.

The Steels were off fractionally.

Under the leadership of American Can, the entire list turned stronger Canadian advanced to 105, for a gain of two full points.

The directors will meet shortly to consider the advisability of an extra dividend and may decide on either $1 or $2 a share in addition to the regular $1.25 quarterly payment. Earnings for 1923 are estimated at around $20 a share and the prospects for 1924 are excellent.

Studebaker advanced to 105. Steel, after its early reaction followed the trend of the market and recovered its loss, selling at 94 3-4 while Sloss Sheffield reached 58, up 3-4 over the previous close. Irregularity resulted in the late morning from further sellingof tobacco stocks, which carried Tobacco Products off more than six points from its recent high and resulted in a break of similar extent in Schulte. These declines, however, failed to check special strength among the Sugars and Motors. Steel shares reflected the uncertainty over the outlook. But the best judges of the Steel situation expressed confidence that operations would not remain around their present level for a prolonged period.

The Steel Corporation is operating around eighty per cent. and the Independents seventy per cent. on the average. The unfilled tonnage does not give a true idea of the situation, due largely to the fact that a great deal of forward business will not figure on the order books until next year.

REV. J. ROLLINS ACCEPTED CALL

Presbytery Meeting Held in Port Hope Today—Leaves Next Week.

At a meeting of the session of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday, the members were informed by their pastor, Rev. Mr. Rollins, of his intention of accepting the call recently made to him from St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Renfrew.

A general congregational meeting was held in the church last evening, to consider the citation of Mr. Rollins by the congregation of the Renfrew Church. Richard Lees, senior elder of the church, presided. The general tone of the meeting was one of regret with regard to Mr. Rollins' decision, and many eulogistic remarks were made concerning his work here, appreciative of the quality of his pastoral endeavors. Many members spoke in the highest terms of the character and worth of the reverend gentleman. At this meeting, Messrs. R. Lees and A. Macfarlane were appointed to represent the congregation at the meeting of the Presbytery held in Port Hope to-day.

Presbytery Meeting.

At the session of the Presbytery of Peterboro, held in Port Hope this morning, the citation of Rev. Mr. Rollins by the Presbyterian Church of St. Andrew's in Renfrew was considered. The Session and Board and congregation of St. Andrew's Church here were represented by Messrs. R. Lees, A. Macfarlane and George Evans. St. Andrew's Church in Renfrew was represented by Rev. A. J. McMullen and Mr. Stewart, barrister. After numerous arguments pro and con had been advanced by both sides, the call was placed in the hands of Mr. Rollins, who signified his intention of accepting it, and was accordingly released from the pastorate of his church here after the 16th of December.

Rev. Mr. Rollins will probably leave the city for Renfrew on Monday or Tuesday of next week.

NEW LEASE LIFE.

Another citizen of Peterboro has informed The Examiner of late-blooming flowers in his garden. On the 11th day of December, Mr. P. Walker, who lives below the Locks Bridge, is able to pick stocks and pansies for a boutonniere or a table bouquet. Pansies are hardy enough to bloom in such untimely conditions, but it is remarkable to find stocks growing at such a season of the year. The stock bed in Mr. Walker's garden ceased blooming, as usual, some months ago, but apparently took on a new lease of life and commenced operations again recently, when a whole new growth of the pale pink and mauve flowers has sprung up.

AT THE GRAND.

THE REX COMPANY.

That the Rex Stock Company have lost none of their popularity in Peterborough was demonstrated at the Grand last evening, when Mr. Snelgrove and his associates opened their local season, which is limited to six half weeks, with a sparkling performance of Somerset Maughn's post war comedy, "Too Many Husbands." Rex has the majority of his old company with him, including Zana Vaughn, Hazel Williams, Billy Seymour and Billy Yule and has added several new members, whose work last night showed that they are a tower of strength to the organization. Judged on last evening's performance the Rex Company is better balanced and stronger than ever, and with the list of plays announced by Mr. Snelgrove, the playgoers can look forward to a series of fine attractions durding the Peterborough engagement of the company.

Rex was fortunate in his opening vehicle, inasmuch as "Too Many Husbands" is a brilliant comedy, built around an unusual situation and containing a host of witty lines and some most interesting character types. In order that the pleasure of those who have not yet seen the play may not be spoiled, the details of the plot must not be divulged. "Too Many Husbands" deals with the experience of Virginia Sputleworth (Zana Vaughn) who in response to the war time urge, marries a soldier who is subsequently reported killed, then marries his best pal, another soldier, only to have husband No. 1 turn up just as No. 2 has begun to pall upon Victoria and she has her eye upon a war profiteer as a prospective third. The ingredients are all there for a laughable comedy and Mr. Maughn has developed the situation with the deft skill that made him one of the most successful of British playwrights.

The Rex organization do full justice to the offering. Rex has a part as the second husband that offers him a full chance to demonstrate his ability as a comedian and he has rarely been seen here in a more successful role. Billy Seymour is always amusing as Husband No. 1 and Billy Yule does good work as the profiteer. Zana Vaughn is Victoria, a role that gives her plenty of scope and she offers a convincing portrayal of the much married heroine. Hazel Williams has two parts in the cast. Ethel Van Orden and Herbert Lewis, new members of the company, are thoroughly adequate in their respective parts.

Vaudeville numbers were given between acts by Hazel Williams and Billy Seymour and by an Australian recruit, who sings comic songs very successfully.

"Too Many Husbands" will be presented again to-night and to-morrow night, and for the first three nights of next week "Twin Beds" will be the attraction.

Rex and his company received a warm welcome from a capacity audience last night and are evidently in for a splendid run here.

It will be a most pleasant surprise to local theatre-goers to hear that Manager Bickell of the Grand Opera House has succeeded in booking Sir John Martin-Harvey and his entire London Company to appear here for one night only, Saturday, December 15th in one of Sir John's most popular successes, "A Cigarette Maker's Romance", a play in which he has equalled the fame attained in "The Only Way", and which is too well known to require an extended description here.

Sir John and his Company came direct from the Century Theatre, New York, where the present tour was opened on October 25th, when he was accorded the most flattering reception ever given an English star, or any other, since the days of his old chief, Sir Henry Irving.

During his stay on Broadway Sir John was beseiged on every side with offers to prolong his stay all season, but he was adamant in his refusal to break his promise to come to Canada this year.

AT THE CAPITOL.

A super-drama of the films, a romance from the pages of history, that is screened with a magnitude that sets it on a notable plane among productions for the silver sheet, is "Ashes of Vengeance," with Norma Talmadge as the star, supported by Conway Tearle and Wallace Beery, and a strong auxiliary cast.

The fair Norma, although her youth is not quite so apparent in this picture as in some of her earlier productions, and her unaristocratic nose has an irritating habit of obtruding itself occasionally into an otherwise lovely profile, does some splendid acting in this picture. She poses just a little more than is necessary, but otherwise it is an adequate and satisfying Yeoland that takes the central part in a wonderful picture, brought from the pages of history without an apparent jarring note. It is truly a marvellous spectacle, this picture of the life and times, the manners and customs of a forgotten age, when men strutted in silks and satins, in ruffs and ruffles, and women were queens in mediaeval costumes, their gorgeous gowns encrusted with silver and jewels, their flowing veils depending from the towering points of stiff head dresses. Yeoland is the proud lady who falls in love with the son of an enemy, a de Breiac, who has sworn himself into slavery to her house for five years, to save the life of a woman who afterwards jilts him for a loftier love. Enmeshed in the convolutions of the love tale are the fortunes of Yeoland's cousin, Denise, who is betrothed unwillingly to the Duc de Tours, a profligate nobleman. He casts a favoring eye on Yeoland and complications ensue immediately. Before the finale, a torturer comes into the picture, a dark-browed gentleman with a heated iron for the hero's eyes, and there is a stirring scene where a hand to hand fight is in progress on a curving staircase.

The scenes in which foreign troops ride through the streets of Paris, slaughtering enemies of the king, are realistic and vivid, and form only one of the mighty intervals in a mammoth spectacle that entwines a picturesque romance about its episodes of strife and sword play.

AT THE ROYAL.

"Virginian" Better than Book and Play—Marks Epoch in Screen Art

The Great Outdoor Romance has reached the screen. At last the west, in all its beauty, romance, drama and magnificence has been captured in celluloid. "The Virginian," now showing at Royal Theatre, may be called, without exaggeration an epoch-making picture.

When Preferred Pictures Corporation announced, some time ago, that they intended making a film version of "The Virginian," people were dubious about it. So many great stories, so many classic masterpieces, have been butchered and ruined by filming that those who have loved Owen Wister's great story feared that the picture might not do it justice.

They may rest assured. The picture is better than the book. This may seem a startling statement, when it is realized that "The Virginian" has been for twenty years the supreme masterpiece of the west. The situations which in cold type have thrilled millions are more than realized in the picture. Against the most magnificent natural backgrounds ever seen in a motion picture, this mighty drama is enacted by a cast so good that the story might have been writen for them.

Great Cast

Kenneth Harlan as "The Virginian" has been ideally chosen, and Florence Vidor gives the finest characterization of her career in the role of Molly, the little school teacher from Vermont. Russell Simpson is a vicious looking and convincing villain, playing the role of Trampas, the cattle-thief. Raymond Hatton, one of the finest character actors on the screen, supplies much of the comedy in the role of Shorty. Then there is Pat O'Malley as the renegade Steve, whose cattle-stealing forces his best friend to order his execution.

The picture starts with a thrill—the rescue of Molly from the overthrown stage-coach by the Virginian—and piles drama upon drama, situation upon situation, working up to one of the mightiest climaxes ever screened. Tears and laughter alternate in quick succession.

One comes away from the showing of "The Virginian" with the realization that the screen has achieved a genuine masterpiece. This picture will thrill everyone who sees it. It will take its place among the three or four genuine achievements of the motion picture.

Roosevelt Liked Book

Theodore Roosevelt, who was a great friend of Owen Wister, spoke in the highest terms of the book, endorsing it as a vivid and true picture of the west. It is unfortunate that he could not have lived to see the picture, for he would have found it a living, breathing visualization of the story that he loved so well.

Tom Forman directed "The Virginian," and with this picture takes his place among the Griffiths and De Milles of screendom.

The comedy "The Optimist" with Bud Hamilton is original and cleverly done. Don't overlook a visit to the Royal to-night or Wednesday.

CURLY, FOREMAN OF CIRCLE ARROW DESCRIBES GIRL

When Emerson Hough wrote "The Man Next Door," which will be seen at the Royal Theatre on Thursday he had Curly, a ranch foreman, tell the story. Curly was a little off spelling, and did not always get his diction just right, but he knew what he wanted to say and said it. The heroine, "Bonnie Bell" Wright, the role played by Alice Calhoun, was the apple of his eye, and this is what he said of her:

"Bonnie Bell pleased her pa a plenty for she took to the saddle like a duck, so to speak. Time she was 15 she could ride any of the stock we had and if a bronc pitched when she rid him she thought that was all right; she thought it was just a way horses had, something to be put up with that did not amount to much. She didn't know no better. She never did think that anything or anybody had it in for her nowadays whatever. She naturally believed that everything and everybody liked her, for that was the way it shaped there on the range. There wasn't a hand on the place that would allow of anything to cross Bonnie Bell in any way, shape or manner."

Bonnie Bell, however, had occasion to change her views when her father took her to the city to live. It took more than immense wealth and her sunny disposition to get recognition.

AT THE REGENT.

250 REGULARS

By special permission from the commandant of Fort MacArthur, two hundred and fifty artillery regulars under Captain W. D. Collins and Lieut. B. F Manning were secured to lend military color to the initial scenes depicting Major Nancy Fair's return from abroad after glorious service with the Red Cross, while over seven hundred extras formed the gay reception throng at the station. These scenes form an important part of the Fred Niblo production "The Famous Mrs. Fair," now presented at the Regent Theatre, a Metro-Louis B. Mayer production.

Seven cameramen were used to record the scenes which held up all railway and road traffic in Beverly Hills for hours. The millionaire colony of this fashionable suburb made a fete of the event.

BIG TURNOUT AT BOXING CLASSES

The opening of the P.A.A.A. boxing classes at the G.W.V.A. hall last night brought out a large number of boxing enthusiasts, not a few of whom displayed cleverness with the padded mitts. The boxers now have splendid quarters in which to do their training.

Several very capable and experienced boxers who have not appeared before the local public are helping to promote the sport here, and the boxing committee will have an attractive card for the first show which will be held at an early date.

The classes are held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday night, and are open to all.

LEON TROTSKY SAID IS CRITICALLY ILL

RIGA, Dec. 11—(United Press).—Arrivals from Moscow to-day declared Leon Trotsky, Soviet War Minister, has been critically ill for six weeks and incapacitated for work. The illness has been diagnosed as ulcers or cancer of the stomach, it is said. The Moscow press admits Trotsky is ill, but does not explain the nature of the disease.

TO HOLD MEETING FRIDAY EVENING

Members of the City Council to Give Addresses

On Friday evening next, Mayor W. H. Taylor and other members of the city council will address the war veterans and citizens generally in the G.W.V.A. hall on civic government. Prospective candidates for municipal offices are invited to attend. This will be an important meeting and all ratepayers interested in civic affairs are urged to be present.

THE COMMUNITY CHEST MEETING

Will Meet Again Next Week in Effort to Reach Decision.

A meeting of social service organizations of the city, called to consider the establishment of a Community Fund in Peterboro, was held last evening in the Board Room of the Chamber of Commerce, under the auspices of the Young Men's Section. Mr. F. Overend, president of this section, occupied the chair. After some discussion of the project, it was decided, on account of inadequate representation of city organizations, to adjourn the meeting until next Monday evening, when the question will again come up for consideration.

Representatives present included Mrs. N. H. Sutton, who spoke for the King's Daughters, stating that this society would be in favor of the fund, if allowed to continue holding its annual dance. L. Frazer secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said the fund would not interfere with this dance.

Mrs. Jos. Knox, repreesnting the Big Sisterhood and Dr. N. H. Sutton and R. E. Layfield, for the G. W.V.A., expressed themselves in favor of the scheme, also Miss L. J. Davidson, speaking for the Red Cross Association

G. H. Roper, for the Y.M.C.A., said that the association had not had time to thoroughly discuss the matter and that he could therefore give no definite answer.

Miss Leta Brownscombe, representing the Y.W.C.A., stated that the association would be in favor of it if it goes ahead.

R. C. Braund, speaking for the Salvation Army, said that in other cities where this scheme had been tried, the Army had not received enough money to carry on with and that they wish to stay out and carry on as at present.

Mrs. Jos. Knox said that a great many of the ladies in the Children's Aid Society Board did not understand the idea thoroughly and that they would like one of the members of the Young Men's Section to be present at their regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon.

Thos. Barrie enquired if this scheme had been tried out, and with what success, in any other city or town of the same size as Peterborough.

L. Frazer replied that in a city of about thirteen thousand population in North Dakota this was tried last year and receipts amounted to over $20,000.

On motion of R. E. Layfield, delegates from last night's meeting to next week's meeting were named, in Messrs. D. R. Wrenn and W. R. Morris and Miss L. J. Davidson. Representatives from all interested organizations in the city were also asked to be present.

WEDDING BELLS

VYSE—O'ROURKE.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the Church of the Imaculate Conception, on November 24, at 8:00 o'clock, when Annie Gertrude O'Rourke, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Rourke, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Herbert Vyse. Rev. Father Power performed the ceremony.

The bride was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Jean Bullgard. The young couple will reside on Ware street.

SMITH—SIDDALL.

A pretty wedding took place at three o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Siddall, 108 Lansdowne Street, when Jennie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Siddall, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Samuel Smith, of Peterboro, Rev. R. Pogue performing the ceremony. A sister of the bride, Miss Nora Siddall, acted as bridesmaid, and a brother, Hugh Siddall, as best man.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a lovely gown of white silk crepe de chine, white veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of cream chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid was attired in grey silk crepe de chine, trimmed with orchid, with hat and shoes of grey and bouquet of carnations.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. J. Foster, and Mr. F. Hall sang during the signing of the register.

After the ceremony, dainty refreshments were served, Mr. and Mrs. Smith leaving on the eight o'clock evening train for a short honeymoon at western points. The bride travelled in a grey costume, with hat and shoes to match and brown wrap. Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside in Peterboro.

FALL SESSION COUNTY COURT HAS ONE CASE

Grand Jury Brings True Bill in Case of James Newell, Charged With Seduction Judge Ward Presides

CIVIL CASES

Only one criminal case was set down for trial at the General Sessions of the Peace which opened this afternoon before His Honor Judge Ward with a jury.

The Grand Jury returned a true bill in this case, in which James Newell is charged with, being over 21 years of age, unlawfully under promise of marriage seducing Clarice McColl, a young woman under 21 years of age. The offence is alleged to have taken place at Norwood on October 2, 1922.

Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C. prosecuted and G. N. Gordon, K.C appeared for the prisoner.

The Grand Jury.

The Grand Jury is composed of David Buchanan, Levi Campbell, John Carter, Edward Crough, William Garvey, Robert H. Hicks, James Irwin, M. J. Roach, Robert Sedgwick, Ormiston Stewart, Michael Walsh, Albert Webster, A. W. Wood.

Robert Hicks was selected as foreman.

His Honor Judge Ward, in addressing the Grand Jury, said:

"In addressing the jury of the County of Peterborough for the first time, I think I should explain my occupancy of the bench at this time. In 1919 an act provided for the distribution of judges in the Province of Ontario, and in 1920 an order-in-council was passed creating the county of Peterborough and the counties of Northumberland and Durham, of which I am judge, judicial districts. It was further provided that judges should rotate in the performance of their duties and it is in compliance with that order that I am before you to-day.

It is a pleasure to be here for the first time to-day and it is also a pleasure for me to greet the members of the bar of Peterobrough, from whom I crave and have no doubt I shall receive that co-operation which is so essential to a judge in the discharge of his duties.

There is only one case on the docket for your consideration. It is a criminal case and that is the only thing you will have to consider in connection with your duties in this court.

In that case the prisoner is charged with seduction under promise of marriage.

It is your duty as members of the Grand Jury to find whether or not there is sufficient evidence of the charge to present a true bill. You must be satisfied of the age of the two parties who are referred to in this indictment. You have to satisfy yourselves that the offense has been committed.

If you do not find sufficient evidence to make a prima facie case you will present not a true bill but a no bill.

You have further duties to perform —to visit the jail, the house of refuge, and the hospitals. It is not an imperative duty to visit the hospitals, but it is well to inquire into some of these.

The jury then retired.

Civil Case.

The case of Fleming vs. Kidd was commenced, in which Joseph Fleming claims wages of John L. Kidd, said to have been earned since 1921. Kidd declared that he did not hire plaintiff.

Joseph Wearing appeared for the plaintiff and N. A. McColl of Norwood, acted for the defendant.

Albert Webster was a witness for the plaintiff, and the defendant and his wife gave evidence for the defence.

MEETING OF A.Y.P.A.

A meeting of the A.Y.P.A. of St. George's church was held last evening when a debate on the resolution "That the working man has more happiness than the rich man," was held. Miss I. Williams presided. The president of the society, Mr. L. Field, assisted by Miss Phyllis Robertson, upheld the affirmative side of the question, while the negative agguments were voiced by Mr. S. Field and Miss R. Howarth. On account on only one judge being on hand, Mr. R. Braun, no decision was given.

BALDWIN GOVERNMENT PLACES ITS FUTURE IN HANDS OF PARLIAMENT

Cabinet Decides to Follow Precedents in Passing Through Post-Election Crisis — May Have Passive Support of One of the Opposition Groups in the House.

HOUSE MEETS JAN. 8.

LONDON, December 12 (Canadian Press). — Stanley Baldwin's Cabinet yesterday considered its position resulting from the loss of the Conservative parliamentary majority through last week's elections, and of the courses open to it, and decided upon that of the postponement of its end.

A brief official statement was given to the press representatives last night at the Premier's official residence in Downing Street, which tells the story tersely. It reads:

"After careful consideration of the constitutional precedents and their bearing upon the situation which has arisen as a result of the general elections, the Cabinet decided unanimously that it was their constitutional duty to meet the Parliament at the earliest possible moment.

"The Parliament, therefore, will re-assemble on 8th January."

In Conservative Party councils, both within and outside the Cabinet, the judgment had crystallised since Monday that this would be the most dignified and most nearly in accordance with the precedents of the paths possible for it to choose.

Depends on Opposition.

The position now is that the Conservatives may be dismissed from office soon after the newly elected House of Commons meets on 8th January, and the House has been organised and gets down to business. This will depend almost entirely upon the goodwill or hostility of the Labour and Liberal Parties.

Should an understanding be arranged with either of the opposing groups that the Conservatives shall have its benevolent tolerance, dependent upon their abstention from proposing any obnoxious measures, the Conservative Cabinet will be the nominal ruler of the country indefinitely.

This is the prospect the Cabinet's discussion frames. An event of the afternoon upon which politicians place the greatest importance seals this prospect. Former Premier Asquith, who is the leader of the reunited Liberal Party, and for the time being holds his leadership beyond dispute—because the Asquith wing of the Liberal Party was far more successful in the elections than Lloyd-George's special followers—spent a half-hour in conference with Premier Baldwin.

Conditional Support.

Everyone recalled instantly the parallel event at the beginning of the war when the Conservative leaders spontaneously pledged the support of their Party to Asquith. It is believed Mr. Asquith's mission to Downing Street was to tender on behalf of the Liberals a sympathetic policy toward the Conservative Government, but of course upon conditions. The support certainly will go so far as to assist the Conservatives in passing the Appropriation Bills to carry on the Government, which is the most necessary work before the Parliament. Whether they will go further is a question.

The resolution was in accord with the theory of Parliament technicians that the Cabinet should not scuttle from office before Parliament meets, but should place its fate and its dismissal in the hands of the Commons.

Coalitions Dead.

There is a belief that, because of the country's dislike for another general election in the near future, one or the other of the Opposition Parties may co-operate with the Conservatives for as long a time as two or three years if possible, but there is no talk of a coalition, which would mean a Cabinet of two Parties.

Coalition Governments are dead in Great Britain, in the view of party leaders who have expressed opinions on the subject.

Unsatisfactory Result.

Even at the best, the result of the election has proved unsatisfactory. Instead of tranquility the country is in for a period of political uncertainty which may be terminated at any time by the succession of a Labour Government. What part, if any, the King's views have played in the present solution is a topic of heated gossip, although the newspapers refrain from discussing it be-

Lumber Industry Waiting for Snow

QUEBEC, Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press).—While in the cities the dearth of snow is being welcomed by some people, in the woods it has created a serious condition which, if continued, will result in disaster to a large number of lumbering concerns.

Hundreds of thousands of feet of lumber have been cut and yarded in preparation for the winter haul, and today this lumber is still standing with no prospect of its being taken out for some time to come. Such a condition of affairs is unprecedented in the annals of the lumber companies.

INTERCEPT BIG WHISKEY CARGO

Skipper of Boat Fined $1,000 For Carrying 3,000 Gallons Worth $59,000 at Sudbury.

SUDBURY, Dec. 12.— (Canadian Press).—J. A. Johnson of Midland, skipper of small steamer "Helen S," which landed 3000 gallons of liquor near Cutler, some weeks ago, entered plea of guilty in Sudbury Police Court to a charge of carrying liquor and was fined $1000 and cost.

It is understood that the police have struck a snag in attempting to connect this big shipment with "man higher up" and for present case will end with hearing on Thursday of charge against a Sudbury merchant of "having for sale." The case has created somewhat of sensation in North country and it is believed that the original owner of the booze cargo, which had total value of $59,000, was not paid for it, and several bootleggers have obtained large stocks without putting up the usual financial payment, charges of double crossing by bootlegger gangs are freely made.

PUBLIC MEETING HOME BANK CASE.

Depositors' Executives Decided Upon Necessity For Open Discussion — Members of Parliament to Speak.

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Home Bank failure is to be discussed at a public meeting to be held in Massey Hall, Wednesday evening, December 19. The public meeting was decided upon yesterday afternoon at a session of the depositors' executive. All the Dominion members of Parliament will be invited to discuss the banking system, with special relation to the failure and liquidation of the Home Bank. Senators Kemp and MacDonnell will also be asked to address the meeting. Mayor Maguire will preside. A number of city clergymen and public citizens will be asked to address the gathering.

It is understood, the Massey Hall meeting will be the first of a number to be held in all parts of Canada.

Invitations to speak will be extended to-day by secretary I. E. Weldon to H. C. McLeod, former general manager of Bank of Nova Scotia, Canon H. J. Cody and Manager Hand.

GATES OPEN TO CHINESE OFFICIALS.

PEKING, China, Dec. 12.—(Associated Press)—China is overstocked with officials, and 10,000 such employees of the government are slated or dismissal under the new regime, according to the Asiatic News Agency. Many men of inferior qualifications today hold governmental positions, and as a result competent employees are not getting their salaries.

NEW CURRENCY ON GOLD BASIS FOR RHINELAND

Will Replace Paper Money in Occupied States of Germany — A Government Issue.

BY CHRISTMAS.

DUSSELDORF, Germany, Dec. 12.—Paper currency in the occupied areas of Germany is to be replaced shortly, probably before the Christmastide, by a new currency, backed by gold. The new bill will be of four marks, twenty pfennigs, or the value of the dollar.

Instead of being provided by private concerns, it is planned that issue will be made by the Landsbank of the Rhine Province, aided by the German Government. This arrangement came as a complete surprise, as it had been intended to establish a Rhenish issue bank at Cologne, financed by German, Belgian, French and Swiss capitalists. Negotiations have been in progress for some time between representatives of the Berlin Government and an organization known as the Union of Municipalities and Communes in the occupied territory, with the purpose of putting out the new issues.

Called "Gold Mark."

The originators of the new system have expressly avoided use of the term "Rhenish mark," in connection with the new issue, or anything suggesting separation from the Reich government. It therefore will be known as the "gold mark."

The Berlin authorities are understood to have been anxious to launch the new system so as to avoid having to show its hand against the proposed private bank issue, at which the Berlin Government looked with suspicion, believing the big industrialists behind it were seeking "to fish in troubled waters," and thus deliberately or unwittingly promote a tendency toward the Rhineland separation.

Mrs. Nathaniel Crowe Died at Pigeon Lake.

LINDSAY, Dec. 12.—The death occurred at the "Cedars", Pigeon Lake, on Saturday of Mrs. Nathaniel Crowe, a woman who was well known known to summer tourists who visited the Kawartha Lakes. The deceased who was aged 75 years and 7 months, with her husband conducted the resort at the "Cedars" on the north side of Pigeon Lake for a number of years. Recently their son, Cecil, has conducted the resort, which was patronized by a number of tourists each season, as it is situated near Nogies' Creek and in a good fishing section.

The funeral took place on Monday, the remains being laid to rest in Harvey Cemetery.

FIND TOMB FROM TIME OF CHRIST

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12. — (United Press).—An undisturbed tomb, dating from the time of Christ, has been discovered in the valley of Kedron, near Jerusalem.

Word of the important discovery was received here from Dr. W. F. Albright of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem and announced by Dr. James Alan Montgomery, President of the school.

The tomb contained more than a score of ossuaries. A dozen of these bore genealogies of the occupants. All the dead apparently belonged to one family which flourished about the time of Christ.

QUILL PENS COME BACK.

LEIPSIG, Dec. 12.—(Associated Press)—Germans are returning to the use of the quill because of the high cost of steel pens. An ordinary steel pen now costs 200 million marks, and is beyond the reach of many Germans.

CARGOES OF ALE HUSTLED ABOUT

One Launch Seized By U.S. Coastguards at Fort Erie With 250 Cases.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 12.—Canadian Press.) — Canadian Customs officials yesterday seized the forty foot launch Dawn which, with the launch Nora, was chased to the Fort Erie, Ont., ferry dock by United States Coast Guards last night. The Dawn and the Nora each had 250 cases of Canadian ale aboard, authorities said.

The Dawn was of United States registry. The Nora, of Canadian registry, was warned to leave port within 24 hours.

The Dawn and the Nora were said to carry clearance papers out of Cleveland, Ohio, for Havana, Cuba. Customs officials believed the ale had found its way into the holds somewhere between the Ohio port and the mouth of the Niagara. The craft fled for cover Monday night after an unsuccessful attempt to slip down the river past the Coast Guards.

The Coast Guard was hovering in United States waters Tuesday waiting for the Nora to cast off from Canadian soil.

WINDSOR-OWEN SOUND HIGHWAY

Scheme Laid Before Hon. G. S. Henry By Sarnia Chamber of Commerce.

SARNIA, Ont., Dec. 12. — With unbounded enthusism an attendance that taxed the capacity of the Chamber of Commerce, yesterday, heard Hon. G. S. Henry, Ontario Minister of Highways, assure the Blue Water Highway Asociation that the programme mapped out by that organization, a scheme of a road from Windsor to Owen Sound following the Great Lakes and rivers, would receive the earnest attention of the governmnt. An imposing array of facts and figures were placed before the Minister by J. M. McAdams, President of the Association and some pertinent facts not so complimentary to the Provincial Highway system, were handed out by Mayor Wands, of Chatham, who declared that Chatham boasted eight miles of the most dangerous road in Canada.

George P. France, Secretary, told of the rising flood of tourists to Ontario, pointing out how this had risen from 5,218 cars through the Sarnia gateway in 1920, to 7,741 in 1921, and to 43,000 cars averaging three people each in 1922.

MUST PAY STORAGE IN GOLD OR LOSE.

Germans Cannot Recover Their Furniture Unless They Produce Precious Metal.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—(Associated Press)—Berlin warehouses are packed with furniture, much of which is being sold for storage charges. Foreigners and Germans alike have been compelled to shrink the size of their lodgings because of housing regulations and rising living costs. Since October 1 the storage charges on all furniture must be paid in gold money. Many persons cannot raise this money. The warehouses may sell furniture upon which the storage is not paid four weeks after it falls due.

Consequently many of the storage warehouses will be able to buy in large quantities of furniture at a low price, which will compensate them for the low charges they were forced to accept before the new regulations were put into force.

DEFER NAMING PARTY LEADER

Saskatchewan Conservatives Agreed Platform and Leadership Too Vital For Present Decision.

SASKATOON, Sask., Dec. 12, — (Canadian Press.)—Decision to postpone the appointment of a provincial leader and the adoption of a platform to another convention which may be called by the executive within a comparatively short time, was made yesterday by the Saskatchewan Provincial Convention of the Conservative Association. It was the feeling of the delegates that the matters of platform and leadership were vitally important to the future of the party in the province and that they could not be dealt with adequately at this time. The executive is to appoint committees which will undertake the preparation of a platform and will make a recommendation as to the leadership.

Business of the convention itself was concluded this afternoon and tonight there was an open meeting which was addressed by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Hon. Howard Ferguson and Hon. Robert Rogers. About 400 delegates were present this afternoon and officials of the organization were greatly pleased that so much success had attended their efforts.

Officers Elected.

Dr. H. E. Munroe of Saskatoon, was elected president of the association. Other officers chosen were: Mrs. F. A. Lawton, of Yorkton, first vice-president; N. R. Craig, of Moose Jaw, second vice-president; Geo. E. Cruise, of Saskatoon, secretary; and Hon. James Wilson, Saskatoon, treasurer.

Messages of good hope and confidence were brought to the convention this afternoon by Mr. Meighen and Mr. Ferguson, who addressed the delegates briefly. Following the statement in the morning by Hon. Robert Rogers that he had compromised all his differences with the organization and had forgotten the past, Mr. Meighen and Mr. Rogers greeted one another warmly as they met on the platform.

Endorse Meighen.

The convention adopted enthusiastically an endorsation of Mr. Meighen's leadership, this immediately preceding Mr. Meighen's address. The federal leader said nothing delighted him more than to see a revival in the west of the Conservative party. It was a joy and inspiration to see such a convention after years of difficulty and darkness which had descended on the party in the west. These days were about over, he felt. The Conservative party had been weakened and its organization disintegrated by its entrance into a union government, but success now was on the way. Mr. Meighen reviewed the history of by-elections since the present government took office and declared that millions of dollars from the public funds had been appropriated for the specific purpose of winning the Halifax contest last week. It had been allocated for public works in the constituency. He challenged Premier King to open any other Nova Scotia constituency.

Ferguson's Pledge.

Hon. Howard Ferguson was introduced as "The pride of Ontario," he predicted that Ontario, with 81 members in the next Parliament, would return 70 of them to support Mr. Meighen. He expressed his surprise and delight at the size of the present convention. Ontario was greatly interested in watching the west work out its problems.

"We have been drifting into the habit of thinking provincially," said Mr. Ferguson, and he regretted this tendency. "We must get over these barriers. There should be no east and no west, but just one Canada."

FRANCHISE FOR FRENCH WOMEN WAS PROJECTED

Bill Introduced in Lower House Would Give Women Over Twenty-Five Years Right to Vote

DECLINE IN BIRTHS.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press).—The fight for woman suffrage in France was renewed in the French Parliament yesterday, when a bill drawn up by Justin Godard, a former Minister in the Clemenceau Cabinet, and signed by 83 other deputies, ranging from the most conservative groups to the Socialists, was introduced for consideration by the French Chamber.

The general discussion was immediately switched to the question of a family vote by representation, Deputy Roulleaux-Dugage having sponsored an amendment amending the franchise so that fathers of families should have as many votes as there were children under age.

Accept the Principle.

The Chamber, while refusing to take a stand on this particular, accepted the principle of woman suffrage, when by a vote of 440 to 135, it referred M. Roulleaux-Dugage's amendment to a committee, with the request that such parts of it which referred to the vote for women be incorporated in the general bill.

The measures provides that "the laws and regulations governing the franchise and eligibility to vote shall apply to women over twenty-five years of age."

Approved Before.

The sentiment in the Chamber in favor of woman suffrage, which has already been expressed, in May, 1919, was again prominent throughout the debate, and while Premier Poincare thus far has refrained from taking a stand on the question, it is regarded as certain, unless the Premier chooses to assume the responsibility of opposing it by a question of confidence, that the bill will again be passed by the lower House before recess.

In introducing his bill Deputy Roulleaux-Dugage drew attention to the fact that while Germany was increasing 24,000,000 in population and Great Britain 19,000,000, France had only gained 2,000,000 inhabitants. He recalled that the class of 1922, that is the total of youths called to the colors that year, numbered 258,000, and estimated that unless a change occurred, the 1936 class would number only 113,000.

The bill will come up for further discussion when M. Godard's projected measure, granting every woman over twenty-five years the right to vote in France, is taken up next Thursday.

MONTREAL, Dec. 12. — The Montreal Policemen's Union won the first step in its fight against the resolution of the City Council ordering them to resign from their organization or leave the police force, when Mr. Justice Coderre in the Practice Division of the Superior Court granted a petition this afternoon for an interlocutory injunction to restrain the city from putting its order into effect pending the decision of annulment proceedings now before the court.

Former Lindsay Man Murdered in Alabama.

LINDSAY, Dec. 12.—Mrs. E. K. Drath, of Fairhope, Alabama, who murdered W. H. Ray, a former resident of Lindsay, at Bay Minette, Alabama, a few months ago, was found guilty of manslaughter at the latter place on December 7th. A recommendation of one year sentence in the penitentiary was made by the jury, which was out four hours. Ray was shot down by the woman in front of his home. Love affairs as well as money matters were the cause of the crime.

Counsel for the woman has entered an appeal against the judgment of the court.

Reds Gain Control Of Polish Society

PORT ARTHUR, Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Alleging that the society Prosvita of the Ukrainian people, an organization to spread culture among its members and to encourage the advancement of the ideals of Canadian citizenship, has been usurped by new arrivals in the country and followers of societies in affiliation with the Third Internationale of Moscow, members of the Prosvita are appealing to the courts here to restore to them their property and rights.

The trial was opened before Justice Kelly at Port Arthur Tuesday morning. The case has considerable interest, especially west of the Great Lakes and principally in Winnipeg where the "Reds" are alleged to have driven out the Prosvita and taken over the properties of the society. The case is expected to take several days to complete.

HANDLE WHEAT IN HOME PORTS

Establishment of Direct Canadian Trade Routes Montreal Man's Mission

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.— (Canadian Press.)—Dr. W. L. MacDougal, chairman of the Montreal Board of Harbor Commissioners, arrived on the Majestic Tuesday after an extended trip in Europe during which he investigated the trade situation with particular regard to the establishment of direct Canadian trade routes.

As a result of his survey he said he was convinced that "a great percentage" of Canadian wheat exports can be handled exclusively through Canadian ports.

Mr. MacDougal investigated conditions in Great Britain, France, Belgium and Germany. He was optimistic regarding possibilities of developing Canadian trade in all these countries with the exception of Germany. He did not believe much chance existed for an immediate increase in Canadian-German trade because German traders are insisting that trade with other countries be conducted on a credit basis. He described conditions throughout the German Republic as bad.

Referring to the export of Canadian wheat through Canadian ports, he said:

"I think by co-operation between the buyers in Europe and the shippers in Canada, it should be possible to handle a very great percentage of Canadan wheat exclusively through Canadian ports."

Great Britain, he said, can always be regarded as a steady customer and he was optimistic regarding Canadian trade relations with the mother country. His investigation there was conducted during the election campaign and business conditions, he said, were chaotic.

In France and Belgium, Mr. MacDougal said he found the populations working very hard and economic conditions good. He visited the ports of Hamburg and Copenhagen, where he studied port facilities.

Tampico Garrison and Several States Reported to Have Joined Revolt—Three Forces March on Capital.

SHOTS EXCHANGED.

VERA CRUZ, Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press).—The garrison at Tampico has joined the revolutionary movement against the Government of President Obregon, according to a wireless message received here from Tampico.

General headquarters of the revolutionists announced the receipt of the wireless message Tuesday afternoon. If the news is accurate the entire Gulf Coast of Mexico now is in the hands of the rebels.

The general advance against Mexico City began this morning. The advance guard already has reached Limon Plaza, on the Inter-Ocean Railway near Oriental, which is an important junction about midway between Vera Cruz and Mexico City. Shots were exchanged between the revolutionists and the Obregon forces during the advance.

A strong garrison of the forces of President Obregon is located at Oriental.

Three Columns Converge.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 12.— The States of Aguas Caliente and Guanajato have revolted and three separate forces are now marching on Mexico City from as many directions according to a report received here Tuesday. The report is based on a wireless message sent by General Estrada from Guadalajara to the station at Vera Cruz, which in turn was relayed from there in a private message to San Antonio.

Demonstration By Police of Paris Halted By the Republican Guards.

PARIS, Dec. 12.— Police to the number of six or eight hundred, but not in uniform, met in front of the City Hall yesterday for the purpose of carrying out a demonstration for an increase in their annual indemnity. They demand that the indemnity, because of the high cost of living, be increased from 720 francs to 1,800.

Several of the chiefs tried vainly to calm the excitement, but were hooted down. The men decided to carry out their manifestation before the Chamber of Deputies building, but were stopped by Republican Guards when they reached the Place De La Concords. A lively encounter ensued, in which M. Guichard, Director of the Judiciary Police, who tried to dissuade the manifestants from continuing the disturbance, was severly injured.

CHILDREN'S AID HELD A MEETING

Three New Members—Aftermath of Criminal Cases.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society was held yesterday afternoon in the board-room at the Chamber of Commerce, with a good attendance. The president, B. F. Ackerman, was in the chair, and members present included Mesdames Gibbs, Knox, Fanning, Devey, Holmes, Darcey, Hodgson, Welsh, Miss G. L. Brooks, Messrs. Edgar, Powell, Abraham, Stocker, Parsons, Dobbin, Hopwood, Dr. E. Wood and Dr. D. C. King.

The President welcomed three new members to the Board yesterday: Miss G. L. Brooks, J. Abraham and W. J. Abraham.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, J. Edgar, who also gave the matron's report for the month. Mrs. W. H. Gibbs read the report of the Purchasing Committee, and the agent, G. W. Powell, gave the report for November, as follows: Applications, 4; children brought in (not wards), 5; returned to parents (not wards), 1; children made wards, 1; sent to the industrial school (from court, 1; wards placed out, 2; returned to Shelter, 3; approximate mileage covered, 150; places visited, 1 (Cordova Mines).

The Matron's report showed 18 children in the Shelter during the month, 8 brought in, and 3 sent out, and no sickness.

Committees Struck.

Appointments for committees were made at yesterday's meeting. The Finance and Purchasing Committees were re-elected, with the Finance Committee including R. H. Parsons, Mrs. J. Knox, Mrs. W. Darcey. The Purchasing Committee includes Mesdames Gibbs, Fanning and Welsh. F. H. Dobbin remains as chairman of the Property Committee, with Messrs. W. J. Hopwood and J. Abraham as new members. A committee of one to supervise the Shelter grounds made J. Edgar the sole member by unanimous choice.

G. W. Powell reported an invitation to the Shelter children to an entertainment to be held for them and the Orphanage children at the Y.W.C.A. on the morning of December 22nd. It was decided to hold the annual Shelter Christmas treat for the children on Friday, December 21st.

The ladies of the Music Committee requested, and were granted, a loan of $41 from the funds of the general board, to supplement a fund which they have been accumulating for some time past, to be used for the purchase of a piano for the Shelter.

Aftermath of Criminal Cases.

The extent of the work of the Society with regard to helping minors was exemplified in two cases which came up for consideration yesterday, both resulting from social crimes which occupied positions on the court's dockets during the past year, one in Dummer and one in the city. The problem of providing a home for a girl of seventeen and her child, complicated by the fact "that she is one of those mothers who wants to keep her baby, if possible," faces the society in one instance, while the other question occupying their attention is the problem of the proper method to pursue in a home where, according to the assertions of several members, the father's misdemeanors have started a train of circumstances ending in a general present condition of debasement, and moral degradation, in a home where seven children are under the care of the mother.

The agent, G. W. Powell, was delegated to provide a home for the girl in the first instance, until her relatives are consulted, while arrangements for taking over the care of the entire family of children in the other case were advocated. Mr. Powell informed the board that regulations governing the adoption of an entire family of children were very strict, but that he would make investigation of the circumstances.

Purchases and Donations.

Accounts for the month were passed, as follows: W. J. Oke, $4; Mrs. W. H. Gervin (eggs), $2.66; J. P. Bond, $1.25; Stock's Bakery, $9.18; Grafton and Co., 50 cents; New Centre Meat Market, $8.98; J. C. Turnbull Co., $13.02; J. M. Heard (milk), $12; R. Neill, Ltd., $3.92; McDermid & Jury $1.15; Telephones $6.16; G. W. Powell, $3.40; Peterboro Utilities Commission, $15.30; McDonald Lumber Co., 87 cents; Sanitary Ice Co., $2.50; W. R. Turner, $31.07; E. F. Mason, $54.37; R. Hall & Son, Ltd., $2.54; H. Allen, $2; Grant & Thorpe, $31.78; R. Denne, $15.70; G. W. Powell, $12.79—total, $235.14.

Donations for the month included the following: Belmont Club, cake and sandwiches; Mrs. Simmons, girl's coat; L.O.L. No. 1175, weiners, sausage and buns; I.O.D.E., 2 cakes; Knox Church, bread and cake; Scottish Rite Masonic Lodge, apples, buns, grapes; Unity Class, Trinity Church, scarfs, mittens, touques; Mrs. Hardle, cloth; George Street Methodist Church, pie, salads, chickens, bread; Porter White Co., buns and bread; All Saints' Bazaar, cake; Orange Lodge, sandwiches and cake; Mrs. H. SHOOTS TWO PERSONS THEN COMMITS SUICIDE

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press).—John George, aged 26, insurance agent, shot and probably fatally wounded his wife, shot and killed Eugene Coats, aged 17, Mrs. George's dancing partner, and committed suicide at a dance in the home of his mother-in-law here a few minutes after midnight to-day. That George was crazed with jealously because his wife had refused to dance with him and was dancing with Coats, was the theory advanced by investigators who sought a motive for his act. "I had been expecting this; he had threatened it before." Mrs. George was quoted as having declared after she and Coats had been taken to a hospital. Coats died soon after his removal to the hospital.

JURY DISAGREED IN NEWELL CASE

Prisoner Inicted by Grand Jury Yesterday Was Releesed at 1 a.m. on Bail to Appear for New Trial.

When the jury returned in the early hours of this morning, after considering the case of James Newell, charged with the seduction of a girl under 21 years of age, under promise of marriage, it reported disagreement, and the prisoner was released under bail to appear on Jan. 15th for trial by a judge without a jury.

Shortly after the complainant commenced giving her evidence, His Honor Judge Ward cleared the court room of all spectators, on suggestion of Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K. C. G. N. Gordon K. C., acting for the defendant, had no objection.

The evidence showed that the complainant became acquainte with the prisoner about eight years ago, when she lived in Asphodel township, and the alleged promise of marriage was made on the day after Christmas a year ago last Christmas. Newell, the defendant, asked her if she thought enough of him to wait until he was in a position to marry, and she replied that she did.

Two witnesses were produced by the defense who testified to improper relations with the complainant. They were William Miller of Peterboro, and Albert Hynes of Campbellford.

The Petit Jury.

The petit jury was composed of James O'Connell, Armour Road; Geo Weir, Otonabee; Charles Coughlin, Asphodel; James Craighead, Havelock; Alphonse Paquette, 285 Romaine street, Elmer Bebee, Melville Wood, Otonabee; W. A. Burrell, 551 Bethune street; Fred Steinkraus; Albert Weatherhead, 834 Water St.; Henry Pacey, Belmont; and Ambrose Coughlin, Douro.

Two who were called were absent, W. J. Gallagher and William Morton. Four were challenged by the prisoner, Percy Davidson, Otonabee, Stanley Comstock, Asphodel, James Ball, Douro, and James F. Dickson, Otonabee.

Liberal leaders, although reaching no definite agreement with the Laborites, likewise decided to assist in the Government's defeat on the first division in the House of Commons.

U.F.O. COMPANY SHOWS DEFICIT

Shareholders Dissatisfied and Demand Explanations — Manager Hotly Retorts.

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press).—For the first time since friction developed within the ranks of the U.F.O., the Progressive faction yesterday secured representation on the Board of the Co-operative Company, when Hon. E. C. Drury, Hon. Manning Doherty, Joseph S. Little, of Shelburne and James Ross, of Woodbridge, were elected directors.

What was advertised as the first of a series of battles for control of the U.F.O. organizations ended in a draw early this morning at Massey Hall. Though the Progressives elected four directors, five members of the Board who stood were re-elected. These were: G. A. Bothwell, Owen Sound; Harry Gilroy, Alvinston; R. J. McMillan, Seaforth; C. E. Merklev, Williamsburg, and Elmer Lick, Oshawa. President J. Z. Fraser did not seek re-election, and other directors to drop out were J. A. McFeeters, E. A. Van Allan and Harold Hoover.

Shareholders Dissatisfied.

The present management still maintains a majority on the Board, and when the directors meet to-day to elect their officers one of the old members is practically certain to be the new president. G. A. Bothwell and Harry Gilroy are in line for the position.

J. J. Morrison's position as secretary is not endangered. In voting last night, the Progressives indicated that they were stronger than had been anticipated, and, accordingly, some doubt is expressed as to the result of the contest billed for today, when the future political status of the organization proper is to be determined. Facing a loss of $161,000 in the year's operation of the company's co-operative branch stores and the impairment of capital to the extent of over $600,000, the U.F.O. Co-operative Company shareholders expressed extreme dissatisfaction with the management of the affairs. Demands for explanations were forthcoming from various convention delegates, notably from ex-Premier Drury, and all charged mismanagement of the company's affairs.

H. B. Clemes, general manager, was the storm centre of criticism, and on one occasion he hotly retorted that if he had not made his salary he had saved them his salary many times in reducing losses.

BALDWIN

cause it is contrary to all traditions of British public life to do so.

The King may have influenced Mr. Baldwin in the audience he gave the Premier on Saturday, but the facts may never be known until the memoirs of the public men who figured in the crisis are published years hence, probably after most of those concerned have passed away.

A Labour Caucus.

The combined bodies of the Labour movement will meet during the next two days to take decisions with regard to their policy and the programme which they will carry out in case the Government of Mr. Baldwin is defeated. Apparently sentiment is growing among the Labour leaders that the Labour Party should take up the responsibility of Government if, and when, it is open to it.

An amusing feature of the situation is that the prominent Conservative papers are arguing that there is much more affinity between the Conservative and Liberal Parties than between the Liberals and the Labourites, while the most powerful Liberal paper in England, the Manchester Guardian, points out that the Liberals and Labourites have most in common. It declares this is particularly true as regards foreign policies, those of the two Parties being practically the same.

From now until the meeting of Parliament there seems to be in prospect more exciting discussion than the country has known for many days.

DRURY IS PEEVED BY AUCTION SALE.

Small Cheap Politics, He Says of Ferguson's Action —May Say More.

TORONTO, December 12 (Canadian Press). — Tersely and concisely, ex-Premier Drury last night expressed his opinion of the Ferguson Government's move in auctioning off all the new furniture purchased by the Drury Cabinet, when in office.

"Small, cheap politics," the former Premier declared when asked for an opinion. "The kind we did not play."

Mr. Drury intimated he might have more to say on the matter in the U.F.O. Convention.

Stubborn Coughs

Stop Quick With Home Made Cough Mixture

Not until you make your own cough mixture—a half pint of it for a small sum—will you know how easy it is to stop any bad persistent cough as if by magic.

It's pleasant-tasting, but that don't stop it from knocking out a cough quicker than anything else in the world. Children love it.

Get from any druggist one ounce of Parmint (double strength)—to this add a litle granulated sugar and enough water to make one half pint—that's all there is to it.

This loosens the phlegm, stops the irritation, allays the inflammation, cleans out clogged nostrils, and causes sore throat and hoarseness to disappear.

With speed almost beyond belief this home made cough mixture stops the toughest hang-on cough, and all because in it there is a substance (too costly for ordinary cough syrups) that immediately covers the membrane like a soothing healing poultice and blessed relief comes at once.

And it is always worth while to bear in mind that any remedy that overcomes catarrh, partially or wholly, is bound to be of benefit to those who are troubled with head noises and catarrhal deafness.

Get Parmint and get better.

GAM IS PLENTIFUL IN VIENNA STORES

VIENNA, Dec. 12.—(Associated Press)—In probably no city in the world is so much game to be found, as in the markets of Vienna. Partridges and pheasants were lately seen in every shop, even in the poorer quarters, and now the shre-drive season is on and cart loads of them are in common. They are the large European hare, ranging from six to 12 pounds, and form one of the principal food articles of the country.

These hares are killed in huge ring drives. Often from ten to 50 or more guns are invited and, with one or two beaters between each gun, the ring of shooters and drivers, sometimes a mile in diameter, slowly closes in. As shots are directed groundward there is little danger to the hunters. It is no unusual for 1,00 animals to be killed in one day's shooting.

AN ISSUE FOR CAMPBELLFORD

At Least One Ratepayer Who is Interested in the Debenture Debt.

To the Editor of the Examiner,
Peterboro, Ont.
Dear Sirs—

In your valued paper of last week, it stated that the Municipal Elections in Campbellford would be a tame one As there is no issue before the people who is likely to take very little interest in the results. All the rate payers here, according to your correspondence is satisfied with the new debenture debt of practically 100,000 dollars that has been fastened on them this year. Don't be deceived, the conclusions of your correspondent is a reflection on the intelligence of Campbellford's voters. The memory is not as short as all that, a year ago the council was elected on the untierstanding that there would be no New High School built unless the question was submitted to the rate payers and the expenditures authorized by them. In spite of all that the school has been built. Of the nine members of the council only two stood true to there pre-election pledges: Reve Anderson and Councillor Dorie. Do you suppose for a moment that the voters of Campbellford will take a jolt like that lying down. Again your corresponent makes light of the condition in the basement of the new ginnasiam. Every one who has looked into the matter knows that basement is much below sewer level of the town and the water was all sewered out and as dry as the season, was it hindered the work of its construction Who should be held responsible for that blunder. To me it would appear that the responsibility should be divided among the architects and the Board of Education who accepted the plans and the Council who voted the debenture. Knowing at the time what the conditions were. If it were a swimming pool instead of a symnasiam that there was wanted there could be no kick.

The question of building, true it was submitted to the people who defeated it but still the council went ahead regardless of the people's verdict. Again, the other day, your correspondent, in further praise of the high school of some of th, long visioned residents of the west side from there homes can regard the new structur, with pride It would only be fair to those admirers to have Mr. P. J. Kelly remove his coal sheds so as to afford them a better view. You may be sure a lively interest will be taken in the election this year.

Signed by,
(One Who Is Interested in Campbellfords Debenture Debt).

C., Dec. 12.—(United Press).—The freshman class at Chowan College, a Baptist institution here, has completed a census of the village cats, working under the rigid supervision of the sophomores. Twenty of the cats answer to the name of "Tom." Exactly that number are black.

CROP REPORTS

The following is a summary of returns made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The rains of the past week have been most welcome to farmers, as they have in some measure relieved the water distress in a number of rural districts. Wells and creeks have been replenished to a certain extent, but the land, which was very dry, absorbed most of the rainfall. The land has been put in better condition for plowing, and should mild weather continue many farmers will take advantage of the situation. It is the general opinion that more fall plowing already has been done this season than for many years.

Fall wheat continues to look in first-class condition. Recent rains and comparatively mild weather have brought along late planted fields to such an extent that they also have now a good top for entering the winter.

South Simcoe.—The following is the average price per bushel paid at local elevators for the more common grains and seeds: Wheat, 95c; barley, 60c; oats, 40c; peas, $1.50; rye, 72c; buckwheat, 70c; red clover, $10 to $10.50 (in the rough); sweet clover, $4.50 to $5.75 (in the rough); al sike, $5 to $6; alfalfa, $9.50 to $10.50.

Middlesex.—A few carloads of potatoes have been sold during the past week at 90c to $1 per bag. Practically all shipments this year are in bags rather than in bulk.

Leeds.—Reports a good demand for apples, at prices ranging from $5 to $8 a barrel for No. 1 stock, according to variety.

Lambton.—Several sales of pure-bred Holstein herds have been held in the county. Prices realized have ranged from $65 to $180 per head. Buyers apparently were more influenced by the date of freshening, looking towards early returns, than to the pedigrees they carried.

Brant.—Cows, especially dairy cattle, are selling exceedingly well, good grade dairy cattle at recent sales running from $80 to over $100. At the recent Brant County Holstein sale the whole consignment, including four males and two calves, averaged $166.75, the highest price being $275. Hogs are somewhat slow, the smooth fat price being $8.25.

Kent.—There is a growing interest in the dairy industry. The Chatham Board of Trade is at present carrying on a survey of the immediate district with a view to determining whether a sufficient number of producers exist to make the organizing of a cheese factory or milk condensory feasible.

Waterloo.—There seems to be an active demand at the present time for good dairy cows. Grades are selling as high as $125 apiece.

South Simcoe.—From a number of the leading points in South Simcoe the largest shipments of hogs for the year were made this week, for which $7.25 to $7.50 per cwt. on the thick smooth basis was paid. A few lambs were sent out at $10 per cwt. In only a few instances did the price paid for fair butcher cattle exceed $5 per cwt.

Kent.—A number of feeder steers have been brought into the county during the past week. One man purchased 25 head averaging around 1,200 pounds at $6.40 per cwt. laid down. Grade milch cows have been selling fairly well around $65 to $80 each. Hogs have been selling at uaction sales above market prices; 100 lb. hogs bringing $8 each. Work horses have been selling at exceptionally low prices. A few good draft horses have sold at reasonable prices. Farm machinery in good condition is realizing the owners all it is worth at auction sales.

Petrolia.—Generally speaking, live stock are bringing very low prices, hogs $7 to $7.50, fat cattle from 3c up, depending on quality; cows from $30 to $75 with a few exceptionally good ones bringing slightly higher figures.

Frontenac.—The price of fowl tends to go lower, ducks and chickens being down to $1 each. The quality of the birds offered is none too good, and there is a lack of careful preparation.

Brant.—We are getting a few Swiss into the county at the present time and have prospects of getting quite a number before spring.

Hastings.—There is a small demand for farm help. A few farmers have applied for men this week. They are offering $300 a year for single men and $500 for a married man, house supplied.

Kenora.—Settlers from the west who have lived in areas where crops were a failure again this year are coming into this district in large numbers. A dozen or more families have come in of late in hopes of finding employment in the mills and bush. As a rule these families are "broke," and as there is little or no labor to be had many of them are experiencing considerable hardship.

Peterborough.—There has probably been more auction sales locally this fall than for a long time. Prices at these sales generally speaking, have been rather low and disappointing to the sellers.

BARON SHAUGHNESSY.

The sudden death of Baron Shaughnessy, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway, means the loss to Canada of one of her best known and most useful citizens.

Lord Shaughnessy was not a native of this country, but few men have played such a big part in the building up of Canada as the former President of the C. P. R., who had a deep and sincere love for the land of his adoption.

If there had been any doubt of that love Baron Shaughnessy's effort during the war years removed it for his advice was eagerly sought on war problems by both the Canadian and Imperial Governments, and his efforts both on behalf of recruiting and in aiding the flotation of Canada's war loans were of great assistance.

Two of his sons played a gallant part at the front, and one of them did not come back.

Of his business ability, zeal, foresight and driving power, the Canadian Pacific Railway stands as a splendid monument, but it is not alone as the railway executive that Canada will remember Lord Shaughnessy.

His business interests had never prevented him from devoting himself to patriotic, educational and philantrophic movements, and his service to this country along these lines had been almost of equal importance in the development of Canada as had been his railway activities.

He was a world figure in the realm of transportation, a useful, patriotic, far-seeing Canadian.

The Dominion can ill-spare such citizens.

WHAT CARELESSNESS MAY DO.

The motor car driver who takes a chance at a grade crossing by ignoring danger signals almost invariably pays for his rashness with his life.

One United States motorist, however, tried the perilous experiment the other night in New York State and escaped with a whole skin.

But he lost his car, and what is infinitely worse, will have to go through life knowing his carelessness caused the death of nine fellow-beings and brought misfortune to a veteran railway engineer who had gone through twenty-six years without a serious accident.

The rear-end collision between two sections of the Twentieth Century Limited the fastest train on the New York Central Railway, was caused by a motorist who disregarded the signal lights and warning bells at a level crossing, drove into the tracks and then stalled his engine, leaping in time to save his own life, but leaving his car to be struck by the flying train.

The second section of the Twentieth Century Limited was stopped by this smash-up, and the third section crashed into it from behind, causing a terrible accident.

And it was all brought about because an automobilist was careless or reckless to such a degree as to bring him into peril at a protected crossing, the signals of which should have kept him out of the danger zone.

THE AMERICAN BUDGET.

It is not usual for Canadians to look across the border for advice along the lines of economical administration of public affairs, but the figures quoted by President Coolidge in presenting the National Budget of the United States for the fiscal year 1924-25 seems to the Examiner as likely to be of profit to our Federal Government.

Our neighbors apparently are having more success in economy measures than is Canada.

The Budget announces a reduction in expenditures in the current fiscal year of $132,439,932, as compared with the fiscal year 1923 and of another $236,957,644 in the year ending June 30, 1925.

These figures are based on the present tax rates, and with a surplus of $329,000,000 estimated for the close of the fiscal year 1924 and of $395,000,000 in the following year a sharp reduction in taxation is promised.

This is a showing that makes Canadian financing appear at a decided disadvantage.

There is no hint of tax reduction here—our national debt has reached a total of $2,422,135,000, or $275 per capita, and instead of a reduction last year nearly $50,000,000 was added, necessitating more taxation instead of less.

The United States has never been particularly noted for economical Governments—yet our neighbors are showing a huge surplus each year, cutting down their expenditures by vast slices, and are looking for a very substantial reduction in taxation.

Unless Canada likewise reduces her expenditures by vigorous pruning, where is it all going to end?

SUBJECTS FOR DISCUSSION.

Through the enterprise of the Great War Veterans in arranging the meeting, Mayor Taylor and a number of the Aldermen are going to give an account of their stewardships and discuss civic problems at a gathering in the Veterans' Hall on Friday evening.

This can be made an occasion of very useful service to the community if the speakers take advantage of the opportunity to present something definite to the electors instead of indulging in the generalities that are often indulged in at such meetings.

The Guelph Herald remarked the other day that Aldermen who were candidates for re-election instead of promising all kinds of things that they would do next year should confine themselves to telling why they hadn't done them this year.

In preparing their addresses for Friday evening the Mayor and Aldermen would do well to keep that little up in mind.

What the citizens want is not too much talk about what is to be done in the future and considerable about what has been or has not been done in the past.

The Mayor, for example, is a candidate for re-election for a third term.

He should present an account of what he has accomplished during the two years he has acted as the city's chief executive, for upon that record he is to be judged at the January election.

How has Peterborough fared during those two years?

What industrial progress has been made?

What public works of a permanent nature have been undertaken?

What developments have been made along the lines of making Peterborough a cleaner and a healthier city?

What has been done to protect Peterborough against a possible power shortage?

What has been attempted toward improving living conditions or providing recreational facilities?

What improvements have been made in the care of the streets, in the city's lighting facilities, in the general administration?

These are a few of the subjects about which something might be said at Friday's meeting.

TOLERANCE IN IRELAND.

There are numerous and hopeful signs of a growing religious tolerance in Ireland. When the Bishop of Armagh was promoted to an Archbishopric some months ago it was a Presbyterian minister who presented an address and congratulated his fellow-townsmen. In reply, the Archbishop praised the Presbyterian communion for the fine type of citizenship it produced, and also paid a high tribute to the character of the minister. Nor is this an exceptional case, but one of several which have occurred within the past six months in Ireland. Such an exchange of courtesies may have occurred in America, but if so it hasn't been called to the attention of the newspapers.

Recently the Free State Government decided to open the sessions of the Dail with prayer. Accordingly a liturgy was prepared which received without delay the official approval of both Catholic and Protestant leaders. It is also worthy of note that a subscription of a million dollars has been made by the Protestant Episcopal Church to the Free State loan of 50 million. These may be but straws, but they show the way the wind is blowing in southern Ireland. So close and accurate an observer as Mark Sullivan, writing from England last mid-summer, said: "There is less religious intolerance in Ireland today than there is in the United States." This statement was true then, and if anything it is truer now.

Conciliation is the way out, not only for Ireland but for all the world. It is folly to talk about rebuilding this broken world, and keep steadily on feeding the fires of hate. The gospel of good-will was never needed more than now. To mistrust a fellow citizen merely because he happens to be of another race or religious body and to libel and persecute him is to make the way easy for disruption. Although in her infancy, the Irish Free State has something to teach the world. She is minimizing religious differences; she is encouraging toleration between the two great groups of Christendom. Strength to her hands!—Detroit News.

CONDENSED MILK.

Everyone knows what is the matter with farming in the West, says the Saskatoon Progressive. If he does not know, he can be told by any financial magnate who travels through the country and gathers first-hand impressions by looking at the fields from a car-window and addressing Canadian Clubs here and there. The farmer uses too much condensed milk; the farmer buys bacon instead of curing it himself; the farmer buys butter because he is too lazy to churn; the farmer should keep a few hens and a cow or two and—yes, he should not be contented without a pig and a couple of cabbages. Every time a farmer raises his voice in protest against the conditions he finds himself confronted with, some well-paunched know-it-all throws a can of condensed milk at him. It is a fact that farmers have been known to buy condensed milk, just as it is a fact that some harness-makers buy shoes; but it is also a fact that the number of farmers who do not look after their own needs in the way of milk, butter, eggs and pork products is so small in proportion to the number engaged in farming, that their condensed-milk activities do not affect the general problem one invisible speck. It is time that the condensed-milk talk was put back on the shelf. It is an astonishing fact—and it might just as well be given the light of day—that the farmers of the West use cow's milk. If a magnate from Montreal went to sleep on a Saskatchewan farm, he would be wakened up in the morning by the grunting of pigs, the clucking of hens, the lowing of kine, the hum of the cream-separator and the sound of vegetables in their growing-pains. Time was, in the homestead days, when there were a great many bachelor-farmers camping on a quarter section for just sufficiently long each year to secure title, when condensed milk was a friend in need, pigs were rarely encountered except in the best families, and hens were unmanagable vermin. But that is all changed. The farmers of the West are farmers now, and have been for some years. If the condensed-milk theorists would take a look at the produce export figures for Saskatchewan during the past few years, and read the dazzling figures that tell of the number of tons of butter and thousands of cases of eggs which come off these farms where there are no cows and chickens, he would drown himself in a mush composed of condensed milk and evaporated potatoes.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

One by one Canada's builders are passing on. Lord Shaughnessy, although born across the border, played a big part in the development of this country.

With immigrants penniless and workless in Toronto it looks as if Canada's immigration officials will have to be careful in their selection of new citizens until industral conditions warrant a more lax policy.

Will the Drury-Morrison clash today be a real battle, or will it prove a love-feast after all? Ontario is waiting with considerable interest for the answer.

The Ontario Government is selling by auction the bedroom furniture used in the Parliament Buildings by the Drury administration. Premier Ferguson should buy in that famous $100 coal-scuttle of Mr. Drury's which stood the Conservative leader in such good stead during the last campaign.

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 11.—Mrs. C. French has received a letter from her niece, Mrs. H. STOVE LID IS WEAPON IN SCRAP OVER PORK CHOPS

CHESTER, Pa., Dec. 12.—Mrs. Albert Grinnage in Police Court admitted that it was an argument over pork chops that caused a fight in which she was hit over the head with a stove lid by her husband and received a fracture of the skull.

Grinnage claimed that he had been working and when he came home "his woman picked on him." He charged her with throwing the stove lid at him.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—Compared with a year ago cattle prices for the finished kind are down from a dollar and a half a cwt., and shippers in this week say they are losing 75 cents to one dollar a cwt. on cattle contracted for two months ago. For butchers, on which the best offer made this morning was 5½ cents a pound, the owner declared he had paid $5.90 and $6.25 a cwt. in the country.

A large number of baby beeves were taken on Monday and yesterday, but prices for these are easy and only exceptionally well finished babies would fetch over 9 a cwt. There are a large number of Western cattle in this week, but except for the one shipment which brought 6 cents a pound the others are dragging at around 5 to 5½ cents a pound. One prime 1,400-lb. steer was bought by Swift's yesterday at $8 a cwt. and this topped this week's market.

Too few real good calves are available for Christmas marketing and as high as 12 cents a pound is being paid for the best. Lower grade calves outside of grassers are firmer in consequence.

There was a lull in the lamb trade this morning with only one packing house as a buyer. Some lambs sold at 11½ cents a pound, but light choice lambs would bring 12 cents and a little higher. Heavy lambs, 110 lbs., or over, are selling down to 11 cents. Nice handy weight sheep are bringing 7 cents a pound.

Hogs are edging up a little in price and sales were made on Monday at $7.65 and $7.75 a cwt. f.o.b. This according to salesmen was about the situation today This week's run is heavy and expected to be about the last heavy run this season

QUEENSLAND HAS IRRIGATION PLAN.

Work Will Require Six Years and Will Irrigate 200,000 Acres of Land.

SYDNEY, N.S., Dec. 12.—(Associated Press)—Parliamentary sanction has been given in Queensland for a new irrigation project on the Dawson river which will be one of the largest in New South Wales. The initial cost is estimated at $6,000,000 and a high storage dam, which it is proposed to construct, will require six years to complete.

The plan involves a large hydro-electric generating plant. The contemplated dam will impound something like 2,480,000 acre feet of water, which will be carried from the dam 27 miles along the natural bed of the river. More than 200,000 acres of irrigable land are included in the project and in addition there are 200,000 acres adjacent which are suitable for grazing purposes.

Then Mr. S. Maguire gave the topic for the evening, The Subject was, "The Life Worth While." This was very thoughtful and inspiring, and showed careful study and preparation.

The collection at the band concert on Sunday night amounted to $40.00 This will bring Christmas cheer to the kiddies.

OLD SANCTUARY WAS UNEARTHED

Chief Temple of the Slavs Has Been Found By British Professor in Germany.

FELDBERG, Mecklenburg, Dec. 12.—(Associated Press).—Ruins of an ancient Slav sanctuary have been unearthed near this town by Dr. Karl Schuchhard, director of the Berlin Museum of Anthropology, which he believes to have been Rethra, the chief temple of the Slavs between the Rivers Elbe and Oder. Suarasici was the name of the god who was worshipped here, and the temple was relatively more important than the Delphi of the Greeks.

Rethra stood for several centuries and was destroyed in 1068 and 1069 under the reign of Henry IV. The Bishop of Halberstadt, under orders from the Emperor, destroyed the sanctuary. Burchhard was the name of this bishop, and it is still preserved in the folklore of Northern Germany. He is supposed to have become immensely rich through plundering the temple, and there is a nursery rhyme which makes an appeal to this ancient bishop to make gifts to children.

Dr. Schuchhard says descriptions of the temple written by the Bishop of Merseburg, who lived about the year 1000, tally with his discoveries and he is confident he has located the lost shrine for which archaeologists have been seeking for generations.

In the Spreewald, near Berlin, the population still retains the customs, dress and language of the ancient Slavs who lived in Northern Germany before the Teutons made their appearance, especially all along the Elbe.

CHICAGO MURDER STRANGE TANGLE.

Longong For Her Baby 'Tootie,' Mrs Katherine Malm Gives Herself Up to the Police.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Born to unhappiness, swaddled in looted silks, loved by the flaming passion of a tigeress, according to police, two-year-old Tootie Baluk Malm yet remains a benighted cherub.

Tootie it was who evoked the holiness of mother instinct in Katherine Baluk Malm. Tootie was the one fine and redeeming motive in the woman's life. And Tootie, incidentally, brought to its highest climax the thick-twined mystery of the murder of Edward Lehman, authorities declare.

Said Mrs. Malm, in what she thought was the last letter she ever would write to her own mother: "Please raise Tootie straight and never tell her who I was. Always tell her I loved her more than my own life."

The murder mystery, seemingly, was nicely cleared up before Tootie's little footfall came to be heard upon the stage of this drama. Two days after Lehman was shot by a pair of burglars in a dark alley early last month, the police arrested Ethel Beck, 18, and Walter Bockelman, her supposed sweetheart.

Complications Begin.

The girls called "Blond Kitty" in the streets and cabarets of her neighborhood, confessed volubly, detectives say. She went to the scene and re-enacted the crime to harmonize with every known detail. Several eye-witnesses indentified her and Bockelman positively.

The man stubbornly denied her story. But no one believed him. And the two remained in jail.

Three weeks passed, and, in the grist of police detail, appeared Otto Malm. He had been caught, the records show, in the act of burglary. And he was anxious, detectives assert, to make a clean breast of everything.

Without questioning, according to assistant state's attorneys, he volunteered the information that he and his wife had shot Lehman.

The orderly arrangement based upon "Blond Kitty's" purported confession was upset. She, in turn, repudiated it.

Still Hold All.

And then a mother's longing for her child—Baby Tootie was being cared for by police matrons—led to Mrs. Malm's surrender.

Inundated with seemingly logical "confessions," baffled by two parallel and yet irreconcilable stories, police and prosecutors simply gasped for breath and held both pairs of prisoners.

"Blond Kitty," tired of jail, sought to explain.

"I'd say yes to anything. I've taken raps before. It was kind of hard on Bockelman, all right, but I couldn't see any other way.

Anxious for Tootie.

"I'm afraid he'll get me when we get out."

Mrs. Malm is more impressive. Her crisp, desperate sentences carry weight

"I had to come back to see my baby," she declares. "I'd glady be burned to the stake for Tootie."

A psychiartist here classifies Mrs. Malm as a "cave woman." Ethel, he calls a weakling.

In her cell, Mrs. Malm has made an unsuccessful attempt at suicide, turkneys assert. It was just before it that she wrote to her mother.

And she wrote to Malm, too, telling him, police say:

"You can tell them now that I done the shooting, so they will let you go to take care of baby forever. But please quit the racket and raise Tootie in an honest way for your departing mama's sake.

"Daddy, don't let anyone insult her or ruin her young life like they did with me."

ARGONAUTS OUT AFTER WINNING

Defeated Parkdale 5 to 4 But Will Not Play In Senior Hockey This Year.

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Scoring three goals to their opponents' none in the final period, Argos overcame the two goal lead Parkdale had gathered during the first forty minutes of play, and won the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association Trophy game, at the arena last night, 5 to 4.

Only a small crowd witnessed the exhibition of good, bad and indifferent hockey. The Argos had the best forward line and the difference on the front line gave them victory. They are scheduled to meet Aura Lee in the semi-final round for the trophy, the winners to meet the Canadian Olympic team in the final, but as they decided after last night's game to drop hockey for this winter, Aura Lee will go into the final.

After the game Argonauts held a meeting at the Arena and decided that they would drop out of senior hockey for this season, President Ernie Laidlaw making the announcement.

The Oarsmen's decision to withdarw from the senior O.H.A. came as a surprise though it was known that the management was having trouble getting out last season's stars, Box, Hogarth and Stephenson declining to play, while Worters and McCurry migrated to Pittsburgh.

It is also known that some of the players who wore double blue last night only consented to do so to help out the team for the S.P.A. series, intending to play elsewhere during the O.H.A. season if given permission by the OH.A. executive.

POLAND BALANCES ITS BUDGET.

WARSAW, Dec. 12.—(Associated Press)—Poland's budget for 1924 shows a balance, a fact regarded as a distinct step toward financial recuperation. Originally it amounted to $300,000,000, but this amount of revenue being impossible to find, it was cut down to $200,000,000.

An encouraging feature is the fact that balance is obtained not by a foreign loan, but by economies at home.

PISTOLS WITH COFFEE RESULTS IN A DEATH

NEW YORK, December 11 (Canadian Press). — Mrs. Essie Gross to-day shot and killed her husband, Irving Gross, post office clerk, firing two shots across the breakfast table in their apartment.

"I killed him because I loved him," she declared when arrested, "and he didn't love me any more."

Later she gave another version, asserting that she fired in self-defence after a struggle over the pistol.

NEW LEASE LIFE.

Another citizen of Peterboro has informed The Examiner of late-blooming flowers in his garden. On the 11th day of December, Mr. P. Walker, who lives below the Locks Bridge, is able to pick stocks and pansies for a boutonniere or a table bouquet. Pansies are hardy enough to bloom in such untimely conditions, but it is remarkable to find stocks growing at such a season of the year. The stock bed in Mr. Walker's garden ceased blooming, as usual, some months ago, but apparently took on a new lease of life and commenced operations again recently, when a whole new growth of the pale pink and mauve flowers has sprung up.

SHAUGHNESSY LOSS TO ALL EMPLOYEES

Statement of Vice-President Coleman of C.P.R. In Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Dec. 12.—D. C. Coleman, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, western lines, arrived here yesterday morning from Winnipeg. Referring to the death of Lord Shaughnessy, Mr. Coleman said:

"The death of Lord Shaughnessy will come with the force of a personal bereavement to every employee of the Canadian Pacific throughout the world. During the nineteen crowded and fruitful years of his presidency, the Canadian Pacific developed from a struggling pioneer railway to the transportation system it is to-day. Masterful he was, exacting in his requirements, demanding from every man his very best in the way of service, refusing to suffer "fools" gladly, but generous in appreciation and reward, and always subject to the dictates of a warm Irish heart Those who served under him will always consider that their lives were enriched by the inspiration of his leadership.

"It is doubtful, if many, outside of those associated with him in business, quite appreciated his devotion to the land of his adoption. He never regarded the Canadian Pacific as a mere business enterprise, but was determined that in all its activities it would contribute to the development and to the reputation of Canada."

TOO WINDY TO CHEW IN OKLAHOMA STATE

Drink Black Coffee Six Times a Day For Longevity, Says 99-Year-Old Resident.

SULPHUR, Okla., Dec. 12.—(United Press).—Anyone between the ages of 50 and 70 years, who consider themselves at the doddering stage, should take heed from John Junior Allen, 99, who says he is at the prime of life.

Likewise he hopes that he will not live to be 150 years old, although he considers it probable.

Two dates stand out in Allen's life. One was his marriage in 1904, after he had lived a bachelor 78 years. The other was two years ago, when he quit chewing tobacco.

"I've chewed tobacco all my life, but it's too windy to chew in Oklahoma. The wind blew the juice in my eyes. If I can't chew like a man, I won't chew like a hog," was his explanation.

The styles today and the flapper are all right, Allen says, but recommends the old-fashioned hoopskirt for war-time use. "A hoopskirt saved my life during the Civil War. We were runnin' from the Yanks, actually runnin'! A woman hid me under her hoopskirt as she sat sewing and I got away," Allen said.

Naturally, Allen has a formula for longevity. In his case it has worked to perfection, but seems rather formidable. Here goes: "Let whiskey alone, especially the modern disinfectants; drink 'black' coffee six times a day; eat red onions, fat meat and corn-bread."

On this diet, the near-centenarian operates a 30-acre farm with the help of his "girl-wife," 52.

FIELDING WILL NEED GOOD PROLONGED REST

OTTAWA, December 12 (Canadian Press). — Although the condition of the Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, is reported today as being much the same, it is doubtful if he will be able to resume his official duties for some considerable time, and the impression prevails that he may not be able to take an active part in the work of the coming session of Parliament, at any rate in its early stages.

It is generally agreed that Mr. Fielding must have a long rest if he is to regain his full strength.

Mr. Fielding is at his Ottawa residence. The Prime Minister, is carrying on the work of the Finance Department for the time being.

THE GOVERNMENT MAY ABANDON THE HYDRO

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—'Ludicrous' was the word which Sir Adam Beck used yesterday to describe the assertion made yesterday to the effect that the Provincial Government was considering the abandoning of "power at cost" basis of operation of the Hydro-Electric Commission.

"No change in the policy with regard to the Hydro has been even considered by the Government," said Hon. W. H. Price, Provincial Treasurer, when questioned in the same connection.

Sir Adam stated that as chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission, he had been considering the possibility of a change in the method of financing the capital expenditures made by the Commission on behalf of the Hydro municipalities.

NOGALES, Arizona, Dec. 12.—Reports from Her-Mossillo to-day officially deny the rumors that the Yaqui Indians in Sonora have taken the warpath as revolutionists.

FROM BETHANY AND DISTRICT

Annual Convention Religious Education Council—News of Interest.

BETHANY, Dec. 10.—The 29th annual convention of the Township of Manvers Religious Education Council, which was held in the Methodist on Tuesday afternoon and evening, was very well attended, in spite of unfavorable weather and roads. The afternoon session was opened by the Rev. W. H. Dafoe, owing to the absence of the president, Mr. E. Bowen, who was delayed in arriving.

The convention opened with a few remarks by Rev. Dafoe, followed by a hymn and prayer. The reports from the past year were given from the following Sunday schools: Janetville, Bethany, Mount Horeb, Yelverton, Drum, Balyduff, and two Methodist Sunday schools from Pontypool. The majority of the schools had attained their financial aim for the year. Mr. A. H. Monk read the secretary-treasurer's report. Miss Kathaleen McCarthy, accompanied by Miss Beryl Dafoe, rendered a solo which was very much appreciated. The Rev. H. Wilkinson, of Pontypool, gave a very interesting address on "Love For The Child." Miss Bertha Laine, of Toronto, who is very much interested in the religious education of the young children, gave a very helpful address on this subject, showing how even the youngest child could be taught tg have the right thought of God, also how th older children should have reverence for the house of God. Mr. W. W. Blatherwaite, of Janetville, was then nominated, and elected president for the ensuing year. The meeting then adjourned to the basement where a very appetizing tea was served by the ladies of the church. The evening session opened by song service. Mr. Blatherwaite was then introduced and assumed the president's chair. After making a very appropriate speech, he thanked all present for the honor conveyed him.

A quartette was rendered by Mrs. W. Rowan, Mrs. D. Lewis, Mr. D. Spencer and Mr. L. Chalice. Rev. G. Ross, of Janetville, gave a very educative address on religious matters. Miss Laine gave another helpful address, showing how the gradual, reliable training helps the young child. The convention closed with prayer.

A. B. C. Bazaar

The Adult Bible Class, of the Methodist Sunday School, held their first bazaar in the Sunday school room on Saturday evening.

In spite of bad roads and rainy weather a good crowd turned out and nearly every article was sold. Donations were generously given by members of the church and Sunday school.

The basement of the church was most appropriately decorated for the occasion with evergreens and red streamers. The main booth was placed in the centre in a triangular shape where a large assortment of home-made cooking, butter, eggs, jelly, etc., knitting, fancy bags, caps, crocheting, towels, and a large display of aprons for young and old were sold. This booth was well looked after by Mrs. W. Byers, Miss S. McMullen and Mrs. O. Spencer, with Mrs. C. Portous as cashier.

At one corner of this booth a 'parcel post' was seen, amid evergreens, and was attended to by Miss Verna Bell Lee. The young children, and also older ones, found this corner, where they received small parcels for 10 cents, a great attraction.

In aother cozy corner was found Mr. John Porteous, where he was in charge of surprise bouquets, or fish pond. This also caused great fun for the children. Mr. Porteous soon found his good business sold out.

The refreshment booth where ice cream and cake were served from little tables daintily laid with white tea cloths and pretty floral tribute in the centre, were in charge of Mrs. P. C. Brown, Miss L. Thompson, Mrs. Beer, Mrs. J. Porteous and Mrs. D. Lowes, each lady being assisted by the young ladies.

The demand for ice cream was so great that long before the closing hours the ice cream was completely sold out.

The candy booth was nicely decorated and the counter filled with fancy boxes of the choicest home-made candy. The attendants were the Misses Staples, Howden and Challice. This booth was entirely given to the Young Ladies' Mission Circle, the proceeds of which amounted to $17.

A hearty vote of thanks was given to Mrs. R. L. Crerar, president of the class, Mrs. Wm. Rowan and several other willing workers who helped to make the evening such a success. The proceeds for the Bible class amounted to over $115, with little expense connected.

NORWOOD BAZAAR

NORWOOD, Dec. 11.—The annual Christmas bazaar of the Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church was held in the Town Hall on Saturday afternoon. Several gaily decorated booths were in the front part of the hall. Afternoon tea was served at small white-covered tables in the wings. The decorations in this part of the hall were carried out in Christmas colors.

The Candy Kitchen occupied a prominent place in the centre of the hall and was in charge of Mrs. Borland, Mrs. Buchanan and Mrs. H. Bertrand. Homemade candy of all kinds was on sale here, some in pretty little baskets in the form of an open rose, and other kinds in boxes. This booth was well patronized by both old and young.

On one side of the hall was the homemade cooking booth in charge of Mrs. John Weir and Mrs. J. Rogers also the market booth under the supervision of Mrs. John MacNaughton and Mrs. Wm. Robb. These booths were decorated in white and green with vases of trailing vines. The apron booth on the opposite side, in charge of Mrs. R. Tedford and Mrs. Edwards, was done in blue and white, while the fancy work booth was finished in red. Mrs. J. Rork, Mrs. F. Webster and Mrs. Howard Ford were kept busy at the latter booth and they did a thriving business. The water in the Fish Pond was never quiet all afternoon as the fish were constantly jumping out and before night Mrs. Roxburgh and Mrs. Cuthbertson realized that there were no more fish in the pond. Mrs. Pier, Mrs. Becket and Mrs. Patterson sold samples and the recipe of a cake called 'The Scripture Cake.' These samples sold for 10c. FIELDING PRAISED BY PRIME MINISTER AND UNBURDENED OF DUTY

Premier King Pays Warm Tribute to His First Lieutenant—Relates Incidents and Observations at the Imperial Conference.

OTTAWA BANQUET.

OTTAWA, December 12 (Canadian Press). — Cabinet colleagues of Right Hon. W. S. Fielding will insist that the Minister of Finance, at present confined to his home through illness, shall have such leave of absence from his official duties as his physician prescribes.

This announcement was made last night by Premier King at a banquet tendered him here by the Eastern Ontario Liberal Association.

The Prime Minister stated that the Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Immigration, would be Acting Minister of Finance during the absence of Mr. Fielding.

A warm tribute to the untiring energy and faithful service of the Minister of Finance was paid by Premier King.

"I wish," said the Premier, "to make an acknowledgment or two which it has seemed to me might be more appropriately made upon my return to the Capital than at any other place or time.

Premier Grateful.

The first is publicly to express to Mr. Fielding, who to the onerous duties of his own office during my absence added those of the Prime Minister's, by sense of deep gratitude for having thus assumed an obligation which left me free while away to give undivided thought and attention to the work of the conferences. Perhaps no one is in a better position than myself to appreciate what this double responsibility necessarily entails. Last year, during part of the time Mr. Fielding was absent at the League of Nations and in Europe, I took over the responsibilities of his department. With comparative youth on my side, I felt I could shoulder that responsibility for a time. I should not have wished to have had to carry it for long. It was my hope that in Mr. Fielding's case, long political experience would more than offset the effects of added strain to one of his advanced years. It has, I greatly fear, proved otherwise.

"Mr. Fielding has, as you know, been confined to his house for the past fortnight. His physician tells me that the exhaustion of his nervous energy is such that were he to attempt a resumption of his duties for some time to come, the consequences might be most serious. Under the circumstances it will be the wish of everyone that Mr. Fielding should be assured immediately of the most complete rest, and I have accordingly told him that we will insist on his having such leave of absence as his physician may prescribe and have asked my colleague, Mr. Robb, the Minister of Immigration, to assume for the present the duties of Acting Minister of Finance."

Tribute to Premier.

In proposing the toast to the Prime Minister, Hon. Charles Murphy said, in part:

"It has often been said that Canada is the land of opportunity. If I were looking for a striking example of the truth of this statement, I would not go beyond the distinguished guest of the evening.

In his own person, Mr. King embodies the proof that the grandson of a rebel with a price upon his head may, solely by the exercise of the talents with which God and Nature have endowed him, attain the highest place in the gift of the Canadian people.

"But that is not the only interesting feature that Mr. King's political eminence brings prominently before the minds of those who are in the habit of looking beneath the surface of things.

"There is another feature—one of peculiar significance to every student of our constitutional history. It is this. If you reflect for but a moment upon what William Lyon Mackenzie fought for in Canada and what William Lyon Mackenzie-King has just achieved at the Imperial Conference you will realise that to the one belongs, in large measure, the credit for establishing self-Government in Canada, and to the other the credit for having secured from all the other Nations of the British Empire the first formal recognition of Canada's right, both in foreign and domestic affairs, to exercise all the attributes of self-government in the fullest, freest, and widest sense of the term. Thus the span of years which links the life of the rebel grandfather with that of the statesman grandson is the span which covers the period of the whole development of Canadian autonomy as we enjoy it to-day.

"I am sure that I will be meeting your expectations if I dwell for a few minutes on the public impression made by Mr. King at the Imperial Conference.

"In this connection perhaps it would be advisable to quote briefly some of the things said about the Prime Minister by those who might be regarded as less partial in their estimate of his achievements than one of his colleagues would be.

Premier's Address.

Two fundamental matters in connection with the Imperial Conference were stressed by the Premier in his address. The first was the question of the publicity to be given to matters of concern on which negotiations are going on or discussions taking place between the various governments of the countries comprising the British Empire. The second was the conception to be attached to the nature of the conference itself.

Discussing the first point the Premier said: "The great importance of having parliament and through parliament the people as fully informed as may be possible on all matters of great concern to themselves, was borne in upon me especailly during the days when I was leader of the Opposition and was unable to obtain, respecting inter-imperial affairs, little if any information from the Government of the day. This need has been further emphasized since assuming office when on occasions I have found it impossible to give to Parliament either immediately, and once or twice not at all, correspondence to which I felt Parliament should be entitled, but which could only be brought down in accordance with certain rules of procedure, in force apparently from the days when the status of Canada was rather that of a colony than a self-governing Dominion.

Conference Agreed.

"I deemed this matter of sufficient importance to all the governments concerned to invite the attention of the conference to its careful consideration .In a word, I took the position that the relations of the Prime Minister of a self-governing Dominion, to His Excellency, the Governor-General, should be as respects the publicity to be given in Parliament of correspondence between the Canadian and the home governments or the Canadian and any other of the governments of the empire, the same as respects decision and publicity in all particulars as the relations between the Prime Minister of Great Britain and His Majesty. I am happy to say that the position thus taken received the unanimous support of the conference.

In concluding his discussion of the status which he felt the conference should occupy Premier King said that he steadfastly maintained that the conference was essentially one between representatives of governments which governments in turn were responsible to their parliaments and through them to the people. This view, he stated, ultimately was accepted.

The Halibut Treaty.

The Prime Minister took occasion to defend his administration's action in connection with the negotiation of the Canadian-United States' Halibut Treaty.

"Within this year," said the speaker, "our government negotiated with the government of the United States a treaty respecting the conservation of the halibut fisheries of the Pacific coast. Acting in accordance with what we believed to be appropriate to the status of our country as one of a community of free nations, and following precedents established both at Versailles and Washington, of having international agreements affecting Canada negotiated and signed by representatives so empowered by our government, we asked His Majesty to give one of Canada's Ministers full powers for negotiating and signing this particular agreement. To our great amazement we were told by a section of the Tory press that our action had an ulterior design; that we were casting a slight upon the British ambassador at Washington, and in so doing were making for separation between this country and the Motherland. Mr. Meighen joined in the chorus of attack, and I am told that even while the conference was pronouncing on this particular subject he was continuing to denounce our actions in this particular.

"In the published proceedings of the conference we find stated the position as taken by the present government with respect to the negotiation and signing of the halibut treaty, a position to which the representatives of Great Britain and of all the self-governing dominions represented at the conference were ready and glad to give an unanimous assent."

Government Vindicated.

Premier King referred to the Near East crisis and to the criticism which had been levelled at the government because it assumed the attitude that only Parliament could say when and upon what grounds Canada should go to war. The Premier claimed that Canada's stand had been thoroughly vindicated since that time, and that the imperial conference had approved the principle of no war except with the consent of the people through Parliament. Premier King also contended that the Laurier naval policy of 1909 had been proved the right one and was now acknowledged by the British admiralty as the most sound and practical system by which Dominions could assist in naval defence of the empire.

Redmond Recommended Shaughnessy's Title.

LONDON, Dec. 12.— (Canadian Press Cable).—The Evening Standard expresses the opinion that while Lord Shaughnessy owed his title partly to his work for the C. P. R. it was mainly due to his interest in Ireland, "this being the only case in which the late John Redmond made recommendations for a peerage."

The Standard adds that when T. M. Healy was made governor-general of the Irish Free State Lord Shaughnessy was a competing candidate and he had the backing of the Duke of Devonshire who had known him in Canada when the Duke was governor-general there. Bonar Law, however, favored Healy and naturally the latter was appointed, says the Standard

PARIS HAS A NEW ONE

By JOHN O'BRIEN

PARIS, Dec. 11.—(United Press).—Many women at Auteuil track the other day wore a new addition to their fur cloaks in the shape of a "beauty case," containing powder and powder-puff, fixed on the left sleeve, while on the right, attached to the material by two metal buttons, was a mirror.

When the biting winds at the track made their complexions, especially on the tip of the nose, too highly tones mesdames did not have to take the necessary utensils out of a bag. The right hand permitted them to give a dash of powder just where it was needed.

This little addition to the toilette is all the more welcome siunce muffs have practically gone out of existence. They are scarcely shown at all in the swell shops. They have gone like the umbrella, the long skirt—and the long hair.

Leather and rubber coats have replaced the umbrella in rainy weather. Parisian women nowadays stick their hands in their coat pockets as they stroll along the boulevard when the breezes are chill. h

FIRST SERMON BY NEW PASTOR

Rev. Walter Cox, At St. John's Church, Lakefield, Discussed Use of Bible in Church Services.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 10.—Rev. Walter Cox, of Toronto, who has been appointed rector of St. John's Church, Lakefield, was in charge of the services on Sunday.

In the morning he preached a thoughtful sermon, appropriate to the day, which was Bible Sunday (the second Sunday in Advent). Certain people have accused the church of a lack of knowledge of the Bible and of neglecting its use. This charge is, of course, utterly false, as without the church, the Catholic and Apostolic church in which we assert our belief in the creed, there would have been no New Testament. The Scriptures are honored in our churches, being given a place second only to the altar which is sacred to the Blessed Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. The lectern is placed conspicuously in the church and the word of God is read Sunday by Sunday throughout the year. The Holy Gospels, which have a place in the highest and holiest of all services, are read through four times a year, the Psalms are read through twelve times a year and the whole Bible, once each year.

The Bible is made up of numerous books by various writers, each writing from his own point of view; these are books written by kings, such as David and Solomon, by prophets such as Hosea and Micah, by scholars such as the writers of the book of Job. The Bible also was written in different places, part in Palestine, some in the wilderness, part in Babylon and in Rome; and also along widely divergent lines; we have romance in the books of Jonah and Daniel, folk love in Genesis, pithy sayings in Proverbs. Parts of the Bible were written in war and part in peace, some in freedom and some in captivity; some in gladness and some in sorrow. The period of time taken in writing the various books which we now call the Bible was about 2,000 years, ranging from the time of Moses to the later days of St. John the Divine. In this book of books we read the records of nations, the history of the Jewish nation predominating; one has the history of families with, in some cases, their genealogical tree. We have the history of Christianity from its inception to the time when it had a foothold in all the then known world. Mr. Cox continued his subject at the evening service.

Buried on Sunday

The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon at two o'clock from St. John's Church, of the late Alexander W. Strickland, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Strickland, of "D'Eyncourt Park," Lakefield. The late Mr. Strickland was born in Lakefield 52 years ago and resided with his parents until as a young man he entered the Bank of Montreal in Peterborough at the time when Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor was the manager.

Mr. Strickland lived for many years in British Columbia, moving east to Toronto within the past five years. He is survived by his wife and family, also two brothers, Walter of Toronto, and D'Eyncourt of Hamilton, and one sister, Mrs. John Peck of Vancouver.

Rev. Walter Cox conducted the funeral service, both at the church and at the grave. Interment was in the family plot in Hillside cemetery.

The basement of the church has been painted and decorated. The young people having bought the paint, the work was placed in the hands of two competent workmen. The walls and pillars are tinted and painted in cream color, while the wainscoting is beautifully grained.

Anniversary Services

Anniversary services were held last Sabbath at Janetville and Mount Horeb. Rev. W. R. Tanton of Napanee, was the preacher of the day, and came on the invitation of the pastor. Bro. Tanton is a very pleasing and attractive preacher, and did good service.

By special request Mr. and Mrs. (Rev.) Ross sang a duet at Mount Horeb, while Mr. Ross sang the "Holy City" at night in Janetville. The congregations were large and Mr. Tanton had the pleasure of meeting a host of old friends.

Rev. G. I. Campbell will be here for next Sabbath, and on Saturday evening will put on his popular entertainment under the auspices of the Y. P. S.

The people are looking forward to a lecture by the pastor entitled "Over the Sea to the Motherland," to be given early in the year, and he will also begin Sabbath evening "song services" in the near future.

CHOOSE YOUR BONE DIET TIS INDIAN OR ORIENTAL

Eat Lots of Raw, Leafy Vegetables and Dairy Products.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 10.—The American has a choice of three successful diets in good bone growth and development and preservation of teeth, according to Dr. E. V. McCollum, of John Hopkins University, who addressed the combined Western Michigan Dental Societies yesterday.

The American whose type of diet is a failure, declared Dr. McCollum, may turn from white bread, meat, potatoes and sugar, to the purely carnivorous diet, such as that of the Eskimo, the Patagonian or the American Indian; to a combination of rice and leafy vegetables which is that of the peoples living in the wettest parts of the earth, or to sour milk, meat and barley, the diet of the residents of the driest parts of the globe where there is little agriculture and where pasturage provides the sustaining nourishment.

The carnivorous diet, Dr. McCollum asserted, produces a man physically well developed, but carnivorous people are lethargetic; they overeat and then lie in a semi-dormant state until pangs of hunger drive them out again, he said.

"A survey of the children about New York shows that 50 per cent. of them are suffering from skeletal defects, while throughout the country the percentage of children suffering from bone defects is from 50 to 80 per cent," said the speaker.

Dr. McCollum has a solution. He advises America to borrow the best in Oriental diet and that of the dry countries, and add to the regulation American diet the leafy vegetables and fruit, which he says hsould be eaten raw every day, and the dairy products which keep the people of the arid countries in condition.

GERMANS PAY NO RENT IN FOREIGNERS' HOUSES

BERLIN, Dec. 11 (Associated Press). —Foreigners who bought real estate in Germany for speculation in the days before the government legislated against transfers of realty to non-Germans are in a state of constant uncertainty.

Some foreign owners do not even try to collect the rents, which are fixed by law and are so low that the number of paper marks realized would not meet repairs. But while many foreigners do not bother collecting rents they also fail to make repairs. Such repairs fall upon the tenants if they desire to have them made.

German tenants have had practically free rent for such a long period that there are great complaints when any charges of any sort are forced upon them in connection with their lodgings.

Long Waits at Railroad Crossings Promise to Grow Shorter in France —New Decision.

PARIS, Dec. 12 (Associated Press). —Long waits by automobiles at railroad crossings in France promise to grow shorter in view of a recent Paris court decision awarding damages to M. Schreiber for being kept waiting by a railroad train for 42 minutes.

Schreiber tried strong language on a switching crew, but without effect, so he got some witnesses and filed suit. It developed that an old law authorized department prefects to fix the limit of delay where train stops, or when switching was likely to exceed ten minutes. As there was no such limit in this case the court accepted ten minutes as the time a railroad might block a highway, and recognized the right of those delayed to collect damages for loss of time and mental suffering.

AMERICANS BREAK MONTE CARLO BANK.

Three Startling Roulette Wins Total $116,500.00; Players Now Swear Off.

PARIS, Dec. 12. — Three sensational American wins at roulette are reported from Monte Carlo to which resort the early winter has driven society folks a month earlier than usual.

Jim Dering is credited with winning $18,000 in six hours. Erskine Gwynne won $7,500 after breaking all records by placing thirty-three consecutive winning bets, and Walter Burns, who married one of the Leggett girls of New York, won $11,000, lost $5,000 of it, and then won $85,000 more, all in three hours, breaking the banks at two tables. Both Burns and Gwynne declare they have sworn off gambling forever.

Emerging for the first time since his divorce from Ganna Walska, who immediately married Harold F. McCormick, Alexander S. Cochran is giving a series of entertainments at the Hotel de Paris, where he is striving to live down the nickname of the "millionaire too poor to buy happiness."

Mrs. Legrand Tibbletts, of New York, is one of the most talked-of women at Monte Carlo, due to her many beautiful gowns. During a month's stay she has not worn the same one twice.

Edna Macloskey, American society girl who jumped to fame through her novel, "The Debutante," is another well dressed woman attracting attention at the Carlton de Paris and other smart restaurants.

News that the Prince of Wales intends to visit the Riviera has caused a stampede to dressmakers of society girls, the crop here being superior both in quantity and quality to last year.

LAKEFIELD CITIZENS APPROVE RINK GRANT AS COMMUNITY ASSET

Spirited Discussion at a Public Meeting Resulted In Virtual Recommendation to Council to Assist Rink Company.

MUST PAY TAXES.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 11.—A public meeting was held in the Memorial Hall on Monday evening to discuss a grant of $200.00 to the Lakefield Rink Co. in order that they will be in a position to pay their taxes for the current year, 1923.

Reeve J. C. Strickland was in the chair and opened the meeting, and in a short speech, explained the situation to the audience, which numbered about 200 persons. The Rink Company are asking a grant of $200 to pay their general taxes for the year 1923, the school tax of $104 has been paid to the village. The grant must be $200 or nothing, as without $200 the rink will have to close its doors and in that case, next year no taxes at all can be paid and the rate will be higher. Lakefield has never given a dollar to help the younger people, while Peterboro with its river, has provided a bathing beach and paid a caretaker to look after it. Some citizens recommended asking exemption from taxes for five or ten years, but Mr. Strickland said that when the Rink Company reached a paying basis (as he is confident it will in a few years) that they can and should pay their taxes. In the meantime they need assistance. There are more than 100 shareholders in the Lakefield Rink Co., Ltd., and if the matter was put before the ratepayers in the form of a by-law they (the shareholders) would not be entitled to vote, which would seem very unfair. The Rink Company will eventually pay dividends and the idea of the meeting was to secure an expression of opinion on the question of the grant. This is the first business enterprise of the citizens and should be helped and not knocked.

E. A. Tanner moved that J. F. Lillecrop be asked to be chairman of the meeting, Mr. Strickland seconded the motion, and Mr. Lillecrop took the chair.

E. W. Bailey, president of the Lakefield Rink Co. Ltd., was the next speaker.

Financial Statement

Mr. Bailee presented a comprehensive statement of the financial position of the Rink Company, giving cost of building which was $14,405.00. There is a mortgage of $2,000.00 on the property. The revenue is limited to three or four months in the year. The company have been compelled to raise the rent to the Curling Club from $300.00 per year to $450.00. This rate was struck on the assumption that the Council would give a grant. The assessment is $200.00 on the land, $5,000.00 on the building and $1,300 business tax. The total taxes amount to $312.01, of which $104 was school tax which has been paid. The Rink Company have held several meetings in which the question of how to increase the revenue and lessen the expenses was thoroughly discussed. This is the first company to be ortganized by the citizens and it deserved encouragement. There is an annual grant to the Agricultural Society which only provides a few hours amusement once a year. There are grants to the Trent Waterways and to the Band and several years ago Hague's Point was purchased for $3,000.00 for a village park, and it provides only a pound for stray cattle and stone for the streets. Mr. Bailey was of the opinion that the village should give the grant and take over the mortgage for the next year.

Council's Position

E. A. Tanner was the next speaker and announced his intention of speaking in defence of the Council. There was a deadlock in the Council on this matter and while the meeting had not power to order the remittance of taxes or otherwise, the Council would carry out any recommendation made by vote. Mr. Tanner said that the town was not growing and was weighed down by debt as the debenture debt is $77,205.44, which includes debentures on cement walks, Memorial Hall and the Hydro-Electric. The latter asked for $33,000 and only $30,000 was used and the remaining $3,000 had disappeared, the public paying interest on it in their Hydro bills. Mr. Tanner drew a very gloomy picture of the town's financial future as he saw no prospect of growth. The grant itself was not a big thing but would establish a precedent. The speaker doubted the legality of asking the Council to pay the Rink Company. Mr. Tanner spoke of the indebtedness of the town outside the debenture indebtedness, basing his statements on the auditor's report for 1922.

Debt Reduced

Mr. Strickland, who has been Reeve since 1920, explained that during the four years he has been reeve the indebtedness has been reduced to half what it was besides which the Council have erected a cement tank, bought a fire engine and equipped the brigade and oiled the streets, (something never done before). This past year the indebtedness had not been reduced and even the streets have not been kept up. The debenture debt is heavy but when compared with other places of smaller size it is not excessive. In 1919 the surplus assets were $31,000 and in 1922 they were $39,000. The policy of the Council has been that of "pay as you go."

Mr. Lillecrop urged that the matter in hand was not municipal politics but the question of making a grant to the Rink Co. If the rink had not been built the village would not have received anything and it is not a big thing to return it.

Sold His Shares

A. J. Kidd expressed his opinion that as the land on which the rink was built was only bringing in $4.80 per annum in taxes and now the school tasx alone is $104.00, so that the village is $100 better off for the building being erected. He was the owner of two shares which he regarded as worthless as he did not think the company would pay dividends and if any man offered him $2.00 for the shares he could have them. Walter Chappell at once came forward with $2.00 and purchased the shares. (Applause). This was one of the liveliest moments in a meeting which never for one moment lacked "pep."

Hydro Introduced

W. J. Charlton of the Hydro Electric Commission came forward and addressed the meeting re the question of the Hydro. He does not agree with Mr. Tanner on the question, as the consumer pays for what he uses of either light or power, and if he does not wish to pay he need not use the light. The Hydro Electric Commission is doing well and have $3,000.00 to the good and will pay this year's debentures off. The Hydro is not a debt on the town. Mr. Charlton has been informed that the rates will be lowered somewhat next year.

Mr. Tanner said the Hydro was a debt on the village as the village had to sign the bonds, and if the Power Commission doesn't pay them the village will have to. This could have been decreased if all the appropriation had been used.

Mr. Charlton replied by stating that the Hydro Commission had assets to cover all the expenses re the Hydro Electric expenditure.

T. B. Marling, Clerk of the village, addressed the meeting briefly on the question of the $3,000 which Mr. Tanner spoke of as having disappeared with no trace remaining. The Hydro asked $33,000 and the village borrowed that amount, paying 6½ per cent for it. As only $30,000 of the appropriation was needed the village borrowed the difference from the Hydro, paying interest at the rate of 6 per cent. This money was borrowed in 1920 and went into the current account, so that this money is not a dead loss on which the Hydro Consumer is paying, but a legitimate debt of the village on which interest is paid.

Rink Co. Officers

Mr. Bailey, in reply to a query of A. Fairbairn as to who comprised the Rink Co., stated that these were directors: V. W. Bailey, president, W. J. Charlton, vice-president, Theodore Crawford, Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, J. F. Lillecrop, G. J. Elmsley and W. H. Casement. The Rink Company with its 117 shareholders had, in building the rink, intended to help the village and provide a suitable place for hockey and curling. Mr. Bailey said that in five years the rink would pay, as the village will increase when the Cement Co.'s plant is in operation as at least 60 more men will be needed to work than are at present engaged and no doubt a large per cent of these men and their families will be patrons of the rink. The rink ranks second only to the churches in this town, and the shareholders regard it as good thing. The business tax of $1,300 seems excessive as the rink is only operating for three months of the year. Mr. Bailey repeated that the village was $100 better off by the rink being built owing to the school tax. Mr. Fairbairn felt the business tax should be remitted.

A Public Benefit

Rev. T. L. White was the last speaker and in a brief speech, full of "pep," he expressed his opinion. He is not a shareholder in the rink nor a curler but as a skater he knows the advantages of the rink for the young people. Good clean sport is the best thing for our boys and girls and the rink provides it, the influence is morally wholesome and is needed. Even if the village is in debt, $200 more is a mere flea bite and he would suggest selling Hague's Point, which is not used anyway, and putting the money into the rink. (Loud applause).

After some further discussion as to whether the vote of the meeting be a standing vote or by ballot, (the former being adopted by a majority) the opinion of the meeting as voiced in their standing vote showed itself as strongly in favor of a grant of $200 to the Rink Company.

The meeting adjourned after one of the most spirited meetings held in the Memorial Hall. The object was to obtain an expression of opinion and the results exceeded the expectations as too often these public meetings fail in their object from the indifference of the audience, but last night's meeting brought out plenty of opinions and in that way at least was very successful.

MARMORA HEARD PROF. KEYS IN HUMOR LECTURE

Discussed the American Brand and Some of Its Re-actions on Persons of Other Countries.

UNIVERSITY COURSE

MARMORA, Dec. 12.—On Monday, December 10, the lecture in the course of University Extension which was to have been given by Dr. Howe on "Forest conditions in Canada" was replaced by a lecture by Professor Keyes on "American Humor."

The happening of the unexpected is humorous, he said. When some years ago a distinguished speaker about to sit down after making a speech misjudged the position of his seat and sat on the floor the whole house burst into laughter. It was the unexpectedness of the situation which affected their sense of humor.

Some nationalities are more noted for their sense of humor than others. The Scotch are proverbially classes as a nation of people who fail to see a joke. The people of the United States seem to always catch a joke. Admiral Sims, a Port Hope boy, who has become a commanding officer of the United States navy, tells some stories of the failure of the British to see an American joke. Admiral Sims is called the "most British officer in the U. S. Navy," but he still has the American faculty for seeing a joke. In Hong Kong one afternoon some officers of the American navy were entertaining some British officers at afternoon tea. Admiral Sims spoke of the inability of the British to catch an American joke and one of the British officers took him up on it. Admiral Sims told this story to illustrate his views:

A young man, a stranger in town, went to a hotel for breakfast. The waitress told him they had "Beans, hash, sausage or ham," "cranberry, mince or apple pie." The young man replied that he would take "beans, hash, sausage and ham," "cranberry and mince pie." "Please, sir," said the maid, "and what is wrong with the apple pie?" The Englishman could see no joke in the story and Mr. Sims' own words in describing his look was that he looked like a "petrified plaster-cast image."

In London an American went into a Piccadilly shirt store to buy a shirt. The only kind they sold were those which had no protection at the back to protect the neck from the rubbing of the collar button. The American objected but the dealer said it was the only kind he had and went on to mention that the late Sultan of Turkey had been a customer of his. The American remarked that he supposed the Sultan was wearing an asbestos shirt now. The Englishman could see no point in the story at all.

Their "Wits" Sharpened

American humour is hard to understand by other nationalities. Sharpness has always been accorded as a quality of the people of the United States. Sam Slick and Stephen Leacock are the first and the latest of our Canadian humorists.

In the beginning of history the people of the States came from a moral stock of people—the nonconformists of England. They had, however, hard work to make a living from the unfertile soil of the New England States and they had a hard task preserving their lives from the attacks of the Indians. They had to have perpetual sharpness. This kind of sharpness grows on people. For example, the Jews never could make a living in Palestine so they have to live all over and as a result they became very sharp.

An Englishman visiting in the States heard a good story. He asked a lady what they did with all the corn. She said: "We eat all we can and what we can't eat we can." He went to England and told them this good story but this is his version of the lady's words: "We eat all we can, and what we can't eat we pot."

The young people of the United States so Mr. Muirhead says, have no sense of reverence. He heard a small girl lost in a department store, after crying for some time, say: "I told the darned old thing she'd lose me."

Death, one of the most reverent things, is treated as something of which to make a joke. In a newspaper report of three mulattos being hanged the headline was "Three Chocolate Drops."

In a trip to Alaska the travellers were accustomed to watch the weather report. The first day there was the usual weather report. The second day the report was there, but underneath where the weather 24 hours later should have been, were the words: "The Lord only knows and He won't tell." A party of Scotchmen would have torn it down within half an hour but the Americans left it there till the end of the trip.

A famous professor who had been studying sociology for some time, opened his lecture by telling this story. "Two sons of the late J. Booth were looking over the lists of speculations. One remarked as he saw that a stock in which he had invested some money had become valueless: 'Well, there's $2,000 gone to hell.' 'Never mind,' said the other, 'Dad will get it there.'"

This spirit is carried to an extreme. There is in the States the "herd" instinct. When one laughs another laughs, until everyone laughs.

Professor Keyes read some very interesting selections from "Peck's Bad Boy" and from one of Stephen Leacock's books.

Forest Resources

He then spoke for a few minutes on the subject of Forestry. Our forest wealth is one of our greatest sources of wealth, but we are speedily destroying our forests by fire.

As much wood is destroyed by fire as is consumed in other ways. It takes forty years to grow a crop of wood. At our present rate of consumption our wood will all be gone in twenty years.

The German nation is the best country from which we can learn forestry in a scientific way. They preserve all their forests in a wonderful way.

Through the kindness of the Forestry Department in Ottawa we had four reels of moving pictures, showing the great danger from "The Red Peril." They described what a large tree might have become if saved and then showed what did become of it when by the carelessness of a rancher the surrounding forest was burnt.

The last reel showed pictures of some of the prominent men in our Dominion Government and gave us their ideas on the subject of Forestry. All urged that we try to prevent these forest fires which are begun through carelessness.

Mr. F. S. Rearse was the chairman of the evening. Rev. Father Traynor moved a hearty vote of thanks to Professor Keyes for his splendid address.

The next lecture in the course will be given after Christmas by Professor Keller on "Paris," one of the most beautiful cities of the present time.

Rev. P. C. Watson has been ill and was unable to take his services on Sunday last.

Mr. E. C. Prentice was in Belleville on Saturday last.

THIS LADY SAYS

There's Nothing to Equal "Dr. Wood's" Norway Pine Syrup For Coughs and Colds

Mrs. David Thompson, West River St., Paris, Ont., writes:—"I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

For myself and children I use nothing else.

My little girl, five years old, has had bronchial trouble ever since she had the "flu" a few years ago, and, now, whenever she gets a slight cold she develops a very nasty cough, but all I have to do is to give her a few doses of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Also for myself, and the other children, I can find nothing to equal it, in fact, it was only a short time ago that I gave it to my ten months old baby, and could immediately see the difference it made in her. Now, I always keep Norway Pine Syrup in the house, as I feel there is nothing to equal it."

VOICE OF PEOPLE

To the Editor Examiner:

Will you please print the following funeral notice of the bank clerk who died tragically a few days ago in Hamilton, and my comments on same:

The funeral of Adam Park, whose tragic death took place recently, was held yesterday afternoon from Blachford & Wray's chapel and was largely attended. A most impressive service was conducted by Rev. W. M. Kannawin, assisted by Rev. Beverey Ketchen and Rev. A .L Budge. There was a large representation of the officials of the local banks. The pall-bearers were: A. W. Cook, Fred May, Robert Park, John Stephen, C. J. Davey and Dr. Brown. Interment took place at Woodland cemetery. There were many floral offerings.

The Bank Clerk's Lot.

And they laid him low in a lonely grave, in a strange country and among strange people. He had no friends in the city, for he had been moved here by the Bank, and his home and people were away over the sea in Holland.

So another name has been added to the long list of Canadian Bank clerk unfortunates. What do we hear from those who are in the know? "Silly boy, he just lost his head for a minute. Too bad!" And they shunt somebody else into his place. Business goes on just the same without a break, for they are not human lives, they are just machines in the bank. All is forgotten in a couple of days, and the new teller battles to keep up with the flow of incoming currency or pay the numerous cheques presented.

They say it was suicide. I'll leave it to you if that was the correct verdict, or whether it wasn't just a short-cut he took to a slow prolonged death. No! The lot of a Canadian bank clerk is not a very envious position considering all he goes through.

Given instructions to "report at a branch immediately," with generally one day to pack up, say good-bye, and get on the way, with practically dismissal if one was to decline the extra remuneration or advancement to enhance the thought of going, the ambitious young bank clerk duly arrives in the strange town or city. You folks who do not understand bank clerks and know not the handicaps they are under, did you ever go to a city where you didn't have a friend, where each nickle was measured for your daily existence, and you worked in millions of other people's? Is there any wonder some slip and fall? He is then shoved on some post or other like a spoke in the wheel, most often if he has had any telling experience he is stuck on the cage. It doesn't matter a continental if he detests that certain position, which I might say fully half do. He goes on the busy box against his wishes, handling in currency from fifteen thousand to over one hundred thousand every day, of which he is solely responsible. Keyed to the highest pitch, as the post demands every fraction of your time with the volume and rush to wait on the bank's customers.

Now on such an important position with the great personal responsibility attached, and such a trained willing hand, would you not think he would be worthy of a substantial recompense, particularly when he is liable for all shortages in the cash deducted from his meagre salary at ten dollars a month, by the big financial corporation in which he is slaving and for which he gives his whole life. One wouldn't think they would attempt to remunerate such a one by the mere pittance received. And yet the poor, unfortunate teller, in this last Hamilton tragedy, it has been stated, was drawing a sum totally inadequate for the responsibility of the office. One has generally to serve from twelve to eighteen years when he gets up around the amount necessary to get married and he has to seek permission from the bank if he should want to marry, as they have certain deferred rules regarding amount of salary you must have before they will allow you to marry. Is it not nice of them to have such a fatherly interest in your welfare? It is not a very patriotic stand I should say. Canada's immigration controversy would be all settled if the banks were to erase that law from their book. No wonder thousands of Canada's choicest manhood has forsaken the country to receive employment in United States' banks. They haven't commenced to dictate just when the staff should marry, up to the time of going to press.

So, dear people, as you read such an obituary notice, and there will be more to follow, unless the situation is remedied, do not judge too readily nor rashly. The little lad was only giving of his best—he was just too conscientious with his work. And you directors or big men at the head of Canadian banks, with the big pocket-books and big hearts, open them up and get a little warmer touch of human kindness into your dealings with your staff. Give him a little more consideration and make their path a little smoother. There are a lot of rocks that could be removed, for after all is said and done, these four and five million dollars' profit statements are all watered with the sweat from the brow of such boys that are gone and those that are carrying on. Pass up a stock bonus once.

Perchance it may have been his last hope, and that he may yet have died a martyr to the cause.

A Student of Banking.

Editor of Examiner, — In reply to the suggestions of Mr. E. A. Peck re the matter of salaries to the police and the change to a five-member police commission, I beg to inform the citizens that at London and Toronto, municipalities from Windsor and Ottawa thoroughly discussed the possible changes in the commission and the act, and the suggestion of five members, or any changes, got no immediate encouragement.

The council seemed to think the salary question of the force should remain unsettled until the appeal, now pending, is heard.

CONSTITUTION OF CATHOLIC CHURCH

Subject of Interesting Address at St. Peter's Cathedral Sunday.

"The Constitution of the Catholic Church" was the subject of the sermon at St. Peter's Cathedral Sunday evening, preached by Rt. Rev. Monsignor O'Sullivan, rector of St. Mary's Cathedral, Hamilton. The church was filled to the doors, and the sermon proved to be a vital, eloquent exposition of the Biblical foundation of the Catholic church.

"It is a long history, that of our holy church," declared the speaker, "and it is destined to last until Gabriel's trumpet summons righteous and unrighteous alike to the final judgment. For 1900 years this church has been a living, active institution in the world. There is no first or fifth or twentieth century to the Catholic church. It has survived philosophical and political and social revolutions. She was as much at home in the catacombs of Rome as she is now. When the Magna Charta was signed, when Jerusalem fell, when Garibaldi marched through the streets of Rome, she was as active as she is today when a new Europe is being carved out and the crowns of kings and emperors are rolling in the dust. What is the reason for this? This church has no armies to enforce its will, no men of greater mental acumen than the ordinary run. It is because the Catholic church was founded by Jesus Christ, our God, and because He has promised to be with it to the end of time.

"When making statements like these, let us thank God that He has given us a court of appeal. He has given us the Holy Bible, and it does not matter whether it is the Protestant or the Catholic Bible. The truth is in both, and there you will find the truth and the description of the true church of Christ. If you reverently and piously read your Bible, you will find there the true description of His church, that it is the one holy Catholic and Apostolic."

Taking his references from the Gospel according to Matthew, Monsignor O'Sullivan referred to Jesus' first allusion to the foundation of His church, when he commanded that his disciples "do penance, for the Kingdom of God is at hand." In the ninth chapter, he exhorted prayer to the Lord for more workers for the harvest. In the tenth chapter, after spending the night in prayer, Jesus call his followers together and chose twelve men from among them, telling them "he that heareth you, heareth me, and he that receiveth you, receiveth me." The whole of the thirteenth chapter was a series of little sermons in which Christ described His work. The sower and his seed prefigured the doctrines sown throughout the world, "and when you hear people say that Christianity is not changing the world, do not blame Christianity. When seed is sown in poor land, the seed will rot and decay." The parable of the mustard seed, of the merchant searching for the pearl of great price, of the yeast working through the dough, of the catch of fishes in the nets, symbolized the word of God working in human hearts, and the Great Fisher letting down His nets to catch the souls of men.

"But Christ always compares it to something single, to one thing of great value. It was the net, not the nets, and He spoke always of the Kingdom of Heaven as being one. He was preparing the minds of men for the next step, the organization of His church, and the head of that church was elected, and selected and appointed by Christ Himself, in the sixteenth chapter, where he said to Peter: "Thou art a rock and upon this rock I will build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

"He did not say that the powers of hell would not attack it. He simply said that they would not prevail against it. He said: "I will give to thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven. What thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound also in heaven, and what thou shalt loose on earth will be loosed also in heaven."

"Then He began to complete His organization and to bestow powers upon it. Before He died, he instituted the sacrifice of the Holy Mass, on Easter Sunday He left with His apostles the power to forgive sin, and in the time between the resurrection and the ascension, He opened their minds to the interpretation of the Scriptures. On Mount Olivet, He left with them the injunction to go forth and teach and preach to all men, and bestowed upon them the last glorious, supreme benediction: "Behold, I am with you all days, even to the end of the world."

Referring to the charge often made that the church, in its history, had been marred by the actions of bad priests, bad bishops and even bad popes, the speaker declared that the latter had never, at any time, interfered with, or attempted to deny, one single doctrine of the church itself, or nad broken the long line of succession from Peter.

He drew the attention of his hearers also to the fact that when Jesus and His followers assembled for the Last Supper, when Christ saw before Him the agnoy of the morrow, and the long years of suffering ahead of His church, that, at that supreme moment, one of His chosen twelve was absent, a traitor, bargaining with the high priests for the price of the betrayal of His Master.

BANK CLERKS MAY NOT MARRY TILL OLD AGE

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 12 (Associated Press).—Many of the larger banks in Denmark are considering the making of a rule that no bank employee may marry unless his wage amounts to at least 4,000 crowns plus the bonus necessitated by the rise in prices since the war, says the Politiken. In one bank, this wage in the ordinary course of events, is not obtained until after 14 years' service so that it would appear some Danish clerks will be condemned to years of celibacy if the suggestion is carried through.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

A TATTLER

"I talk and talk and also hear."

This was the riddle that the Riddle Lady asked next day:

"I talk and talk and also hear,
For I've a mouth and one good ear.
I am a gossip of the worst,
Whate'er takes place, I hear it first.

"I have more knowledge than the books,
That tell of ships and kings and cooks,
I hear more stories, new and old,
Than story-books would ever hold.

"I know more secrets than the sphynx,
For all he grins and wisely winks,
I know more news than all the press,
That prints the papers—can you guess?

"But I've a habit I can't break,
I know it's bad—there's no mistake—
Whate'er I hear, with throaty rattle,
As quick as scat, I go and tattle

"There have been times I've turned discreet,
Deciding that I'd not repeat,
The things I'd heard of this and that,
As—who wore someone else's hat

"But when I do, I get a shaking,
Until I'm sure my bones are breaking,
And someone shouts out in my ear,
'Hello, hello, now can you hear?'

"So what's the use of being good?
I can't do anything I should.
So don't blame me, if you should own,
A rattle-tattle ——."

Nick thought he knew, and Nancy thought she knew, but both of them waited to hear what the Riddle Land people would have to say.

"Well, well, well" declared the Old-Shoe Woman. "That's a hard one. It isn't the wind is it? Lady Wind is an awful gossip. I always say to my children, 'Listen now, my little deers, if a whisper reaches itching ears—'"

"Oh, do have done and give the rest of us a chance" admonished Old Mother Hubbard. Then she turned to the Riddle Lady. "I was just passing by on my way to the butcher's to get my dog a bone when I heard what you said. I'm plumb worn out traipsing around for that dog I've been to the tailors and the cobblers and the hatters this morning and I'll soon have no soles on my shoes."

The Riddle Lady smiled in sympathy. "If you had one of the things the riddle is about, you could stay at home and do your buying," she said. "But you folk from Mother Goose Land are all too old-fashioned for new inventions. Tell them what it is, Nancy," for she could tell by the little girl's eyes that she knew.

"A telephone" she said quickly.

Your Health

HOME CANNED GOODS

While you cannot always choose the biggest and best red apples, or the largest red, ripe tomatoes, for canning purposes, you can use the greatest care possible in canning or preserving fruits and vegetables for family use.

The health of the family may be imperiled if one bad can or jar of fruit should chance to be charged with toxic fruit or vegetables.

The United States Public Health Service has recently completed a series of studies in canned food poisoning at the University of Chicago bacteriological laboratories. Dr. John C. Geiger, who has had charge of the work, says the only sure preventive is to boil the food, jar and all, for several hours before storing it. The real time of this boiling should be from three to six hours, according to the size and kind of container.

The reason for high mortality in cases of canned fruit or vegetable poisoning is that medical science is as yet unable to cope with botulism (a form of poison in decaying vegetables) even after the symptoms have been diagnosed. The danger is that often there is no evidence of food spoilage. This proves that food may be highly toxic. On the other hand, food may be spoiled and yet it may not be poisonous or have any ill effects on the human system.

Housewives and others may avoid this dangerous infection by using the precaution which has been pointed out. It is a little more trouble, but surely the lives of your loved ones are worth a lot of time and trouble.

Boil your canned fruit and vegetables half an hour when opened for use.

COFFEE

(Unless otherwise specified these recipes are planned for four persons.)

EVERY hostess feels her reputation is more or less marred or made by the character of coffee she serves her guests. The everyday brew for the family is quite as important.

There is no luck or magic about good coffee. However, there are one or two facts worth keeping in mind.

A blend of Mocha and Java coffee, in the proportion of two parts of Java to one of Mocha, gives a fine sparkling beverage suited to the average taste.

Buy coffee in small quantities unless you grind it yourself. After coffee is ground it loses its strength unless kept in air-tight containers.

Many brands of coffee nowadays are "steel-cut." This means coffee ground medium. It is used for boiled coffee. If percolated coffee is preferred the coffee should be ground fine. For filtered coffee the berry should be pulverized.

Accurate measurements are as essential for coffee as for cake. While the amount of coffee needed to a cup of water varies somewhat according to the brand, this is gauged easily after the first pot of coffee is made and the measurements can be reconstructed to suit.

Old-fashioned boiled coffee is always popular and, if carefully made, as wholesome as any kind.

Boiled Coffee

Four tablespoons medium ground coffee, ½ cup cold water, 3 eggshells or ½ egg and shell, 1½ cups boiling water.

Mix eggshells with half the cold water. The shells are crushed finely. Mix with coffee and put into scalded coffee pot. Add boiling water and stir thoroughly. Put over fire and boil five minutes. Pour remaining one-quarter cup of cold water into pot through the spout and let stand three minutes where it will keep hot but not boil.

This rule will make four cups of coffee as a cup of coffee does not equal the standard measuring cup. Enough white of egg sticks to three eggshells to clear this amount of coffee when eggs are high.

If a large amount of boiled coffee is needed a whole egg is required.

After-Dinner Coffee

One-half cup coffee, ½ cup cold water, ½ egg and shell, 1½ cups boiling water.

Make the coffee as in preceding rule and serve without cream.

To obtain the "half egg," beat egg slightly before measuring and add half the crushed shell. The remaining half should be tightly covered and placed in a cold place or on ice until the next day.

Filtered Coffee

One-half cup pulverized coffee, 3½ cups boiling water.

Put coffee in filter bag or strainer and slowly add boiling water. To do this, fill the coffee container with water, cover and let stand until water drips through coffee into the pot. If a stronger coffee is desired pour the filtered coffee over the grounds the second time. Filtered coffee lacks the sparkle of boiled coffee and has a different taste.

Percolated Coffee

Percolated coffee requires 20 to 30 minutes of "perking" to make a good cup of coffee. The boiling water that comes through the tube is small in quantity and it must come and fall over the grounds many times. A finely ground coffee makes better percolated coffee than a coarse or medium ground coffee.

Cafe au Lait

One-half cup hot milk, ½ cup freshly made coffee.

This is served for breakfast and is really a nourishing drink. Percolated, boiled or filtered coffee of ordinary strength is used.

"Vienna coffee, so often served at afternoon affairs, is extra strong coffee served with whipped cream. The coffee is not as strong as "after-dinner" coffee, but is stronger than ordinary breakfast coffee. Instead of doubling the amount of coffee as in after-dinner, use "half as much again.

LABRADOR PRAYS FOR COLD

Warm Weather Drives Fish North, Causing Food Shortage.

QUEBEC, Dec. 11. — Extraordinary weather conditions are reported along the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Labrador.

Warm winds blow; the waters still are free from ice; wild life which ordinarily would have migrated to the south weeks ago, remains; cattle graze on green pasture. Yet the people pray for winter.

Cod fishing is almost at a standstill. The cod have moved north into colder waters and there is a food shortage. Such extreme suffering has resulted that the provincial Government has been compelled to lend a helping hand.

COLLEGE MEN IN PRISON

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 (United Press).—Seven thousand college men are locked up in the prisons of America. Twenty-four per cent. of these educated criminals are members of churches. These facts based on a research conducted recently by Johns Hopkins University were pointed out by Prof. A. N. Farmer in an address here in which he urged character training in education.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor, The Examiner,

Sir,—It surely was a strange and tragic thing that William Jennings Bryan had to attend the mass meeting at the Calvary Baptist Church in New York City called to protest against modernism and be compelled to give utterance to the following violent attack upon the ministry:—"Why do these men take their vows, become pastors of churches and then renounce the religion they are supposed to stand for? . . . . Why don't they get out?" Earlier in the day Bryan had said:—"Since we get from the Bible our conception and opinion of God and since it is the only source of knowledge of God if the Bible is not the truth then there is no God!"

Our Canadian people always wait for a lead from somewhere else than their own country with the result that they are usually mothered by any new movement before they are aware that it is upon them. A little while ago they went mad with enthusiasm over the prohibition of liquor but they do not seem to have had enough enthusiasm left over to defend their belief in the Bible. We are pretty poor things after all are we not We can stamp upon our respectable fellow-citizens with apostolic fervour but when it comes to defending our belief in Christ lo! we are like unto Judas Iscariot. Perhaps Americans will be able to show us our duty even if our faith does not reach so far. Our people could prohibit liquor and might even go so far as to show God that He made a mistake in providing the world with the tobacco plant but will they prohibit attacks upon the Bible? Or do they think that after all it is out-of-date and that they themselves know more than God who had He chosen could have prohibited the creation of all bad things. It is this lack of faith in God and God's plan which has proven the seed of the present revolution in religion in comparison with which Bolshevism is as white as snow. "O ye of little faith"—in God. It is yourselves you worship. When once it was decided that God's plan of governing the world needed amending it was but a matter of time until one thing after another of God's creating was declared evil and now our punishment awaits us, the tragedy is upon us.

The President of the U. S. has well said that it is people who make a people, that it is a vast aggregation of healthy units that make a healthy nation. Treasure and develop the individual and we have the will in each and therefore in all to do well. But deny this proposition, suppress the individual, make him or her of no account as a good man or good woman. Let them be submerged by the onrush of the multitude and what have we? A mob—a mob of people prating of liberty and destroying it. We must make our choice between the sacredness of the person, its liberty and its individual moral responsibility and the sacrifice of it. It does not matter what the sacrifice is for; once that nobility of manhood and womanhood is sacrificed it is gone and with it goes in course of time the nobility of the nation which is founded upon the greatness of its individuals and upon nothing else human. This is the mistake of this age in North America—the integrity of the individual in the mass. When once the mass decides not to protect, but to sacrifice the sacredness of individual manhood and womanhood to what is called the needs of all, decay and ruin begin, because in destroying the individual we have made "the all", composed of individuals, itself a mass of rottenness and wreckage. Until we go back upon our tracks and make a great people by making each one great and protecting and encouraging him in his efforts to to that end how can we have anything but the failure that we have? Suppression of that only ideal in man and woman which we talk so much of in the so-called interest of an idea, is to indentify the good man and woman with the bad and to bring us all ultimately to ruin.

This, then, is the proposition we are up aginst—shall we recognize the manhood and womanhood of respectable people or treat that manhood and womanhood as the ideal of a past age? And subject it to force?

But it was some time before he saw her alone again, and meanwhile many things happened.

She took Mr. Dinwiddie home in her car for supper, Clavering following with Osborne in a taxi, and as the abundant repast was spread in the dining-room it was patent that she had gone to the opera with the intention of bringing back willing guests. She knew that both Dinwiddie and Osborne subscribed to the omnibus box, and no doubt if they had failed to put in an appearance she would have dropped—with one of her infernally ready excuses—himself at his own door. She might as well have announced, without bothering to feed these damned old bores, that she did not intend to see him alone again until she had made up her royal mind.

He ground his teeth, but he was master of himself again and had no intention to make the mistake of sulking. The situation put him on his mettle. He led the conversation and did practically all the talking: as if the vital youth in him, stimulated by music and champagne (which the older men were forced to imbibe sparingly), must needs pour forth irresistibly—and impersonally. He was not jealous of Dinwiddie or Osborne (although the black frowns on the latter's brow was sufficient evidence of a deeply personal resentment), and although he did not flash Madame Zattiany a meaning glance, might indeed have sat at her board for the first time, he knew that he had never made a better impression. Her eyes, which had been very heavy and troubled as they took their seats at the table, and as old as eyes could be in that perfect setting, began to look like a gray landscape illumined by distant flash of lightning. Before long they were full of life, and response, and laughter. And pride? There was something very like pride in those expressive orbs (not always as subject to her will as she fancied), as they dwelt on the brilliant young journalist whose mind darted hither and thither on every subject he could summon that would afford the opportunity of witty comment. He even quoted himself—skipping the past two months—and what had been evolved with much deliberation and rewriting sounded spontaneous and pertinent. But in truth he was so genuinely stimulated before the brief hour was over that when he returned to his rooms he wrote his column before turning in. He felt as if fiery swords were playing about his mind, flashing out words and phrases that would make his brother columnists, no sluggards in words and phrases themselves, green on the morrow. For the moment he was quite happy, as he always was when his mind was abnormally quickened, and he dismissed women and their infernal whims to limbo.

When he awoke at two o'clock in the afternoon his brain felt like the ashes of a bonfire and his spirits were a leaden weight. He knew what was to be expected of reaction, however, and after his punch bag and showers he felt better. He'd see her today and force some sort of understanding.

But when he opened his door and saw a letter in her handwriting, and evidently delivered by a servant, as it was unstamped, his hand shook and his half-recovered confidence fled. This time he made no attempt at the farce of self-discipline; he opened it at once. When he saw that it began without formality he drew a long breath.

"I am not going to see you until Saturday," it read, "when I hope you will take me to Miss Dwight's party. Meanwhile I shall ask you not to see Mr. Dinwiddie nor any one else likely to discuss me. I shall not care to stay long at the party and if you will return here with me I will tell you my secret, such as it is. I shall only say here that I had no intention of making a mystery of myself, for I did not expect to exchange a word with any one in America but Judge Trent and his business associates. I came to America for one purpose only, to settle my affairs, which would have dragged on interminably if I had not been here to receive my alienated properties in person. I know many people in New York, but I had no idea of seeing any of them, although tempted on account of the money they might help me to collect for the children of Austria. But I had decided to leave that until the last minute. I not only was no longer interested in these old friends of mine, but I disliked the explanations I should be forced to give them, the comments, the curiosity, the endless questions. What I mean by this you will know on Saturday night.

"But it is not the first time in my life that I have discovered the futility of making plans. My meeting with you and the profound interest you have awakened has upset all calculations. I expected nothing less! If I had I should have told you the truth the night we met. But it never occurred to me for an instant that I could love any man again. I had done with all that years ago, and my intention was to give my life and my fortune to certain problems in Europe which I shall not bore you with here.

"Possibly if I had met you casually with Judge Trent, or if I had not chosen to avoid my old friends and met you at one of their houses, as I might easily have done, I should have made no mystery of myself; if indeed you did not know the truth already.

"When he returned to his rooms he wrote his column before turning in."

"But not only the curious circumstances of our meeting after your weeks of silent devotion, but your own personality, quickened to life a flicker of youthful romance so long moribund that I had forgotten it had ever been one of my lost inheritances. I was also both amused and interested, and to play a little comedy with you was irresistible. It did not occur to me for amoment. that you would fall in love with me

"It was not until the second time you came here after the theatre that I realized what was happening in those submerged cells of mine. But I could not make up my mind to tell you that night—nor the next. By that time I was frightened. I feared there could be only one result. I suppose all women are cowards when in love. But I knew that this could not last, and when you asked me to sit in Mrs. Oglethorpe's box I thought the time had come to precipitate matters. After a decisive step like that I could not retreat. But I wish to tell you myself, and for that reason I have asked you to discuss me with no one until we meet. It will probably be the last time I shall see you, but I am prepared for that.

"I shall see Jane Oglethorpe today. She has been very loyal and I think she will forgive me. It would not matter much if she did not, and possibly would save me a good deal of boredom, but after last night an explanation is due her.

"And after Saturday night, mon ami, matters will be entirely in your hands. You will realize whether you have merely been dazzled and fascinated or whether there is really between us that mysterious bond that no circumstances can alter. Such things have happened to men and women if we may believe history, but I have had too good reason to believe that it is not for me. However—at least for a brief time you have given me back something of the hopes and illusions of youth. This is itself is so astonishing that whatever the result I shall never be able to forget you.

"Until Saturday.

SCIENTISTS SEEK FOR THE ANCIENT CITIES OF PLAIN.

Sodom and Gomorrah May Be Found Under the Dead Sea—Divers May Be Employed.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 11 (Associated Press).—It may be necessary to search under the Dead Sea to locate the sites of Sodom and Gomorrah, according to the Rev. Melvin G. Kyle, president of the Xenia Theological Seminary here, who will head a scientific expedition to Palestine, sailing December 29. The party will search for the exact locations of the "cities of the plain," which also include Zoar, Admah and Zeboiim.

According to the Biblical account, Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed by fire and brimstone because of the wickedness of their inhabitants, and Arabian tradition says the pillar of salt into which Lot's wife was turned still stands.

Dr. Kyle, who also is professor of Biblical archaeology at the local institution, expressed the opinion that the date, 1892 B. C., for the destruction of the two cities is approximately correct. He said he believes the sites of the two cities are under the shallow part of the Dead Sea, which has no outlet, and in which no piscatorial life can exist.

The party will include Dr. F. W. Albright, director of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem; Prof. Day of the American University at Beirut, who will take care of the geological work of the expedition; Herbert Tay, a fellow of Dr. Kyle at the seminary, and Herbert Kent, a student. Should evidence be found that the two cities are under the sea, divers may be employed, Dr. Kyle explained.

MILLION PECAN TREES

WILMIGTON, N. C., Dec. 11 (United Press).—The North Carolina agricultural department has called for the planting of a million pecan trees in the eastern half of the state, the work to be done before the end of 1927. Some thousands of trees planted in past years are bearing in profusion, the buts being of exceptional size. The department will aid farmers in securing young trees. Twenty-five pecan orchards will be planted in each county at the start.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

FOUR YEARS ADDED M'MULLEN'S TERM

Recaptured Member of Sextette That Broke Jail in September, Pleaded Guilty to Three Charges.

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press).—In the County Court this morning Edward McMullen, one of the six convicts who made a sensational break from Portsmouth Penitentiary by means of a ladder and a smoke screen on the morning of Setpember 10 last, and the only one of the sextette to be re-captured so far, pleaded guilty to charges of escape, of being at large, and of the theft of an auto.

On the charge of escaping from lawful custody, McMullen was given two years, on that of being at large another two years, both these to run concurrently, and on the charge of the theft of an automobile he was given an additional two years. The sum total of these sentences means that McMullen will have four years added to the unexpired portion of his term of fourteen years to which he was sentenced at Sarnia on September 28, 1922.

McMullen's liberty was short-lived. Badly wounded in one of his hands by a bullet from a guard's rifle, he was obliged to go into hiding near the spot where the stolen auto was abandoned, and later in the afternoon he was caught and returned to prison. Since then he has been under close confinement.

THE LIBERALS MAY SUPPORT BALDWIN

Nothing is Known of What Happened at the Interview Between Baldwin and H. H. Asquith.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—In view of persistence of rumors that Liberals were willing and had agreed to give sympathetic support to Baldwin administration, all centres of political activity are today humming with reports, although nothing is known of what happened at interview between Premier and H. H. Asquith, yesterday. Majority of political writers today emphatically deny that any Conservative - Liberal agreement was reached by Premier and ex-Premier. Liberal newspapers say it is an absurb myth and that Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Asquith have never suggested giving support to Government Conservative Morning Post asserts that both parties are hostile to any sort of an arrangement and remarks that Mr. Asquith's temperment is far too cautious to allow him to commit himself to any course of action before Parlimament meets. Persistent character of rumors is ascribed in some quarters to Labor politicians who alleged they are anxious to represent Tories and Liberals as common enemies of Labor. It is understood that the course of Labor party will be finally determined at series of meetings which are being held this week.

It Pays to Advertise.

CONSERVATIVE DOWNFALL CAUSED BY THE WOMEN

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The votes of the women of Great Britain were largely responsible for the downfall of the Conservatives in the general election, Lady Astor, American born peeress, who was returned to Parliament, wrote in a letter to the Times, published to-day. Herself a staunch Conservative, Lady Astor declared the parties' attitude toward temperance and juvenile bills, "makes thousands of plain, honest women voters feel that the Conservatives are reactionary and the others progressive."

The moral spiritual and domestic forces of this country are becoming more powerful every day," the Viscountess wrote. "Any party which ignores or offends them must suffer."

ANTON LANG WILL VISIT AMERICA

The Fifteen Longhaired Mountaineers Will Arrive on the Steamship Reliance Today,

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(United Press).—Anton Lang, the "Chsistus" of the Passion play, and his fellow passion players all residents of the little Bavarian village of Oberrammergau ,will arrive in New York today on the steamship Reliance.

The fifteen long-haired mountaineers come to America to recoup the failing finances of their community, with that end in view they are bringing a varied exhibition of Oberrammergau art including wood carvings, paintings and pottery.

The first showing of the collection will be in the Grand Central Palace here just as soon as the exhibit can be arranged. Later the passion players will travel as they plan to spend some months in America.

Loyalty to ancient tradition will prevent them from presenting the Passion Play outside their native village. The money which they will make in this country will be sent to Germany—one tenth to the starving children through the Reich, nine tenths to the Oberrammergau authorities.

GOLDEN WEDDING WAS EELEBRATED

Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy of Sophia Street, Entertained on 50th Anniversary of Marriage.

A very pleasant event took place on Monday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Ina McCarthy, 42 Sophia St., celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage. Mr. McCarthy was born in Sidney township, in 1850, and when four years old moved with his parents to Madoc, where he spent most of his life. He was married in 1873 to Harriet Huffman, also of Madoc. Four children were born three of whom are living: Frank, of Peterboro; Mrs. Baxter of Oswego, and Mrs. W. H. Morton of this city. There are also five grandchilden and two great grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy moved to Peterboro four years ago wheer they have made many friends.

Many were the congratulations and good wishes bestowed on them, and in the early evening a buffet luncheon was served to about thirty guests in the dining room, which was prettily decorated with yellow and green. Mrs. Fred Davis, sister of the bride, poured the tea, and Mrs. Minnie Eckert, niece of the groom, cut the ices.

After luncheon a handsome purse of gold and other beautiful gifts were presented to the bride and groom of 50 years, and the following address read:

"To Mr. and Mrs. Ina McCarthy:

"It is with great pleasure we have gathered here to-night to celebrate with you one of the great events of your life. This is indeed a grand occasion and one which, while it brings joy and thankfulness to our hearts, bears with it one of the most beautiful and touching lessons in the 'Book of life.' You have indeed reached the golden age of maturity.

"What a privilege for us to be heer to witness this beautiful sight to see the bride and bridegroom of to-day, in soul and heart, the bride and bridegroom of to-day, half a century ago.

"We are here to-night to wish you many a long year yet before the golden link which binds you together is snapped; that your bark may sail upon a golden sea and that your sunset may be golden, is our united sentiment.

"As a memento of our best wishes we ask you to accept this little gift.

"Signed on behalf of the family and friends."

Mr. McCarthy suitably replied. During the evening music was supplied by three of the grandchildren, Masters Carl, Carman and Allen McCarthy.

Among those from a distance who attended the celebration were Mr. and Mrs. George Huffman, Madoc, and Mrs. Eckert of Toronto.

HON. A. MEIGHEN GAVE ADDRESS

At a Public Meeting Held in Saskatoon Last Evening.

SASKATOON, Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press). — Addressing public meeting here last night, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, opposition leader in Canada, reviewed and criticized record of Liberal Government in its two years of office at Ottawa, other addresses were given by Hon. Robt Rogers and Hon Howard Ferguson, bringing to its close a day which has inspired the Conservative with confidence in their prospects as a party in Saskatchewan. Mr. Meighen said he was in favour of completing the Hudson Bay railway, not at once, because policy of vigorous retrenchment was still more vital but not to be deferred indefinitely, road would be completed by hold trend of cost of living higher substantially here than in the United States and still hold our population," said Mr. Meighen.

London Satisfied.

LONDON, Dec 12.— (Canadian Press).—Announcement that President Coolidge is willing American experts should participate, unofficially in proposed inquiry into Germany's financial condition is displayed by London newspapers with manifest satisfaction.

Look to West.

Premier Ferguson spoke of the importance of a complete understanding between east and west. We discovered in Ontario," he said, "that you can't found a Government on an organization that is fundamentally unsound. Class government antagonizes all other classes It is bound to be narrow and partisan. We have tried an experiment with that sort of thing and we are paying for it.

Looseness of admistration and want of capacity were faults he ascribed to the Drury regime "It does not pay,' he said, "to place public business in the hands of men with narrow vision." He stated his belief in the party system of Government as the best and safest.

"We look to you in the west to get back to a sane, stable Government. Then we can begin to make some headway nationally"

FRANCE HAS AGREED TO WIDEN CONSIDERABLY

By Webb Miller, United Press Correspondent.

PARIS, Dec. 12.— France has agreed to widen considerably the scope of the proposed investigation of Germany's capacity to pay reparations and has removed many limitations to obtain participation by Americans in the committees findings, it was learned today.

The French concessions were admitted after receipt of word that Colonel Logan will confer with Barthou regarding the particular Americans that are to receive these invitations. Although technically the reparations commission appoints the experts, Logans recommendations will receive attention. Afer he has designated the bankers to be invited, the commission will mail the invitations.

The French press generally approves the prospect of American participation but deplores any concession that may have been made to that end.

HOIST STRUCK STONE AND DEATH FOLLOWED

Young Man Was Bending Over Work When Falling Rock Struck Him on Back.

CAMPBELLFORD, December 12.—Further information regarding the death this morning of William Hore indicates that the young man was stooping over the chains on the hoist where he was employed when the stone struck him. He was killed instantly.

The unfortunate young man had returned from Toronto a month ago. His duties at the Hydro plant included the raising and lowering of the hoists. The hoist struck a large rock which was balanced on a ledge, knocking it off. It struck the young man in the middle of the back.

William Hore was an only son, and his parents who reside in Campbellford, are broken hearted by the tragedy. He was an active member of the Methodist church, where he was a member of the League, the Sunday school and the choir. He was a general favorite in the town.

COMMISSIONER LANDIS APPROVED BY OWNERS

Rumors of Ructions Dispelled By New Pledge of Loyalty By National League Clubs.

CARL MAYS SOLD.

CHICAGO, December 12. — Peace within the major league ranks over the administration of Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner, was assured for at least 1924, when the club owners of the National League adopted resolutions last night pledging the continuance of their loyal support and the unqualified approval of his administration.

The action of the National Leaguers dispelled some of the rumors of the possibility of a clash between Commissioner Landis, President Heydler of the National League, and Ben Johnson, the president of the National League.

The pre-convention report that Commissioner Landis would be embarrassed at the joint meeting of the major Leagues on Wednesday, disappeared quickly as the action of the National Leaguers became known.

The National League Clubowners, in their resolution, aproved the fearless and impartial decisions rendered by Commissioner Landis.

Offers for Hornsby.

Other high spots in Tuesday's meetings of baseball owners of major and minor league clubs included:

An offer of $275,000 for Rogers Hornsby, made by President Charles Ebbets of the Brooklyn Nationals. This offer was prompted, doubtless, by the St. Louis Nationals' price of $250,000 for Hornsby's contract.

Sam Breadon, President of the St. Louis club, made no reply to the offer.

At the meeting of the American League to-day George Sisler and Babe Ruth each were voted a button emblematic of the greatest baseball player of the years in which they were so declared, pending the building of the monument in Washington on which their names will be inscribed.

Frank J. Navin, of Detroit, was re-elected vice-president of the American League, and the new board of directors will be composed of the representatives of St. Louis, Detroit, Boston and New York.

The Board of Arbitration of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs, decided that Harry A. Williams was the duly elected President of the Pacific Coast League, and that J. Cal Ewing is entitled to vote as the representative of the Pacific Coast League in the National Association.

Mays Sold to Reds.

Carl Mays, pitcher of the New York Yankees, was sold to the Cincinnati Club, according to the announcement by Manager Miller Huggins. It is understood that the deal was for cash, but the amount was not made public.

Donovan's "Wildest" Game

Bill Donovan always said that he never remembered the game in which he was the wildest but that he always would remember the wildest game in which he played, if "wild" means weird.

Donovan referred to that memorable 17-inning game between the Athletics and Detroit at old Columbia Park in Philadelphia which decided the American League championship, virtually, in 1907.

The game caused a controversy that lasted for several seasons.

Donovan and Dygert started pitching, Donovan was wild at the start and was hit hard but Dygert lasted only two innings before Rube Waddell replaced him.

The Athletics were leading 7 to 1 at the end of the sixth and looked unbeatable, but in the seventh a furious batting spree gave the Tigers four runs. The Tigers scored another in the eight and when the ninth started the score was 8 to 6.

In the ninth a man reached first and Ty Cobb smashed one of Rube Waddell's pitches over the rightfield fence for a home run and tied the score. Donovan often said he never saw Waddell leave the box. "I was watching Cobb's hit go over the fence," he said later. "The next time I looked Eddie Plank was pitching."

Plank, always a nemesis for Detroit stopped further scoring and the game went overtime. In the eleventh Detroit scored a run and the game seemed "in." Then the Athletics went to bat. Two were out and a man on second. The next batsman hit an easy fly to left field. A telegraph operator, set to "save" every second for his newspaper, flashed the word that "so-andso" flashed the word that "so-and-so" flied to Jones, ending the game." But Jones muffed the ball, the run scored, and the game again was tied.

The play that caused the game to reach fever pitch came in the twelfth inning. Harry Davis, of the Athletics, hit a low ball toward the crowd in right center. The ball hit Crawford's glove and bounded out and free. The hit would have decided the game in favor of the Athletics but Crawford rushed madly toward the infield, claiming interference. Crawford insisted that a policeman befuddled by the ball coming at him, tried to get out of its way and ran in front of Crawford. Crawford said he lost sight of the ball.

Crawford made his plea to Silk O'Loughlin. O'Loughlin ran out and conferred with Tom Connolly, the umpire on the bases.

"Did that cop interfere with Crawford?" O'Loughlin asked Connolly.

"He did," answered Connolly.

O'Loughlin ran back to the bench and declared Davis out. The decision touched off a mine. The Mackmen were in a frenzy. O'Loughlin ran back to Connolly at second base, and asked him the same question over again.

"Didn't I tell you once that he did?" shot back Connolly.

By this time players of both teams were rushing at each other and fists and arms were flying. Monte Cross, of the Athletics, started a swing at a Detroit player. Donovan, who was in the thick of the fight, knocked down Cross with a right.

The knockdown was the climax of the quarrel and the umpires were looking at Donovan although they were not sure it was he who hit Cross. At that moment Claude Rossman announced that it was he who hit Cross and Rossman was banished from the game, Donovan staying to pitch through the 17 innings when darkness prevented further play.

ARRANGE RACE FOR EPINARD AND ZEV

Preliminary Negotiations By Owners Agree On General Idea.

NEW YORK, December 11. — A match race or series of races between Epinard, the French champion three year old, and Zev, the United States champion, to be run next summer or early in the fall, is virtually assured as the result of a conference to-day among Pierre Wertheimer, the owner of Epinard; Harry F. Sinclair, owner of Zev, and Major August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey Club.

Whether the race or series of races will be run in this country or in France, was not decided and will not be, it was stated, until public opinion in France and the United States has been sounded.

"I found Mr. Sinclair as desirous as I for meeting between our thoroughbreds," stated the Frenchman. "Although no contracts were involved and the place and the details of the match remain indefinite I can say with reasonable certainty that the great horses will meet before next October.

"Mr. Sinclair, who departs to-night for Denver, agreed to leave Zev's case in the hands of Mr. Belmont, and there is plenty of time between now and the 1924 racing season in which to arrange the place and the conditions of the competition."

Dempsey Won Verdict In Suit For Damages.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., December 11. — A jury here to-day returned a verdict in favor of Jack Dempsey, and his manager, Jack Kearns, in the trial of a suit for $10,000 brought against the champion boxer by Alex. Geranois in behalf of his 12 year old daughter. The child was bitten by a dog at the Dempsey training quarters here on June 10. The champion denied ownership of the dog.

HERZOG TO HANDLE THE NEWARK CLUB

Conferred With the New Management and Is Reported to Have Accepted

NEWARK, N.J., December 12. — Charles "Buck" Herzog, former National League star, probably will manage the Newark Club of the International League next season under the syndicate of local men which recently purchased the franchise.

Herzog conferred to-day with the leaders of the syndicate, including Corbett McCarthy, a former business associate of the ball player, and Michael McTighe. No formal announcement was made afterward, but it was understood Herzog accepted an offer to handle the club's reins, probably as a player-manager. Herzog intimated the success of the conference when he declared it was hoped to put Newark back on the International team in 1924 with a strong team in 1924 adding that plans were under way for the erection of a new stadium by 1925.

Herzog, star infielder and manager at various times in his spectacular career of a dozen years with four National League clubs, will stage a comeback after several seasons of inactivity, if he takes charge of Newark. He wound up his major league career with the Chicago Cubs in 1920.

LENGLEN AND TILDEN STARS

French Woman Holds Five World Titles in 1923 Tennis Records.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, and William T. Tilden, II, stand at the top of women's and men's tennis ranks for 1923, compilation of the season's championship records reveals. The The French star holds or shares in five world's titles while Tilden has four American national championships to his credit, though he also proved his superiority over the holders of so-called world's crowns.

Lenglen swept through all opposition abroad, including an invading American party headed by Mrs. Molla Mallory. Her only rival for honors appears to be Helen Wills, the youthful Californian, who dethroned Mrs Mallory as American titleholder after the latter's seven-year reign at the top. But as the Western girl's accomplishments were confined to this country, no real measure of comparison is possible. Critics point out, however, that Miss Wills triumphed over members of the invading English women's team, as well as over Mrs. Mallory quite as decisively as Mlle Lenglen had done abroad.

Tilden's pre-eminent place is unquestioned. "Big Bill" conquered decisively William M. Johnston, his California rival, who had won the world's hard and turf court titles abroad, and won the national all-comers singles for the fourth successive year. In addition, Tilden vanquished in the Davis Cup challenge round James O. Anderson, the Australian ace, who, in the opening match, had defeated Johnston.

The Davis Cup contest, attracting a record entry list of 17 nations, proved one of the most interesting in the history of the trophy, winding up with a sensational title round in which the United States defeated Australia after a hard battle, four matches to one.

Carpentier May Meet Tunney During Winter.

NEW YORK, December 11. — Gene Tunney, who successfully defended his title in a 15-round match with Harry Greb, of Pittsburg, last night, may meet Georges Carpentier, former holder of the world's 175-pound crown, at Madison Square Garden late in January or early in February. The Frenchman is willing to meet any opponent Rickard may select, but is particularly anxious to fight the United States champion.

YOST HAD GREAT RECORD.

Michigan Football Coach Has Groomed Eight Unbeaten Teams.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 10. — "Hurry Up" Yost, since the becoming football coach at the University of Michigan in 1901, has groomed eight teams that have gone through the season undefeated.

Yost started in 1901 when his team won all eleven games and then duplicated the feat in 1902. The next championship team was in 1904. After a tie with Minnesota in 1903. In 1910 the Yost eleven was undefeated, but tied by Case, Pennsylvania and Ohio States.

The next lapse took them to 1918, when the Wolverines won their five games. They gathered six victories in 1922, tieing Vanderbilt. This year they won ten games and a tie for the Western Conference championship.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

One of our most successful financiers once remarked, "I never try to buy at the bottom or sell at the top." What did he mean?

The statement above indicates that the successful financier was a long-pull trader on the security markets. The long-pull trader realizes the folly of trying to pick the exact top or the exact bottom of prices in either the stock or bond markets.

Securities move up and down over a period of years in a more or less definite trend. There are times when prices are too high and also times when they are too low.

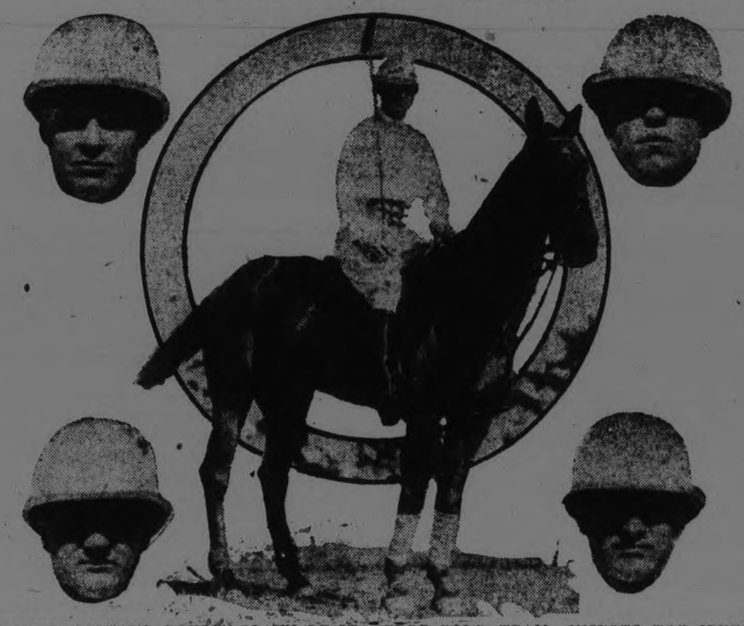
When prices are low, the long-pull trader buys. He doesn't waste time or energy fretting whether or not they will go lower. When prices are high he sells and keeps his money liquid in short-term securities or a savings account until prices are down again.

He is satisfied to buy somewhere near the bottom and sell somewhere near the top.

The chances are that the man who tries for the exact top or bottom will lose his sense of perspective and get badly fooled.

The long-pull trader, on the other hand, will make a fair profit over a period of years because his judgment is not clouded by day-to-day events, which are relatively unimportant in the long run.

COLLEGE POLO CRACKS TO INVADE EAST FOR NATIONAL TITLE TOURNEY



CENTER, CAPTAIN BOYLE, COACH OF STANFORD POLO TEAM. INSERTS, TOP, IRWIN AND LAUB; BOTTOM, R. BARBY AND O. BARBY.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Dec. 12.—The west wants to play the east in a polo match to decide the national intercollegiate championship, the expectation being that the ultimate winner will be sent to the Olympic games.

Stanford and Arizona are the outstanding college polo combinations in this section, and one or the other is expected to emerge triumphant in the round-robin series, now being formulated. Eigth western teams will compete.

The victorious outfit wants to go east to exchange shots with the premier team in that section.

Rivalry between Stanford and Arizona is keen. Stanford was beaten by Arizona last season in two out of the three matches played. The Arizona team is composed of players who literally grew up on the plains, and is a great riding outfit.

Stanford's championship prospects rest largely on the shoulders of the Barby brothers, Ralph and Otto. Their home is in Knowles, Okla. That tells the story.

Other star members of the Stanford squad are Tremaine, Irwin and Laub. The team is coached by Captain C. E Boyle, himself a great player.

BOXERS FIRST BUSINESS MEN; GAME DEFAMED

It Is Fighting With the Purpose of Making Money Says Champion--Would Not Teach His Son.

By HENRY L. FARRELL

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Boxing, of the many popular American sports, is on the defensive most of the time. It is criticized more than than any other sport and deserves some of the defamatory things about it. Oratorical defenses means nothing and it is rather sad that its most used defensive argument is its silliest —"the manly art of self-defense."

Arguments that every one should learn how to box so as to be able to knock out a thug when attacked and endorsements of the game founded on assertions that boxing won the war are absurd.

Boxers know that.

One of the present world's champions, also one of the best educated and most mentally fit of them all, was approached recently by the representative of a syndicate with an offer to write his life and a series of instruction on boxing.

He was not interested and he was frank about it.

"It would be a source of very little revenue in the first place," he said. "And then also I am not stupid enough to think that I am so much of a personage that the public would be interested in reading about my life. I do not believe it could be done with modesty.

"Also, I would not write a series of instructions on boxing. I do not want to teach anyone to box, or to recommend it as a profession. There is no such a thing as boxing. It is fighting and the purpose of it is to make money. I would not teach a son of mine to fight and I do not want to be instrumental in encouraging the son of another to get into the business.

"I would be willing to teach a youngster how to keep himself physically fit, teach him how to develop himself and how to retain his health and vigor. I would like to do that, but it can never be done because to carry out the instructions it would entail some sacrifices. Such lessons never would be a success, because boys won't follow advice of that kind."

Boxing has been condemned because it is a "brutal sport," and because, according to the strict purist viewpoint of some ecclesiastics, it is unchristianlike.

More liberal minded persons discard those criticisms because the informed know that very few, mighty few of the professional fighters enter the ring with murder in their minds. They are business men, first, last and always, and it is not good business to remove all opponents from their lists.

There are suggestions, frequent and lasting, that boxing is not on the level, that too much "business" is considered in the making and fighting of matches and there is a lot of evidence to substantiate that belief.

It is a generally accepted fact that Jack Dempsey "carried" Bill Brennan for twelve rounds in their second fight for the purpose of having it believed that Georges Carpentier had a chance with him.

The opinion has been expressed that Dempsey carried Tom Gibbons fifteen rounds in Shelby last summer in order to boom a match with Luis Firpo or Harry Wills.

It was said that Benny Leonard permitted himself to look bad in his first fight with Lew Tendler and that he did not wish to knock him out in the second match because he wanted to meet him again.

Open accusations were made that Firpo's set-up opponents were induced to take a flop to help in the build-up for the Dempsey fight.

Many of these charges can be disputed but the proof is not convincing.

Dempsey was not in good shape for the Brennan or Gibbons fights, but it can be argued that Dempsey didn't train, for the purpose of being unfit. Dempsey also took his own referee to Shelby, and if it was a "carry," he certainly went the well-known old maid one better for the limit of precaution.

It is not so easy to argue the case of Benny Leonard, because it does not seem reasonable that Tendler is rugged enough to withstand the punishment Leonard gave him, if Benny levelled on him.

There are examples that stand out, all too infrequently, it must be admitted, that make one believe that at least a part of boxing is on the level.

When Kid Norfolk won a fifteen-round decision recently from Battling Siki, a great army skeptics were forced to admit that the match was on the level and they were so doubtful about it before the bout that the match was on the level and they were so doubtful about it before the bout that many wise fans refused to bet.

It is rather unfortunate that colored boxers enjoy so little of the public's confidence, but they have participated in so many "jobs" in the past that there are reasons for the fans to doubt them.

Norfolk had nothing to win or lose in that fight. His purse mattered not. His percentage was the same, win, lose or draw. Defeated by Siki, his business status would not be changed. He would get not more matches as the conqueror of Siki than he would have come into as the victim of the Senegalese.

On the other hand, the cards showed that Siki had much to gain by beating Norfolk. He had much more to win than to lose. Norfolk had been given to him as his first test and his big test and if he "took" the Baltimore Kid, it would have meant everything to him.

But he didn't "take" the Kid, and those who remarked wisely that "Norfolk" had no reasons to win," had to admit that the match went "on its own."

There are many other examples, the Pal Moran-Charley White fight, for one—to get over the idea once in awhile that the game is partially on the level.

It is postive proof like this that boxing needs as its defense and not heavy words from paid orators.

A THOUGHT.

FOUL TIP OUT IN GARRISON SERIES

Not Necessary for Backstop to Catch Third Strike for Put-out.

Rangers No. 1 with Dunkerley using an effective curve ball defeated Rangers Band No. 2 in the Garrison Softball series at the Armouries last night by the score of 112 to 2 and Gunners H. with Piercy twirling, won a 12 to 1 victory over Gunners H. Q. who had Carl McLean and Bob Mackey doing battery service. McLean did good work on the rubber but his support wobbled. Rangers C and D defeated Vets Football by 22 to 9, Sam Calladine taking a turn on the firing line for the Rangers to finish the game. The Vets are coming along fine and promise a real battle for opposing teams before the series is much older.

Western Ontario rules are being used in the games. A batter is out on a foul tip caught, and when three strikes are called, it not being necessary for the backstop to catch the third strike.

The games for to-night are:—

7 P.m.—Dragoons vs Rangers A and B.

8 p.m. —Vets No. 2 vs Rangers No. 1.

9 p.m.—Gunners H.Q. vs Rangers Band.

Umpires:— Ed. LeBarr and Alex. Kay are giving their services to the League and the teams are responding in fine style. There have been on defaulted games.

GEORGE SHAW SUBMITTED TO CUTTING HIS PLAYS

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. Canadian Press. — At last George Bernard Shaw has submitted to cutting of one of his plays, in fact has done the paring himself.

He has furnished to the Theatre Guild the revised script for "Saint Joan," and it can now be played in time for suburbanites to catch their last train.

Never before has Mr. Shaw presented a producer with a revised manuscript. The Guild cabled that many would miss the climax in the play in the rush for their trains.

"Change railroad schedules," the dramatist cabled back.

"Railroads obdurate; we throw ourselves on your mercy," the Guild replied.

SAULT STE. MARIE, December 12 (Canadian Press). — Bill Phillips has declined the invitation to join the Olympic hockey team, with thanks. He would rather stay in the Sault and help land the Allan Cup this year than go on a second tour of the battlefields.

When queried yesterday, Phillips said:

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

SIR MARTIN HARVEY COMING TO THE GRAND

The announcement that Sir John Martin-Harvey, who at the last minute was persuaded to include "A Cigarette Maker's Romance" in his itinerary, and is to appear at the Grand Opera House on Saturday, December 15, came as a most pleasant surprise to local theatre-goers, who had almost given up hope of seeing him this season.

Another delightful bit of news in connection with Sir John's visit here is that he is to appear in "A Cigarette Maker's Romance," the play in which he scored quite as popular a success as "The Only Way," and which has been substituted for the latter on this tour.

Sir John has just completed a tremendously successful season at the Century Theatre, New York, where he was received with open arms by Broadway's captious play reviewers and theatre-goers. The Messrs. Shubert offered every sort of inducement to inveigle him into remaining at the big playhouse all season, which he would have done, were it not for the fact that he would not break faith with the Canadian public after the tour had been announced.

NO MATINEE SATURDAY.

Sir Martin Harvey who appears here on Saturday in the "Cigarette Maker's Romance' will not have a matinee.

"TOO MANY HUSBANDS."

"Too Many Husbands," the first offering in Peterboro for this season of the Rex Stock Company, was repeated last evening at the Grand pera House. Somerset Maughan's sparkling post-war comedy is an excellent vehicle with which to open a season, the unusual situations, witty lines and interesting character types carrying the interest throughout. Rex. Snelgrove has an adequate cast supporting him & Zana Vaughn and received his usual meed of applause from a well-filled house last evening. Vaudeville numbers between acts add to the attraction of a well-balanced offering.

AT THE ROYAL.

"The Virginian," which closes its local run at the Royal tonight, has been getting large and enthusiastic audiences. Here is one story of the West that has an atmosphere of reality about it. All the familiar characters that made the book a classic of its kind, are well played. It would be hard to imagine a better actor than Kenneth Harlan for the role of "The Virginian." Florence Vidor as Molly, the school teacher from the East and sweetheart of The Virginian, is ideally cast. Russell Simpson the "bad man of the screen is as 'bad' as ever. Raymond Hatton plays "Shorty" and Pat O'Malley fits into the part of the lovable renegade "Steve." It's a real story of the real west as it was and well worth a visit to the Royal tonight.

STORY OF TOMBOY TOLD IN PICTURE "MAN NEXT DOOR" ROYAL THURSDAY

Women Will Find New Vitagraph Special of Unusual Interest Because of Drama Centering About Girl.

One of the most interesting comedy dramas that has been offered here will be shown at the Royal Theatre tomorrow. It is a picturization of "The Man Next Door," by Emerson Hough, author of "The Covered Wagon," and shows with exceptional fidelity life on a great ranch in Wyoming contrasted with the shallow life of society in a great city.

There is in this picture, a remarkable variety of scenes and sets, an intimate picture of life on a great ranch, with its frolic and fun, including sweeping scenics of the great West, while the investures showing the magnificent mansion built by the millionaire cattleman for his daughter in the city, reveals some of the most lavish studio sets ever built.

Women will be exceptionally interested in "The Man Next Door." It tells the story of a girl reared among the hard riding cowpunchers until she is sixteen and her transformation into a young debutante. Alice Calhoun, who plays Bonnie Bell Wright, wears some of the most magnificent gowns that have been seen on the screen.

The story tells of this wealthy young girl's effort to find friendship in a great city, and the heart interest in this comedy drama lies in the struggle of this girl for happiness. She learns that riches are no guarantee of love.

David Torrence plays the wealthy cattleman, who is the father of Bonnie Bell. Frank Sheridan plays Curly, the inimitable character so beloved by readers of Emerson Hough, and Jimmy Morrison played the hired "man next door." The production was directed by Victor Schertzinger, to whom Vitagraph gave unlimited expense.

RUM LADEN BOATS WATCHED CLOSELY

BUFFALO, Decembre 12 (Canadian Press). — Two 40-foot liquor-laden launches, American Dawn and Canadian Nora, remained tied up at Fort Erie, Ont., ferry dock to-day, while United States coastguards and Customs officials trained glasses on them from the United States side of the Niagara River, alert for the first signs of an attempt to break for the open water.

The Dawn and Nora on Monday night eluded the coastguards after a hot chase lasting several hours about the eastern end of Lake Erie and the mouth of the Niagara by slipping into Canadian waters and tying up at Fort Erie for the night.

Gold braid and tinsel embroideries, as well as feather fancies flecked with gold, are popular trimmings for fall hats.

PASTOR CAN'T AFFORD TO STAY IN PULPIT.

At 45, He Quits and Tells Parishioners Plain Truth.

OSAGE, Ia., Dec. 12.—The ordinary pastor in anything but large city churches can not afford to remain in the ministry if he is a man of ability. A man in almost any other honest occupation can do as much good in the world as a preacher. A preacher of the word of God has as much right to quit his job as any one.

These are the high spots of a sermon preached here by the Rev. Alfred S. Cross, of the Baptist Church. His subject was "Why I Am Leaving the Ministry."

Dr. Cross, who is 45 years old and has spent approximately 20 years in his reasons for quitting the church and is considered an authority on Bibical history and theology.

The retiring minister forgot some of the niceties that are often observed in the pulpit when he discussed his reasons for quittin the church for a position as territorial manager for the American Extension University.

LADY SHAUGHNESSY GETS MESSAGE FROM THE KING

MONTREAL, December 12 (Canadian Press). — Among the messages of sympathy received by Lady Shaughnessy yesterday on the death of her famous husband were two from King George and the Prince of Wales.

The King's cablegram expressed deep grief at Lord Shaughnessy's death, and referred to the late Baron's "unfailing kindness and consideration" to the King and the members of his family.

ITALIAN-SPANISH ALLIANCE A BLOW TO FRENCH HOPES

The Military Alliances of France Checkmated By King Alfonso's Recent Visit to Rome — Italo-Spanish Entente in the Making.

By J. W. T. MASON.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (United Press). —The first checkmate to France's new series of military alliances is resulting from King Alfonso's recent visit to Rome. An Italo-Spanish entente is now in the making which will be able completely to checkmate France in the Mediterranean and separate France from her vitally important manpower colonies in North Africa.

The entire reconstruction of French international policy since the world war has been built up on the negro manpower of the African dominions subject to Paris. Any alliance of Mediterranean nations, severing, even only in theory, France's communications with Africa must isolate France from her black reserves. That is to say, France's strategists cannot work out, even on paper, the conduct of another great war in Europe unless Spain and Italy are first placated, or unless Great Britain is persuaded to come once more to France's rescue.

France's Navy Weak

France is fatally weak in naval strength. An alliance between Italy and Spain would give those two powers sixteen battle line ships, eighteen commerce destroying cruisers and a proportionate number of destroyers. To oppose this imposing array in the Mediterranean, France has only twelve first line ships, three light cruisers and less than one-sixth the number of Spanish-Italian torpedo-boats and destroyers.

Furthermore, to concentrate all the French fleet in the Mediterranean would be to denude France's Atlantic and channel coastlines of protection, while Italy and Spain have only the Mediterranean to guard. Both Italy and Spain have African colonian possessions and have long regarded the possibility of eventually absorbing France's colonies. One of the prime reasons for the creation of an Italo-Spanish entente would be to take advantage of any future conditions of world strife that might weaken France and destroy her colonial empire.

This situation is well understood in Paris. The only counter strategy France can oppose to a Mediterranean entente against her is to interest the British fleet on her behalf. With the British fleet operating in the Mediterranean, Italy and Spain would have to bottle up their warships or see them sunk without possibility even of seriously damaging the enemy.

England Alienated

But the Poincare policy against Germany has alienated British support and must do so as long as Paris continues to try to play the role of imperator over continental Europe. Mussolini has now associated himself with the British and American demand for acceptance of the Hughes' plan for inquiring into Germany's capacity to pay reparations. Mussolini is ambitious to assert himself in the European counsels. He has persistence and daring.

By encouraging the formation of an entente between his country and Spain, Mussolini can undermine with the most serious results the imposing theory of France's return to the glories of Louis XIV., which is proving so attractive to dreamers in Paris.

Disquietude is beginning to be shown in France at this new development in the international situation. France is beginning to remember that the history of the world has always shown military alliances breed counter-alliances in most unexpected places and thus foil their own efforts at world power.

HARNESS VOLCANO TO SUPPLY POWER.

Bolivia Would Bottle Up Steam Vents in Volcano Tatio to Make Electric Power.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (United Press).—Secretary Hoover's super-power project has nothing on a super-power scheme, reported to his own department from Bolivia.

The Bolivian super-power plan contemplates the bottling-up of steam vents in the volcano "Tatio," near the Chilean-Bolivian frontier. The super-heated steam thus brought under control can be converted into electric power capable of producing four hundred million kilowatt hours per annum, according to the concessionaires, who are now trying to interest American capital in the project.

Italian engineers who have investigated "Tatio" estimate that about fifty million paper pesos, each valued at about 12⅓ per cent. in American currency, would be required to get the volcano in good working order. It is believed that the power could be sold to various mining companies, or utilized for the electrification of railways.

As proof of the feasibility of the project it is recalled that a thermo-electric plant near Florence, Italy, has developed 37,000 horsepower through turbines using the internal heat of the earth.

STATES INVESTIGATION OF GERMANY'S CAPACITY

LONDON, Dec 12.—United Press —The British press and public are enthusiastic over the prospect of American participation in an investigation of Germanyq's capacity to pay reparation, even if such participation is to be unofficial.
The Daily Chronicle says, "The findings of such a committee carrying the authority accruing thereto from presence of impartial Americans will have immense weight.
Resistance to its recommendations would be a challenge to the public opinion of the world.
The Manchester Guardian says: "American participation is most important."
"One wonders how such a committee will be able to avoid raising the question of the legality of occupations which have cost Germany one half her income," the paper continues.

RADIO NOTES ON RECEIVER DESIGN.

It Is a Good Plan to Use From Nos. 18 to 24 Wire For Your Coils.

It has been stated that a coil and condenser in parallel are much superior to a variometer for tuning. Laboratory tests have shown that the resistance of the best variometer is 13 ohms. The resistance of a good coil and condenser is about 7 ohms. It is a good plan to use No. 18 to No. 24 wire for the coils. In laying out the parts of a set, arrange the apparatus as much like the wiring diagram as convenient. This facilitates easy wiring. For appearances sake the apparatus should be symetrically arranged.
The coils used in receivers are very important. The turns should be spaced to lower the distributed capacity between adjacent wires. This is accomplished in honey-comb, spider-web and bank wound coils. The honey-comb seem hard to handle at short waves, but the spider-web coils are almost as ideal inductance. They are small, compact, efficient, self-supporting, durable and can be easily made and mounted. Don't paint your coils with shellac or varnish. If it is necessary to hold the adjacent wires in place, use collodion. This keeps the wires in place, dries quickly, and does not appreciably affect the efficiency of the coil. Be careful in handling collodion as it is very inflammable. Single layer coils are most common and easily made though they are not the most efficient.

Little Supporting Material

In making the coils, use as little supporting material as necessary. You don't need, for example, a rotor for a variocoupler an inch thick, in any case a light waterproofed tube of cardboard is preferable to a heavy composition tube. In wiring the set be patient. A receiver cannot be connected up in five minutes if good radio principles are to be adhered to. Solder all joints, and make a good job of it; it is the perfection of details that makes a good receiver. Don't attempt to build more than two stages of audio-amplification unless you are perfectly familiar with the theory and amplifications of such circuits, as howl and squeals result from poorly designed amplifiers. Use a good transformer.

Simple Method of Control.

A simple method of controlling regeneration applicable to either single or two-circuit tuners is to connect a 200 or 400 ohm potentiometer between the antenna and receiver. Varying the resistance tends to control regeneration. This scheme was tried out at station 9BR with some success and is worthy of a trial. It seems to give greater range to a receiver, especially if a hard tube is used for detection, since it brings the tube up to the oscillating point without "spilling."
The range of a well designed single tube receiver cannot be stated, although during the winter, nearly all the powerful U .S. stations should be heard, if a good antenna is used. Using a single wire three feet off the ground and fifty feet long, WSB Atlanta, Ga., was recently heard, on a detector tube while amateurs as far away as Denver, Minneapolis, central Ohio and Kentucky came in with enough volume to be heard several inches away from the phones on the detector tube alone. The set was, however, well designed and these results could not have been accomplished with a haphazardly designed receiver.—Published through the courtesy of the American Radio Relay League.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — | New York Stock Exchange — and Curb Prices —

Today's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, December 12 (United Press). — Wall Street had further time overnight to reflect that the conditions which forced a cut in the Chicago and North-Western dividend were peculiar to the territory served by this road and had no bearing on the prosperity being enjoyed by most other representative roads, this consideration imparted a better tone to the rail list in the early dealings. New York Central was an outstanding feature of this section of the market, jumping two points to a new high ground for the year, reflecting the hope that some action might be taken regarding the distribution of the roads reading rights when the directors meet to authorise the common dividend this morning.
Trading proceeded quietly around the close of the first hour, the general list displaying a confident tone with little of the irregularity marking Tuesday's late dealings.
The motors were a strong group, with Chandler still in the lead. Moon sold around the best levels of the current advance. A block of about 10,000 shares of Moon Motors held by an investment firm was sold in the open market within the last week and the market absorbed it on a scale of less than one point, earnings this year will total about $6.00 a share.
New York Central to-day declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1.3-4 per cent. and authorised an increase of 10 per cent. in the capital stocks to be offered stockholders at par.

Drury's Hundred Dollar Coal Scuttle Bought by a Conservative Member

TORONTO, December 12. Special. —The famous "Queens' " ark coal scuttle" has now changed owners as well as governments. The proud possessor is now Frederick McBrien, M.P.P., who secured it almost by a miracle, from Mr. Jenkins, of the Jenkins' art galleries.
Eleven-o'clock was the official time for the disposal sale of this historical Government furniture which has long offended Premier Ferguson's notions of spartan simplicity. Before the hour the Henderson Auction Rooms on King Street were crowded to suffocation. Outside there was another crowd that looked like a mob trying to storm the winter palace in Petrograd.
Inside was Mr. McBrien, Charlie Henderson and the coal schuttle. Mr. Jenkins finding it impossible to enter by the front, dashed into a lane at the rear and by some herculean strength broke open a strong double bolted door.
But he was too late, as he entered the hall of mirrors and spring mattresses, he heard the fateful word "Gone." The coal schuttle, or rather coal scuttles, for there are two, had just been knocked down to Frederick McBrien for $60 apiece or $120 the pair, "cheap at the price."

Historic Relic

Luck was against Mr. Jenkins. The sale started a few minutes ahead of scheduled time. The coal scuttles were given the place of honour, Mr Henderson fixed his own austere black coal scuttle fussily on his read. "We have here," said he, "An historical relic of incalculable value. What an I offered for something as unique as the couch of Tutankhaman?"
"Ten dollars, fifteen dollars, twenty dollars!" Enthusiasm ran high. But Mr. McBrien had such an air of resolution that he soon scared off all other bidders He looked as if the sky was his limit. Just as a grandfather's clock in the corner chimed 11, the mallet fell. The coal scuttle was in the possession of the Conservative party. Mr. Jenkins was just too late.
The scuttles are hammered brass, and looked as if they had been dinted by excessive criticism. They are reported to have cost $100. They fetched $120. The government is $20 richer because of the U.F.O. skill in purchasing.
Many wondered what Mr. McBrien is going to do with his purchase. Will he exhibit it in the window of his favorite newspaper? Will he present it to Premier Ferguson and return it to its old place of honor in the Parliament Buildings? Or will he hand over to J. A. McCausland these bronze buckets for use as champagne buckets? It may be that Premier Ferguson will read him out of the party for this public display of unconservative extravagance.

MR. G. CLEVELAND BACK FROM NORTH.

He Returned Home From the Farthest Hudson Bay Post For His First Time in Ten Years.

The manager of the Hudson Bay Company's farthest north trading post is Captain George G. Cleveland. He is back to civilization for the first time in 10 years.
Cap says he's going to return to the country of eternal ice as fast as he can, now that he's looked us over. He'll have to wait until next spring, for the Artic already is frozen solid. "It's all right to come back to civilization for a while," Cap admits. "But after you've seen all the sights, you soon get tired of it."
A chronic city dweller probably would say the same about the Far North, after visiting it.
The airplane interest Captain Cleveland more than any of the other things developed since he visited civilization in 1913. He saw a couple of crude original planes years ago, but his first big glimpse of a modern flying craft was when two big planes bound for the Mackenzie River oil fields, were forced to land near his Hudson Bay trading post.
"I knew what they were, from having seen pictures of them," he says. "But the Eskimos thought they were big birds and were terribly frightened when the planes approached. They hid under their blankets."
Another change noticed by Captain Cleveland is the enormous increase in the number of autos in use. When he went north in 1913, he recalls, "there were only a few buzz-wagons around, but now the streets are full of them."
He missed the war period. Would you like to trade places with him and live close to the Northern Lights?

LABOR READY TO ASSUME OFFICE PARTY DECIDES

Crisis Is Suspended Meanwhile Until Parliament Re-assembles in January — Alliances Are Repudiated.

LIBERALS NEUTRAL.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—The solution of the existing complex political crisis has gone over until January with the Government's decision to meet Parliament when it reassembles. LONDON, December 13. — The solution of the existing complex political crisis has gone over until January, with the Government's decision to meet parliament when it reassembles.

The only development yesterday was that the Labor party by the official announcements of its various executives, placed on record its readiness to take office whenever called upon.

That the present government has no real hope of being able to retain office for any length of time is seen in its decision to do nothing either to replace or to find seats for the seven ministers defeated in the recent elections.

The breathing space affored by the government's decision to meet the parliament is probably welcome to all three parties as permitting opportunity for consideration and to take bearings without the necessity of committing themselves to immediate action.

Though the leaders of all the parties repudiate an intention to seek any alliance or coalition, there will doubtless be attempts in the interim on the part of the ministerialists to secure a sort of benevolent neutrality on the part of the Liberals toward the Conservative administration, and as the Liberals are almost as anxious as the Conservatives to keep the Laborites out of office, it would not be surprising to see some unofficial understanding of this kind arranged, especially as there is a general desire to avoid another general election in the near future.

In the meantime, however, the Labor Party is taking no chances and instructed its electoral organization to prepare for any emergency at any moment.

Tailors Protest Against the Sales Tax Which Becomes Effective on New Year's.

OTTAWA, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press)—A protest against regulations of the sales tax as amended last session, which will come into effect on January 1, was laid before the Department of Customs and Excise yesterday afternoon by a delegation representing the tailors' section of the Retail Merchants' Association. Tailoring firms in Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa were represented.

The complaint of the delegation was that by the new regulations tailors will be classed as manufacturers and called upon to pay six per cent. sales tax upon garments made by them, returns to be made to the Government monthly. It was claimed hat this was a virtual return to the old luxury tax. The tailors, it was said, could not absorb this tax, but must add it to the price paid by their customers. It was also asserted that the tax imposed an undue descrimination between the tailor and the merchant selling ready made clothes. It would entail a hardship upon the smaller tailors, who would have considerable difficulty in making up the returns.

It was also claimed by the delegation that much of the cloth used by them is imported, and upon this the six per cent. tax is levied at the entry into Canada.

Officials of the Department assured the delegation that their representations would be given due consideration.

Schnectady Fire Proved Stubborn

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—A stubborn three-hour fight brought under control last night fire which spread through the Boston Store in the heart of the business section here yesterday afternoon. No one was seriously injured. The flames were confined to the lower floors of the three-storey corner structure, and indications were last night the loss would not reach the $300,000 previously estimated.

METAL WORKERS STORMED PLANT

Protest Against Lockout In Ruhr Valley of Men Who Objected t Ten-Hour Day.

BOCHUM, Ruhr Valley, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press) — Unemployed metal workers of the Bombacher Huette Steel Work, normally employing between 5,000 and 6,000 men, stormed and occupied the entire plant Wednesday in protest against the employers' policy of locking out the men refusing to work a ten-hour day.

Similar action was planned by the workers of the Bochumer Verein, the Stinnes concern, where some 5,000 men gathered before the gates, but were dissuaded from attacking by the cooler heads among them. Enough of the manifestants remained at the gates, however, to prevent the entry of those workers desiring to accept the ten-hour day.

The workmen's council of the Bombacher works met to discuss whether the men should continue production under their own management, but decided against this course. No casualties were reported from either factory, but the situation is menacing.

URGE CREATION OF NEW COUNTY

The Residents of Gatineau Valley Petition For the Exclusion of Hull For Provincial Purposes.

OTTAWA, Dec. 13.—The Quebec Provincial Government will be petitioned to create a new county for Provincial purposes to be known as Gatineau county, and to consist of the rural municipalities at present constituted in Hull county, leaving out the city of Hull. This follows a resolution unaninously adopted by the Hull county council at Hull this afternoon.

In support of the resolution Mayor A. A. Legault of Maniwaki, stated that for federal purposes the Gatineau valley, comprising 100 miles of territory and a populatiton of over 35,000, had a parliamentary representative of its own. He urged that the same treatment be accorded this territory for provincial purposes and that the city of Hull be deleted from the present county of Hull, which which should have the same boundaries for provincial purposes as had Wright county for federal.

"The whole county has a population of 70,000," said Mayor Legault, "and the fact that in the past the Gatineau valley has been linked with Hull for provincial purposes had been detrimental to the rural interests of both the city and the rural districts. If we had a member of Parliament for the Gatineau two years ago perhaps that great financial disaster in connection with the Riordan Co. which nearly disrupted the economic life of the Gatineau, might not have happened.

FILTERATION PROCESS TAKES COLOR FROM WINE

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(Associated Press)—Spectacular results in filtration have been obtained by a new invention of Doctor H. Hele-Shaw who recently explained his method to members of the Royal Society.

The doctor had a stream-line filter along which liquids can be passed under pressure through many thousands of tightly packed, perforated sheets of paper. He claims he has taken the color out of red wine and tea, and has extracted the color from milk and left a tat-teless, fluid-like water.

THORNTON CARS SHOW INCREASE IN GRAIN LOADS

Fourteen Million Bushels of Grain More Than Last Year Loaded in West This Season.

ABOUT 90,000 CARS.

WINNIPEG, December 13. Canadian Press. — Nearly 90,000 cars of grain will have been loaded over the Canadian National Railway lines in the west by to-night, when navigation officially closes. Up to midnight last night the total loadings since September 1 were 88,882 cars, containing 116,287,000 bushels of grain and approximately 985 cars are being loaded daily throughout western line at the present time

In the period from September 1 to December 11 last year, a total of 79,595 cars with 102,175,000 bushels had been loaded, this year's increase being over 14,000,000 bushels.

Up to midnight yesterday 75,395 cars of grain had been delivered at the head of the lakes by the Canadian National since September 1, and approximately 800 more would arrive before midnight to-night making the total over 76,000 cars as against a total for the same period last year of 69,310 cars.

In the same period deliveries of grain by the Canadian National to Vancouver have more than doubled those for the corresponding period of 1922, a total of 2,515 cars having been delivered at Pacific Coast to midnight December 10 this year as against 1201 cars between September 1 and December 10, 1922.

Daily marketings over Canadian National lines in the west are more than double those of the same period of 1922, on December 11, for instance, a total of 1,069,000 bushels being marketed against 427,000 bushels on the corresponding day of last year.

The total grain in storage of the National lines at midnight Dec. 11 was 38,065,000 bushels as against 22,707,000 bushels on the same date of 1922.

EXPECT LABOR LEVY SHELVED

If Ramsay MacDonald Forms Government the More Radical Ideas May Be Set Aside.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—(Canadian Press Cable) Assuming that Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor party, should be asked to form a government it is almost obvious that he would formulate a programme that would be likely to secure some measure of Liberal support. Judged by the utterances of Labor leaders previous to and during the election the Labor programme would run on the following lines.

Capital levy, which has never been wholly popular in the labor party, woud be conveniently shelved by referring the question to the treasury for examination. An endeavor also would be made to go slow on the proposal to nationalize mines and railways, although the miners and railway men would make trouble over any postponement of this matter.

Having assumed a negative or tardy position towards these big items of policy the labor party would bring forward what may be termed a more intimate domestic programme, such as the initiation of big schemes of public works to relieve unemployment, the provision of more houses for the working class, old age pensions to be paid irrespective of the earnings capacity or other resources of the recipients, and pensions for widows with children.

Educational legislation, although much talked of by ultra democrats as a matter which brooks no delay, could be shelved by a labor government without much difficulty. Probably no attempt would would be made to interfere with licensing matters, for both extreme and moderate labor leaders know full well that the British worker would not stand undue intereference with his being enabled to get his pint or two or three pints when he wished to do so.

OXFORD UNIVERSITY SUPPORTED BALDWIN

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Oxford University, with two seats, again has returned two conservatives to represent that institution in the house of Commons Sir Charles Oman, whose vote was 2,950, and Lord Hugh Cecil, being re-elected, 2,712. Prof. Murray, Liberal, ran third, as was the case in the general election of 1922.

Irish Farmers Are Producing at Loss

DUBLIN, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—The conditions of the farming industry in the Free State is described as very serious, and it is claimed that, despite the high cost of farm produce to the consumer, the farmer is carrying on at a loss. Mr. Hogan, the Minister of Agriculture, says that the non-productive traders are fleecing the farmer, and if this is continued the Government will be asked to regulate retail prices.

Milk sold by the farmer at a shilling a gallon, and in some cases at six pence a gallon, is retailed to the consumer in Dublin at half a crown, and the Minister hinted that the Government might therefore be compelled to take over the milk trade.

RUM FLOTILLA OF 22 VESSELS

Standing Off New York Harbor Seeking to Land Five Million Dollar Cargo

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The rum fleet off New York Harbor, waiting to land its stock of Christmas liquor was increased yesterday, with the arrival of three more vessels, to 22, with a joint cargo estimated at $5,000,000 Customs officials announced to-night.

These officials declared that although the rum fleet all displayed lights their number constituted a menace to navigation particularly in fog.

The Customs House officials confirmed despatches from New Jersey points stating that the fleet now was lying well outside the proposed 12-mile limit.

The Customs authorities made public the names of the 22 vessels now in the fleet. Many registrys were represented but most of the craft were British.

Use Speed Boats.

SEABRIGHT N. J., Dec. 13. — Seeking desperately to land before Christmas the stock of liquor that awaited them on Rum Row, Jersey runners to-day were working at top speed to get into the water the racing boats of ever-increasing swiftness that are being built for them along the Jersey coast.

For craft are moving faster and faster all along the Jersey and Long Island shores these days. Thirty miles an hour no longer is considered fast. The yards are turning out boats driven by twin airplane motors whose builders now boast for them an ability to buck the waves at 40 miles an hour. The claim is made that on trial runs, the new boats can race to the proposed 12-mile limit and back in 40 minutes.

The speeders are of the four numeral "K" type, 48 feet long, big-breasted, blunt-sterned and capable of hauling 250 cases of liquor. They are bare of masts, cabins or sidelights. They look like lumbering old fishing boats and travel like hydroplanes.

REDS PROPOSED GRAIN SEIZURE IN PORT ARTHUR

Radicals Among Ukrainians Predicted Revolution and Preached Communistic Ideas.

CONTROLLED SOCIETY

PORT ARTHUR, December 13th. —Steve Cybulski, at one time secretary of the Society Prosvita, was the first witness yesterday morning in the case of the dispute between "red" and loyal elements of the Ukrainian society, in which the Reds are alleged to have taken over the property of the society.

Asked by Mr. Campbell, counsel for the defence, whether his society had approved the use of the red flag at a picnic, Mr. Cybulski replied: "We do not like the red flag and so long as we are under British rule we will do as the English speaking people do."

The witness said that his society had been asked by the Port Arthur Finns to take part in an "International" picnic at which the red flag was to be the emblem of the picnickers. The witness objected, but was over ruled by the Radicals. Witness said that he had resigned from the society when he discovered things were going on behind his back.

Asked by Mr. Dowler, counsel for the plaintiffs, if the prayers by the children in the schools had been discontinued on the instruction of the new officers, the witness said that they were.

"We always sang 'God Save the King,' and sometimes 'O Canada' and 'The Maple Leaf' at the close of our concerts," said the witness. "I like to sing them but do not know them to sing them myself. I can always sing 'God Save the King.'"

In cross examination Mr. Campbell asked the witness to sing or to say the words of "God save the King," the witness got as far as two sentences and halted. "I cannot just remember the words," he explained.

Mr. Dowler: "I doubt if Mr. Campbell was asked to recite the Lord's prayer he would be able to get through it."

Mr. Campbell: "The same thing might apply to yourself, Mr. Dowler, and many other prayers."

Witness: "If you will stand up and sing it I will be glad to sing it with you at any time." Mr. Campbell declined the invitation.

"Give us the guns and we will do something. These grain elevators will be ours and we will have the grain for our poor. Revolution is coming. It will come in a year," is what one of the Radical speakers told the Ukrainian people of Port Arthur and Fort William scarcely more than a year ago, according to one of the witnesses for the plaintiffs.

These utterances were made openly by those men who would have adopted the principles of communism through Canada, it is claimed.

There as also talk of securing arms and explosives as the plaintiffs will endeavor to show from the minute books of the society after passing from the control of the all-canadian Ukrainians. The church goers were derided for religious teaching, and told there was no God and that preachers were servants of the capitalistic classes.

POWER PLANT HAS SURPLUS REVENUE

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Official figures of the first complete year's operation of the Queenstown - Chippewa power development plant, announced yesterday, show a surplus of $382,601.24.

The figures, which chronicle actualities, cover the provincial fiscal year ending October 31, 1923, and are as follows:

Total capital expenditure on the whole five units now operating, $67,170,444.66.

Total revenue from the sale of power, $4,547,320.32.

Total interest charges $4,012,079.98; total operating and maintenance expenditures, $152,629.10 — making total current expenditures, $4,164,719.08.

There is consequently left from the first year of operation a surplus, applicable to depreciation or renewal or contingency account, of $382,601.24.

It is estimated that the present—the second year of operation—will yield a surplus of over one million dollars.

HOLIDAY LIQUOR RILLS THROUGH BORDER SIEVE TO SPLASH AMERICANS

Bootleggers Running Unprecedented Quantities of Christmas Cheer Into New York State in Spite of Efforts of Prohibition Enforcement Agents.

MANY TRUCKS SEIZED

MALONE, N. Y., Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press.)— Canadian holiday liquor destined for New York, Syracuse, Utica, Albany and other cities, is pouring over the border of north-eastern New York State in unprecedented quantities, notwithstanding strenuous efforts on the part of enforcement agents to stem the flow.

This was admitted yesterday by various officials, who pointed out that the task of detecting the rum smugglers was a gigantic one owing to the limited number of agents on guard over a great stretch of territory, much of it sparsely settled. On the north-eastern tier of counties—Jefferson, St. Lawrence, Franklin and Clinton from Cape Vincent on Lake Ontario ,to Rouse's Point, on Lake Champlain, a frontier of nearly 30 miles, there are less than 125 men to stand sentinel.

The Association Press investigation has been confined to the United States side of the border.

Most of the contraband is brought over the line in automobiles, but on the northern borders of St. Lawrence and Jefferson counties, the liquor is secreted across the St. Lawrence River at night by boat and waiting automobiles cart it away to points southward.

Indians Most Active.

The Indians on the St. Regis Reservation are said by the authorities to be among the most active smugglers by the water route. The redskins on the American side of the reservatoin receive the liquor from their Canadian brethren and have no difficulty in striking a bargain with the glib bootleggers' agents.

Illustrative of the task of the prohibition agents in watching the highways, it was pointed out that in Franklin County alone there are 23 separate roads from Canada, and only three of these are ports of entry, that is, with customs houses on each side of the line. While Canadian and United States officers frequently nab daring automobile rum runners, it is frankly admitted that many others thunder over the highways unnoticed and lose themselves from the eyes of the law on little frequented roads. Just now the roads are in good shape, for there has been little snow."

"Filling Stations."

The smugglers get most of their supplies from Valleyfield in Quebec, authorities say, and a series of "filling stations" at strategic points has been established. The rum runners, who have become increasingly bold with the approach of the holiday season, appear to have some sort of an organization. A system of signalling at night has been noticed. A chain of bootlegger garages has been stretched down through the Adirondacks, where the often sorely harrassed motor smuggler may have his machine repaired and obtain gasoline. Some of these garages are cleverly hidden by bushes and are located on obscure trails. For the smuggler would not dare take the risk of stopping at a public garage and possibly encountering a keen-eyed prohibition agent.

Bootleggers 'Camp.

Near Ayres, Franklin County, there is a bootleggers' camp, where habit of taking a vacation from their the smugglers are said to be in the perilous occupation. A number of old shacks, formerly used by trappers in the forest recesses, have been fitted up. Tales of rare drinking bouts at the camp have filtered into the prohibition agents, but efforts to trap the smugglers have been unsuccessful.

Some of the rum-running roads lead to what is now called by common consent "Poke O'Moonshine Mountain," in Essex County. A number of stills have been located and confiscated at this spot in recent months.

Comparatively little of the contraband liquor finds its way into cities and villages close to the border. Most of it is sent to the larger cities down State, where fancy prices are obtained. Practically all of the liquor is contracted for in advance by bootlegging agents.

At times the automobile smugglers, who usually are armed, dash over the border in broad daylight. More often this drive is made after nightfall and frequently a pilot car goes ahead of the liquor cargo to see that the road is clear.

FORT WILLIAM HARBOR EMPTY

Navigation Closed Early This Morning—Canadian Locks Still Open.

FORT WILLIAM, December 12.—The appearance of the harbor to-day is almost as if navigation had actually closed as it officially will to-night at an hour after mid-night, although the Canadian locks at the Soo will be kept open if there is any demand for through traffic up and down the lakes. The harbor is almost empty of ships, there being none loading grain.

Over a million and a half bushels space is now chartered from among the float of the great lakes company, and with the other boats now here, it is possible that about three million bushels will be loaded, and held here afloat.

To-day there was taken out 4,176,000 bushels of grain of all kinds, wheat, oats, barley, flax and rye, among the cargoes being that of the Mathewson, which took out 530,000 bushels of oats, and of the Grant Morden, which carried 446,000 bushels of wheat. Almost 1,500,000 bushels of oats were among the grains cleared to-day.

Three ships are reported as on their way here light for grain but it is not yet known whether they will lie here or load and proceed east.

HELPED CATCH DOPE PEDDLERS

VANCOUVER, December 13. — Canadian Press. — How a local bank aided in securing the conviction of two men engaged in selling narcotics, was described by C. S. Harrison, bank manager, before the Royal Commission investigating charges made by Attorney General A. M. Manson before the narcotic squad of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to-day.

"A slush fund" of $100,000, said the witness, was deposited in a box in the vault. It was arranged, Mr. Harrison explained, when staff Sergeant Mundy of the R.C.M.P. secured his cooperation in rounding up the leaders in the "dope ring" and he wanted more funds at his call than the department could provide in order to impress the gang and uncover cocaine for seizure.

Sergt. Mundey and J. P. Smith, police agent, were to pose as buyers for a big syndicate of traffickers in narcotics in Winnipeg. The suspects were to be accompanied to the box to see the money after which it was to be returned to Mr. Harrison.

Accompanied by two men Smith visited the bank and was treated as a big customer, the witness said. On their way to the vault, however, one of the suspects said to the other that he wanted to speak to him outside. Smith followed them out and that was the last witness saw of them, but later he received a letter from Colonel Wroughton, the commanding officer of the R.C.M.P., thanking him for aid given his officers in securing the conviction of the two men.

LISBON PALACE BOMBED BY MOB LEADERS JAILED

Revolutionary Outbreak Led By Crew of Portuguese Destroyer Quickly Quelled—The President Showed Courage.

FEW CASUALTIES.

LISBON, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—In an official note yesterday, the Government stated that it considered the revolutionary movement terminated, and warned that drastic measures would be taken to quell any further disturbances.

The destroyer Douro, the crew of which rebelled Tuesday, has been disarmed and the Minister of Marine will dismiss all the seamen implicated as well as others whose connection with disturbances of the public order has been proved, thus ridding the navy of subversive elements.

The Cabinet has asked the President to dissolve Parliament, as it cannot govern in view of the hostile parliamentary majority. The President conferred on the subject yesterday with political leaders.

Bomb Bombed Palace.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—A despatch to the Central News from Lisbon says the Portuguese capital was quiet yesterday. Senhor Carvalho, ring leader in the revolt, has been imprisoned.

The revolt started with a signal from the destroyer Douro in the harbor of Lisbon. A mob gathered in front of the palace, firing shots in the air. Two bombs were thrown against the building and one man was killed and several men were injured. The mob fled.

This performance was repeated about midnight, when firing and general disorder continued for some time in the streets of the city. Finally the police and mounted cavalry men dispersed the crowd.

MAY APPEAL FOR HELP OF LEAGUE

Germany May Need Financial Assistance in Financial Chaos.

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—The significant hint that Germany may be forced to appeal to the League of Nations in a final attempt to extricate herself from her present financial chaos is made by the official press service of the Centrists, the party of Chancellor Mark. This means that Germany would attempt to follow the example of Austria, who was given aid by the League in rehabilitating her shattered finances. It would be premature, however, to say that the German Government has actually resolved upon this course.

The rentenmark credit of 1,200,000,000 gold marks is about exhausted and its extension seems impossible if the rentenmarks are to go the same way as the old paper marks Then Centrist communique states that even the severest taxation will be unavailing without foreign assistance, the negotiations for which it says have not proceeded far and can not be brought to a successful conclusion without material restrictions upon German sovereignty.

LOCAL EXHIBIT OF ART WORK

The exhibit of the art work of Miss Mamie L. McCarthy and her pupils, which commenced yesterday at her home, 379 Park street, contains many interesting and lovely examples of painting, in oils and water colours and on china.

Several large pictures are noticeable in the oil section, prominent among them a recently-finished work entitled "Waiting for the King's Favorite." This is a large piece, about seven feet long by four and one-half feet wide. Six figures are included in the brush-told story. Against a rich tapestry background, its brown tones relieved by the rich garnet hues of door curtain and chair covering, wait in tense attitudes a group of cavaliers of the olden time, in the velvet capes and stiff ruffs of long ago. The drawn sword of the leader, waiting at the closed door for his victim, supplies the keynote of a striking picture.

Another old painting has a historical atmosphere also, the picture of Arthur and Hubert, in which the delicate little English princeling pleads with his jailer, the rough Hubert, to spare his life.

A touch of early Victorian repose is manifest in the unique large piece entitled "Reading Aloud." The color scheme of this is in dull pinks, creams and greys, and a heavy silver frame adds a finishing touch to its extraordinary effect. Three quiescent girl figures, with a reminiscence of Burne-Jones in their chiselled features, fill the foreground.

Several new portraits are excellently done, one of a lady whose golden tresses recall the old fairy tale of Rapunzel, and there are two fragile girl heads after Greuze in "Innocence" and "The Girl With the Doves." "Meditation" is a full-length moonlit figure of a day-dreaming maiden in soft grey draperies.

There is a good picture of a pair of hungry, tawny lions, scenting food, and a brisk bit with the freshness of the morning in its cool blueness, where two pointers sight their prey. Before a glowing grate, a little peasant mother croons her plump-faced baby to sleep. A marine scene shows a straining ship battling for the quay on storm-tossed waves.

The water colours are varied and colorful, ranging all the way from bright splashes of colour in glimpses of autumn woods to the cool brown tones of the sepias, a favorite medium that reappears in many examples from nature and still life. A vivid picture is the African oasis, where, against the tall yellow rock stands the watering-place for the camels and the cloaked Arab riders that fill the picture. A high light here is the white desert bird.

A Dutch water scene is a good example of fine detail work in the water colours; there is a bit of Irish sky and Irish fun in the misty "Galway Gossips"; a touch of local colour in the bridge and lake of Jackson Park, and brilliant notes in the bright hues of "The Yellow Sofa." "After the Rain" is a bit of fine descriptive painting, and there are Venetian tints in the red sunset that lights up a tall ship on another small picture.

Several attractive crayon drawings include glimpses of old English abbeys and delineation of two figures in the famous "Love and Art" drawing, framed in dull silver.

There is a quantity of exceptionally pretty china this year, in which the gem-like brilliance of the new lustre ware is most prominent. Iridescent lustres in greens and peacock blues, in orange and mother of pearl appear on small bits and large pieces. Dutch blue is another favorite, with Mother Goose rhymes decorating small samples of china, and Dutch sweethearts rioting over plates and tiny individual pepper and salts. Against a hearth-fire background, one Dutch lover gazes in fatuous style at his demure full-skirted lady, while a blinking cat acts as chaperone.

Reds in many tints adorn trays and cups and saucers and plates. There are bright holly berries and red currants and crimson poppies. Blood-red roses decorate a huge bowl, and red and mauve orchids on a jardiniere are flanked by handles of gilded lions' heads. There is a Dresden effect in the pale tints of grouped pink roses and forget-me-nots and a striking note to many of the carefully wrought designs that include conventionalized flowers and peacocks and butterflies. Flying bluebirds, tall purple iris, rich grapes and violets adorn, the pitchers and ornaments, the candle sticks, the cocoa and lemonade sets in exquisite fine china that fill several cabinets and cover three tables.

The exhibit, which is free, continues until Saturday evening of this week.

FLOWERS DECK WINTER'S PATH

Pansies First to Bloom in Omemee's Spring Linger Longest With Dandelions

Omemee, December 13. — Omemee is not to be outdone by the flower growers of other neighboring towns as on Sunday last, December 9th, Miss Irene Clemett picked from her garden a pretty bouquet of pansies and dandelions, which are considered rather a nuisance in the summer, are now blooming in profusion in the western section of the village, and are looked upon with wonder. The Persian lilacs in front of Mr Reuben Bradley's house have been in bud for a week or more.

Farmers who were delayed with their fall ploing may be seen now on the land, and are under no difficulties from frost or snow.

Christmas Concerts.

The different churches in the village are all busily engaged in preparing for the Christmas entertainments.

On Wednesday evening, Dec. 19th, the Methodist Sunday School will present a play entitled "Susan Greig's Christmas Orphans." On Thursday evening, December 20th, a varied programme will be given by the children of the Presbyterian Sunday school, followed by a tree, and on Friday evening, December 21st, the Anglican children will present a short sketch from "The Old Woman who Lived in a Shoe."

Miss M. Shea, school teacher at No 9, Ops, has announced a basket social and entertainment to be held in the school room on Thursday evening, December 20, while Miss Carnegie of the Orange line, will hold a similar entertainment in the school room there on December 21st.

Grateful to His Friends.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U.S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odour, smoke, or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% kerosene (coil oil).

The inventor, F. S. Johnson, 246 Craig Street W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

Ravening Dogs Tax Chandos Treasury

APSLEY, Dec. 13.—At a recent of the Chandos Municipal Council the ever recurring question of sheep killing by dogs, and the consequent payment of compensation by council, was discussed. Claims were made for $150, the value of 25 sheep killed at $6 each, the value put on them by the valuators. To meet this account, a raid must be made on the general fund their not being enough revenue from the dog tax to meet it. Radical measure to overcome this condition will, it was hinted by some of the members of the council, be launched next year.

LORD INCHCAPE TRUSTS LABOR

Wage - Earners Have the Greatest Interest in the Welfare of Country.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Lord Inchcape, presiding at a meeting of the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship Company, of which he is chairman, said: "The labor leader (Ramsay Macdonald) says when he gets into power he will nationalize many of our private enterprises. If he is as successful as many of our governments have been at commerce I shall be sorry for the tax payers.

"I may say at once that I do not share the apprehension with which many regard the possible advent of the Labor party to power. I do not agree with the Labor party's programme but no section of the community has more interest in the country's welfare and stability than the great body of weekly wage earners. I think we can trust the labor leaders to keep the wild men in order. I have great faith in the sobering effect of responsibility."

FARMERS ORGANIZE POLITICAL FORCES

Midnight Session Paves Way for Drury's Progressive Party Following Fighting Speeches.

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Fighting speeches by former Premier Drury, Hon. Manning Doherty and R. H. Halbert, M.P., carried through the U.F.O. convention at 12.25 this morning a resolution which will pave the way for the launching of E. C. Drury's "Progressive party." The convention for hours was almost wholly at sea as to just what was the purport of the resolution.

R. H. Halbert, M.P., finally took the bull by the horns and told them that it permitted the farmers to organize for political fighting, and he urged them "for goodness sake let us organize so we can fight organized opposition."

Premier Drury spoke briefly, urging the passage of the resolution, and adhering to his "broadening-out" principles.

"There were thousands outside the farming profession who would subscribe to the U.F.O. principles," he said.

Hon. Manning Doherty urged them to pass a resolution, which would keep the U.F.O. organization "out of politics," and put the farmers in a position where they could take "independent political action, if you so desire."

Then J. J. Morrison, U.F.O. secretary, upon whose opinion scores in the audience obviously hung, stated that as the resolution, preserved for local clubs local autonomy and "leaves you your liberty," he was not opposed to its passage.

Two hours before what was scheduled to be the most bitter debate in the history of the U.F.O. was due to commence the leaders got together and arranged a truce and agreed to submit the resolution.

"WHAT IS RIGHT WITH CHURCH"

The Subject of Omemee Pastor's Sermon at 47th Anniversary Services — Missionary Meeting.

OMEMEE, Dec. 12.—The 47th Anniversary services of the Methodist Church were held on Sunday the Pastor, Rev. E. W. Rowland, having been invited to preach the Anniversary sermons. The text for the morning service was taken from 2nd Kings 6: 17. "And Elisha prayed and said Lord I pray thee open his eyes that He may see." The subject for the evening service was, "What is right with the church." text, Matthew 16, 18, "And I also say unto Thee, that thou art Peter and upon this rock, I will build my church; and the gates of Hades shall not prevail against it." Two powerful discourses were listened to with been attention and much food for thought during the wek was given by the speaker.

Good congregational singing and special numbers by the choir, contributed much to the services. The thought during the week was given to almost $260.

Missionary Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church was held in the Sunday School room on Thursday afternoon last. Refreshments were served at the close by the hostesses, Mrs. R. Poast, Mrs. J. Bradley and Mrs. Percy Parsons and a very profitable Christmas meeting was brought to a close.

Miscellaneous Shower

On Friday evening last, over one hundred friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brooks gathered at their home in Omemee and presented them with a miscellaneous shower. The gifts which were exceedingly numerous were varied and costly. The presentation was made by Messrs. F. Brockley and T. Marsh, (the former making a neat speech) on behalf of the War Veterans who wished in this small way to remember a fellow comrade in the world war.

After all had viewed the magnificent array of articles, the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing. Refreshments were served by the local veterans and a pleasant evening enjoyed by all.

BALDWIN MADE TRIP TO KING THIS MORNING

Begins to Look if England Will Have a Labor Government Supported by Liberals.

LEADERS ANXIOUS

LONDON, Dec. 13 — (United Press.)—An unexpected visit by Premier Stanley Baldwin to Buckingham Palace sohrtly before noon today caused excitement in political circles.

The purpose of the visit was not disclosed before the audience with the King took place.

Conservative party leaders exhibited signs of panic to-day. There was much talk of the imminence of a Labor regime and of the fact that the Tories were at the mercy of these Liberal leaders. The former premiers, H. H. Asquith and David Lloyd George especially of the latter whom the Unionists ousted in 1922. The Conservatives, who apparently had planned to retain office at least until Parliament met, received somewhat of a shock by yesterday's announcement that the Liberals would join Labor in defeating Baldwin and his party at the first opportunity. What was even more impressive was the statement that the Liberals in the Commons would support Ramsay Macdonald as head of a Labor government.

On the heels of these announcements, as well as one from Labor leaders, that they would attempt to form a government as soon as invited, came overtures from the Conservatives to the Liberals.

The latter, although in the minority, hold the real balance of power in Commons.

Conservative leaders sought to reach an understanding with a sufficient section of the Liberals to keep Labor from power. The Daily Express to-day declared that the Tories were too late with their overtures.

The Daily News (Liberal), said:

"Ramsay McDonald and his colleagues will have Liberal support as long as they do not ride the high horse and deny the ordinary considerations of courtesy to the minority holding the real balance of power."

The Labor executive conferred today with the Trades Union Congress Executive, seeking approval of yesterday's decisions.

ONTARIO MEDICAL ASSOCIATION MET

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Unique in the history of medicine in Canada, and said to be the largest gathering of the kind held in this country, was the annual round-table gathering of the Ontario Medical Association, held here last night when representatives of practically all service organizations throughout the Province were guests of the medical men and joined with them in discussing the general question of how members of the profession might play a larger part in benefiting the public which they serve. As a result of the meeting it is expected that similar gatherings will be held in other towns and cities, at which members of the medical profession will meet representative citizens in open discussion, a proceeding which will, it was stated, do much to restore the former condition, when the doctor was in much more intimate relation with his clientele, playing the part of counsellor and friend as well as physician.

RIGHT HON. MR. FIELDING.

The Examiner is confident that Peterborough people of all shades of politics will join with fellow-Canadians generally in regretting the fact that the Right Hon. W. S. Fielding's condition of health compels him to take an enforced vacation from his duties.

No statesman in the Dominion more thoroughly holds the esteem and regard of his countrymen than the veteran Minister of Finance, whose life has been one of service on behalf of his fellow-citizens.

Upon his shoulders since the accession of the King Ministry to power has been thrown the very exhaustive and onerous responsibility of controlling the financial operations of the Government—a task made the more difficult because there has not always been on the part of some of the Ministers at least evidence of a sincere desire to economize—and in addition, during the absence of Premier King Mr. Fielding has been Acting Prime Minister, a further drain upon his vitality.

It is possible that he may not return to his Cabinet duties, but at all events, his physicians declare that a vacation is vitally necessary.

That it may be beneficial in restoring the grand old man of Canada's Parliament to normal health is a wish in which Canadians will sincerely unite.

NO CLOSED SEASON FOR HUSBANDS.

If the epidemic of husband-murders continues to grow in virulence Kipling's contention that the female of the species is deadlier than the male will be fully confirmed, and the bottom is liable to drop out of the matrimonial market.

Across the line husbands are being shot with utmost abandon.

Apparently there is no closed season for the male half of the sketch.

His career may be terminated at any time or place, by any means and for the most trivial reason.

The game laws do not seem to afford him any protection.

The other day a woman shot her husband because he made tracks with his muddy boots across the floor that she had just cleaned.

A New York woman, leaning across the breakfast table of their apartment, carefully placed two revolver bullets in vital spots in her spouse's anatomy. "I killed him because I loved him," she told the police afterward.

The old joke about the wife with the rolling pin gives way to the reality of the wife with a revolver.

It looks as if a society for the protection of husbands is one of the necessities of the times.

The reports from the neighbor Republic suggest that if revolvers are not banished husbands are liable to be.

MANITOBA'S PLAN.

In some quarters the action of the Bracken Government in Manitoba in calling for expert advice from outside the Legislature in dealing with Manitoba's financial problems is criticized as contrary to the spirit of responsible Government.

Many other people, however, who are not concerned so much about methods as they are about results have no difficulty in recognizing the Bracken plan as a business-like and highly welcome development.

Manitoba, even more than other Provinces, is feeling the pressure of the burden of taxation—for it must be remembered that a Provincial income tax system is in operation.

The Government feels that this tax should be abolished, and that it might be possible to effect reductions in other taxations.

But it has been unable to hit upon a sound plan of operation.

The sensible course of consulting representative business men and financiers was adopted as a way out of the difficulty.

Members of the Cabinet met in conference with such men, and it was decided to have a representative committee convened by the Winnipeg Board of Trade to go into the expenditures of every department of the Government.

This survey should make it possible to suggest effective methods by which substantial reductions in expenditures can be effected, and Manitoba is likely to materially benefit, because the Government has been unorthodox enough to look for help outside of its own ranks.

POLICE COMMISSIONS.

While waiting for the litigation over police matters to unravel itself, the local City Council should busy itself in lining up the cities of Ontario who are in favour of a change in the personnel of the Police Commissions and of Councils being given more power.

Some definite programme should be decided upon for presentation to the Legislature if there are enough municipalities sufficiently interested in the matter.

At the last session an attempt was made to substitute for the present commission a body consisting of the county judge, the police magistrate, the mayor and two elected members, thus constituting a board of five, of which three would be elective.

The municipalities got little support in the Legislature and met with very strong opposition from the then Attorney-General, Hon. W. F. Raney.

Whether a second attempt to establish this kind of a commission would meet with any better reception at the hands of the new Legislature is problematical.

Last year Mr. Raney consulted the various Crown Attorneys throughout the Province as to the advisability of the change and found that almost without exception they were flatly opposed to risking the experiment of exposing police forces to the influence of municipal politics.

For the same reason the police chiefs of Ontario are also completely hostile to the elective police commission.

It may be taken for granted that the opinion of law enforcement officers has not changed in the least during the year, and that any effort to interfere with this present commission system will meet with energetic opposition.

The municipalities must, therefore, if they are to have any chance of succeeding, have their proposal definitely framed and stoutly supported, and they must be unanimous in their opinion as to what they want.

Already there is one scheme afloat, originating from Kitchener, that proposes to drop the police magistrate from the commission and substitute an elective member, so that two members of the commission would be directly responsible to the people.

City Councils interested in a change should investigate the Kitchener plan and be prepared for the calling together of the Legislature.

That is the only arena in which they have any ground for hoping for success—and even there the chances of a drastic change should not be regarded as of the brightest.

A strong sentiment against any danger of drifting into the United States method of administering police departments will mitigate against the crusade for a change.

MAKE IT PLAIN.

(London Advertiser.)

Peterborough has a real muddle. The City Council provided only a certain amount of money to pay the police, and that amount was not sufficient. It expired about the middle of November. The Peterborough Examiner contends that the Legislature should make the matter clear at once, and tell the people whether the Council or the Police Commission is running affairs.

As things stand at present the Examiner's request is well stated. It is possible to take two interpretations from the sections of the Municipal Act which give power to the Commission and to the Council.

Section 359 says: "The police force in cities and towns having a board of commissions of police shall consist of a chief constable and as many constables and other officers as the council may deem necessary, but in cities, not less than the board reports to be absolutely necessary."

A fair interpretation of that is that the board of police commissioners shall say how many constables and officers are necessary.

Section 363 of the Municipal Act says: "The board shall, on or before the first day of March in each year, prepare and submit to the council for its consideration and approval its estimates of all moneys required for the ensuing year to pay the remuneration of the members of the police force, etc."

There comes the split. The police commission say how many men are needed, and the city council can look over and approve or disapprove of the estimates to pay these men. The commission might say 50 constables were needed, and the council could apparently say they would pay for only 25. There is room for argument, and the law on the matter should be so plain that no two interpretations could be placed upon it.

HIGHWAY AND RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

The accident to the Twentieth Century train is disquieting because it happened despite so many precautions, says the New York Times. An automobile stopped on the right of way, where it would not have been if it had obeyed the signals warning it of the danger to it. If the engineer of the rearward section had obeyed his signals he would have stopped his train. There is lack of novelty in this alleged proof of the need for a device to stop locomotives when danger is imminent. The need of stopping automobiles recklessly driven is greater.

In fact, the danger of fatal accidents to railway passengers is surprisingly small. In several years over eighteen billion passenger miles caused no death to any passenger. Every year several railways report no fatal passenger accidents. And although more than 10,000 accidental deaths have been reported by railways in many years, yet the railway maximum is 11,839, in 1907, against last year's automobile fatalities of 16,000. The decrease in railway accidents is as reassuring as the increase of automobile accidents is alarming.

There are 14,000,000 automobiles in the United States, and more drivers than owners. There are only 13,050 railway passenger engineers and 20,432 freight engineers. They run on rails, with many costly aids to safety, whereas automobile drivers dodge in and out of traffic. Railway traffic safeguards are being multiplied and highway regulation should be more rigid. Motor drivers are more reckless of lives—including their own—than engineers are of passenger lives and more irresponsible when they cause damage. Last year railways paid $84,911,316 in accident damages, and under Government operation paid the maximum, $199,591,261, in 1920. Railways are under Government pressure to install mechanical stop devices at a cost of unknown millions, and to abolish grade crossings at a cost of unknown billions. They ought at least to be allowed to earn the money. Motor drivers could be controlled for a much smaller sum.

DYSPEPSIA WAS SO BAD Could Hardly Eat Anything

Mrs. C. Stone, Nanticoke, Ont., writes:—"Some time ago I had a very serious attack of dyspepsia, and was also troubled with gas on my stomach. I could hardly eat anything, and very often had pains after meals. I had used different medicine, but they didn't seem to do me any good. At last I happened to run on the track of Burdock Blood Bitters, and after using it for a short time I felt a lot better. I continued its use until I was completely relieved and now I am ready to recommend it to anyone troubled as I was."

ATHIESTIC CHRISTMAS AIMED AT BY SOVIET.

Authorities Instruct Youths in Methods to Counter the Religious Festivities.

RIGA, Dec. 13.—The Russian Soviet authorities have sent instructions to all branches of the League of Communist Youths to limit this year's anti-religious Christmas festivities to scientific atheistic propaganda, to avoid open air masquerades and to confine their efforts of instilling in the minds of the working youths a materialistic outlook.

Every trade union orgapization is instructed to arrange accommodations for these festivities and to attract as many youths, maidens and children as possible.

The trade unions must themselves take part in these festivities and support them financially.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—Cattle trading at the Union Stock Yards was draggy again yesterday. Wednesday morning's receipts were smaller, and this was welcomed. The new arrivals were 390 cattle, 148 calves, 3,058 hogs, and 1,066 sheep and lambs. Tuesday's cattle receipts were over 1,200, and sales were around 2,000 and this left about 2,000 head on yesterday's market. A load of good butcher's heifers sold $5.40 a cwt. The exporters were open to take anything in their line, but were only able to find one load of fat Western steers at $5.75 a cwt.

Some buyers are taking cattle not immediately wanted on the ground that the prices this week will make for a light run next, and that prices are as low as they are likely to be.

Large direct runs of Western cattle have made a poor market for native cows, and a few are wanted.

Stocker and feeder prices are holding better than the butcher. A load of Angus steers, 1,050 lbs. each, was sent out to Orono at $5 a cwt., and lighter stockers of fair quality are selling at $4 to $4.25 a cwt.

Choice veal calves are selling up to 12½ cents a pound, but these are scarce, while others with less quality are only bringing 10 to 11 cents. Medium calves are selling around 9 cents.

The lamb market was not good yesterday. There were some lambs on the market since last Friday. Chris Waugh bought 160 yesterday morning at $11 a cwt., with about 40 per cent. of bucks. Top lambs would scarcely make $11.50 for the ewes and $10 for the bucks, and this indicates a drop of 50 cents a cwt. since Monday.

Separate trades for hogs leaves this market unsettled, and prices run from $7.50 to $7.65 a cwt. f.o.b. for the thick smooth. There was another heavy run again today.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, Dec. 12.—Mr. McDonald, Deputy Minister of the Department of Fish and Game, Toronto, addressed a well-attended meeting of the Northumberland Fish and Game Club here. For a long time is has been felt that some steps were necessary to protect the fish and game in the Rice Lake waters, which is one of the best fishing preserves in Ontario. It is also felt there are not sufficient inspectors for this work, and this was one of the topics brought up for discussion at the meeting. The ground was taken by some that a considerable pecuniary gain would result from the increases licenses that could be collected as it was altogether probable that the law regarding this was being evaded.

It was suggested that several inspectors be appointed, whose duty it would be to see that those shooting and fishing have licenses and that they be given authority to sell licenses.

It is alleged also that considerable shooting is being done during the spawning and breeding season. If there were sufficient inspectors to patrol the lake this could be done away with. The question of establishing a fish hatchery for maskinonge was also broached, but the deputy minister gave his opinion that it was almost impossible to propagate the spawn of the maskinonge in this way.

No resolutions were passed but the meeting was an important one, and will, no doubt, result in better conditions and the preservation of sport at the Rice Lake preserve.

When Timber Was Plentiful

The discussion in the county council here about the reforestation of 100 acres in Haldimand Township brings up stories of the olden days when lumber was so plentiful that little value was placed upon it. In the year 1834 there was no Catholic church in Cobourg, but every three months Rev. Father Butler, of Peterborough, would come to Cobourg and hold mass. An old resident of Cobourg, deceased a few years ago, in telling of it, says:

"Father Butler would write to my father when he was coming and my father would notify all the Catholic families in Cobourg and Haldimand. There were no buggies or carriages in those days, just lumber wagons. Sometimes my father would walk to Port Hope when Father Butler held mass there."

But the Catholic families in Cobourg rented a church, and some of the most energetic started to work to accomplish this, and Protestant families in the town helped them. Hon. Henry Ruttan and Hon. Zaccheus Burnham each gave half an acre of ground for a site. These gentlemen were pioneer settlers, the latter an Anglican. Thomas Scott, postmaster of Cobourg at that time, helped them liberally. Mr. Solomon, who owned a fine woods north of the town, gave them liberty to take all the timber they wanted. William Stott, a Presbyterian, gave the cedar posts to fence the lot. The work was done by day labor. There was no contract. One devoted Catholic, who was the most prominent promoter of the building enterprise, undertook to make the front door. He went to the Hon. Asa Burnham for material, and the latter told him to go to his barn, where he would find seasoned lumber and he could take all he wanted. In this way, through the generosity of one and another, the first St. Michael's Church was built, and Rev. Father Kernan was appointed to the parish.

Met Tragic Death

Some years afterwards as Rev. Father Kernan was driving in his two-wheeled gig, he came in contact with a wagon when going down a hill, and was thrown out and killed. Mr. James Hutton, who kept a store at Lindsay at that time, and Mrs. Hutton were making a trip to Toronto to buy merchandise. They put up at a tavern en route, where Father Kernan had been taken after his accident. He was suffering much and the travellers assisted the hotelkeeper in giving him all the attention possible, but he died that night." He was buried in Toronto.

Remains Brought to Coborug

Father Kernan had, however, expressed the desire to be buried behind the altar in the little church in Cobourg, which he had helped to build. Accordingly, some of the most influential Catholics in the Cobourg parish obtained the consent of Bishop Power the first Catholic bishop of Toronto and of the mayor of Toronto, to have the remains brought to Cobourg, and this was done. The body was brought here by one of the lake steamboats and was reverently laid to rest in the spot chosen by deceased while in life.

A Big Parish

Rev. Father Timlin succeeded Rev. Father Kernan as parish priest, his parish extending from Pickering in the west to Colborne in the east, and as far north as Rice Lake. He was parish priest at Cobourg for 33 years.

A Present-Day Event

On Friday last the ladies of St. Michael's parish here concluded a very successful three days' bazaar which was well attended and the various booths and tables liberally patronized. The parish priest, Rev. Monsignor Murray, who has ministered to these people now for many years, is ably assisted by Rev. Father Corkery, of Peterborough.

LEGENDARY ORIGIN OF FAMILY NAME OF SMITH

Evolved in Remote Ages, Rev. J. Wilks Informed Millbrook Audience in Novel Lecture — How Surnames Were Adopted in England.

Instructive Address.

MILLBROOK, December 13. — "An essay is not modern, but then I am not modern myself," was the statement with which Rev. J. Wilks began his interesting and instructive talk on "A Study in Names," which he delivered to the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church at their December meeting held in the parsonage on Tuesday afternoon.

Sparring for time, as the speaker declared he was doing, he went on show that the essay originated in England in the 18th century, Addison and Steele being notable contributors to the Tatler, which later became The Spectator, the journal wherein this form of composition was first published. The Greeks had no family names except Athens and Sparta, and the Romans had three indicating the individual, the clan, and the family. Hebrews had but one name, Moses, David, and Joshua being examples. The Celts and the Germans also had but one.

Surnames were introduced into England by the Normans in 1100 A.D. to distinguish families as the multiplicity of similar names created confusion. First the word "son" was added to the father's name — thus John, son of Jacob, became John Jacobson, and so we have Johnson, Williamson, Thompson, Peterson, etc.

The Scots and Irish added the prefix Mac, "son of," and thus there came MacDonald, MacHenry, MacIvor, and so forth.

In the feudal period the names were chosen from the districts, and birthplaces, and the Yorks, the Lincolns, the Carlisles, and the Prestons arose. It is stated that there are but fifty-three Anglo-Saxon Christian names without some appearance of similarity, some of the most common being Charles, Edward, Francis, George, Henry, John James, Joseph, Richard, Samuel, and Thomas.

Reflected Locality.

Name also developed from the locality in which the home, or the business was situated, as indicated by Townsend Thomas Hill, Andrew Underhill, Field, Dale, Ridges, etc. From minerals there grew Iron, Steele, Gold, Silver, and from money, Farthing, Halpenny, Pound, and others. Occupations naturally, too, led to the distinguishing of the families by certain names: Baker, Cutler, Cooper, Driver, Gardiner, Miller, Miner, Mason, and in the early days in England when every artisan was called a "smith," there evolved Arrowsmith, Silversmith, Sexsmith, Goldsmith, a variety to which a wide field of conjecture offers itself. Hall, Garrett, Chambers, Kichen, etc., proclaim their origin, while from the retainers in the homes of the nobility have grown Butler, Marshal, Steward, Page, Haywood, and others.

Legend of "Smith."

By the law of evolution the great "Smith" family claim a very ancient beginning for their name, going back to the good ship ,the Ark, with Father Noah as captain. The descendants of Shem, considering the name "Shemites" as hopelessly ugly, eliminated the vowels, and so had "Shmt,' 'and this was changed by altering the position of the second letter, the word becoming "Smth." Some copyist of early days accidentally let a drop of ink fall between the second and their letters, and in the course of ten million years or so this was regarded as an "i," and the name Smith was evolved.

Another story claims that all the human family was originally called Smith, but in the passing years some members disgraced themselves and had to leave the place of their birth, changing their names as they settled elsewhere.

Years and years ago when shops were not numbered each was distinguished by a painted sign, all manner of devices being used, some of which may still be met with in England: "The Red Deer," "The Wild Boar," "The Three Loggerheads," "The Honest Lawyer." Some of these were from the personal recollections of Mr. Wilks in his early days in the Old Country. Thus there grew, Dick of the Swan, John of the Bear, naturally shortening to Richard Buck, William Colt, Thomas Beaver, Charles Lion, and so on.

Birds contribute their share: Dove, Drake, Lark, Parrot, Swan, Wren and fish also: Whiting, Chub, Haddock, Perch while trees give us: Pine Birch, Beech, Oak, etc. From some striking peculiarity, possibly the color of hair or complexion, came, Brown, Red, Motley, Longshanks, Crookshanks, the consideration of the subject bringing many others to mind.

Other Influences

Opening the Bible at random is one way some parents choose a name for their children, the speaker recollecting 'Teman' as an instance of this. Of unclassified names we have "Eatwell, Stillwell, Goodman, Hungerford, Woodhouse and so on. The Christian graces, Faith, Hope, Joy, Prudence, suggest the Puritan choice. Martial names became popular at the close of the revolutionary period, General, Admiral, Colonel and others coming into use, and of course a presidential election brought its crop of Garfield, Grover Roosevelt, Calvin, Theodore, Cleveland, Warren. High social position has its attractions and gave President, Earl, Duke, Governor, while Royalty, the almanac, astronomy, and even accident are responsible for the choice in numberless cases.

In concluding his address, Mr. Wilks explained that he has been interested in the subject and collecting data for over twenty years. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker and also to Rev. S. T. and Mrs. Tucker for extending the hospitality of their home for the gathering. A delicious lunch was served during the social hour which was enjoyed before the guests left for home.

Telegraphers' Meeting.

Mr. P. Stinson was in Toronto last week attending an important meeting of the Order of Railroad Telgraphers for the Belleville division of the G.T.R., of which E. N. Grainger, of Scarboro, is chairman, and Mr. Stinson assistant chairman The election of officers for the organization will be held in February, the chairman chosen being the official delegate to the Grand Lodge which meets in Cleveland next June. Last year this gathering was held in Georgia, and in the election of a delegate Mr. Stinson was beaten by only one vote.

Second Film Show.

The unfavorable weather for the second film in the series of moving pictures being put on under the auspices of the local ministerial association lessened the attendance considerably, as it did also last month. However those who did venture out were well repaid, "A Maker of Men" holding the attention closely throughout. "The Chosen Prince" is the next in the series, the date being January 30th, 1924, when it is hoped both weather and roads will be more favorable than on the two previous occasions.

Attended Stock Show.

Harry I. Seymour, of Springdale Farm, Cavan, attended the recent International Live Stock Show at Chicago. He was high man in the junior stock judging contest held in Cavan last October, making 859 points out of a possible 1,000 and receiving $50.00 as a prize toward his expenses to Chicago. M. W. Staples, of Orono, was a member of the team which went from the O. A. C. at Guelph, and was high man in judging swine. First honors in team work went to the University of Kansas with 4,309 points, Ontario Agricultural College coming second with 4,306 points. The collective score of the Ontario team was said to be higher than that secured by any former Ontario squad.

Officers' Names Omitted.

In the list of officers elected for 1924 for Carmel L.O.L. No. 421, the following names were inadvertently omitted:

2nd Committeeman— Bro. Stanely Olan.

3rd Committeeman — Bro. Lawrence Olan.

4th Committeeman— Bro. J. Thorne.

5th Committeeman—Bro. S. Kennedy.

Miss Lorraien Hutchison, of Toronto, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hutchison, Tupper street.

Miss F. Young of Fairmount, and her sister, Miss Daisy Young, a Normal school student from Peterborough ,were guests of Rev S. T. and Mrs. Tucker at the parsonage over the week end.

The sale of home-made bread, biscuits, cakes, pies, candy and vegetables held in Mr .C. Garside's store on Saturday afternoon under the auspices of groups "A" and "D" of the Methodist Woman's Auxiliary was most successful, practically everything being disposed of at an early hour .Those assisting were Mrs. O. Williamson, Mrs. B. R. Raper, Mrs. T. H. Aiken, Mrs. W. Elson, Mrs. H. Lang, and Miss A. Johnston.

WHEN EVERYBODY IS "CATCHING A COLD"

Is The Time To Take WINCARNIS

"I feel that I owe you a debt of gratitude for what your wonderful Wincarnis has done for me and other members of my family. We first learned of Wincarnis when we resided in England. It gave us so much satisfaction that we all used it whenever we felt the need of a tonic, as when influenza was rampant or when every body was "catching a cold."

We have continued to use Wincarnis since our arrival in this country, and we have recommended it to a number of our friends here. All of these friends are now singing the praise of your excellent preparation.

It is really surprising how quickly one regains weight and strength and recovers from nervousness when Wincarnis is taken after an attack of influenza or a very severe cold."

SHEEP CARLOAD LIMIT REMAINS

Railway Board Rejects Request of the Western Shippers For Larger Weight Minimums.

OTTAWA, Dec. 13. — (Canadian Press).—In a decision made public yesterday, the Dominion Railway Board declines to make an order directing the railway companies to establish reduced minimum carload weights on sheep in single and double deck cars in conformity with an application of the Calgary Livestock Exchange, the Southern Alberta Wool Growers' Association and other interested organizations.

The grounds for the application are explained by a resolution to the following effect passed at the last meeting of the Canada Livestock Union and read into the record of the hearing at Calgary:

Whereas the minimum weights of carloads of sheep on Western lines is 16,000 pounds per single deck cars and 24,000 pounds for double deck cars, and the weights under similar conditions on American lines in the United States are 12,000 pounds and 22,000 pounds respectively and in Eastern Canada 14,000 and 22,000 pounds respectively, removal of the discrimination is asked for.

It is also pointed out that it is seldom possible to load to the minimum weight now charged for.

In rendering its decision, the Railway Commissioners state: "On consideration of the records and bearing in mind the low rate basis which is borne by the commodity under consideration as compared with other rates in existence and also considering the rate and minimum I am of the opinion that it has not been established that the difference in minimum applicable in the case of local shipments in the West as compared with local shipments in the East creates an unjust discrimination against the shipments in the West or undue preference in favor of local shipments fn the East."

BEAVERBROOK'S SISTER WEDS.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Miss Helen Drury, sister of Lady Beaverbrook, was married yesterday to Hon. Evelyn Fitzgerald, younger son of the late Lord Fitzgerald of Kilmernock, in Westminister Catholic Cathedral in the presence of 600 invited guests who included many distinguished persons. The bride was given away by Lord Beaverbrook.

WAR BLAMED FOR CHILD SUICIDES.

LINZ, Austria, Dec. 13.—(Associated Press)—Child suicide, which has been common in central Europe since the war, had a tragic illustration here recently. A boy 17 years old hanged himself, and the next day at the same spot his 14 year old brother took his life in the same manner. The younger boy left a note saying he could not live without his playmate.

VISCOUNT ALLENDALE DEAD

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press)—Viscount Allendale, formerly Vice-Chamberlain of the King's household, died yesterday.

Wentworth Ganning Blackett Beaumont, first Viscount Allendale, was born in 1860. He succeeded his father, Baron Allendale, on his death in 1907, and was made a viscount in 1911. His wife, who survives him, was Lady Alexandrina, daughter of the Marquis of Londonberry.

Lord Allendale was Chairman of the Territorial Force Association in Northumberland, in 1908, to 1919. He is Captain, the Honorable Wentworth H. C. Beaumont, of the First Life Guards.

A REPUBLICAN KING.

BERLIN, Dec. 13. — (United Press). — King August of Saxony or more exactly, ex-King Friedrich August of Saxony, believes that if you have a republic you ought to be a republican along with it.

Recent touring through Saxony democratically in a compartment, second class, he was hailed at the railroad station by a group of "monarch-true" demonstrators, who hocked and hoched.

Finally, August roused himself sufficiently to wave one feeble hand out of the window and to remark:

"You're fine republicans, you are!"

Then he went back to sleep, while the monarchists pondered at such a reproof.

FERGUSON STRIKES AT FAULT FINDING

REGINA, Dec. 13. — (Canadian Press). — A sweeping indictment against the press of Canada, whom he charged with unfair criticism of public men, was made by Hon. Howard Ferguson, Premier and Minister of Education of Ontario, in an address to the Canadian Club here last night.

Mr. Ferguson declared that men of outstanding ability were deterred from accepting public office, and gave as one of the reasons because "the press of the country and many people not only criticized unfairly but vilify them for party political reasons."

Speaking on education, Mr. Ferguson urged that the State should only provide essentials in public schools, and that they should be of a practical nature.

He advocated the elimination of nature study, music and art from an overloaded curriculum.

HOLIDAY LIQUOR

Afraid of Troopers.

The smugglers have a healthy respect for "the Black Horse Troopers" of 58 men, in command of Captain Broadfield, with headquarters here. These State Troopers patrol the entire northeastern district ceaselessly in fast automobiles and motorcycles. When a bootlegger spies a trooper the usual procedure is to abandon the car post-haste and flee for the woods. The vigilance of the troopers and federal agents is attested by the fact that in Malone more than 100 bootlegging automobiles are in storage. These cars are auctioned off from time to time. Many of them were stolen.

Seizures Increase.

There has been no let-up in this vicinity on the part of the State troopers since the repeal of the State enforecement law. In fact officials state that the records show that more seizures have been made this year than ever before. The troopers act in collaboration with the federal agents.

The federal agents have only sixteen men in the entire north-eastern section. The county sheriffs and their deputies are frequently active in spotting the smugglers but the bulk of the burden is borne by the troopers and federal men.

UNLOAD ALE CARGO.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Dec. 13. — A shipment of Canadian ale, valued on the bootleggers' mart at $75,000, was reported to have been unloaded on Tuesday night at a point near Oswego and trucked to Central New York for the holiday trade. Prohibition agents spent most of the day searching for the ale. One seizure was reported, that of a truck containing twenty-four barrels of ale near the Oswego-Onondaga County border. Three other truck loads escaped when an automobile containing Federal agents was stalled by engine trouble.

Offset the Wear and Tear of Business

MODERN business is essentially a matter of the survival of the fittest. Only the man who is able to think clearly and quickly under all conditions can hope to succeed.

Now, just as physical effort destroys bodily tissue, so mental effort destroys brain tissue. If your mind is to continue working efficiently, these tissues must be replaced as fast as they are used up. To this end, your brain requires nourishment just as does your body.

Stimulants and drugs are of no use. Their effect is only temporary, and the reaction after their use is dangerous. What you need is natural, wholesome nutriment. Delicious "Ovaltine" will give it to you.

"Ovaltine" contains all the tonic and tissue-building properties of ripe barley malt, creamy milk and fresh eggs in a highly concentrated form. The system assimilates "Ovaltine" quickly and without digestive effort. A single cup, for instance, embodies twelve times as much nourishment as an equal quantity of beef extract, yet it is easier to digest than a glass of milk.

Make "Ovaltine" your daily beverage. Drink it at every meal, and it will keep you clear-headed and quick thinking all day long. A cup before retiring ensures sound undisturbed slumber throughout the night.

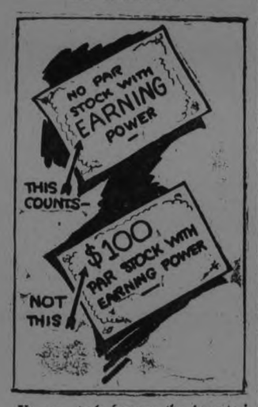
GOVERNMENT MAY ABANDON SCHEME

Proposed Singapore Naval Base Will Not Be Constructed.

LONDON, Dec. 13.— (Canadian Press.)—British government's action cancelling the proposed tour of inspection by Earl of Cavan, chief of general staff, to Singapore and Australian ports is accepted here as a definite abandonment by the government of the project to construct a big naval base at Singapore. In the knowledge that no succeeding cabinet, whether Liberal or Labor, is likely to endorse such a huge and costly enterprise, Prime Minister Baldwin and advisers apparently have decided that fifty million dollars, which it would take to build the base and fortifications, can be better used to relieve acute economic and unemployment situation at home. Government's explanation of abandonment of Lord Cavan's trip is that he will be needed at home to advise the new Secretary of State for War if one is chosen.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.



No par stock focuses the investor's attention on a company's earning power which is the most important factor in determining real value. Par value is likely to divert attention from this important point and focus it on a fictitious value instead.

Many people believe that when they buy a share of $100 par stock that they are buying a certificate to one hundred dollars' worth of property in the company. If the stock is below par they expect it to come back there some day.

Now, the market price of a stock pays no attention to the par value. The market price is determined mainly by individual buyers and sellers making their own estimates of the earning power of the company. In short, the earning power is capitalized, and the result is usually the market price.

Earning power is determined by the capability of the management, not by the par value of the stock. It really makes no difference what the par value is. Consequently, if stock is labeled no par, the investor will study the ability of the management and not be misled by an artificial value called par.

Arbitrage acts as a great plane. It keeps prices of identical securities and commodities about equal on all the different exchanges throughout the country.

Did you ever notice that a stock which is listed on both the San Francisco and New York stock exchanges sells for about the same price in both markets? The same is true of gold, bullion, money, exchange, commodities, or securities which are traded in on different markets. The reason for this is arbitrage.

Arbitrage is the simultaneous buying of anything in one market and selling it at a different price in another market to make a profit on the difference of prices in the two markets.

The only difference in price should be the cost of transporting the thing from one market to another. In the case of commodities this is naturally larger than for securities.

Some brokers make a business of watching different markets to catch any difference above transportation which may open up. Of course, the telephone, telegraph, cable and wireless make it possible to communicate between all markets quickly, and really make arbitrage possible.

Hill, of Trout Lake, is certain she is the owner of the most enterprising Biddy in the Adirondacks The wonder-working hen is but six months old, but has within her brief span of life laid eleven eggs, on which she is now sitting with the apparent determination to become a mother at an early age so tender as to leave all competitors confounded.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

(Unless otherwise specified, these recipes are planned for four persons.)

DRIED FRUITS

If you found it impossible to can fruit last summer and now find fresh fruit a bit expensive for steady diet try the dried fruits.

Although these are not cheap, when you consider that each separate piece will swell to its original size when soaked in water before using and that all the natural sweetness is in the fruit you will decide that the finished dish made with dried fruit is not expensive.

Wash dried fruits thoroughly before putting to soak. Scrub with the hands or with a soft brush, using several waters. Then let the fruit stand in cold water for several hours and stew in this water. Slow cooking for a long time is required to bring out the sweetness of the fruit without breaking it and making it "mushy."

Desserts made with dried fruits should not be scorned as last resorts. Carefully prepared and seasoned they are delicious and might well grace a company dinner.

This steamed fig pudding, served with whipped cream, leaves nothing to be desired.

Fig Pudding

One-half pound dried figs, ½ cup suet, ¾ cup sugar, 2¼ cups bread 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup milk, 2 eggs.

Wash figs and dry thoroughly. Put crumbs, 1 teaspoon baking powder, food chopper and work smooth with the hands. Dissolve baking powder in milk and pour over bread crumbs. Soda or baking powder biscuit crumbs are even better than ordinary bread crumbs. Beat eggs until light. Beat in sugar and add figs, suet and milk mixture and salt Mix well and pour into mold. Steam three hours and serve with whipped cream.

Apricot float is ideal to serve after a fish dinner. There is just the right tang to it and the needed nourishment to round out the meal.

Apricot Float

One-fourth pound dried apricots, ¾ cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2 cups milk, 1 dessertspoon flour, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Wash fruit well and let stand in cold water over night. Stew in the same water until soft. Add one-half cup of sugar and rub through a sieve. Let the sifted apricots stand until cold. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry and slowly beat in the fruit. Let stand one or two hours in a cold place and serve with boiled custard sauce.

Use the yolks of eggs for the sauce. Mix and sift flour and salt with the remaining one-quarter cup of sugar. Beat yolks slightly with dry ingredients. Heat milk in top of double boiler. Slowly add to egg mixture, beating thoroughly. Be sure the milk and egg mixture is thoroughly blended before cooking. Cook over hot water until the custard coats the spoon. Let cool and stir in vanilla.

If the egg mixture is perfectly dissolved in the milk before cooking there will be no necessity for straining the sauce to have it smooth.

Prune Whip

Four eggs (whites), 1 cup stoned stewed prunes, 4 tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

The prunes can be rubbed through a coarse colander ro remove the stones. Mix cream of tartar with sugar and stir into prunes. Beat eggs until stiff and dry with salt. Add to prune mixture. Fold to mix and turn into a buttered pudding dish. Bake 25 minutes in a pan of hot water in a moderately hot oven. Cool and serve with boiled custard. Half a cup of chopped nuts added to this recipe makes a delicious change.

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

CANCER

According to Dr. W. A. Conley of New York, cancer now kills more people yearly than any other one disease. You may be pleased to learn that a group of physicians, who met recently in New York, founded a society for the scientific study and treatment of cancer.

The project of educating the general public in the essentials regarding cancer should be an every day affair, when such serious inroads are being made by this disease among our people. How can this best be done is claiming the attention of this new society.

It is shown by some physicians and hospital reports that cancer claims nearly 10 per cent. of the adult population. During the past 50 years, deaths from cancer have increased three-fold. It is more prevalent among women than men.

The real cause of the cancer, except in certain external cases when injury and infection have played important parts, is not really known. No regular diet or particular food seems to increase or diminish cancer cases. However, there is danger from long continued action or irritation of certains parts, as the lips or nose.

If the layman will use due precaution and see to it that any form of chronic irritation, pus formation or ulceration be treated by a competent physician at once, a gain may come our way.

Cancer in its early stages is not painful. This is an additional warning to use every means to ward it off. Some formation of chemical ferments, not however the direct result of food conditions, is believed to cause cancer by the majority of modern students.

FLOWERS REVIVED.

An aspirin tablet added to the water in which cut flowers are kept will revive them if they have begun to wilt.

TRACTOR BEATS HEDGE.

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y., Dec. 13. —(United Press.)— In some of the smaller things it sometimes appears that the forces of man far outclass those of nature. A cedar hedge about a home at Chazy had become so thick that it was decided to destroy it. Despite its more than half a century of growth the entire hedge was uprooted and torn down by a caterpillar tractor in two hours.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

A WONDERFUL TREE

"There was a tree that grew, dears,
To quite a wondous size."

THE next riddle that the Riddle Lady asked was a long one. I'm sure you never, never, never can guess what it was.

"There was a tree that grew, dears,
To quite a wondrous size,
Its branches spread quite wide below,
But narrowed toward the skies.

"And on the tiptop twig of it
There gleamed a gorgeous star
That surely must have fallen from
The dark blue sky afar.

"Its roots were deep in hiding
Below the parlor floor,
Its wide-spread branches covering
Six mountain chains or more.

"Not only were there tunnels
And bridges, fields and brooks,
But lakes made out of mirrors
And hills made out of books.

"The beasts were quite amazing
Beneath this sheltered wood,
For woolly lambs were grazing
Where hungry tigers stood.

"And near the fiercest lion
A velvet puppy sat,
While out upon the briny deep
A turtle chased a cat.

"And overhead what marvels
Were waiting to be told
The tree bore silver sugar-plums
And fruit of shining gold.

"And toys grew there thickly,
From dolls to jumping-jacks,
And soldier-suits and engines
That ran on shiny tracks.

"A trumpet grew on one branch,
A drum hung just below,
And underneath, a shiny sled
Made tracks on cotton snow.

"This tree blooms just in winter,
For one short single stay;
I wish that we could find the seed
And have one every day."

"We know We know" shouted all the Riddle Land people. "It's a Christmas tree."

"Well, well, well" laughed the Riddle Lady. "I supposed someone would guess it, but I didn't know that everybody would be so smart. That means that everybody in Riddle Land will have to have a prize.

"Nancy and Nick, will you please do an errand for me in your magic shoes? Go and ask Johnny Jump Up, my butler, to unlock my storeroom an" bring me a grab-bag full of what-nots?

"Certainly" said the Twins obligingly, and away they went, and in a trice they came back with the what-not bag.

Everybody dipped in and got a present and it was nearly as good as Christmas. At least that's what Contrary Mary said, for she got a woolly lamb.

less black planes drifting in a crysta sea, were carrying people to a thousand destinies. Towering on all sides the irregular concrete mass of New York. As dusk fell, lights in those the irregular concrete mass of New high buildings began to appear, first intermittently, then as long necklaces of brilliants strung against the sky. Silence fell on the Park.

Clavering walked until he could walk no farther, then took a bus at One Hundred and Tenth Street for Claremont. When he reached the restaurant he could think of only three men whose companionship would be endurable, and failing to get any of them on the telephone resigned himself to a solitary dinner. But still restless, he wandered over to a window and stared out across the Hudson at the dark Palisades on the opposite shore. Battleships were a anchor, for there had been no ice in the Hudson this winter, and a steamboat with its double chain of lights swam gracefully up the river. The cold winter stars winked down indifferently upon seething human hearts.

"Clavering walked until he could walk no farther."

He still refused to admit that the source of his uneasiness was that revelation set for Saturday night. Nothing but death itself could halt his marriage with this woman, for she herself had unequivocally stated that after Saturday night the future would be in his hands. His! . . . Her secret? Not that she had had lovers, for he had accepted that fact already, and for him the past had ceased to exist. Her husband was dead. Nothing else mattered. Nevertheless, the vague prescient chill he had experienced the night he first met her eyes, and once or twice since, accompanied as it was by a curious sense that just below his consciousness lay the key to the mystery, rattling now and again, but sinking deeper every time he made a dart at it, had defied further evasion since the receipt of her cryptic letter. He was the more uneasy as she seemed far more certain of Mrs. Oglethorpe than of himself.

Clavering's immediate act was to dash off a love-letter more impassioned than any he had ever dreamed himself capable of writing, vowing that he was dazzled and facsinated, God knew, but that he loved her with the love of his life and would marry her if she would have him, no matter what her revelations. And with what patience he could muster and with no grace whatever he would make no attempt to see her until Saturday night. But she must believe that he loved her and she must write at once and tell him so. He could not exist throughout that interminable interval unless she wrote him at once that she believed in the existence and the indissolubility of that bond, and that he had given her the highest and deepest and most passionate love of which man was capable, and which no woman but she could inspire, for no woman like her had ever lived.

He dared not read it over. He had never let himself go before, and he had written too much for print not to be self-conscious and critical of even a love-letter intended only for concordant eyes. Nevertheless, he was aware even in his excitement that the more reckless it was the surer its effect. No edited love-letter ever yet hit its mark. (He remembered Parnell's love-letters, however, and devoutly hoped his own would never see the light.) The waiter entered at the moment, and he gave him the missive, hastily addressed and sealed, and asked him to tell the "desk" to send it immediately and give the boy orders to wait for an answer.

He drank his coffee, but ate nothing. Nor did he open his newspapers He strode up and down his rooms or stood at the window watching the hurrying throngs, the lumbering green busses, the thousand automobiles and taxis over on Fifth Avenue. They were as unreal as a cinema. He had the delusion, common to lovers, that Earth was inhabited by two people only—that brief extension of the soul which in its common acceptance of eternal loneliness looks out upon the world as upon a projected vision in which no reality exists, for man the dreamer is but a dream himself. Phantasmagoria!

He glanced at the clock every time he passed it. It seemed incredible that mere minutes were passing. But she was merciful. She kept him in suspense but thirty-five minutes. The messenger boy stared at the celebrated journalist, with whose appearance he was reasonably familiar, as if regarding a phase of masculine aberration with which he was even more familiar. He grinned sympathetically, and Clavering was not too distraught to detect the point of view of the young philosopher. He had been running his hands through his hair and no doubt his eyes were injected with blood. He told him to wait, and went into his bedroom. But the note was brief and required no answer. "I believe you." That was all, and it was enough. He gave the astonished philosopher a five-dollar bill: an automatic American reaction.

Then he sat down to puzzle over those parts of her letter which he had barely skimmed, faded into insignificance for the moement before the outstanding confession that she really loved him. But they loomed larger and larger, more and more puzzling and ominous, as he read and reread them. Finally he thrust the pages into his desk and went out for a tramp.

It was a cold bright day. The ice on the trees of Central Park was a diamond iridescence. Nursemaids were leading children, bits of muffled wealth, along the alleys. Horses pounded on the bridle paths. Automobiles and taxis, that must have looked to the airmen above like aim-

MRS. R. M. GRAHAM

STOMACH SOURCE OF SUFFERING

Dreco, by correcting its Action is Rapidly Restoring Peterborough Lady to Joyful Health—Aids Liver and Bowels as Well and Improves System Generally.

"For the past few years I have been a constant sufferer from stomach trouble," says Mrs. R. M. Graham, of 115 Robinson St., East City, Peterboro, Ont. "Gas would form after eating that felt like a lump of lead. My food soured, causing nausea and belching and I would get severe cramps. My appetite was very poor and my whole system suffered from lack of proper nourishment.

"My liver was sluggish too, and I would get dizzy spells, and the least bit of work would exhaust me. I would get tired out from just walking upstairs.

"When I started taking Dreco I didn't have much faith in it, for every other medicine I have tried had failed to do me any good. However, two bottles of Dreco convinced me that it is indeed different. It has proved its ability to do all that is claimed for it.

"My stomach is wonderfully improved and I have a splendid appetite. My food now digests perfectly without souring or causing the least distress and I hardly ever have a dizzy spell. Work, which was an effort before, is a pleasure once more and my bowels, which were chronically constipated, are regular as a clock.

Dreco brings health by putting the stomach and other vital digestive organs in proper working order. They purge the system of all impurities and absorb all the nourishing values of the food, thereby giving strength and vitality to the whole body. Dreco is made from herbs, roots, bark and leaves and contains no minerals, potash or habit forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterborough by Bond's Drug Store. Go there to-day and ask for Mr. Vaughan, the Dreco Expert, and let him explain the merits of this great remedy. There is no charge and he will tell you honestly if he believes Dreco will benefit you. Dreco is also sold in other cities as follows:
Lakefield—E. H. Northey.
Campbellford—J. E. Birks, and by a good druggist everywhere.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — | New York Stock Exchange — and Curb Prices —

Today's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(United Press). — The Trade News which came in overnight was extremely bullish especially with regard to the motor and steel industries and these classes of stock showed marked buoyancy in the early dealings on the stock exchange. Reports from the various steel centres regarding bookings were particularly favorable for this season and stress was laid upon the prominence taken by automobile producers in placing orders. Steel common moved up to 96 again at the head of the movement among the steel shares while Studebaker's sharp spurt to new high ground on the movement at 107 1-2 was the outstanding feature of the motor group.

Operations for the rise broadened as the first hour progressed and around 11 o'clock the forward movement was again in full swing in practically the whole list. Public utilities were enlivened by special strength in Brooklyn Manhattan transit issues, while Pacific Gas, Electric jumped over four points to 89 1-4 in response to the establishment of an $8 dividend basis against the former rate of $6. The continued strength in General Motors induced buying of Dupont which reached a new high on the movement at 134 3-8 the coppers displayed increasing activity. Good buying was reported in Cerro de Pasco, which is producing at the rate of close to 10,000,000 pounds of copper monthly at a cost of probably 7 1-2 cents. The low costs to the company are due to the heavy silver content, the oils made a satisfactory response to further indication that the oil situation has turned for the better.

WIDOW CARRIES ON THE ESTATE.

Mrs. Jacob A. Riis Gives Advice For Intelligent Investment of Hard-Earned Income.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The widow of the greatest friend the poor people of New York—and elsewhere—ever had is perpetuating his ideals, but in a far different way.

She is Mrs. Jacob A. Riis. For the last seven years, Mrs. Riis has been manager of the woman's department of a New York bond and stock company, and has striven to keep many women from chancing all their savings on some doubtful enterprise. Now she is conducting a course in the principles of investment to women attending Columbia University.

As financial adviser, Mrs. Riis hopes to help those poor people her husband had so long been befriending, to get them out of the rut of poverty and into a more independent life based on thrift and intelligent investment. They had known her husband, he who had told society "How the Other Half Lives," and had held perfect faith in him. Now they bestow that same faith on his widow, and seek her advice financially.

That advice she passes on to you, through a talk I have just had with her.

Save First.

"The first step toward the economic independence of women," she begins, "is a bank account.

"There's no amount to small to begin with. The smallest one will grow if you tend it regularly. As soon as you have accumulated one hundred dollars—it doesn't need to be more—you are ready to make your money earn more money for you.

"You can invest in real estate, stocks or bonds. Or you can speculate. The trained women invests. The ignorant, or the Get-Rich-Quick woman, is most likely to speculate."

Concerning speculation, Mrs. Riis offers no advice, except not to. But in regard to investment, she says.

Seek Advice.

"When you are ready to invest, get in touch with a thoroughly established house—your bank will usually suggest safe ones. Don't answer the most tempting advertisements or allow yourself to be influenced too much by the personality of a salesman. Look for sound judgment rather than personal attention.

"If you invest in real estate, be sure it is not based on inflated values. Fix in your mind the difference between stocks and bonds. A bond is really a convenient form of mortgage on property too large to be owned by an individual. When you buy a bond you have loaned money on security for which you are to receive interest and the full amount on a given date.

"When you buy stock you become a partner in business and when the company is prosperous, you share the profits. When it isn't you share the depression."

Many Baskets.

Mrs. Riis advises the woman with a thousand dollars for investment not to play all her money on one horse, but choose at least two different securities. In investing $5,000 she advises a distribution of one thousand in five different companies.

"No matter how prosperous a corporation is it is well not to put all your money into it," she says. "Also it is wise to spread investments throughout the country, so that if a slump hits industries in the east you stand a chance of a boom on your western stock.

These are factors to watch out for, she concludes:

"Safety, that is the prospects and standing of a company; yield, which includes the return on your money; appreciation, the prospect of gain in value; marketability, the ability to turn it into cash immediately and advantageously if necessary, and diversity."

FIVE NEGROES RAIDED A HARLEM PIE FOUNDRY

NEW YORK, December 13. Canadian Press. — Five negroes, each munching a pie, were arrested in the basement of a Harlem Apartment house to-day. Eighty pies were taken at dawn from Abel Jackson's bakery. The negroes told the police they had divided them equally, sixteen to a man, and they were finishing the last five when they were interrupted.

INDIAN RIVER NEWS

Indian River Young People's Club staged a very successful entertainment on December 7.

A special feature of the evening was a debate between Douro and Indian River clubs on, "Resolved, that the farmer is more interested in good roads than any other class of citizen." The affirmative was very ably upheld by Mr. Bill Towns and Mr. Tom Hefferan, while the negative was upheld uby Mr. James Haley and Mr. A. Carlow. After a length decision of the judges decided in favor of the affirmative.

Another special feature of the evening was an address given by Mr. E. N. MacDonald, ex-M.P., during which he urged farmers to stick together and to work, vote and co-operate in the interest of agriculture.

Of the many numbers on the programme it would be hard to say which was most enjoyed by the audience. But the songs rendered by Messrs. Caruetta, Sheean and Connor, besides the monologue by Miss Betty Payne, were undoubtedly among the best.

After the programme, lunch was served and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Power was shut off in the telegraph department and work suspended during this period. Throughout the world-wide system of the C.P.R.—on land and on sea—the same honor to the late head of the system was paid.

STOPPED A RUNAWAY

Orville Rome provided the climax to a runaway this afternoon when he brought a horse attached to a Collins and Crowe delivery waggon, to a full stop. This was accomplished by climbing over the tailboard and getting hold of the lines which were tied to the vehicle. The horse made its break away on Charlotte street and was going strong when Hunter street was reached.

ALL INSTITUTIONS ARE SATISFACTORY

Grand Jury Makes Presentment Congratulating City and County on Absence of Crime.

Following its tour of inspection of the County Jail, the Court House and other buildings, the Grand Jury, through its foreman, Robert Hicks, made the following presentment yesterday afternoon to His Honor Judge Ward, who presided at the General Sessions of the Peace:

We appreciate the advice given in your charge to the Grand Jury. Your reference to the reason or explanation as to why you occupy the Bench at this Session, compels from your Jury to say that our worthy and efficient local Judge must be congratulated in having such a fitting and able colleague, to carry into effect the rotatory conduct of the County Courts resulting from recent legislation.

Our duties in so far as deciding the only criminal matter that came before us, were very materially lightened, due to the able direction of the Crown Attorney and we concur with your Honor in congratulating the County and City on the almost absence of serious crime.

At your suggestion we visited the Gaol and other Administration of Justice buildings and found everything satisfactory and scrupulously clean, and we also ascertained that a special committee of the County Council has been vested with authority to adjust and maintain and conduct of the upkeep of such buildings.

There are six male people in the gaol at present, the majority for minor offences. The staff deserve credit for the conditions prevailing.

We would refer to the conduct of the House of Providence, the Old Peoples' Home, the Childrens' Aid Home and the St. Vincent de Paul Home with the utmost pleasure, and desire to place on record the satisfactory condition of such institutions.

We also visited the County House of Refuge and found the old people in a happy frame of mind and the conduct of affairs in general very satisfactory.

Improvements as occasion requires are being looked after by the board in charge.

In conclusion we trust that you may be spared long in the occupation of the exalted position that you so ably fill.

Signed on behalf of the Grand Jury.

Robert Hicks, Foreman.

THE RUM FLEET STILL WAITING

Two Boats Tied Up by the Coastguards at Fort Erie

BUFFALO, Dec. 13.— (Canadian Press.) — Mysterious rumors from undefined sources, drifting across Niagara and eastern Lake Erie, aroused growing speculation to-day in face of Monday night's prompt bottling up of two alleged liquor craft by the U.S. coast guard, regarding further activities of the holiday rum fleet.

The "Dawn" of United States' registry and Canadian Nora remained quietly tied up at the Fort Erie, Ont., ferry dock. From Port Colborne, Ont., along the Canadian lakeshore and both banks of the Niagara stories were relayed form mouth to mouth of boats clearing for Cuba, Venezuela and Argentine.

The Dawn and Nora, viewed through coast guard glasses, appeared deserted and forgotten to-day in a blanket of rain. Canadian customs guards with rifles were on the dock to prevent a landing of the cargo. The Dawn and Nora had cleared for Havana before running into Fort Erie Monday night.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: In the letters which appear from time to time in the Examiner, written by J. H. Burnham, there is food for profound thought. In this day and age we find ministers of the Gospel who go so far as to discredit the Bible, who doubt that it is the inspired word of God.

Materialism seems to have engulfed the world. "Jazz," the "dance" of the primeval ages, easy divorce, as practiced to the south of us, where the sacrament of marriage is nothing less than a mockery, by the gratification of the flesh, and incidentally the Devil such a condition has come to pass. The faith of the world is weak and becoming weaker, and that accounts for the present condition. When a minister of the Gospel pauses to reflect on the past, and sees the barren results of his labors, is it any wonder then that he should become uneasy? I fear that we have been groping in the dark—when will we see the light? When we find such conditions in a civilized and supposed Christianized country it is only logical to conclude that the foundations upon which our faith rests is somewhat weak. Thank you, Mr. Editor, for space in your valuable paper, I remain your truly.

VALE.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

There is a disposition on the part of many people to blame our colleges for the wholesale spread of infidelity in the evangelical world. That is not right. If is self-righteous who are to blame, those people who think they are better than God Himself. The divine plan is founded on the punishment of misuse (excess of all kinds). The plan of the self-righteous is founded on the use. The divine plan of punishing for the misuse is condemned in favour of prohibiting the use.

Is there zanybody on earth so stupid as not to see the difference between God's plan and than of prohibitionists? Once then we have condemned God's plan we are preparing ourselves for the condemnation of anything divine that does not suit us.

Prohibition has done a great good but is doing for the above reasons, a ten thousand times greater harm. The minute we are tempted to criticize the divine method and plan—Stop! We must be wrong somewhere for God cannot be.

It is this terrible mistake that is devastating the land. It is not making people drunk in the streets or making beasts of them, but is is making infidels of them. Do we not know that there are many things in life that we would like to do—but dare not? Why is it we dare not? Because, for example, if we told one lie to do a great good by it we have done a greater harm in wrecking by that one lie our whole moral being. The colleges are doing their share of harm. We know that. And when, as Rev. T. Albert Moore said the other Sunday, it is necessary for such as he to go about the country to "keep the idea of God alive amongst the people," he arraigns by that one statement the Christianity of the nation and condemns it as a poor, weak, ridiculous thing—and that, too, after all the blowing we do about it. No. It is not the colleges alone, by any means. They dabble in what they call scholarship. It is the people who deny God when they flout the divine plan of life. It is not for us to provide a plan to save the world. God has done that. It is for us to obey and the minute we decide that things are all wrong and that we must boss the job and set them right, that minute we overturn the whole plan of Christianity—and therefore Christianity itself. But you will say that if we are not to shift the blame from the shoulders of our sinners to God's shoulders, how are we going to do that which God failed to do—that is, abolish things which never should have been created?

Well, when you have reached that stage I leave you to your friend, the devil, for that is just what he says. The whole of morality and religion depends upon reputation, self-control and sorrow for wrongdoing. The instant we say that a better plan is to prohibit all possibility of doing wrong, that instant we blame God and worship ourselves instead—and no college can do worse than that.

CLOSING SESSION OF U.F.O. MEETING

Convention Objected to Shipment of Liquor Out of Canada.

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press). — Nominations for various offices of organization were received and a number of resolutions discussed at this morning's uneventful meeting of the tenth annual convention of the United Farmers of Ontario. The convention went on record as declaring the shipping of liquor out of Canada to the United States to be a "national disgrace." Another resolution protesting against the express rate increases was carried without discussion.

Prof. John Sharp, of Haileybury, withdrew his motion that the U.F.O. head office officials should take no side in the discussion of political questions, declaring that last night's discussion settled the matter.

ENCOURAGING NOTE BY HON. G. GRAHAM

Cattle Embargo May Shortly Be Removed—Increase in Flow of Immigration Expected

TORONTO, December 13. Canadian Press.—Members of the Provincial Legislature, Senators and riding delegates from every section of the province, in attendance at the banquet tendered by the Liberals of Ontario last night to Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, on return from attendance at the Imperial conference and the League of Nations, accorded the Minister a cordial reception.

The mere mention of the guest's name by the chairman, Sir John Gibson, was the signal for an outburst of applause, which culminated in cheers as Mr. Graham rose to speak.

Simply and graciously he thanked his friends for the warmth of their welcome and then proceeded to discuss in detail the more important of the questions which were considered at London and at Geneva.

He brought the encouragng news that the difficulties in the way of the abolition of the cattle embargo were within a measurable distance of removal and that the dominion could look forward to a very considerable increase in the inflow of immigration from the British Isles during the coming year.

St. Lawrence Project.

Touching on what he termed a very important domestic question, the deepening of the St. Lawrence, the Minister of Railways declared that the government of which he is a member was determined to see that there would be no interference with the Dominion's right of way to the sea. In this connection he also warned that it was dangerous to stir up controversy between the various parties directly interested in the project and that only by the closest cooperation between the Dominion and the province of Ontario could the latter hope to secure the much needed power development.

Hon. E. M. McDonald, Minister of Defence, said the evil which the Tory party has done while in power, had lived after them, and it had been the task of the Liberal party to lift Canada out of the groove of difficulties.

W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader in the Ontario Legislature, expressed the hope that in some measure he would interpret the spirit of Liberalism to the people of the province of Ontario.

At the next election, said Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, the Liberal party would have no excuses to offer for the work done during his terms of government.

PRESENT DAY FAD.

LONDON, Dec. 13.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—Keighley, Yorkshire, poor law guardians, were discussing the question of encouraging the emigration to points within the Empire not only of single men but whole families when one of the members declared that the emigration matter was merely a present day fad. There was plenty of land in Great Britain for people, he said, without sending them away.

THE SALVATION ARMY BAZAAR

The Salvation Army bazaar is in full swing in the Boy Scouts' gymnasium in the Young People's Temple annex. The ladies in charge have fashioned a bright and cheerful interior decoration by the use of tissue paper of all colors, twined and festooned and fringed about the various tables. Instead of massive booths, there are rows of stalls whose posts are entwined with gaily colored papers, ranged along the side walls of the big room, with its farther end draped with large flags.

There are quantities of pretty and useful things on sale at the bazaar. One table is covered with delicious cooking, another has dainty candy in bright holders, and the village store is a centre for all sorts of dry staples, from jars of red jellies to packages of shredded wheat and boxes of shoe polish.

Quilts in fetching patterns and careful handiwork are on sale, there is a large white spread done in blue birds, and Christmas gifts galore, with dainty linen pieces, carefully embroidered, sets in filet lace, towels handkerchiefs, and fine lingerie. Useful articles in underwear fill one table, and there is a rummage sale section where many good things are on sale. Tables are available for light refreshments and afternoon tea The Salvation Army orchestra and the Boys' Band provide evening music for the bazaar, which will continue until to-morrow evening.

Ladies in charge

Mrs. T. Lang, is general convenor of arrangements; the village store is in charge of Mrs. H. Hedge and Miss Annie Grieves, the fancy work booth of Mrs. F. Gandy and Mrs. C. Hopcroft, aprons are sold by Mrs. C. Breadman and Mrs. H. James, miscellaneous articles in the Band stall by Mrs. A. Moynes, Mrs. F. Gray and Mrs. H. Wells, the Young People's Legion booth for children's clothing is in charge of Mrs. B. Gray and Mrs. G. Robinson.

Candy is sold by Mrs. M. Shadgett and Mrs. Smith, quilts by Mrs. Pammett and the rummage sale is in charge of Mesdames Woodcock, Naish and F. Meeks. The Misses K. and B. Gilmour have the fish pond and the refreshment tables are supervised by Mrs. W. Naish, Mrs. J. T. Braund, Mrs. W. Boorman and Miss Jean Gilmour.

A prelude to the bazaar was held on Monday evening, when a Songster festival was held, with a good attendance. The programme included several enjoyable choruses by the Songsters, vocal solos by Mrs. M. Braund and Songsters H Broom and Bro. W. Grieves, a pianoforte solo by Mrs. S. Richardson, and readings by Mrs. W. Boorman and Bro. W. Grieves.

The New Temple

A brief tour of the new premises revealed a set of buildings which could probably not be surpassed in any of the smaller cities of the Dominion, for convenient arrangement and general up-to-dateness. Fifty-three rooms, large and small, are contained in the Temple proper and the Young People's annex, the former with dimensions of fifty by a hundred feet, the latter thirty feet by a hundred, all two-storey buildings.

Within the compass of the buildings is contained everything needed in a modern building of a type especially suited to the needs of the Salvation Army. The Temple auditorium itself is a specious, attractive room, capable of seating six hundred people in its main floor and rear gallery. Stained glass fill all of the large windows. There are double entrances to the auditorium, and the gallery, and the tower space has been utilized to the very best advantage. Each tower has three storeys, the lower in use as a vestibule entrance to the gallery, the second as a very convenient 'mother's room' for use of worshippers with fretful infants and the third section for storage of Army records of all sorts Little offices for the use of the adjutant and the senior and junior sergeant majors are conveniently placed there are separate rooms, with lavatory conveniences and built-in music cupboards, for the ladies and gentlemen of the choir, the band has a large spacious apartment all to itself and one big very attractive room is the Girl Guards' hall, a large compartment where a novel idea has been introduced. To separate the different grades for lesson work, small wall cabinets containing brown curtains are used. The curtains, with their stationary rods, pull out and can be adjusted in position almost instantaneously, making small individual rooms for the different grades. Their retirement into their small wall cabinets converts the room once more into a large general hall.

Downstairs are the well-equipped kitchens, and the big Boy Scouts' gymnasium. Here too is the Sunday school room, with its twelve auxiliary rooms at either side, small enclosures where the children are seated on built-in-low benches along the walls, and where the equipment cupboards have inner door surfaces for use as a blackboard, that folds itself neatly out of sight when the door is closed.

The big room where the band houses its instruments has special fire proof cupboards where the instruments are kept. The caretakers' apartments are commodious and pleasant.

Cheerful grained oak forms the woodwork, and the ceilings in the majority of the rooms are composed of ornamental metallic tile. There are fine hardwood floors throughout the building, an excellent heating and lighting system and a system of ventilation which appears in every room, with an exhaust fan that permits of fresh air within ten minutes' time. The walls are of stucco plaster with a muresco finish.

In the Young People's Temple, the big gymnasium has its small auxiliary rooms for library use and cloak room accommodation, and there are music rooms on either side of the entrance for the girls and boys. Throughout, the Army aims to follow up its slogan of improving the soul and, rescuing the life by providing something to occupy the attention of busy hands and brains. "Keep the child occupied with something educational or constructive until he is seventeen or eighteen years of age and you are well on the way to saving the whole life," remarked one of the senior members, and the entire big Army building, with its cheerful interior and its artistic design for its main entrance, with its motto "In God We Trust" surmounting all, has evidently been constructed with this end in view. That the Army adherents take great pride in their fine new premises is manifested by their cheerful countenances as they go about the pleasant interior. Adherents of the Salvation Army in Peterboro at the present time number a following of about eight hundred, including between three and four hundred children.

LORD DOUGLAS GETS SIX MONTHS PRISON

LONDON, Dec. 13. — (Canadian Press).—Lord Alfred Douglas, son of the late Marquis of Queensberry, was found guilty by a jury in the Old Bailey to-day of criminal libel upon Winston Spencer Churchill, former First Lord of the Admiralty, by his publication of a statement that Mr. Churchill issued a false communique after the Battle of Jutland for the purpose of influencing the stock markets.

CHURCH FOLK DRESSED LIKE SIGN OF ZODIAC

Pastor and Vestry Board Summoned to Appear Before Bishop Manning and Explain Matters.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Dr. Norman Guthrie, pastor of St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, and his board of vestrymen were called before Bishop William T. Manning, of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York, to-day, to explain reports of dances and festivities in the downtown church and parish house. These reports "have shocked and scandalized," Bishop Manning said.

Dances, most of them of the Greek classic variety, have been given by young women members of the parish, as part of Dr. Guthrie's avowed purpose of bringing beauty in religion. Last week, at the festival of St. Nicholas, young men and women dressed "like signs of Zodiac," mingled with those in the audience and forced them to join in the merry frolic. Dr. Guthrie said he and the vestrymen would heed the call of Bishop Manning, but insisted that each member of the board would stand by him in his determination to continue the dances until they were ordered stopped by a general convention.

"Nothing we have done at St. Mark's has even been, from a church point of view, either immoral or illegal," he said.

Has Your Husband Got Indigestion?

Nothing creates domestic discord quicker than an attack of indigestion, and nothing gets rid of indigestion quicker than Bisurated Magnesia. No man can be sweet tempered, good natured or even fair minded when his stomach is constantly sick, sour, gassy, and upset with after-eating distress. If your husband has stomach trouble neither scold nor pity him, but help him by seeing that he has a supply of Bisurated Magnesia (either powder or tablets) constantly at hand. A teaspoonful of powder or two tablets taken in a little water after meals will instantly neutralize the acids in his stomach that are causing his trouble and he can enjoy his meals with no more fear of indigestion. Bisurated Magnesia is the special form of Magnesia used by thousands to neutralize stomach acidity and quickly overcome Indigestion—do not confuse with Milk, Carbonate, Block or Citrate of Magnesia. Insist on Bisurated. Its action is safe, prompt and sure and it can be obtained at small cost from any reliable drug store.

NINE REBELS KILLED.

Mother and Her Baby Are Relieved of Eczema

Mrs. Peter A. Palmer, Salt Burn, Sask., writes:

"Dr. Chase's Ointment has completely relieved me of eczema and piles. I also used this Ointment for my baby, who broke out in eczema. A few applications were all that was necessary in her case. Dr. Chase's Ointment has been worth a hundred dollars to me—before using it I had spent a great deal more than that in unsuccessful treatment from doctors. We have also used Dr. Chase's other medicines, the Nerve Food having restored my health after suffering from severe nerve trouble when a girl."

LADIES BOOST LOCAL WINTER SPORTS CLUB

Encouraging Attendance of More Than Fifty at Final Organization of Peterboro Ski and Snowshoe Club.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The Peterboro Ski and Snowshoe Club completed its organization last night at a largely attended meeting in the Y.M.C.A. with the election of the following officers:

President—J. D. Kenneally.
Vice-Pres.—George Logan.
Sec.-Treas.—Frank White.

Advisory Board—Miss Littlefield, Miss Outram, Miss Norma Johnson, Mr. A. V. Fortye, Mr. Fred Green, Mr. H. Tamplett and Mr. Wm. Read.

Honorary coach—Mr. Ludwig Johnson.

Quite a number of ladies accepted the club's invitation and participated in last night's decisive step as the temporary organization was substituted by the officers who will preside over the club's affairs this season in what promises to be a successful effort to establish two splendid outdoor sports.

More than fifty membership applicants have been signed already and many other are in prospect. The club is seriously considering the question of limiting the number of members to one hundred. The fee was fixed at two dollars last night, and those who wish to join may make application through any of the officers including Mr. F. White at White's Athletic Goods store on Charlotte street.

Most of the promoters of the club have yet to be initiated to the thrills and certainties of skiing, so that now others who are interested but diffident will find plenty of company in learning to use the wooden runners.

Snowshoeing will share equal attention and prominence in the club's programme, and for that reason it is believed that a hundred members will be enrolled before the season is out for hikes. The next detail in the preliminaries will be the drafting of a constitution and laying out of a tentative programme at a meeting of the executive next Wednesday night. Several Ottawa and Quebec clubs will be communicated with for their regulations to serve as a guide in completing the establishment of the local club.

Bot hthe Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. tendered the use of their kitchens tor refreshments after outings and both offers were gratefull accepted

ITALIAN BOXER FINED SHOWED WHITE FEATHER

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 12—The Italian Boxing Federation today announced its punishment of Mariano Barbaresi for the bad showing he made in his recent bout with Erminio Spalla for the Italian heavyweight title, in which Barbaresi was charged with having shown the white feather and quit in the fifth round after Spalla had inflicted considerable punishment on him.

By decision of the Federation, five thousand lire are to be deducted from the twenty thousand lire which constituted Barbaresi's portion of the gate receipts, and in addition Barbaresi will not be permitted to participate in any fights for a perod of three months.

It was voted by the Federation to turn over of Spalla forty-five thousand lire as his portion of the gate receipts.

Big Bowling Mark By Bill Smithson

Bill Smithson continues to set records up in ten pins. Yesterday at the Water Street Alleys he rolled the sensationally high score of 299 for a single game of ten pins. This is but one pin off the perfect score, which is 300 for ten pins. Smithson made 11 consecutive strikes in his game, and on the twelfth roll got 9 pins, giving him a score of 299. Smithson had three strikes in his last frame in the game before, which gave him fourteen consecutive strikes. Smithson has been doing some wonderful bowling lately, but yesterday's score was probably his best effort.

S.P.A. TROPHY WAS WON BY ST. MARY'S

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—In the wildest and most exciting junior hockey game of the season, St. Mary's last night defeated Kitchener by 3 to 2 and retained possession of the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association trophy.

As the score indicates, it was a close argument.

At the end of the first period it was 1 to 1, and at the next interval 2 to 2; Kitchener led twice, only to have the Battling Irish tie the count and finally win a great rally in the last session.

There was no mercy shown by either side.

The fireworks started almost as soon as the game began, Kitchener "scoring" in strenuous stuff.

Gordon Hunt and Eddie Burke, whether by accident or otherwise, received painful injuries, Hunt losing one tooth.

The Irish, led by Mart Burke, a new star in junior hockey, threw themselves in the path of the Kitchener puck carriers, and there were spills and thrills galore.

BEREAVED BOXER HAS FORSAKEN THE RING

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 12. — Bryan Downey, Cleveland middleweight boxer, to-day, announced his retirement from the ring.

His recent setback at the hands of Harry Greb decided Downey to quit the ring.

The death of his infant daughter a short time ago was a great blow. Downey said that he had decided at that time to retire but reconsidered, thinking that training and boxing might take his mind from his bereavement. After the Greb fight Bryan talked things over with his manager Jimmy Dunn and decided to quit. He plans to remain in Cleveland and will probably engage in a business.

ADOPT MOST OF LANDIS POINTS

Joint Session of Major Leagues' Magnates Agree On Amendments — Was Harmonious.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—The major leagues' joint baseball session adjourned last night after adopting the majority of the seventeen amendments proposed by Commissioner K. M. Landis, with slight changes in all of those adopted.

This action, the principal one before the first session of the conference, was taken without any sign of friction, the magnates asserted.

It was officially stated that the draft question was not taken up at the joint session.

The amendments were acted upon as follows:

1. To forbid negotiating with players of another major league club or an ineligible player—adopted.

2. Eliminates coaches from the player limit of 40, which shall (not) more than five "future service players,"—adopted.

3. Clubs shall furnish reserve lists of not more than 40 players to the Commissioner by November 1. —Adopted.

4. Giving the lower standing club in the pennant standing the first opportunity to claim players on waiver —Adopted.

5 Ten days trial of players taken on optional agreements—not adopted

6 Authorizing the Commissioner to disapprove any player transfer when the consideration is not fixed —Approved—(Indirect transfers via a third club—not voted upon, but left to Commissioner to pass judgment).

7.—No exhibition games against a team which has contained an ineligible player during the past year—Adopted.

8. Similar to Article Seven; except it covers exhibitions during the playing season—not adopted, as similar rule now in force.

9—When the date of an agreement falls on a Sunday or a national holiday, the following day will be deemed the one intended—Adopted.

Umpire's Salary Claims

10. Giving the Commissioner jurisdiction over disputes involving umpires. Amended to place umpires' salary disputes on the same basis as players' salary claim, over which the Commissioner has jurisdiction in cases involving more than $300.

11. Setting back 30 days to June 1, the date on which players, joining the club afterwards, are ineligible to full shares in world's series pools; coaches are removed from the full share division and placed under the jurisdiction of the Commissioner—adopted.

12. Providing for the visiting team's expenses in world's series contests—not adopted as clubs wished to handle themselves.

13. Penalties for enticing away players of other clubs—Adopted.

14. Similar to Section Five, and rejected by both leagues at their meetings Tuesday.

15. Similar to Section Six, adopted (Two other sections disapproved, relating to use of a transferred player before articles are signed, and three club—or indirect transfers).

16. Similar to section nine—adopted.

Like One League

President Heydler, of the National League, coming out of the joint session, said:

"After we got down to business, the meeting resembled that of one league and everything was harmonious."

He said that neither he nor President Johnson of the American League took the floor as executives of their respective leagues and spoke but briefly in their capacity as members of the joint conference.

A committee of three members of the Pacirfic Coast League was chosen to enter into a draft discussion with a committee of the American Association, composed of President Thomas Hickey, Otto Borchert of Milwaukee, and William Smith, of Indianapolis.

The draft discussion, it is understood, will decide the question of adopting the Western League's form of draft agreement, under which players developed by minor league clubs are not subject to the draft, but players received from the majors are subject to the draft. The question of the draft price was not broached.

Buy Tulsa Shortstop

Manager Lee Fohl of the Boston Americans, to-night announced the purchase of Dudley Lee, shortstop of the Tulsa, Western League Club, for a price reported as $50,000. Lee hit .350 last year. Johnny Mitchell, who came from the Coast League last Spring, was transferred to Tulsa in the exchange.

Ray Kramer of the Oakland Club, one of the best pitchers of the pacific Coast League, was sold to Pittsburgh to-day for cash and three players. The Pirates turned over Spencer Adams, an infielder, and pitchers John Boehler and Roy Kunz.

WILL PLAY OFF TIE IN CUE MATCH

Willie Hoppe

Welker Cochran

CHICAGO, December 13.—When Willie Hoppe and Welker Cochran clash for the billiards championship of the world, 17th, 18th, and 19th December, the champion is apt to find himself in a most unusual position. He is likely to find that the challenger is the ruling favourite. At least, the dope slants that way now.

Taking a squint at the performances of the pair at the November tournament in New York, it seems justifiable that Cochran should be favoured to dethrone the once "Boy Wonder." In that meeting, Hoppe didn't look anything like his old self. His playing was only fair; he was erratic and time and again he missed easy shots.

The fact that Willie lost only one game, wasn't due so much to his stellar work, as to the poor showing made by the opponents. As far as great billiards was concerned, there wasn't much of that brand displayed at New York.

Cochran, on the other hand, surprised his fondest admirers. He took a fall out of both Hoppe and Schaefer, the two favourites. Schaefer was handed one of the worst drubbings ever administered in titular matches. An unlooked for defeat at the hands of a foreigner was all that prevented Welker from walking off with the championship, then and there.

It is quite possible, though, that Hoppe will regain the same form that enabled him to whip Schaefer after Jake had copped his title. Willie is an old campaigner, and in crucial matches seems still possessed of the stuff which permits him to surmount the toughest barrier just when the going is roughest.

Hoppe, champion for years, cued his way into a tie with Cochran, the young star from the Coast, in the recent championship tournament at New York. Both Hoppe and Cochran made sensational rallies to win the matches that deadlocked the title.

The play-off here will be at 1,500 points, in three blocks of 500, to be played nightly at the auditorium. It is predicted these matches will break all attendance records for billiards in the history of hte sport.

Tilden's Tennis Record

Would Bill Tilden be missed by America if he withdrew from the Davis Cup play? Would Niagara miss the falls, Ruth his home-run bat, Galli-Curci her voice, Broadway its bright lights?

Tilden has been a member of the American defending team for four years and in that length of time he has won or helped win 15 matches, and lost only one.

Here's his record:

1920—Preliminary Round—Tilden defeated William H. Laurentz, France; Tilden and W. M. Johnston defeated Laurentz and Andre H. Gobert, France.

Semi-final—Tilden defeated A. R. F. Kingscote and J. C. Parke, British Isles; Tilden and Johnston defeated Kingscote and Parke, British Isles.

Challenge Round—Tilden defeated Norman E. Brookes and Gerald L. Patterson, Australia; Tilden and Johnston defeated Brookes and Patterson, Australia.

1921—Challenge Round—Tilden defeated Zenzo Shimizu and I. Kumagae, Japan.

1922—Challenge Round—Tilden defeated Patterson and James O. Anderson, Australia; Tilden and Richards lost to Patterson and O'Hara-Wood.

1923— Tilden defeated Anderson and John B. Hawkes, Australia; Tilden and Williams defeated Anderson and Hawkes.

ST. GEORGE'S CLUB HAD ACTIVE YEAR

Promoted Social Life of the Church and Helped In Material Improvements.

The first annual meeting of the St. George's Anglican Men's Club was held on Tuesday night in the basement of the church, when the balance sheet for the year was read by the treasurer, Mr. A. Sims, showing a balance to the credit of the society of twenty-nine dollars.

The report of the basement extension fund was read by Mr. Samuel Jay, which shows that this fund is now free of debt.

This club meets every Tuesday night in the basement of the church, where there is a warm and well lighted room. Several kinds of games are proivded, prominent among which is the game of carpet bowls, and judging by the number of players this is a prime favorite.

During the year several excellent concerts have been given under the auspices of the club, all of which hav been largely attended and noted for their first-class talent.

During the summer nights a moonlight excursion took place which was voted by the captain of the steamer to have been the largest of the season.

An extension to the basement was also undertaken which has resulted in a fine large room under the chancel of the church.

The club members have done the work free and paid half the expenses, the other half being provided by friends and well wishers in the city.

A new cement walk has been put in front of the church by club members.

In addition to doing this work and buying the games, they have always been ready to use their funds in the church's work.

Next week they are having an open meeting for members and their wives for which no admission fee will be charged.

The election of officers for the ensuing year is as follows:

Hon. Pres.—Rev. W. R. Courage.
President—Mr. H. Rew.

JAKE SOLOMON IS LOOKING FOR JOB ON UMPS STAFF

Is Applying to Central Ontario League for a Position as Arbitrator

The Central Ontario League umpiring staff is likely to contain a new member next season, as Jake Solomon has decided to apply for a position as an official arbitrator. It will be a novel spectacle for Central Leagus fans to see the former Peterboro manager "calling them" as umpire instead of putting on his famous storm scene as he used to when a verdict did not please him. Solomon's decision to get into the umpiring game means that he will not be at the helm of the Peterboro Ball Club next season. "It's time somebody else got a chance," he declared to-day.

ADVISES TAKING OFFER MADE FOR ELECTRIC STOCK

The Sun Life is a Heavy Stockholder in C.G.E. Company.

MONTREAL, Dec. 13.—T. B. Macaulay, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, has just returned from a week's visit to New York, where, in company with other officers of his Company he attended the sessions of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents. As the Sun Life is known to have a larg, interests in both the General Electric of New York and the Canadina General Electric, Mr. Macaulay was asked for his opinion in regard to the position and prospects of the Canadian Company.

"The Sun Life is a heavy stockholder in the General Electric," said Mr. Macaulay, "and when in New York we naturally consulted freely with oficers of that Company. We, of course, asked the advise of our friends as to what we should do with our Canadian General Electric shares. We were told that Senator Nicholls' death had created an entirely new situation, and that for this and other reasons it was desirable to draw much closer the relations between the New York Company and its Canadian subsidiary. The parent Company is willing to extend its Canadian operations, putting in, if necessary, six or seven million dollars. Just what form of security would be given for this money was not stated. They also considered that the Canadian Company should conserve its resources, and pay no further dividends on its common stock for a number of years To carry out this program it was necessary that the Canadian Company should become for practical purposes a branch of the parent Company. They were not willing to get into a position where a minority holding of stock might require them to b, particularly careful in dividing between the two Companies profits which might be earned on a contract in which both were interested. They were also unwilling to have minority shareholders who might criticize the Company for not paying dividends. Unless the minority holding was so small that it could be ignored and the Canadian plant treated as a branch of their own plant, they were not prepared to proceed with their plans. If the scheme fell through, and the Canadian Company had to continue as before, there was no reason why its common stock should sell above the eighties, for it was solely the prospect of the property being taken over by the American Company that had raised the price to its present figures. If on the other hand the minority holding of common stock was small enough to b, ignored, the holders of those minority shares would have to face the prospect of receiving no dividends for a number of years at least

"When asked which of the various options they would advise us to accept they unhesitatingly recommended the one by which we would receive $62.50 per share, American funds in cash, and seven per cent. cumulative preferred stock for $50, which stock would be worth at least par, for it would be a very choice security. The Sun Life sold slightly over 3400 shares of the common stock, and we have deposited those shares, accepting for them the option mentioned, and would recommend others to do likewise.

"As a Canadian, I naturally regret that the entire common stock of one of our Companies should be controlled by interests in the United States, but on the other hand it seems probable that the Canadian plant will in time be developed to much larger proportions and employ many more men than it would if it had an independent existence. It is worth noting that by its contract with the parent company, the Canadian company is prohibited from manufacturing for export, and that prohibition will now be terminated. I cannot help hoping that the General Electric may do at Peterboro a steadily increasing amount of manufacturing for export, just as General Motors is already doing in its line at Oshawa From this standpoint the absorption is one which can be viewed by us with complacency.

"We were told that while minority holdings of the Canadian Company were not desired, Canadians would be warmly welcomed as stockholders of the parent Company, and personally I think this a suggestion which our people may well consider. The General Electric is one of the largest and most powerful industrial corporations in the world. After our interview with its officials it was impossible not to be impressed with its tremendous strength and prosperity. Its plant is carried on its books at $70,000,000, but we were told that it could not be replaced for less than 250,000,000. At the close of last year it had net current assets of about $170,500,000, of which cash and government securities amounted to $83,000,000. It was pointed out that they could write their entire property off their books as loss, and still have a surplus over all their stock. It is easily one of the half dozen greatest and soundest industrial companies in the world. We were told that the current year had been a highly satisfactory one. Our own confidence is shown by the fact that the Sun life owns 10,000 shares ($1,000,000 par value) of its stock, which has a market value of over $2,000,000. I know of no American security in which I would be more satisfied to see our Canadian people invest their funds."

LORDS WOULD AID RAMSAY MacDONALD

Baldwin Government Asked to Announce Its Plan on Unemployment

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press)).—One of the minor embarrassment which would confront Ramsay MacDonald, Laobr, if he took over reins of Government, is believed to be placation of superabundance of claimants for office. Contrary to expectations this apparently does not apply to House of Lords, where he is credited with having willing helpers in Lords Haldane, Kimberley, Russell and Parmoor. There would be sufficient for immediate contingencies whil, it is rumored that he has received offers of assistance from other members of House of Lords.

The Baldwin Government was called upon by Labor party in resolution passed during an executive session of party this morning, to make an immediate public announcement of plans for dealing with the unemployment problem.

The party also passed resolution expressing complete confidence in Ramsay MacDonald and the belief that should he be called upon to take high office he will in all his actions consider the well being of the nation in seeking to apply the principles of the Labor movement.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

"THE MAN NEXT DOOR"
BY EMERSON HOUGH

Author of "The Covered Wagon," "North of 36," etc., at the Royal Tonight.

Me, I'm Curly, the boss foreman of the Circle Arrow, and the story I'm about to tell is just a story of a girl and two foolish old men, me and Old Man Wright, who owns the Circle Arrow and is the daddy of this here girl, Bonnie Bell.

The story starts back there in Wyoming where the grazing grass is sweetest in the spring and the blizzards is coldest in the winter. Thirty years me and Old Man Wright, my boss what I am telling about, spent in them hills and valleys.

It's about twenty years ago when this here Bonnie Bell is born out here. Mrs. Wright, she called her Mary Isabel, but that never did ring right to the old man and when he was a-dancing her up and down on his knee he come to call her Bonnie Bell. She's still Bonnie Bell to him and to me.

Then when Bonnie Bell's curls were beginning to touch her round little shoulders her mother died and Old Man Wright and me found ourselves with a girl child on our hands and neither of us knowing about anything but cattle.

So Bonnie Bell she just sort a grew up, some petted and a leetle might spoiled, maybe, by us cowmen; the boys taking turns riding watch on her when she was a toddler. 'Course she learned everything a cowboy knows, to ride and to rope and, maybe as how I shouldn't say it, but to swear a mite, too. First thing we knows, Old Man Wright and me, Bonnie Bell's sixteen and the Old Man suddenly remembers that his child is a daughter

Nothing would do for the Old Man regular skirt-wearing girl no matter what the cost, so we sends Bonnie Bell east to be educated.

Them was lonesome years out there on Circle Arrow. Me and Old Man Wright we don't seem to be able to do nothing but ask each other every drink time when is the next letter due from Bonnie Bell.

By and by Bonnie Bell comes home Me and Old Man Wright we're just naturally somewhat timid of this grown-up young lady who takes charge of the ranch. Old Man Wright he sees cow country ain't no fitting place for a young lady like her, so we packs up, Bonnie Bell and me and the old Man and we hits it for the city. Me nor the Old Man neither ain't been farther east than Cheyenne in thirty years, but we braves the city just the same, for Bonnie Bell's sake

The Old Man makes Bonnie Bell the boss and she builds her a mansion out in that there ultra-smart part of town next door to the Wisners, him what had bought the Circle Arrow.

Bonnie Bell she learns something, too, that society don't want no strangers and while she's got a house with more rooms than I could count and costing more money than anybody else's, she's just as lonesome as she would be on to of Crooked Horn Peak over there.

She makes friends with a nice little boy what is the hired hand next door for the Wisners, him a fixing up flowers and things around the yard. Then one day Bonnie Bell's bull terrier he starts a ruction with the Wisner's dog and them two fight it out in the middle of a fashionable bridge party. Bonnie Bell offers to apologize but Mrs. Wisner she just shows her the door and builds a spite wall between them two mansions.

Me and Old Man Wright is hopping mad, and I ride boundary to see that none of them neighbors don't ever step onto our grounds. I would have succeeded if that darn young cuss of a gardener hadn't gone and cut a hole through the wall and sent Bonnie Bell some notes, her bull terrier carrying them, same as a cupid messenger.

I catch them two meeting in the moonlight one evening and I'd a killed that young rattlesnake then and there but Bonnie Bell she pleads for him. He ain't got nothing and he's only a hired hand and him daring to make love to our Bonnie Bell Well, I should have told Old Man Wright then, but I didn't and when I did tell him and me and him goes to find Bonnie Bell and ask her about it, she's gone Yes, sir, gone, and only a note telling us not to bother looking for her.

That settles it; that young fortune hunter had married Bonnie Bell for her money, her pa being worth more millions than I can count. I'd heard him talking about going west and I straps my six gun a little tighter and starts after them. I find them out there, Bonnie Bell as purty as a picture in a gingham dress and because I see she's happy, I stays my trigger finger, and leaves them, reckoning on going back and telling Old Man Wright I couldn't find them.

But I'm afraid to meet the Old Man face to face and I stop off at Kansas City to get some courage, and by and by I reach the mansion and I tell him. He believes that Wisner put the hired man up to eloping with Bonnie Bell to shame him and he busts into the Wisner home to get satisfaction.

First thing we see is Bonnie Bell and the next thing is the hired man all dressed up in a spike tail coat Then Mr. Wisner introduces the hired man. It's Jimmie?

'Course it ain't for me, a old cattle cattle boss what don't know nothing about anything but cows, to try to explain how and why such things happen; I reckon it must be just love, that's all

AT THE GRAND.

CIGARETTE MAKER'S ROMANCE

The secret of Sir John Martin Harvey's greatness as an actor lies in his versatility. No living actor more entirely submerges himself in his part than this veteran of the English stage. Whether the role be Hamlet, Sydney Carton in The Only Way, Reresby the Rat in The Breed of the Treshams, or Skariatine in A Cigarette-Maker's Romance, in each character we are presented with a study of the life. They are all widely different plays, centered round a distinctive personality, and the actor who is able to portray each one with such consummate perfection must needs be a master interpreter of temperament and emotion.

Of the many character successes which have built up Sir John's great reputation, the part of Count Skariatine, in the Cigarette-Maker's Romance, to be presented at the Grand Opera House on Monday and Wednesday evenings, December 17 and 19, is to many playgoers the most appealing of all. The play is a dramatic adaptation of Marion Crawford's novel. The story concerns the fate of a lovable Russian nobleman of the old regime, a victim of amnesia, who is reduced to earning a precarious livelihood in a mean little German cigaret factory. His work companions regard him with sympathy, but as one deluded, an amiable eccentric. There is one, however, Viera, who sees more deeply loving him with a pure and selfless love, and making every sacrifice for his welfare. Throughout the count remains the man of breeding, courteous, considerate, long-suffering, patient, but ever looking for the advent of his rich and influential friends, who will restore him to affluence and position once again. His pathetic anticipation of their coming, so often disappointed, gives the actor continual opportunity for the display of her great emotional qualities.

It is a charmingly delicate play, a fine piece of character study, instinct with old-time courtesy under the most adverse circumstances. When at last the count's patient vigil is rewarded, his unbounded joy is shared to the full by the audience. There may be more pretentious plays in Martin Harvey's repertory, but there is none which gets a greater grip on the emotions of the audience. It is a gem of its kind, a clever, artistic performance which lingers long in the memory.—A. H.

AT THE CAPITOL.

PIONEER TRAILS GREAT PICTURE OF EARLY WEST

The passing of the old West into oblivion was made evident when David Smith, the noted Vitagraph director, began seeking sites for the action in his new production, "Pioneer Trails," which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre today, Friday and Saturday.

As "Pioneer Trails" is a dramatic story of the days following the gold rush of 1849, Director Smith required locations typical of those existent during that period. Scouts were sent out throughout the Western States to find sites in keeping with the time of the story. This meant that the old plains untarnished by wire fences, macadam roads and telegraph poles and mountains untrameled by winding roads and telegraph lines be found.

For more than a month a dozen men scoured Utah, Wyoming, Nevada, Colorado, Oregon, New Mexico and North and South Dakota in vain. Civilization has pushed its way through all this territory and left its imprint upon it.

Just when Director Smith was beginning to despair of finding a locale suitable for the production, one of his scouts reported that recesses of Chatsworth Mountains, seventy miles from a railroad, were suitable. It was only by accident that this location was found.

The entire company of players, together with lighting equipment and other apparatus necessary for the taking of motion pictures, were transported to Anne's Crossing, the nearest railroad station. From there the equipment and actors were taken by burro train to the recesses of Chatsworth Mountains where the company encamped for two months during the filming of the picture.

An entire town was constructed on this site to reproduce accurately one of the more historic towns that boomed during the gold rush. The town of Burnt Boot was set up with cottages, general store, saloon, sheriff's office, all constructed of logs and rough hewn pine boards.

This trip to the mountains was made by Director Smith for the sole purpose of keeping his film accurate and presenting his story realistically.

Alice Calhoun and Cullen Landis, two of the most popular stars, will be seen in the leading roles in this unusual photodrama of the early West. In the supporting cast are Otis Harlan, Bertram Grassby, Virginia True Boardman and Aggie Herring and other notable players.

AT THE REGENT.

"Snowdrift," the latest William Fox production, starring Charles Jones, is now being shown at the Regent Theatre. The story, which deals with the gold fields of the Yukon ,gives the popular Western star an unusual opportunity for some lively, interesting action.

The picture was directed by Scott Dunlap from the story by James B. Hendryx, who is well known for his tales of the land beyond the Mackenzie River in Alaska.

A reckless young mining engineer from the States falls in love with a waif known only as "Snow drift," and believed to be a half-breed. His love for the beautiful daughter of the North changes the life of the engineer who successfully battles with Indian bands, the crew of a whaler, rum runners and Northern blizzards for the love of the girl. Subsequently it is shown that the girl is the daughter of white parents who lost their lives in the far North, and that she was then left in the care of an Indian squaw.

The supporting cast includes: Irene Rich, Dorothy Manners, G. Raymond Nye, Colin Chase, Evelyn Selbie, Lolo Encinos and Lee Shumway.

WHERE WILL YOU SPEND CHRISTMAS?

In all the cycle of the year there is no time that brings families together as does the Yuletide. Though you were at the ends of the earth you would long to be home for Christmas, and if it were at all possible you would be there. Today it is so different. The modern railway enables you to cross the continent in a few days in comfort. This year there promises to be the usual heavy Christmas and New Year travel north, south, east and west, and in order that you may reach your destination as comfortably and speedily as possibly, Canadian National Railways are making preparations far in advance. Anyone wishing to pay for the travelling expenses of relatives or friends from any point, need only to place the money in the hands of nearest ticket agent of the line; our representative will deliver the transportation free of charge to your friends at the other end in a few hours. BUGLE PLAYERS THRILL GERMAN CHURCH-GOERS

BERLIN, Dec. 13—Buglers who give Sunday concerts on church spires attract large crowds in Germany and in fact the practice is extending throughout Central Europe.

Trinity Church, which stands near the American Embassy in Berlin, frequently had such concerts on religious holidays. A quartet of buglers play religious tunes on a balcony about the spire of the church at least 100 feet above the surrounding streets.

Four Dresden clergymen who are expert buglers, but found it difficult to earn a living preaching because of the financil depression, ar, making a great success of bugle concerts in Czecho-Slovakia. They are given on church steeples in the auditoriums of churches, in marketplaces, and even on street corners, and the contributions of the listeners maintain the clergymen who play only sacred music.

THE TEACHERS' GUILD HAD CHRISTMAS MEET

Last evening, the Women Teachers' Guild held their Christmas meeting in Central School Kindergarten, which was prettily decorated for the occasion.

At half-past five o'clock, sixty of the teachers sat down to a dainty supper, served by the teachers of the Central School.

Following the musical programme which consisted of a piano duett by Miss H. Moffatt and Miss O. Johnston, and a vocal solo by Miss Mary Elliott, the guest of honor, Mrs. W. R. Morris, gave a talk on her visit to the Panama Canal.

The teachers were unanimous in expressing their appreciation of Mrs. Morris' address, and regretted that a limited amount of time prevented the speaker from giving more of the interesting features in connection with the workings of the Canal.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Mayor Taylor and his colleagues have been assured of a sympathetic hearing, free from "knocking," and all returned men interested in the affairs of the city are invited by President Sutton to attend.

The members gave a unanimous vote to support the executive in this piece of legislation.
The rehearsal next Tuesday evening will take the form of a "free and easy" and will be held at the home of the musical director, Mr. Chenhall, 526 Water street.
Any person in Peterborough interested in Male Voice work is sincerely welcome, but the final date for applicants is Tuesday next, Dec. 18.

IN MEMORIAM.
In loving remembrance of our darling, Marguerite Dorgen Simpson, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Simpson, who was called to rest Dec. 13, 1922:

Jesus called our precious darling
To His bright home of rest,
Left our sorrowing hearts nigh broken,
Of our treasure thus bereft.

But we'll ne'er forget our girlie,
And we love her as much to-day,
Enshrined in loving remembrance
In our hearts she will ever stay.

SOLDIERS' BONUS BILL INTRODUCED AGAIN IN UNITED STATES HOUSE

Was Vetoed By Late President Harding But Republic Veterans Demand Another Hearing — The Reparations Correspondence Is Made Public.

EXPORTS IN EXCESS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press)—The way was cleared yesterday for action today in the United States House of Representatives leading to organization of all its committees. The Republicans in conference approved the assignment given Republicans. Democratic selections have already been made and two slates will be presented to the House today.

After the adjournment today the House will recess until Tuesday. Representative Longsworth, Ohio, the majority leader, announced to the House it planned to recess from December 31 to January 3.

With further voting deferred until Monday, the Senate remained deadlocked over the election of a chairman to the Interstate Commerce Committee.

The Day in Washington.

Correspondence relating to the reparation question was made public at the State Department. It shed no new light on the negotiations which resulted in the United States Government approving unofficial United States representation on the Reparations Commission committees to investigate the financial situation of Germany.

The Coolidge Administration, it was announced, wants to encourage private charity for the relief of German people.

The Soldiers' Bonus Bill vetoed by President Harding, was introduced in the House by Representative McKenzie, Republican, Illinois, at the request of the Republican veterans' bloc.

Watch Bergdoll Case.

It was disclosed that the United States Government is watching developments in the Bergdoll kidnapping case but has faund no grounds thus far to intercede.

Re-establishment of the United States consulate at Newcastle, it was announced, was waiting exoneration by the British Government of Consul Brooks and Vice-Consul Slater.

The Commerce Department estimated that exoprts from the United States in November, which were valued at $404,000,000, gave the United States a favorable trade balance of $112,060,000.

Trade With Russia.

Establishment of trade relations with Russia by the United States was urged by Representative Frear, Republican, Wisconsin, in a speech in the House yesterday detailing his investigations during a visit to that country last Summer.

"If fair trial of a trade agreement with Russia, prove mutually beneficial," Freer declared, "recognition of the Soviet Government by the United States would follow as a matter of course."

Settlement of the obligations of Russia to the United States then could be referred to arbitration, Mr. Freer said.

The Wisconsin member presented these conclusions:

"Russia measures up with two thirds of the European countries in stability and promise.

"Its financial budget system is more certain and businesslike than systems possessed by a majority of European countries.

"Respect for law and order prevails.

Report Fielding Slightly Better

OTTAWA, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press)—The condition of Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding was reported improved last night, by his physician. The Minister of Finance was able to see a few visitors, his doctor stated.

While his state of health is surrounded by some secrecy it is well known that he has suffered a paralytic stroke affecting his right side. There is an impediment of speech. Physicians say that complete rest may ward off another attack but there is no liikelihood of his being able to resume his Ministerial duties.

SEEKING REVISION WAR DEBT TERMS

Australia Is Negotiating With British Government For More Favorable Rates

LONDON, December 14.— Premier Bruce of Australia, speaking in London to-night, revealed that his government is negotiating with the British government for a revision of the terms under which the Australian war debt of 90,000,000 pounds was funded two years ago at five per cent. interest, with a one per cent. sinking fund provision.

Mr. Bruce explained that Great Britain since that time had funded her debt to the United States under much more advantageous terms, and also that five per cent. was higher than the customary ates were likely to be in the co g years. He he ventured to point out to the Imperial government that the request for revision was founded on principles of equity which could not be overlooked.

NATIONS UNITE IN DOPE FIGHT

Council of the League Will Invoke Two International Conferences Next November.

PARIS, Dec. 14.— (Canadian Press)—The battle against the world wide opium evil was put into organized form last night by the Council of the League of Nations, which decided to invoke two international conferences at Geneva in November of next year.

The original idea was to summon the meetings for July, but Lord Robert Cecil, backed by M. Hanotaux, argued that the interested countries distantly situated would be unable to formulate their proposals in time for summer meetings which thus would be liable to prove sterile.

The British member quickly withdrew his suggestion that the second conference for limitation of the production and manufacture of narcotic drugs be restricted to the producing and manufacturing countries when he saw that his fellow councillors were opposed to his course.

On motion of Viscount Ishii of Japan, the Council authorized the appointment of a committee to organize the conference.

The Council also authorized an expert investigation aimed at suppresion of the White Slave traffic and urged the mandatory powers to enforce the international white slave convention in mandated territories.

Governor-General In Eastern Townships.

SHRBROOKE, Que., Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press)—The Governor-General, Baron Byng of Vimy and Lady Byng continued their visit to various sections of the Eastern Townships yesterday, stopping at Coaticooke, Bromptonville and Windsor Mills. Their Excellencies were warmly welcomed and presented with an address at all these centers.

Today their Excellencies will visit Richmond.

VIENNA PUBLISHERS SEEK RELIEF.

VIENNA, Dec. 14.—(Associated Press)—Publishers of Vienna newspapers have appealed to the government for relief from the paper trust. They declare they are paying 50 percent more than before the war for newsprint, which with the cost of labor places them in a precarious position.

AN XMAS SUGGESTION.
A pair of glasses to the members of your family would be a most welcome and useful gift. These can be made in any style you choose complete for presentation, then later the lenses can be changed to suit, without extra cost. See W. H. Lacey, Optometrist, 410 George Street.

SPEED GOD CLAIMS ANOTHER SACRIFICE.

Nine were killed and 50 injured when the third section of the New York Central's world-famous Twentieth Century Limited plowed through two rear coaches of the second section at Forsyth, N. Y. There was a dense fog from off Lake Erie. An automobile had stalled on the tracks. The first section crashed into it. The second section had been flagged. It came to a dead halt. A brakeman, knowing the third section was due any minute, ran back to stop it. But he was too late. A deafening roar, the sounds of splitting steel and timbers mingled with shrieks of horror-strcken passengers and moans of the dying. Here is all that remained of the last two sleepers of the second section. Clothing of passengers, asleep in their births, is scattered through the debris. But the engineer and fireman on the third section escaped without a scratch. Investigations to fix blame for the disaster are now under way.

LABOR NEWS OF WINNIPEG WAS ORGAN OF 'REDS'

A Revolutionary Doctrine and Admiration For Soviet Russia in Ukrainian Publication.

WIDE CIRCULATION.

PORT ARTHUR, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press).—The legal action brought by the original members of the National Society Prosvita — described by plaintiffs as an Ukrainian society of culture and enlightenment of Canadian ideals—to recover the local properties which they allege were seized by radical members and converted into schools of Bolshevism, was continued in the Supreme Court here Thursday afternoon.

An unsuccessful effort was made by counsel for the defendants to have extracts of the Ukrainian Labor News published in Winnipeg, declared irrelevant to the action, but Mr. Justice Kelly stated that he had asked for the evidence which he considered very relevant as establishing a connection between the radical members of the Prosvits and the Labor News. Counsel for the plaintiffs was permitted to put a witness in the box to show that a copy of the publication had been received by one of the defendants who was staying at his home.

A translated report from the convention held in Winnipeg in January 1923, under the auspices of the Ukrainian Labor Temple, showed according to evidence given this after noon, that the convention considered it dangerous to attempt to import "Soviet Ukraine" books for the uses of school children in labor men's schools as it was feared the "authorities" would close the schools

"Red" Propaganda

Extracts of greetings from the various divisions which extended from east to west were read in court including: "Death to the bloodthirsty capitalists," and "Onward, the world revolution."

From the Ukrainian school children in the west, "long live the Soviet." "Let the Third Internationale live," "Let the Soviets live" and dozens of such greetings were contained in despatches from points in Manitoba, Alberta, Ontario, British Columbia and United States and intended to show the court, how widespread the activities of radical Ukrainians had become during recent years.

Admiration for the third Internationale of Moscow, the Red Army and Soviet Russia was expressed in the greetings contained in extracts of the Labor News submitted as evidence and the "temple" was refered to as the "liberator." There were references to desire of every Ukrainian woman to unite in 1923 to be ready for the change which was to take place in Canada and to place Canada under Soviet rule.

Winnipeg Fountain Head

Chapleau, Ontario was one of the places sending greetings. Ca y appeared to be an importa of activity, but the head of the organization in Canada was appare ly at Winnipeg.

The report of a convention held in Winnipeg was also contained in the publication and the report of one, Iukol, one of the defendants, and credited as a delegate to the convention from Fort William. There was also a printed report of the delegate to the convention from Fort William. There was also a printed report of the delegate from Port Arthur, who admitted in the report that the buildings of the National Proavita were seized. Iukol's report also spoke of the seizing of the property of the National Prosvita by the "class conscious" workers.

ALE-BOATS ARE GALE BOUND

Snubbed to Dock at Fort Erie Under the Guard of Canadian Officials and With U. S. Revenue Cutter Hovering in Offing.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press)—The ale-carriers "Nora" and "Dawn," which sought refuge at Fort Erie several nights ago to escape capture when pursued by a United States Coast cutter in the Niagara River, were still at their docks last night under guard of Canadian Customs officials. When they will make an effort to reach the lake is not known, as the present storm has created such a current that it is very likely that if they attempted to negotiate the river now the current would sweep them across the river into the United States territory and into the hands of the Coast Guard, which is keeping a night and day watch for them. It was denied by Canadian customs authorities that part of the cargo of both boats had been taken off.

BRITISH HERDS ARE DESTROYED

Drastic Measures By the Ministry of Agriculture to Stamp Out Foot and Mouth Disease.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press)—Fifty-eight new outbreaks of the foot and mouth diseases were reported to the Ministry of Agriculture yesterday, making a total of 1,074 in 39 counties since the first appearance of the disease. So far 35,000 cattle, 16,000 sheep and 19,000 pigs have been slaughtered in the effort to stamp out the scourge. The officials who are fighting the epidemic, which is devastating the herds in Cheshire especially, have had their efforts strengthened by new preventive measures.

At a meeting of the Council of Agriculture for England held in London yesterday, the Minister of Agriculture, Sir Robert Sanders, the Government's experience has shown that isolation on a large scale was useless, and in foreign countries where it had been tried out disease had become epidmic and permanent, The Government, he declared, was prepared to continue the slaughter policy, pay compensation up to £1,500,000, and expedite in the badly affected areas.

ULSTER PURCHASES MANSION.

BELFAST, Dec. 14.—(Associated Press)—The Ulster government has purchased Hillsborough Castle, County Down, as an official residence for the Governor General, the Duke of Abercorn, whose seat, "Baron's Court," is too remote from Belfast.

Hillsborough Castle is one of the mose beautiful of Irish mansions and is the ancestral home of the Downshire family.

WIFE'S LETTER INVITED DUEL

Seed Catalogue Sprouted Affair of Honor Between Italian and Frenchman —Army Disparaged.

TURIN, Italy, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press)—The threatened duel between Bruno Gemelli, Italian war hero, and M. Cassagarain, French horticulturist, is finally off, the latter blaming his wife for wiriting the Italian Army which brought forth Gemelli's challenge.

The affair started with the belittling the Italian products in a French horticultural catalogue. A woman member of a distinguished family of Tuirn, wrote a letter of protest after reading one of these catalogues and in reply received a communication appaerntly from M. Cassagrain, containing accusations of cowardice against Italian officers and soldiers.

Gemelli, who holds the gold medal for military valor, promptly telegraphed the Frenchman begging him to consider himself "soundly cuffed", and challenging him to a meeting on the field on honor.

In hte letteh now received in reply, M. Cassagrain begs to be excused from the offenses against Italy's army and designates his wife as the cause of all the trouble.

NEW GLANDS INCREASE LOCOMOTIVE STRENGTH

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—(Associated Press)— Locomotives, while not subject to gland transplanting, can be rejuvenated, according to an announcement by the Southern Pacific Company.

The railroad is authority for the statement that weak and decrepit locomotives can be vitalized, energized and made over into hard-working haulers of trains.

"Some of these engines are being operated with greater efficiency than when they were new," said George McCormick, superintendent of motive power for the railroad.

Various new appliances and parts are "grafted" on the old engines. They are overhauled from tender to cowcatcher.

No. 3025 is the oldest engine of its type on the S.P. line. Recently it was refitted, and now it is carrying the Daylight Limited daily the entire distance between San Francisco and Los Angeles, 371 miles.

SUFFRAGE BILL SHELVED AFTER STORMY DEBATE

Proponents of Votes For French Women Loaded Measure With Contentious Demand For Minors.

NO PROGRESS MADE.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press).—The woman suffrage bill, tossed about in a cross sea of amendments and counter-amendments, had a stormy time in the French Chamber yesterday. When the weather cleared and adjournment was taken it was found that the bill had made no progress.

Friends of the measure, by what was openly criticized in the Chamber as the injudicious loading of the bill with a demand for vote for minor children, is regarded as equally responsible for the delay as its opponents, who indulged in systematic diversions and attempts to steer the debate into a general discussion on internal polition.

The opposition, taking advantage of Premier Poincare's absence, made life uncomfortable for the Minister of the Interior, M. Maunoury, by introducing a multitude of iterpellations on internal questions, until the Minister in despair was forced to raise the question of confidence when Georges Mandel strenuously insisted upon a debate on the Government's entire internal policy.

The Government was upheld by a vote of 486 to 83, the matter of votes for women being sidetracked in the meantime.

ASK RELIEF FOR WINNIPEG VETS

Some of Them Nearly Destitute, a Western Deputation Told Hon. H. S. Beland.

OTTAWA, Dec. 14. — A plea that the returned men in Manitoba be looked after at this time of acute unemployment in the Prairie City, was made to Hon. H. S. Beland, the Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment by a deputation which consisted of Professor R. C. Wallace, ex-Commissioner for Northern Manitoba, representing the Manitoba Government; P. C. Rumer, president of the Winnipeg Great War Veterans' Association; and A. E. Moore, president of the Manitoba Provincial Command, G.W.V.A., was assured by the Minister of immediate consideration of their requests.

Mr. Rumer said that the situation in Winnipeg was most serious, and that some of the veterans were nearly destitute

Mr. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, is to be interviewed to-morrow by the deputation on general matters in connection with the unemployed veterans, and the deputation is also hoping to see Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Immigration, concerning the soldier settlers, some of whom it is stated are destitute following the crop failures.

INSINCERE FUSION OF OLD PARTIES AGAINST LABOR IS DENOUNCED

To Frustrate Labor Now By An Arbitrary Combination, Says Lord Beaverbrook, Would Increase Danger of Labor Domination.

LOOKS TO FUTURE.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press Cable)—The Beaverbrook and Rothermore press which were as one in disparaging Premier Baldwin during the election now display complete difference of view in their respective surveys of the possible accession of Labor to power. While Lord Rothermore's "Mail" is confident that fusion between the Liberal and the Conservative parties must come in order to resist the "red" menace, Lord Beaverbrook's "Standard" last night derided the idea.

"It is untrue" says the Standard, "that Liberals and Conservatives are separated only by prejudices and personal dislikes. Both parties have a distinct way of thinking. Is the "red" peril so real that at all costs Downing Street must be saved from MacDonald? There is indeed one way to make the danger of Labor domination a real one, namely to form an insincere combination of the two old parties with the sole aim of depriving Labor of an opportunity of attaching to its position as the official opposition."

These sentiments, taken with those in Lord Beaverbrook's other paper, the Express, show that his Lordship, and who ever he stands for, are for the Conservatives and that frankly admitting temporary defeat, they are preparing thoroughly for another fight when it is believed they would have a fair chance of returning to power with an independent majority. In other words it seems that the Beaverbrook school holds that if the socialists take office they will soon be in such a morass as to make the country turn with eager relief to the now discarded Conservatives.

CITIZEN POINTS OUT DANGERS IN POLICE QUESTION

Danger to Life and Property if Police Resign—Urges Meeting to Discuss Issue.

Is it not about time that the Citizens of this City should realize the grave danger that they are running through the City Council neglecting to pay the members of the Police Force. They all have families to support and have as much need of their wages as any other working man in Peterborough and they are all in a position to earn wages from some other employer where they can get their money as it is earned.

The Council neglected to pay them two weeks wages when it fell due on the first of this month.

The Council have taken no steps whatever to provide for the payment of their next two weeks pay that falls due to-morrow, Saturday.

In addition to that the City Council have not only flatly refused to pay the members of the Police Force their wages but they have taken the insane course that the City is not even liable to pay them and the effect of that course is that the men cannot even borrow money against their wages without their creditor running the risk of a law suit.

Under such circumstances what is the natural thing to expect? It is what any child would expect, namely that the Police Force would quit work.

Now here is where the Bankers, Merchants, Manufacturers and other large property holders are interested If the members of the Police Force cease to exist, then there will be no other course open than either to call for volunteers to perform Police duties or else to give a wide open invitation to the thieves, robbers, burglars and thugs from all parts of Canada to come to Peterborough to pillage, rob and steal at their own sweet will.

Under the circumstances therefore is it not about time that the citizens of this city should realize the grave danger they are running through the childish conduct of the City Council?

The Bankers of this City should immediately call a meeting themselves to consider the risk they are running.

The Merchants with valuable stocks, on George street, should immediately call a meeting to realize the risk and danger that they are running.

The Manufacturers of the city should immediately call a meeting to realize the risk and danger they are running.

If these meetings are held and those who are concerned in the active administration of justice are invited, they will realize the fact that the situation calls for immediate action on their part and unless immediate action is taken the expected will happen.

I have only referred to the graver risks that are being run but without Police protection the door will be wide open for thieves to enter any house in town and to molest and interfere with the personal liberty and property of any man, woman or child who may be singled out by thugs and thieves as a victim.

LARGE RATEPAYER,
November, 14, 1923.

The question opened up by The Examiner correspondent is indeed a serious one. Were the police to quit work—and by to-morrow they will have been performing their duties for a month without pay, and therefore will have a good reason for refusing to carry one—the city would be absolutely without police protection and would be, as the above letter points out, at the mercy of the criminal element.

The Council has no power to hire constables to take their places, nor can it be expected that the Police Commission would feel called upon to do so.

The whole situation hinges upon the police themselves, for apparently If the members of the Police Force cease to exist, then there will be no other course open than either to call for volunteers to perform Police duties or else to give a wide open invitation to the thieves, robbers, burglars and thugs from all parts of Canada to come to Peterborough to pillage, rob and steal at their own sweet will.

Under the circumstances therefore is it not about time that the citizens of this city should realize the grave danger they are running through the

A volunteer force of some kind or other to protect the larger properties in the city should be organized and ready.

The situation is too shaky to justify waiting until the storm breaks.

German Families Do Own Baking

POTSDAM, Dec. 14.—German barbers are striving hard to popularize new fashions, but their efforts to introduce long hair and fantastic whiskers which can be trimmed properly only by a barber are not successful.

Shaved heads, so much affected by German officers, still remain popular, as a pair of clippers which can be bought for only a few billions of paper marks solves the hair-cutting problem for all the male members of a family, and imitations of American safety razors are so cheap that nobody need grow a beard.

Even the poets and artists are taking to clipped heads and shaved faces.

CRIME FOLLOWS POVERTY IN GERMANY'S CAPITAL

(By GUS M. OEHM)

BERLIN, Dec. 14 (United Press).—The Berlin police during September arrested 33,636 people—an average of more than 1,100 daily.—for all sorts of crimes from murder to intoxication.

Berlin, the city which is pre-war days boasted of its lack of crimes, is now one of the most insecure places in the world to live.

The record of crime for September, according to police headquarters, includes for the most part crimes of vulgarity and cruelty of all kinds. The report included the following:

Twelve attempts to murder, 86 illegal gatherings, 32 cases of release of prisoners, 9 murders, 270 cases of fraud, 1974 thefts and burglaries, 87 suicides and attempts, 563 breaches of the moral laws, 98 cases of embezzlement, 13 forgeries and 1638 cases of profiteering.

The figures on suicide are interesting, showing how the terrible conditions have increased this manner of death.

Burglary figures are also extraordinary, averaging 66 cases every day of the month.

The figures on intoxication also show an increase.

Whereas in pre-war days it was a rare thing to see a German really drunk, it was necessary during September to make 357 arrests on this charge.

The number of murders is, comparatively speaking, still very small, though a murder in Berlin before the war was something really worth talking about.

BAZAAR CROWD FORERAN RAIN

Omemee Ladies Flocked to W.M.S. Indoor Fair and the Rain Adage Was Fulfilled.

OMEMEE Demember 14. — The old adage, "When the ladies appear in great numbers rain is sure to follow," proved true on Wednesday afternoon, for the ladies simply flocked to the W.M.S. bazaar which was held in the Methodist Sunday School Room.

The afternoon was all that could be desired, but at night the rain came on, and many ladies were noticed hurrying homeward without shelter.

The Sunday School Room presented a festive appearance, with its Christmas decorations. On entering the room, particularly around the hour of four o'clock, one was struck with the general activity and business being done at each booth. First, the fancy work booth was visited, where a wonderful and beautiful display of children's wear, "woollies," towels and fancy work could be procured at very reasonable prices. This department was ably looked after by Mrs. J. Shields, Mrs. Storey Mrs. E. MacPherson, Mrs. A. Rutherford, and Mrs. J. Lowes.

"Aunt Jane's Country Store" was next visited, where most of the wants to satisfy a healthy appetite might be procured. The ends of the long table were banked with loaves of home-made bread. In the centre, chickens, home-made head-cheese, and new-laid eggs at each side, tarts, piec, and a wonderful variety of home cooking, while at the back of the booth, turnips, carrots, pumpkin, onions, and apples were for sale. Needless to say, those in charge, Misses Eva Race and Lila Parsons were kept busy.

An annex to 'Aunt Jane's Store was the ice-cream booth, in charge of Miss Overholt, assisted by Misses Marion and Evelyn Rea, where Neilson's cherry fruit ice-cream was quickly served to all who so desired.

The Mission Band, a newly organised society in the church, known as the "Wide Awakes," lived up to their name in the building of a most attractive candy booth, which did a lively business during the afternoon. The girls made their own candy baskets, and the dainty caps worn. They worked in relays, so that all had a chance to do something. The sale of candy was under the supervision of Mrs. (Rev.) Rowland and Miss Doube.

Kiddies fished to their heart's delight at the fish pond, and many wonderful catches were reported. Mrs. Ira Rehill was the general superintendent in charge.

Mrs. Charley Ivory, "The Lady of a Thousand Pockets" sold pockets galore at 10 cents each, and all who bought were pleasantly surprised on opening the pocket purchased, to find full value for the money expended.

The tea room and those in charge were kept busy, from five o'clock; dainty little tables with snowy cloths and miniature Christmas trees as the central decoration, were filled from early evening, and attentive, white-capped girls served in courses the tempting menu following: Perfection salad with jelly, ham sandwich, cake, pie, and tea. Each one having tea was served with a piece of Christmas cake extra. The tea room was in charge of Mrs. Earle, Mrs. Haygarth, Mrs. Bushnell, Mrs. Bradburn, and Mrs. W. Henderson.

The ladies are to be heartily congratulated on the success of the bazaar the proceeds of which amounted to about $125.00.

HANGED BY PLAYMATES.

BERLIN, Dec. 14 — (United Press)—Several little boys, playing hangmen killed a playmate when the knot they tied around the neck of the youngster refused to loosen. The boys erected a "play" scaffold and tried the "culprit" for something. He was sentenced to hang, and a formal execution was carried out. The children, all aged about six years, even used wooden blocks tied around the neck—just like they had heard about from tales told them by their big brothers. His playmates are heartbroken.

Removed Wheel to Release Boy's Leg

OMEMEE, Dec. 14.—Little Billie McQuade, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. McQuade, is now lying in bed as the result of a broken leg which he received on Wednesday evening. The little fellow in company with another playmate of his own age were in the act of trying to catch on the back of a buggy which was proceeding past his home when in some manner his clothes and leg got tangled in the spokes of the wheel thus causing a bad break below the knee, and before he could be extricated the wheel of th buggy had to be taken off and his clothes cut.

CAVAN WHEAT UNDER DOLLAR

Price of 95 Cents a Bushel Looks Comparatively Small to Farmers.

CAVAN DEC. 14.— Wheat is selling at Cavan Station at ninety-five cents. The producers think this is small pay, when it is taken into consideration that on the average farm his is almost the only grain sold; the rest having to be fed. Especially so, is it small, when live stock is so cheap and little in demand. The farmer has very little with which to pay overhead expenses and buy manufactured goods.

Sponged Up Rain

It would seem to those not in touch with the situation, that after the recent rains there would be a superabundance of moisture in the ground. Such is not the case. It is only the last few days that any water has been remaining in the ponds and many wells are quite low yet.

Roadway Needed

It is nearing January, first which is said to be the time limit of a free roadway, offered by Mr. Galbraith, into Dranoel station on the C.P.R. It is hoped that something will soon be done about it.

IMMIGRANTS SENT TO JAIL.

They Must Pay Fines Also and Will Then Be Deported.

UTICA, N. Y., Dec. 13.—Christmas cheer may be in the air for some folks, but thirty-nine immigrants, most of whom were sentenced by Judge Frank Cooper in Federal court here are dejected and despairing. They must serve thirty days in jail, pay $250 fine and then be deported to their native land.

All were caught at the Canadian border after they had immigrated from Ireland, England, Italy, Norway, Holland, Greece or France withotu a passport.

Among the immigrants awaiting sentence is an Irish youth, Edward Smith, 22, brother of John J. Smith, foreman of a gas works in New York City. They had never seen each other before and Edward had to be pointed out to John in the party of thirty-nine handcuffed together. The meeting between them was most affectionate.

No young men are now permitted to emigrate from Ireland, the New York brother said.

Treasurer's Expenses.

The motion was put through after some discussion in connection with the bill of $35 the secretary treasurer presented as covering his expenses during the year. On motion of Trustees Carter and Forde the amount was raised from $35 to $50, the Board contending that the increased amount was none too generous payment for the services rendered.

The application of Helen H. Smith, of Delta, Ont., for a position on the teaching staff was accepted. Miss Smith comes highly recommended as a teacher of experience, attesting to her intention of filling the position to the best of her ability. She has been assigned to Form I.

The Inspector's Report.

Public School: Water I, Water supply II, School grounds II, School building II, Class rooms I, halls I, desks II and III, blackboards III, Lighting II, and heating I.

The new arrangement of hall and stair is a decided improvement.

Most of the blackboards are not in good condition. Hyloplate and other boards of that kind are expected to have a life of only about ten years. It would be well for the board to begin a gradual substitution of slate.

Library — Value $40; maps, charts and globes, $45; miscellaneous articles $10. There should be provided 20 or 25 copies of the new edition of the story of the British people for the pupils of form III. Other books and supplementary reading in the lower forms and some books of general literature for Form IV. The teachers should be consulted as to their requirements in this respect.

Condition of Registers and Catalogues—Properly kept.

Caretakers' work—Generally satisfactory.

Provision for Part I of Entrance Examination—Approved.

Members of the staff are all highly qualified and teachers of experience.

Teachers' work—Organization, approved; teaching, good; discipline, good, so far as observed.

Attendance — Number on Roll — Primer 77

Form IV Senior 28

Total attendance at inspection 230.
Average attendance to end of this month, 234.
Total enrollment, 266.

Pupils' work — All showed a good deal of interest in their work. Proficiency: The most of the pupils are pretty well up in the standard set for the grade in which they are.

Progress—The school as a whole is doing well. The relationship between pupils and teachers is good in most cases; not bad in any. Teachers are industrious and generally efficient. The staff on the whole I consider the most efficient the school has had for some time.

Date of inspection Nov. 5, 6 and 7.
Length of inspection six half days.

RICHARD LEES,
Public School Inspector.

Improve Ventilation.

On motion of Trustees Carter and Anderson, the inspector's report was received.

The question of improved ventilation was taken up and on motion of Trustees Forde and Carter, a committee comprising all the members of the Board was authorized to equip every alternate window with a deflector of the draft, allowing the raising of the windows for venitlating purposes.

Chairman Falkner drew the attention of the Board to the item in the Inspector's report under the heading "Progress," especially emphasizing the improvement in the relationship between pupils and teachers.

On motion of Trustees Carter and Forde it was decided to have the wiring of the school inspected and a meter installed with a view of having lights for the school.

Trustees Carter, who is retiring this year, expressed the pleasure he had experienced in working on the board during the past year, and his sorrow in not being in a position to offer his services for the incoming year.

At the conclusion of a few suitable remarks in reply to Trustee Carter by the chairman, the meeting adjourned.

GERMAN MONEY IS BARRED IN PARIS.

Hawkers of Reichbank Million and Billion Notes Driven From Streets.

PARIS, Dec. 14. — (Associated Press)—German banknotes, mostly in millions and billions, have been driven off the streets of Paris by the police. They were sold chiefly as souvenirs or given as premiums, but the city authorities discovered a war-time law forbidding traffic in foreign monies except under license, and they have applied it.

Just why this law should have been dug up now, after German currency had been circulating widely for several years, puzzled the curious, as they felt it to be quite worth while for the French to see to what depths the mark had fallen. The authorities, however, thought the influence of the depreciated German money was bad, for it could not stimulate the people's confidence in governmetns or currencies, even their own, to have before them the evidence of a once great nation in the depts of despair.

FILIPINOS EFFICIENT IN ENGLISH.

MANILA, Dec. 14.—(Associated Press)—A total of 534 candidates recently took the bar examination tests in this city, and more than 270 asked that the examinations be given them in English language. This is the highest English percentage ever recorded.

Only 196 candidates passed the tests.

DON'T BLAME RADIO.

Did you ever believe you, yourself, might be the cause of poor radio reception?

Yes, radio is not altogether to blame. A German experimenter, Prof. Martin Gildemeister, traces poor reception at times to the Human ear, according to the Journal of the American Medical Association

Gildemeister concludes that it all depends on the health of an individual. The acuteness of hearing, he points out, varies from day to day in accordance with the health of the patient. So that when you are feeling particularly good and you get particularly good results from your set, perhaps it is due to better hearing.

Another significant point is that higher tones can be heard on good health days than on poor health days. Sometimes, Gildemeister says, the difference is as high at 200 vibrations a second.

U.F.O. OUT OF POLITICS.

The U.F.O. organization is out of politics, but the farmers of the Province are very much in politics and behind ex-Premier Drury's Progressive policy.

Such in brief was the result of the debate on the future political status of the U.F.O. at the Toronto convention.

The fireworks failed to materialize, the Morrison-Drury duel did not eventuate, and by a compromise both factions saved their falls.

Mr. Morrison is satisfied to keep his pet organization out of the political arena—if the farmers independently of the U. F. O. want an organization for political purposes the Secretary has no objections.

Mr. Drury, on the other hand, gets an endorsation of his broadening-out policy and the assurance that there will be no opposition from the Morrison group.

Just what the effect of the decision will be remains to be seen.

Upon the U.F.O. it should, however, be good, for farmers who object to the organization involving itself into politics will now be able to associate themselves with the U.F.O. without dropping their allegiance to the Liberal or Conservative parties, whichever of the old parties they happen to support.

Whatever form the political organization of the Farmers may take, it will be entirely separate from the United Farmers of Ontario, and the general activities of the latter will not be turbed in any way by political entanglements.

From that standpoint it was a good day's business for the U.F.O.

THE MUNICIPAL CAMPAIGN.

There is little evidence of any great revival of interest in municipal politics, and although two candidates are already in the field for the mayoralty and nomination day is not far away, the majority of citizens seem to be utterly indiferent towards the approaching contest.

It is not a condition of affairs that affords cause for rejoicing.

Better by far would it be for Peterborough were there, instead of this peaceful, stolid, callous indifference, a spirit of discontent and unrest, because it is only from such a spirit that reforms can be affected.

The Examiner has done what it could in other years to arouse the ratepayers from their apathy, but apparently there is little use in hammering away along these lines.

If the majority of citizens are satisfied with conditions, satisfied with what has been done or left undone by the various public bodies, and satisfied that no improvement in personnel or methods can be introduced, then newspapers are merely wasting their space in trying to arouse public opinion to the need of better things.

Our civic administration is just what people make it—by their vote or by their failure to vote, as the case may be.

That is such a self-evident truth that it would seem almost like insulting the public intelligence to print it were it not for the fact that the complaints of many people who do not bother about voting but spend the rest of the year in criticism show that they have failed to realize the significance of the statement in question.

PLIGHT OF HARVESTERS.

Mr. Tom Moore, President of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, announces the intention of the Federal Cabinet to consider the case of those British harvesters who are finding themselves in difficulties in Canada. The Toronto Labor Council has been requested to communicate with the Provincial Minister of Agriculture, the officials of the Soldier Settlement Board or the Government Employment Service of that city, with a view to finding employment for the men on farms. It is reported that there are 4,000 farmers in Ontario who would be glad to give employment to those seeking it for the winter months. If that is the case, those genuinely desirous of engaging in farm work, the occupation for which they specifically contracted, should be immediately provided for. It is to be feared, however, that many are not anxious to take on such work. They want to stay in the cities and they are dissatisfied with the pay and the conditions offered by some of the farmers. This does not apply to all, of course. There are willing workers who are unable to find employment of any sort, and they will welcome the co-operation of the Government authorities in getting them placed. There are others who are not at all suited for farm work, and should never have joined up with the harvester party.

The correspondence which has appeared in the press of Canada and the Old Country shows plainly that there is a great difference of opinion regarding the experience of the harvesters. Some are well satisfied and others are full of complaints. Individual experience accounts largely for the wide divergence of views; but temperament undoubtedly plays a large part too. There is a bitterness in many of these communications which reveals anything but an accommodating disposition. An incident in Toronto this week also puts the attitude of some of these harvesters in a disagreeable light. The President of the British Welcome and Welfare League has found it necessary to deny the allegation that a body of harvesters who had asked for relief had been compelled to attend church in return for meals and sleeping accommodation. It is explained that meals were served to a large number and thirteen were provided with beds on Saturday last. Some of those thus benefited volunteered to go to church the following morning after breakfast, the church offering being for the Welcome League's work. Forty-six were given a dinner that day, 57 a supper, and 40 were supplied with beds for the night. The next morning 43 men sat down to breakfast. The total expense for this relief amounted to $69.32, of which the City Council contributed $57.21, the church offering making up the balance.

It is a most unfortunate thing that a few of the harvesters should impose such a severe strain on public sympathy by their unreasonable attitude and unjustified complaints. It is usually the way in every movement; there are generally to be found some who make it uncomfortable for others. It is greatly to be regretted that this should be, for there are real cases of hardship, which call for redress. It is to be hoped that the Government will be able to devise a plan which will meet the requirements of such as these; it ought not to be difficult to sift the chaff from the wheat—the chronic malcontents from the really ufortunate.

THE MAYOR'S WINNING PLATFORM.

In seeking about for material for his address tonight in the G.W.V.A. Hall, Mayor Taylor might find it interesting to discuss the platform upon which he was elected two years ago and to point out how successful he has been in carrying it out.

In his address to the electorate upon that occasion His Worship promised if elected to use "my best endeavour to advocate and encourage such municipal legislation as shall assist in making for a revival in 1922 of economic normalcy together with Peterborough's return to that old-time industrial and trade activity and development for which this city has been noted in the past."

This rather general promise would suggest the question at this time of just what municipal legislation along these lines has been passed in the two years of Mayor Taylor's regime.

That should make an interesting topic for tonight's meeting.

And there are the specific promises which, under the heading "Action, Not Words," His Worship made in his same address two years ago.

Checked over in the light of the record of the last two yeafs they might well be considered as of importance at any meeting in which the question of a third term for Mayor Taylor is under discussion.

Here there are, the address setting forth the fact that Mr. Taylor two years ago stood for the following policies:

"1. For the application of strictly business methods in the city's management.

"2. For transportation to and from East City by modern motor buses, forming a part of the present Hydro-electric Railway system.

"3. For immediate prosecution of what work is possible in connection with the sewage disposal plant.

"4. For undertaking at the earliest possible moment public improvements upon a large scale as practicable to furnish work for the unemployed.

"5. For Peterborough work for Peterborough citizens, and under fair living wages and working conditions under all circumstances.

"6. For the Provincial and Dominion Parliaments assuming with the municipality their proportionate shares of relief for the unemployed. And that this relief shall not be limited to municipal non-revenue producing improvements, but extend in such other directions as necessary to relieve the distress of the workless and their families.

"7. For an earnest effort to reduce taxation and to encourage improved social conditions generally."

This was the Mayor's platform before the election of 1922.

As a candidate for a third term he should be prepared to show how many of these planks were ever seriously fought for by him after his election.

If there have been any improvements in business methods they are not indicated by the Police Department litigation, the throwing away of $125 to election officials, the long controversy over paving, and other incidents of the last two years.

The operation of motor buses to and from East City as part of the street railway system has failed to materialize.

The sewage disposal plant is just as far away from being built now as it was two years ago.

The other planks, high sounding but meaningless so far as Nos. 5 and 6 are concerned, played little part in the activities of the Mayor's tenure of office.

As for the last one there has been some effort to reduce taxation, but it is difficult to point to anything that has been done to "improve social conditions" generally.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Mr. Drury is still trying to scuttle the story about the coal-scuttle that helped to scuttle him.

Hon. Robert Rogers has buried the hatchet and is on good terms with Mr. Meighen again. Does that presage a general election in the offing?

It's yet a little premature to talk about spending Christmas down the river.

Municipal candidates seem to be waiting for good sleighing before getting into the fight.

To the business world in Canada New Year's Day next year is of importance, principally because it will bring the new Sales Tax into operation.

Quebec liquor is said to be pouring across the border into the United States for the Christmas celebrations. Just as many people as ever seem anxious to greet the dawn after Christmas Day with a headache.

British harvesters out of employment are to be given jobs on Ontario farms. They'll not be able to say they have no work in that case.

Czechoslavakia has a team in the Olympic hockey series. The Granites will have more difficulty in pronouncing that name than they will in beating the team that wears it.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE!

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Oh, what do the cold waves say? Oh, they say, "Where's the coal?"

What could be worse than being given the mumps for Christmas?

Will you need a gift for an enemy of yours? Give him cheap cigars.

If you don't like some neighbor you can give his little boy a drum.

The kid like skates, but they are hard on the seats of their pants.

What will you give father? Give him asbestos gloves to be worn while opening Christmas bills.

A hot-water bottle makes a swell gift for a wife, and besides it will keep her feet warm at night.

Give her an imported hair brush if she wears imported hair.

Umbrellas make good gifts because you can borrow them back.

In giving a watch you can write "It's your time now," or "Hope you have a good time."

A nice telephone stand for a Christmas gift may help some friend stand her telephone.

Candlesticks make good Christmas gifts. The big, heavy kind are better for chasing burglars.

A rug as a gift makes a room as snug as a bug in a rug.

The boy will get mad if there is no sawdust in sister's doll.

Give daughter a razor so she will not sharpen pencils with yours.

The lighter electric irons do not damage the wall or knock a husband out like the heavy ones.

On marking up a price tag always be sure the person who receives the gift will not exchange it.

Hide the children's presents with their school books and they never will find them.

In some cases suit cases will suit as gifts.

Towels are nice, clean gifts.

Some kids get what they want while others get sensible presents.

Christmas is not over until friends quit being polite to you.

Give artificial flowers. They last much longer than the other ones.

A wise man and his money soon buy Christmas gifts.

Just a short time now and we will be writing 1923 by mistake and rubbing it out to put 1924.

It will soon be time for new resolutions. We call them new, but they are old ones made over.

If hell is paved with good intentions it will be repaved New Year.

We swear off on New Year and after that we swear off and on.

"Mama, can I hang up one of sister's stockings for mine?"

In Emerson's day the world might have beaten a path to the door of the man who made the best mousetrap, but today it takes advertising enough to convince the people it is the best, with street and house number given, and mention made of parking space for cars while the trap is being examined.

Ships rarely fail to reach the places they start for, but their captains generally know where they are going.

Many years ago, a fellow called my stepfather a liar. I grabbed a pitchfork and was in the act of puncturing him, when my stepfather seized the pitchfork, threw it aside and said, "What are you trying to do? He has but expressed his opinion, and his opinion is not worth anything." Remembering this incident and weighing the value of personal opinion, I have gone through life having fewer fights. Truth wins and that's the truth.

Suppose the dog were to succeed in catching the railroad train, he wouldn't know what to do with it. It is quite possible your employer has not seriously considered you for the position you are entitled to for the same reason.

You've got to be a straight shooter if you expect to hit the mark.

'Jever notice it's always some fellow wearing a faded out toupee who makes uncalled for remarks about some woman wearing false hair?

No wonder kids grow up to look like their dads. All they do is loaf and kick about money.

TO REPLACE JAPANESE

TOKIO, Dec. 14.— (Associated Press)—Baron Okura has announced that he intends to endeavor to replace the great museum which he presented to the nation some years ago, and which was destroyed in the fire following the earthquake.

The collection was one of the chief attractions to foreign visitors in Tokio and was of enormous value. Many of the relics cannot now be duplicated. A few were saved, having been removed to a fireproof warehouse as the fire approached. The collection cost Baron Okura about $2,500,000.

The English and Welsh birth rates for April, May and June were the lowest on record, except during the war.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—Cattle receipts for the four days at the Union Stock Yards totalled 7,877, and the sales for the three days were about 7,250. This left about 600 left over for the week without counting a similar amount carried over for the previous week. Packers buyers were looking over the pens yesterday morning, but did not find much usable stuff. The exporters bought 410 to hold over till next week. The steers were brought from 5¾ to 7 cents a pounds, cows cost 3½ to 4½ cts; heifers averaged $5.50 a cwt., and 60 bulls were bought from 3½ to 4¾ cents a pound.

The only butchers in real enquiry today were good medium weight steers, and for these buyers did not want to pay over 6 cents a pound. Most of today's offerings, outside of the day's fresh arrivals, were picked over butchers and light heifers. Yesterday morning's receipts were 119 cattle; 69 calves; 427 hogs, and 110 sheep and lambs. The trouble with too many of this week's butchers is that they have been left outside owing to the mild weather and have depreciated in killing quality.

Quite a number of baby beeves were in yesterday, but the choicest of the bunch sold at 10 cents, and others from 8 to 9 cents a pound. Some of the dealers in stockers and feeders cleaned up for the week, and will not do much till the new year. Light yearling stockers were sold on Wednesday as low as 2½ cents a pound. Appearances this morning point to another good-sized hold over again this week.

Calves are holding a good market, and a few more choice vealers could be used from 11 to 12 cents.

The market has dried up for lambs, and there was nearly 600 on hand today, with no immediate surface demand. The quality is not good and buyers are not talking better than 10½ cents a pound for the ewes. The closing market, under the conditions, is hardly a criterion for the future. Last week's prices was 12 to 12½ cents for light quality ewes.

This week's run of hogs was over 12,000 the heaviest of the season, and the price has not dropped below $7.50 a cwt., f.o.b., which was the quotation yesterday.

THE ELECTION CAMPBELLFORD

Proper t y Qualifications Amended—Race for the Reeveship.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 14. — Some of the ratepayers of the town are setting up the claim that Deputy-reeve Wilkinson, who has declared his intention of running again, has lost his residence in Campbellford and for that reason is not qualified to hold municipal office. Those who are of this way of thinking evidently base their opinion on the old statute, which defined the qaulifications of civic candidates, not on the amended Act. The latter makes it clear that no property qualification is now required. Any man whose name is on the voters' list is eligible to run for office and he can do so even if he resides outside but within two miles of the corporation limits.

Some months ago Deputy-reeve Wilkinson disposed of his property in town and purchased a farm close to the town and spends most of his time now in agricultural pursuits. He still maintains a residence in Campbellford, however, and as his name is on the new voters' list as a tenant, his friends maintain that there is no question as to his right to make another race for the deputy-reeveship, a prize which he captured last year in a field of four candidates.

The Reeveship.

The voters appear to be drawing the qualification lines closely for the coming election. Charles H. Davidson, who annouaced himself as a candidate for the reeveship some time ago, has been urged by his friends to step up higher and make a race for the mayoralty. Mr. Davidson, however, has spent four years in the county council and, like every man who has served in that body, is ambitious to get back. If elected reeve in January he would be in line for the wardenship next year.

Mr. Davidson is chief of the Campbellford fire brigade, of which he has been a member since 1906. For this service he receives an honorarium of $50 a year. In his case it is contended that as he is in the pay of the town he cannot hold another municipal office.

This contention has arisen and been disposed of in previous years. It has been held that Mr. Davidson is not directly on the civic payroll. The brigade is made up of volunteers who elect their own chief and who really set his compensation.

The council votes the fire brigade an annual grant of $470. Of this Chief Davidson receives $50, Assistant Chief and Capt. Alex. Farrell $40, and Alex Hall, captain on the west side of the river, $30. The other 14 members of the brigade receive $525 a year each. This represents the cost to Campbellford of maintaining a fire brigade which has for years kept the annual fire loss as low or lower than that of any town of the same size in Ontario, even if the underwriters persist in keeping up the rates.

Every member of the present council will be a candidate for re-election with the exception of Councillor Carter who, after a year of acceptable municipal service, intends to leave at the first of the year for Toronto, where his family is now residing.

COMPULSORY VOTE ON LIQUOR ISSUE

New South Wales to Vote on Prohibition Question

LONDON, December 14. United Press. — The New South Wales Assembly passed a provisional measure to-day calling for a referendum on prohibition in September, 1928.

A proposal to hold a referendum every five years thereafter was rejected.

The referendum will be decided by a majority vote whether New South Wales is to be dry.

The voting is to be compulsory.

VARSITY DEFEATED BY OLYMPIC TEAM

In a Rather Ragged Exhibition Game Played in the rAena Here Last Night.

TOFONTO, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Last night's return engagement between the Canadian Olympic team and Varsity failed to reach the standard expected, although the score of 7 to 2 for the series in Chamonix next month hardly does justice to losers who shaved goal posts on many occasions but on wrong side of posts. Game was an exhibition affair staged to fill open date caused by Hamilton Tigers withdrawal from Senior S.P.A. series and was good game as far as exhibitions go. Game was spotty with good hockey less frequent than other kind.

AUTOMATIC COPYRIGHT.

Writing of a Book Implies Exclusive Property in the Work.

OTTAWA, Dec. 13. — The new Copyright Act, effective on January 1st, involves some radical changes. The outstanding one of them affects the process of copyright. Heretofore it was necessary for a literary work to be registered at the department to secure protection. Under the new Act the "creation" of such a work involves copyright. This is to say that the man who writes a book or article acquires the copyright of it automatically by reason of its authorship. Registration may be made and might be helpful in litigation for infringement, but it is not necessary.

CALLED CHURCHILL TO DEFEND RECORD

Counsel in Douglas Libel Case Badgered the Ex-Minister--Denies German Emperor Humbugged Him.

LONDON, Dec. 13. — Winston Churchill was subjected at the Old Bailey to an extraordinary cross-examination. He had been called to witness in the suit for libel which he had brought against Lord Alfred Douglas for having alleged that Mr. Churchil had conspired with the late Sir Ernest Cassel to issue a false communique concerning the battle of Jutland in order to depress the stock market.

Mr. Churchill had been called merely to deny the authorship of the communique and having made any money at that time by stock speculation, but Mr. Justice Avery permitted Cecil Hayes counsel for the defense to roam in his cross-examination over a large portion of Mr. Churhill's career.

Mr. Hayes called his attention to a recent editorial in The Morning Post, in which it was declared: "He is mentally incapable of realizing the truth or anything like it." Did the witness intend to prosecute The Post for libel " counsel asked.

"There is always a lot of abuse flung about at election time," replied Mr. Churchill. "I shall have to consult my lawyer about it."

Counsel kept pressing for an answer and at least Mr. Churchill appealed to the Court for protection, and the Judge stopped furthering questioning on the point.

Counsel turned to Mr. Churchill's relations with Sir Ernest Cassel, and particularly to a roomful of furniture Sir Ernest had given him.

"Was the furniture inside the door?"

"Yes, inside and right round the room," Mr. Churchill answered. "That is a very important point."

Sir Ernest though German-born, was trusted by all the Cabinet, said the witness, and counsel remarked:

"You and the Cabinet trusted another German and made him a Privy Councillor— Sir Edgar Speyer".

"I believe that is true."

"He was afterward found to be a German spy and stripped of his honors "

"No; he was found to have acted in an improper way and was deprived of his honors very properly." Take 2 Called churchill

"What About Egotism?"

Counsel turned to the proposal made by Mr. Churchill to Germany in 1912 for a naval holiday and to the visit of Sir Ernest in company with Lord Haldane to Berlin a year or two before the war.

"Nothing came of that visit?" asked counsel.

"You are wrong; there was a much better understanding between the British and German Governments right up to the outbreak of the war."

"You did not know Germany was preparing for war?"

"I was working with feverish haste night and day to prepare the fleet. I knew the Germans were arming very rapidly."

"And you thougth it a wise thing to send out a German?"

"It is a wise thing both to make yourself ready and at the same time to smooth animosity between nations; that is what we did down to the last moment."

Mr. Churchill denied that he had allowed the German Emperor to humbug him at the Kiel regatta in June, 1914. Germany was not expecting war then; the murder of Archduke Ferdinand had not yet happened.

"We do not know the cause of that murder," said counsel.

"I may tell you I had nothing to do with it," replied the witness amid laughter.

Counsel next attacked Mr. Churchill for his part in the Antwerp and Dardanelles operations, and particularly for his description of the latter as "a legitimate gamble." The ex-Minister replied that the words were Colonel Repington's and not his and said he had referred to a gamble in ships, not in the lives of men.

Counsel passed to Mr. Churchill's book, "The World's Crisis," and asked:

"Now about your egotism; have you counted the number of I's in those two volumes? In fifteen lines there are thirteen and in ten lines ten."

"I will try to cut them down in

He defended himself against the charge of having betrayed official documents in his works by citing similar conduct by Lords French, Fisher and Jellicoe.

Pressed as to how much he had made from his work, he said it was 15,000 pounds. Counsel produced a copy of the Daily Mail of June 5, 1916, and Mr. Churchill said he thought he had read the attack upon him which it contained.

"You made friends witi. them afterwards?" said the counsel. "Didn't you send and ask Lord Northcliffe to stop attacking you?"

"I don't remember."

"Didn't you ask Randall Charlton to go to Northcliffe for you?"

"I don't remember."

Here the judge intervened, declaring that it was useless to produce newspapers which might have libelled Mr. Churchill merely to prove that he had taken no proceedings against them.

Mr. Churchill could not remember if Captain Spencer had said to him, that the Jutland business was a pretty trick.

"Did you say," asked counsel, "what does it matter to you anyhow? We got money out of the Yankees?"

"I am sure I never said anything of the kind," replied Mr Churchill indignantly

"Capt Spencer will be here and can be cross-examined," counsel remarked

Vice-Admiral Sir Henry Oliver and Sir James Mayerton Smith also testified, denying that Mr Churchill had anything to do with drafting of the Jutland communique.

CHICKENS BROUGHT GOLD INTO TURKISH VILLAGE

SLIVEN, Bulgaria, Dec. 14.—(Associated Press)—A brace of Turkish chickens recently brought some gold nuggets into Sliven in their gullets, since which time the townspeople have been thinking far more of prospecting than of their age-old industry of spinning woolen cloth.

The birds were carried to the market place by a Turkish peasant, since eagerly sought, and sold to Ivan Manoloff. Preparing them for the pot Ivan found the nuggets which, after his excitement abated, he sold to the local goldsmith for 400 leva. Ivan has quit work and is devoting all his time to seeking the village where the Turk raised the chickens. His argument is that thus could he trace the source of the find. But he is still looking, for there are many Turkish districts in the Sliven district, and the Turkish peasant has not reappeared in the market place since the day of the now historic occurrence.

FAMILY SLAIN NEAR BERLIN.

Engineer Kills Wife and Children, Neighbor Commits Suicide.

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—A couple of inches of lead piping has led to a tragedy involving the loss of five lives by murder and suicide in Berlin's industrial suburb, Pankow.

Johann Hausler, a locomotive engineer on the State railways, picked up the bit of lead intending to make a set of toy soldiers for his small grandchild. He was summoned on the ground that the lead was State property and dismissed for misappropriation of material.

He felt the disgrace keenly and became morbid. One night he arose, shot his wife, daughter and son dead in their sleep and then committed suicide, leaving letters explaining the facts in the case.

The daughter of a neighbor's family was so unnerved by the tragedy that she threw herself in front of a street car and was instantly killed.

TAFFY FRESH FROM A MAPLE SYRUP RUN

HUNTSVILLE, Ont., Dec. 14. — A real old time taffy pull with taffy fresh from first run of maple syrup ever recorded in this district, was the unique experience of J. E. Mosley of Huntsville Wednesday night. Mr. Mosley tapped a dozen trees in his yard three days ago and has more sap than he can use. After replenishment of syrup supply he used up the surplus of two days' run by inviting some of his friends to a big "pull." Weather has been good for sugar making even if Christmas is less than two weeks off.

BY THE TILT OF THE HAT YOU SHALL KNOW THEM

PHILADELPHIA, December 14. —A man's character is revealed in the way he wears his hat, according to a prominent hat manufacturer.

In discussing the art of selling he advises salesmen to study men's head gears. His rules are as follows:

Sharp tilt down to eyes—penetrating thinker.

Sharp tilt to right—susceptible to flattery.

Straight on head—careful buyer.

Sharp tilt back—self-confident.

Slope front to back—obstinate.

X-RAY IS USED BY SCIENTISTS TO STUDY DEAD

Centuries-Old Bodies Are Subject of Investigation By Museum Authorities — Discover Diseases of Which Persons Died.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(Associated Press)—Pictures of mummies taken with the X ray disclose conditions existing in the bodies of ancient Peruvians and Egyptians which otherwise would escape our knowledge; unwrapping the mummy means its destruction for purposes of accurate study. Such pictures have been taken by D. C. Davies, director of the Field Museum of Natural History, cooperating with the Victor X-ray corporation.

These pictures revealed also what had been buried with the body. For instance, various Peruvian mummy packs were found to contain ears of corn, pottery, vessels of clay containing shells, bits of metal, gourd vessels, beads, clay figurines and cut bone objects.

"In addition to the range of objects found in the bundles, we learn from the X-ray pictures something definite concerning the age, sex and condition of the bony structure of the individual buried therein," said Mr. Davies. "We are able to discover the nature of injuries received during his life, as well as determine whether the deceased was a sufferer from chronic rheumatism, tuberculosis of the bones, caries, arthritis of various kinds, and other conditions of diseases.

Destruction Avoided.

"In the Egyptian collections the mummy of a man of the twenty-sixth dynasty was photographed in four sections, beginning at the head, and furnishes a wonderfully clear picture of the entire skeleton. Here we may expect to find fractures, pathological conditions such as bony tumors, rickets, hydrocephalus, pyorrhea and caries of the teeth, all of which have been shown in the examination of unwrapped skeletal material to have been common conditions of diseases among the Egyptians of the most ancient times. The great advantage of the X-raying process in this regard is that it is possible to discern accurately these facts without injuring in any way the exhibition value of the specimens.

"Mummified cats, hawks, jackals, crocodiles and gazelles, also have been pictured with very satisfactory results. In the case of the hawk even the tail feathers are very definitely shown. The picture of the mummy of the gazelle brings out the skeleton with marvelous distinction. That of the crocodile also shows the bones still to be in their proper relative position to one another.

Further investigations are to be made upon the Egyptian material as well as upon vessels made of marble, alabaster and metal. The work will be extended to several departments, and plans are now under way to take X-ray pictures of rock formations which are ore than 3,000 years old Moving pictures of the process are contemplated.

FORTY VESSELS ARE FORCED TO SHELTER

SAULT STE MARIE, Ont., Dec 14.—(Canadian Press).— A storm on Lake Superior is making miserable going for 40 vessels which are buffeting the largest waves, of the year and virtually all of the ships have been forced to shelter, despite the fact that the locks here are expected to close at 6 o'clock to-night.

Of the 40 ships in Superior only 3 are of a size that can pass through the Canadian locks when loaded.

Two ships passed down during last night, each reporting gale conditions.

The steamer Pierce, upbound, has been forced off its route into Marquette Harbor, and other ships are hugging shelter off Welcome Islands

BELIEF IN REICHBANK RETAINED IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—(Associated Press)—There are today many Germans who thoroughly believe that the old, red-stamped thousand mark notes of the Reichsbank, issued before the War, have not shared the decline of other paper money, and will some day be redeemed at their face value in gold. Incidentally there is a large group of Russians who feel the same way about the rubles of the days of the Czar.

Trade in the old German money has been especially lively in foreign countries, and all sorts of ruses have been adopted to get these bills out of Germany in violation of the law against such export. Women have sewed them into their clothing, and they have been concealed in every possible way in baggage and freight. Large quantities of this currency ultimately find their way to England and to the United States.

THREE GET ELECTRIC CHAIR IN SING SING

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press).—Three men walked to the electric chair in Sing Sing Prison last night with laughter and songs of a musical comedy being staged by the other convicts ringing in their ears. The death cells in which they passed their last few hours were but a few feet away from the auditorium in which "Oh, Lady, Lady," a musical comedy, was given, and they could plainly see the applause of the audience of the voices of the performers.

The men were Abraham Becker, New York, wife slayer; George Hacker, convicted of killing Miss Smith Ward at Binghamton, and Harry Santanello, also convicted of the murder at Binghamton.

GRAIN BOATS MAY WINTER UP LAKES

Tug Adds Extra Anchor Against First Storms of Winter.

FORT WILLIAM, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press)—A sudden change in the weather Wednesday night accompanied by strong northwest gales, may have the effect of causing a number of grain boats to winter at the head of the lakes instead of making another trip. A float of 25 vessels which cleared Wednesday was forced into shelter during the night under the lea of the Welcome Islands, but with improved conditions yesterday the float proceeded down the lakes.

The steamer Glenbrae, which cleared from Duluth yesterday for Midland with corn, came into the harbor here yesterday to refuel and ship another anchor due to last night's storm.

The tug Strathbogie started out on a round of the lighthouse on the upper end of the lakes with provisions for the lightkeepers and to notify them to keep their lights going until further notice.

With the United States locks at the Soo closing today, it is hardly likely that any of the larger boats now in port will attempt to make the trip down the lakes, since the Canadian locks will not take any vessel drawing more than eighteen feet of water.

IRELAND BROADCASTS.

Ireland is planning to build a radio broadcasting station that will reach the whole country with news, market reports, weather bulletins and other helpful information. The station will be built in Dublin along the lines of the Eiffel Tower in Paris.

FARMERS' CONVENTION DEMAND PROHIBITION

Outstanding Feature in Declaration of Principles Was Approval of Dominion-wide Prohibition.

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press).—With the big political issue disposed of, the U.F.O. convention straightened away in a settled attitude yesterday to deal with two score odd resolutions standing on the order paper, fifteen policy items in the Council of Agriculture declaration of principles, elect officers, and in the evening to hear a clear-cut address on farm organization and economics by Dr. Theodore Macklin, of the University of Wisconsin. Outstanding in the convention's declaration of principles yesterday was the insertion in the Council of Agriculture programme of a demand for Dominion-wide prohibition. Amid demonstrations of enthusiastic approval, the convention gave President W. A. Amos a second term of office at the head of the organization. Dr. Macklin declared his beliefs and opinions with fervor that enthused his audience, even if he held that the U.F.O. was basically wrong in following variety rather than commodity business.

In most fervent language Dr. Macklin complimented the convention upon its decision to divorce politics from its business institution and told the delegates that, as a farmers' organization, they had passed their crisis in doing so. He held up for them the doctrine of the main issue to inspire and solidify the organization, and neither politics, nor social work, nor educative effort, he declared, could be that main, unifying issue, it could only be commodity marketing.

ONE KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Three Others in Galt Hospital With Fractured Skulls—Little Hope.

PRESTON, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press).—One child was killed and three others are in the Galt Hospital with fractured skulls and little hope of recovery as a result of an auto accident which occurred last evening on the Breslau Road, two and half miles from Preston. Car contained eight passengers, seven of them foreigners.

Two were children of Peter Stadnik, of Kitchener, and other four of Nicholas Marcheek who was also in car. Driver, whose name is unknown but who came from Kitchener was also injured. All were too badly ... to give any details of accident.

Party was on its way to Preston from Kitchener where family of Mrs Stadnik has been attending funeral of the mother of two of more seriously injured children, when car skidded off road and dropped several feet into ditch. Not member of party escaped injury.

MEXICO CITY DEFENCE HAS BEEN ABANDONED

JUAREZ, Mexico, December 14. —Official despatches received in Juarez late yesterday contained reports of the first clash between the Federal forces and the rebel general, Estrada, in Jalisco.

The fight occurred in Ocotlan, according to the reports and resulted in a victory for the Federals. The rebel captain with 160 men and 125,000 pesos in money deserted Estrada and joined the Federals.

President Alvaro Obregon seems definitely to have abandoned the defence of Mexico City and to have withdrawn to the mountains and the plateaus of Guanajuato and Queretaro to take up with his assembling armies Adolfo de la Huerta's challenge to his power.

WOLVES COME NEAR TO SETTLEMENTS FOR FOOD

PEMBROKE, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press)—Peculiar feature of open fall is prevalence of wolves so near town that not in quarter of century has such thing been known. From wilderness north of Petawawa and around Black Bay they have come closer to populated centres, hunting, it is supposed, for freshly killed meat of farmers, which they smell from far away.

KILL 400 IN MASSACRE AFTER EARTHQUAKE

One of the Victims, a Child, Said to Have American Citizenship—Slayers Claim Act of Patriotism.

By CLARENCE DUBOSE.

TOKYO, Dec. 11 (United Press)—"Mistaken patriotism" will apparently be the plea of Japanese officers and volunteer guards who are accused of murdering Koreans and Japanese "reds" during the post-earthquake period.

This plea probably will result in sentences of imprisonment only and not the death penalty.

Several hundred persons, both Koreans and Japanese, who were suspected of being "reds," or "socialists," were murdered throughout the earthquake area. Most of them were killed during the disorganized days immediately following the disaster. Some, however, were killed a week or two later by gendarmes who were guarding them in jail.

Most of the murders were committed by "volunteer guards," young men who organized defense corps. In all cases the plea seems to be the same: "Our country faced a terrible catastrophe. We were afraid the reds and socialists and Koreans would attempt violence, perhaps even a revolution. We thought it to the best interests of our country to kill them—however mistaken it seems now we may have been in that belief."

Reports of Uprisings

Wild reports were circulated just after the earthquake—apparently with no foundation—that "Koreans and reds" were going to arise, murder the Japanese, overthrow the government. Some of the volunteers ran amuck, killing Koreans and Japanese suspected of radicalism wherever they were found. Between 300 and 400 were killed. Some 50 young men have been arrested. The accused are being held in prison and the authorities are continuing their investigations.

Relatives of Sakae Osugi, the famous Japanese radical, who, with members of his family, were murdered by military police after the earthquake, have sued the government for $50,000 damages.

Genedermarie Captain Amaskasu and three non-commissioned officers, who are accused of the murders, are in prison awaiting the outcome of secret investigations by the authorities.

Osugi, described both as a "socialist" and an "anarchist," his wife, and Soichi Tachibana, the 7-year-old nephew of Osugi, were all three choked to death one night at a gendarme post where they had been arrested because Osugi was a radical.

The bodies were thrown in a well. The crime was kept secret for almost a month. Then Amakasu, the captain in charge, reported their death to his superior and, in an alleged confession, said that he had choked each of the three, the man, woman and child, to death.

Then Amaksau made another "confession" in which he said he had only killed Osugi, but that he had ordered his non-commissioned officers to kill the woman and child and that they had obeyed, and therefore he was responsible.

Everybody Confesses

Meanwhile, each of the non-commissioned officers made "confessions." Each insisted the captain had ordered him to kill the woman or the boy—but each non-com. declared himself the murderer, instead of his companions.

Amakasu's explanation of killing Osugi is that Osugi was dangerous to the country because he was a "red" and therefore it was a patriotic act to kill him.

Japanese newspapers have vied with each other in denouncing the murders and demanding Amakasu's punishment. The murder of the child has especially aroused the horror of the people.

Nevertheless, Amakasu has defenders and thousands of persons have signed petitions for leniency.

Unsuccessful efforts have been made to involve the American embassy in the case, upon the claim that Soichi Tachibana, the murdered boy, was an American citizen. His mother asserts that he was born seven years ago in Portland, Ore., and his birth there recorded in order that he might be an American citizen. Later she returned to Japan.

The American embassy has taken no official action in the case. The boy's mother has filed papers with the embassy which, she says, prove her claim that he was born in Portland.

Said an embassy official: "In the case, even, of an unquestioned American citizen involved in trial in a foreign court, the law of that country must take its course, and we can only be interested in seeing that the trial is fair and the law impartially applied."

THE RADIO RELAY TRAFFIC BETWEEN N.P. AND STATES.

Enables Donald B. MacMillan, Arctic Explorer, to Keep in Touch With His Associates in the States.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 14 Regular amateur radio relay traffic between the North Pole and the principal cities of the United States, enabling Captain Donald B. MacMillan, Artic explorer, to keep in constant touch with his secretary in Boston and associates in New York, Chicago and other cities, has been proposed by the American Radio Relay League. This unique service will be attempted every Monday and Thursday of each week definite traffic routes.

Until the present time, and especially when MacMillan's schooner the "Bowdoin" was making its way North up the coast of Greeland, communication with the explorer has been undertaking on a rather "hit and miss" basis. Not until the ship had reached winter quarters at Refuge Harbor, 750 miles from the Pole, and Donald Mix, radio operator had begun to maintain constant communication with Jack Barnsley of Prince Rupert, British Columbia, did regular traffic appear certain.

There is no reason now, in the opinion of A.R.R.L. officers, why Captain MacMillan, from his perch on the top of the world cannot keep as close in touch with his friends by radio as he could by the ordinary telephone were he sitting in his office in Boston. That is the object of the proposed experiment, to prove conclusively that amateur radio has become the victor in its battle against time and space.

No doubts any longer that amateur radio has become the greatest boom and comfort to the explorer, breaking forever the bonds of isolation and relieving anxiety over the welfare of family and friends that have been left behind. In his little cabin under the Artic sky, the explorer can transact business as easily as he could in Boston, or call across the broad Artic waste friends in New York and in fact any city or town in the country.

NOT DIFFICULT TO FORECAST FUTURE.

Considering the Two Greatest Laws of the Universe, Cause and Effect and Repetitions.

It really shouldn't be difficult to forecast the future, considering the two greatest laws of the universe, The first of these laws is Cause and Effect. The second is the Law of Repetitions.

Herbert Spencer, English philosopher, attracted by the Law of Repetitions, studied it and decided that historical events and situations repeat themselves with a certain regularity, or cycle, the same as the four seasons of the year alternate and daylight and darkness follow each other through the ages.

Governments also, as the ages pass, have changed with certain fixed cyclic tendency. Study ancient civilizations.

A country may be governed by an aristocracy—a group of leaders sharing power. Finally one of these leaders becomes strong enough to seize all the control for himself, and the aristocracy has evolved into monarchy.

Monarchy tends to end in revolution.

The next step in cyclic evolution is anarchy or general lawlessness, a natural reaction from a condition of too much law.

Russia has illustrated both of these changes.

Out of anarchy comes order—democracy, usually a republic with governmental powers delegated to elected representatives.

Then the wheel, according to precedent of past civilizations, begins turning again. Democracy degenerates into aristocracy gradually, as power become centred in the hands of a few.

The interesting cycle or wheel of governmental evolution sometimes stops and turns backward a while, as when a weak monarch has to surrender much of his power and divide it among strong followers, in effect changing monarchy into aristocracy.

KNOWS BETTER NOW.

The other man's job always looks easy. Ministers believe they could run the newspapers far more successfully than they are conducted at present. Once in a while one of them tries it. A Pasadena clergyman who was given an opportunity to put his ideas into practice and worked at the task a week on the last day wrote:

"My time is almost up as I pen this last line; my hand is almost paralyzed; my brain is befuddled and I am free to confess that I am right glad to vacate the holy spot. Such rush and riot and disarray. Such a jumble of potpouri; it strikes me as the effort to bring order out of chaos, and to do it lightning quick.

"I am reminded of the memorable words, 'The earth was without form and void, and darkness was upon the face of the waters.' Never shall I criticise newspaper men more. I shall pray for them. They will have my heart's forbearance henceforth and forever. They are the hardest worked, shortest lived, poorest paid brain workers on this weary old world of ours."

KILLED BY A GOOSE.

BERLIN, Dec. 14—(United Press)—The little eleven-year-old daughter of the war widow, Anna Pickl, of Niederricht, Germany, was killed by a goose. The child, while picking feathers from a good-sized old gander of unusual strength, was struck between the eyes by a wing and fell to the ground, releasing her hold on the fowl. The girl rushed into the house, fell unconscious at her mother's feet and died soon after.

WINDOWS MAKE A HOUSE BEAUTIFUL.

Years Ago It Was Thought As Long As the Downstairs Were Curtained With Fancy Lace It Did Not Matter About the Upstairs Windows.

Times have changed since the day when it was considered perfectly correct to use heavy, handsome lace curtains at the downstairs windows and cheap scrim upstairs, with no thought of a harmonious whole.

Today the woman who takes pride in her home and wants it to present an appearance of unity and good taste will curtain all the windows with the same sort of glass curtains—the simple curtain that hangs close to the pane—and then use different draperies and different effects inside, so that each room has its individuality and character.

When buying material for the glass curtain the chief thing is to get something transparent that will not shut out light or air. A net with open meshes is often more desirable than sheer cloth, and besides being available in white and cream there is also the new golden tone known as sunshine.

A filet net is always practical and this type of net may be secured in any weight from a very fine quality to a half-inch mesh in the weight known as filet grandee.

When it comes to over-draperes the range of possibilities is limitless and one selects what she likes and can afford from gingham, stenciled unbleached muslin and cretonne to silk, repp, brocade, fine mohair and tapestry.

It is most important to select your over-draperies to tone in with the general scheme of your room. If they are too elaborate or too extreme, they will overpower the rest of your furniture and will not be restful or subtle.

The ruffled valance or shaped lambrequin to finish the top of the window is purely a matter of individual taste. If the windows are high, it is a pleasing decoration. If they are low this may be omitted.

But every well-dressed window is wearing side draperies, either of a narrow panel of decorative fabric which remains stationary like the frame of the picture, or side curtains of a width sufficient to permit them being pulled quite together in the middle to soften the light and secure privacy, instead of drawing down a roller shade.

A new version of the practical side drapery consists in two sets of sash-length over-curtains, the hem of the upper set hiding the rod upon which the lower set is hung. Then the top half of the window may be shaded and the lower half kept free save for the glass curtain.

LATER

Publication of Steinmetz's will renews public amazement at the smallness of his fortune. He could have commanded a fabulous income, yet all he wanted was enough to live on. He worked hard, but for humanity instead of himself.

Difficult for our greedy individualistic generation to understand him. The Steinmetz way will be the rule, rather than the exception, in some future generation of really civilized men. How many scores of generations hence?

GREAT INDUSTRY IS HOME MAKING.

Yet Women Still Have to Learn How to Run In On Business Basis.

JERSEY CITY, N. J. Dec. 14.—Remember, housewives, yours is the greatest industry in the world.

Scattered over all quarters of the globe, affecting every class of people, in every environment, this business of home making is supreme both in popularity and importance.

Yet less actual business skill and efficient methods are put into this great world-wide industry than in many another less imposing undertaking.

Armed with these cold facts, Mrs. May Craven Hatch of this city is stumping New Jersey to impress upon housewives the importance of their business in the world. She is telling the 40,000 clubwomen of the state how big their job is and how it has changed from drudgery to real business.

"But of course," she warns, "to get the thrill of a captain of industry out of this business, you must put it on a business basis. You must budget your expenses, plan your work and watch your results."

An Authority

Mrs. Hatch is chairman of home economics in the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs, and has made a study of the home-making industry in her state. A budget plan, she has concluded, is the only way to run a home efficiently.

"Only in this way," she explains, "can a woman adjust her duties to the calls modern life apportions her. She must know how to provide an early and nourishing dinner for her husband even though she has been at a club session all afternoon. She must not let physical care of her children shut out her vision to their spiritual needs.

"She must learn to combine the tasks at home and to make the most of her pleasures and diversions. In other words, she must realize that homemaking is a job that calls for all the brains she can put into it, instead of being something that keeps her from a career."

Over 18,000,000 women in America do their own housework, Mrs. Hatch estimates, and a large percentage of them also belong to clubs and take an active interest in things outside the home.

Look For Waste

"Everyone has all the time there is in every day," she continued. "If a woman finds her home cares consuming all her time and thoughts, it is time to take an inventory and locate the department where the waste effort is being spent.

"The problems of every housekeeper are different, and homemaking with every woman is an individual assignment. But in getting together and discussing housekeeping in its broadest aspects and exchanging experiences with others every woman may get valuable suggestions for her own schedule.

"What we need most is to open our eyes to the magnitude of our jobs," she concludes. "Then no woman will have to stay home from the polls on election, or will her family suffer from her attention to outside interests. As she gains perspective, she will put everything in proportion so it all fits into a harmonious, perfect whole."

VULGAR WEALTH VERY CLOSE TO ABJECT MISERY

Remarkable Contrast Shown in Hungry Berlin — Economy For the Average Man Means Privation.

BITTER STRUGGLE.

By CARL D. GROAT

BERLIN, Dec. 14 (United Press).—The German of today is like the Roman of the Caesar days.

He demands bread—and shows.

Bread he does not always get, but shows of one kind or another he still has.

Misery, wretchedness, abject poverty and hunger on the one side; pomp and display and vulgar wealth on the other.

Never in Germany's history has the Grunewald racetrack been so patronized as this autumn. And never in Germany's history have there been such queues of beshawled, shivering women waiting at the bakeries for their black loaves, uncertain whether they can have the staff of life at all or whether their meager pocketbooks will suffice to pay the dealer's toll.

Splendor Near Hunger

The "Reit-Turnier"—riding tournament—in the Sport-Palace attracted thousands. The glittering of the "old days"—barons, baronesses, princes, princesses, princelings, the old and new rich—this was the spectacle while within a stone's throw hunger marched.

Gen. von Seeckt, military dictator, would end some of the display, some of the wastefulness that goes with night life, with Germany's myriads of mushroom bars, naked dance shows, gambling clubs. But those who still have money—and they are ever fewer—still evade the dictator's rulings and some night life still flourishes in dark, unattractive haunts.

It is history over again. Distress on one side; ruthless lavishness on the other.

The shivering, beshawled woman in the bread lines—bread "snakes," the Berliners name these pitiful queues—is happy if she gets three to four loaves a week for her family. The "Schieber" is happy if he can still profiteer and if he can drown out the misery about him with the drug of display and diversion.

It matters little to him that potatoes can't be had.

They can be had for gold, he says.

A Bitter Struggle

But for the average man it is literally a "struggle for existence," a bitter fight this winter to keep body and soul together.

The average home knows meat no more. As this is written, meat runs—translated into gold—$1 or more a pound. Bread of late has been 30 to 40 cents a loaf.

The average man economizes in things that an American can hardly dream to be possible.

For instance, he doesn't write letters to his friends any more. The postage is too dear.

He doesn't call a doctor or buy medicine when he's ill. It costs too much.

He walks miles and miles to work—if he still has work—rather than pay the fancy billions that the tramline charges.

He carries a couple of black bread sandwiches, smeared with lard or tallow, instead of going, as in the old days, to a little beer restaurant to a special table where each day a dozen cronies gathered.

He burns an oil lamp before his door at night as he can't pay for the electric lights for the stairways.

And he retires as soon as the day's work is ended as his home is unheated.

This is no idle picture; it is life this winter in Germany.

Esau Tucker Was a Good Type Citizen.

APSLEY, Dec. 14.—The death occurred on Saturday, Dec. 8, of Esau Tucker, a well-known and highly-respected former resident of Apsley, in his 68th year. The news of his death came as a shock to his many friends here, as he had only been confined to his bed about two weeks. The body was conveyed from Lindsay to Apsley on Sunday, and the funeral, which was very largely attended, was held on Monday, service being conducted by the Rev. E. McTavish at the Methodist Church, interment being made in the family plot in the cemetery. The bearers were Herbert, Dave, Melville and Russel Tucker, Fred and John Mann.

Mr. Tucker, by religion a Presbyterian, was, among his many qualities, particularly noted for his charity, always being the first to help those in necessity when occasion offered. He was also a staunch and faithful member of his church, and when he removed to Lindsay less than two years ago, the community felt they had lost a valuable citizen. His father, William Tucker, was the pioneer of the northern part of Anstruther Township, settling there 50 years ago, accompanied by his family, of whom the deceased was one.

Mr. Tucker leaves to mourn his loss, besides his widow, five sons, John, Joe, Zach, all of Anstruther; Dave, of Keene; Donald in the Rainy River District, and one daughter, Edith; also one brother, William, of Anstruther, and two sisters, Mrs. John Selkirk, of Warsaw, and Mrs. Dave Miller, Lakefield.

Among those attending the funeral from a distance were noticed: Dr. Munro and F. Selkirk, Warsaw; Messrs. Renwick, of Otonabee; W. Thompson, Mount Julian.

AN INDIAN BOY LOST IN WOODS

A nine-year-old Indian boy got lost in the dense woods near The Pas, Manitoba. He wandered for 17 days, covering at least 100 miles of wilderness, never seeing a man. Then he was found and rescued by a party of hunters.

During the 17 days, he had to fight nature face-to-face to keep alive, for when he got lost he had neither food nor supplies of any kind—not even a pocket knife.

He made a bow and arrows; killed enough game to keep alive. Now, the bow-and-arrow is obsolete with the Indians of this lad's tribe, except as playthings, the high-power rifle having taken its place.

But if he hadn't known how to make a bow-and-arrow outfit, he'd have perished. Knowledge often seems worthless—until emergency. That's what knowledge is really for, after all—emergency. The more education, the better.

Another instance of the human body's powers of endurance: In Canton, Ohio, P. H. Hassan fell into a pool of warm asphalt. He couldn't get out. Struggled until he was exhausted. This was in the evening.

When rescuers found him next morning, the asphalt had hardened into a solid block. Hassan was firmly imbedded, only his head and right arm showing.

They had to chop him out. A terrible experience. But he lives, apparently none the worse for his experience.

The cases of Hassan and the lost Indian boy illustrate how difficult it is to extinguish the life spark. Man fights hard, can endure almost anything, when death threatens him.

TONGUE COATED BAD TASTE IN MOUTH EYES TINGED WITH YELLOW

Liver Trouble the Cause

Mrs. A. C. Brown, Oromocto, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled with my liver for a few years back and was so bad I did not feel able to do my work.

I had severe pains in my stomach so bad I could hardly stand them at times; coated tongue; bad taste in the mouth, especially in the morning, and had a yellow and sallow complexion.

I had read a great deal about Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and decided I would try a vial, and after taking two or three I found I was greatly improved, and can truthfully say that I felt more like living and can now do my own work without any trouble."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers, or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

VAST SUMS LOST FROM OIL FIRES.

Fire is the Greatest Enemy of the Oil Industry in the United States.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. — Fire is the greatest enemy of the oil industry in the United States. A Bureau of Mines survey covering only the more extensive fires in a ten-year period, indicates total losses of about 13,000,000 barrles of oil and more than five billion cubic feet of natural gas.

An aggregate loss of about $14,000,000 was shown during 1918, 1919 and 1920 through fires in storage farms, pipe line systems and in refineries. A tank fire at Beaumont, Texas, in July, 1922, wrought damage estimated at $2,000,000, while throughout the country during the same month other oil fires caused more than $3,000,000 damage. A recent fire at Humble, Texas, destroyed two tanks containing approximately 800,000 barrels of crude oil.

While the survey showed that lightning probably causes the majority of fires, carelessness and lack of suitable preventative measures account for many conflagrations.

WHO GAINS ON THE USED CAR

Since the First of the Year Used Car Dealers Have Lost Over $49,000,000.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14,—Since the first of the year, automobile dealers have lost about $49,000,000 in used car business.

This represents the difference between the prices allowed for cars and the amounts at which they were sold. Add to this cost of reconditioning and overhead—and the loss mounts much higher.

Of course, few dealers actually lose, in the sense of coming out on the wrong side of the ledger at the end of the year. They make up for this red figure by the black represented in profits through sale of new cars.

Which, by a logical course of reasoning, leads the automobile owner to believe prices for automobiles are much too high, despite a regular series of drops the last two years.

Yet the manufacturer sets the retail price for his product, although he has nothing at all to do with the trade-ins which his dealers have to consider. The result is that the dealer, who trades in a used car for, say, $750, and sells it for $650, makes $100 less than he should have made on the new car.

Owner Loses.

Well, if he's willing to accept lower profits, what of it? thinks the automobile owner. That doesn't seem to affect him at all.

There's where automobile dealers have got together to show the auto owner that this loss of profit on the new car really does affect him, more than the dealer, at times. They are putting their heads together in an effort to educate the motorist in the proper methods of trading in his car, to his and the dealer's mutual benefit.

The argument is that it is the owner who keeps the prices of automobiles from dropping even lower, despite the keen competition manufacturers have to put up with today. The dealer must make a profit. So the margin is made wide enough to permit the dealer's narrowing it down, if he has to, to meet a higher quotation on a used car.

Burden Shifted.

Thus the automobile owner gets a higher allowance on his used car. But pays more for the new one. It is a question whether the auto dealer doesn't come out winner in the end, with even a larger profit than any sound business requires.

That the margin of profit for auto dealers is increasing is shown by the comparison of used-car losses last year and this year. According to a recent report by the National Automobile Dealers' Association, automobile dealers lost a total of $105,000,000 in used-car sales and trade-ins last year.

This loss has been diminishing rapidly. During the last three months, the reduction in dealers' losses was 73 per cent. below those incurred the three previous months, and even more below that of the first quarter. Yet this amounted to $5,654,000 on 399,000 cars.

JEWELLED GLOVES ARE LATEST STYLE.

Paris Has Devised a New Way—Exchange Surplus Gold For Gorgeous Display.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Jewels, jewels, jewels!

And more jewels than you've ever worn before.

This is the verdict from Paris. The dinner ring that covered the entire small finger, and that you used to think so immense and pretentious, is as a diminutive doll's ring contrasted with the latest French novelties.

For instance, there's the "jeweled glove," an innovation that fills the jeweler's heart with joy and father's with despair. By it, finally, woman can wear more jewels on her hand than ever before.

The "glove" may be of diamonds, pearls or both. It hangs over the back of the hand, from a gorgeous finger ring to a still more entrancing bracelet. Platinum chains hold the stones together in an artistic design. The chains are supple and strong, and in no way hamper the free movements of the hand.

Well, It's Practical.

"Indeed," says the proud designer, "though this covering is expensive, it is thoroughly practical, for the bracelet and ring may be detached and worn separately."

This same designer has directed his extravagant tastes toward the coiffure. He has achieved some novel decorations for the head.

One ornamental product of his uncurbed imagination attaches around one ear by means of a platinum thread and rests on the cheek, to replace the vanished curls of a less exaggerated bob.

Beautifiers.

Another extravaganza consists of a bejeweled decoration running from forehead to back hair comb. Chains of tiny pearls or diamonds are worn over the entire centre, and across the forehead. These are attached to the jeweled comb in back, or under the hair at the side, with a platinum chain.

That's not all. If you are not satisfied with this show of wealth and extravagance, Paris has found a way to decorate your evening gowns with rhinestones, pearls and diamonds. These stones, nowadays, are used profusely as girdles, shoulder straps and other form of ornamentation.

It is the court of Louis XV. revived in all its splendor and magnificence. To become a member there is only one requirement:

Money, money, money!

BATTLE NOW ON OVER PATRONAGE.

Three Years Ago Aerial Passenger Transportation Was Viewed As a Fantastic Dream.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 14.—Three years ago aerial passenger transportation was viewed by Americans in the light of a fantastic dream.

It is still considered so in many sections—

But in Cleveland and Detroit, it has developed to the point where there are even rival commercial airlines!

For two summers, the Aeromarine Airways, Inc., has successfully operated daily service between Cleveland and Detroit. Now, no less a personage than Baron H. G. Fokker, famous Dutch airplane maker, has decided the time is ripe for another Cleveland-Detroit line.

Not a Mishap.

Fokker is seriously considering an all-year service between the two cities—making the trip of 111 miles in less than an hour—according to H. A. Bruno, who is associated with the Fokker interests.

Aeromarine has maintained regular flying schedules for two summers, carrying several thousand passengers without a mishap more serious than a forced landing. In winter months, this air fleet moves south, and operates air ferry service between Florida ports, Cuba and the Bahamas.

Comfortable cabins are a feature of the Aeromarine ships. The same is true of the fleet Fokker plans to use.

European Routes.

Since 1920, Fokker planes have been used on the following regular European air routes. Amsterdam-London, Amsterdam-Brussels-Paris, Amsterdam-Bremen-Hamburg, Berlin-Moscow, Dantzig-Riga, Vienna-Budapest.

More than 2,000,000 miles have been covered by these ships without one fatal accident. Mr. Bruno believes that an all-year-round air service between Cleveland and Detroit is practical and can be operated with the same standard of safety as are the European airways.

Two types of planes in all probability will be used: the Fokker amphibian flying boat, which has a capacity of five passengers, and the Fokker cabin seaplane, which carries six.

Up to Date.

The passengers will be fully protected from inclement weather and during the winter season the luxurious cabins will be heated with electricity. The Netherlands Company, Fokker's American interest, is studying other routes which will connect Cleveland with the west through Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis.

Still further evidence of the development of air transportation in America is the acquisition of the Zeppelin patent rights by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Akron, O., as part of a plan to construct and place in regular transportation work, fleets of huge dirigible airships.

Eastern states are reminded of the old tow-path days by the disused canals. Is the development of commercial aviation to make the railroad tracks as much of a relic in the next half century?

RUFFLED FRONT.

Ruffles which extend only part of the way around the skirt, leaving a plain back or front, are very much favored by the fashionable designers. The ruffled front is particularly new.

TO CLEAN CEILING.

Very often the ceiling above the gas jet becomes darkened by smoke, and consequently is unsightly. Remove this by applying a layer of starch and water on a piece of clean flannel. When dry brush of lightly with a brush.

MINK WRAPS.

Mink wraps this year show an interesting cut and arrangement of stripes so that they conform to the popular circular ruffle plan.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

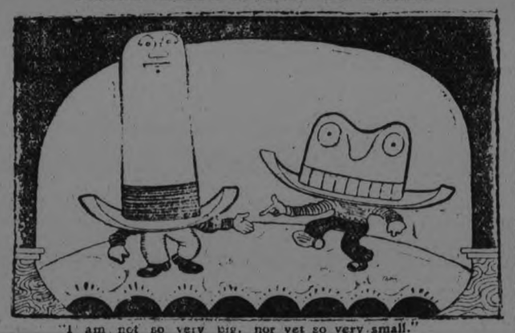
ALICE HELPS NANCY TO DRESS



"I am not so very big, nor yet so very small."

This was the next riddle the Riddle Lady asked:

"I am not so very big, nor yet so very small,
Sometimes I am flat and then again I'm tall.
Sometimes I am stout, but often I am lean.
And I come in any shade at all from bottle blue to green.

"I don't like life indoors, I much prefer outside,
And yet I never, never walk, I always take a ride,
My fortune's always good, it seldom takes a drop,
My friends say it's remarkable how I come out on top.

"I cannot run, I never race, but if the truth be said,
No matter where I promenade, I'm always on a head,
I'm quiet in my habits, on sea or air or land,
But then again I must confess, I often have a band.

"Now this no doubt will make you laugh, I haven't any head,
But wait, my friends, and spare your chaff, I have a crown instead.
I never eat, I never drink to keep in proper trim,
And yet in nine times out of ten, I'm filled up to the brim."

"Dear! Dear!" declared the Wise Man to Nick. "I never heard such a hard riddle in my life. I just know I can't guess it. I might try jumping into a bramble bush or two and shake up my wits a bit. Do you know?"

Nick shook his head. "No, I don't! I think it's hard, too."

Humpty Dumpty heard the conversation and broke in. That is, I mean he really didn't break, he interrupted. "I've had my fortune told," said he pompously, "and I've been told to keep away from stone walls, but nobody ever told me to keep away from riddles. I think they are as hard as stone walls any time, and just as likely to crack your head open."

Nancy was trying hard to think. She loved riddles and she hated to give up.

Suddenly a sweet voice at her elbow said, "Hello, Nancy!"

And there stood Alice from Wonderland. Nancy knew her at once by the way she wore her hair, and her odd little slippers. She had just come to Riddle Town and she had heard the Riddle Lady's last riddle.

"I just came from a tea-party," she explained. "You've heard of the Dormouse and the Mad Hatter and the March Hare, and how they entertained me, haven't you?"

At that an idea popped into Nancy's head. "It's a hat! It's a hat! The answer is a hat!" she screamed.

And so it was, my dears!

But I still think that Alice couldn't help thinking that Nancy was a trifle rude, for she never did answer her question.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

(Unless otherwise specified, these recipes are planned for four persons.)

CANAPES

If you like unusual and attractive dishes and "fixings" for your little dinners these suggestions will appeal to you.

The beginning of a dinner goes far toward its success. A vegetable or sea-food cocktail preceding the soup whets the appetite and is always in good taste. But a dainty and quite sophisticated first course is found in a canape.

If a definite color scheme has been planned for the meal the colors can be used in these tiny highly seasoned appetizers. Their mission is to stimulate the appetite through the eye as well as the palate.

A canape is served hot or cold on a small plate covered with a paper doily. A small fork is included in the silver service.

Expensive, imported ingredients are not necessary. American cream cheese carefully seasoned can be worked into just as satisfactory combinations as a far more expensive cheese. Salmon can take the place of crab meat, domestic caviar replace imported and bloater paste substitute anchovy. However, the amount needed is so small that a little of the most extravagant ingredient goes a long way. A highly seasoned butter or cream plays an important part in all canapes.

Cheese Canapes

Cut brown bread in slices three-eighths of an inch thick. Cut in rounds two and one-half inches in diameter. Toast and spread with mustard butter. Cover with a thick layer of grated cheese seasoned with salt, cayenne and pimento puree. Put in a hot oven until cheese is melted. Serve at once.

Mustard Butter

Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons French mustard.

Work butter to a cream and wash out salt. Add mustard and mix well.

Ham Canapes

Six tablespoons grated cheese, one half teaspoon salt, one eighth teaspoon cayenne, one tablespoon pimento puree.

Rub one canned pimento through a fine sieve. Add to cheese, salt and cayenne and mix thoroughly. These proportions are calculated to serve six.

Cut thin slices of rye bread in crescent or semi-circular shapes pieces. Toast slightly and spread with mustard butter made soft with thick sweet cream. Mix six tablespoons minced ham with two tablespoons currant jelly. Put a thick layer on each piece of toast. Cut olives in thin strips lengthwise and arrange a rosette on each point of the toast.

Corned-Beef Canapes

Prepare white bread in circles as in first rule. Spread with horseradish butter. To six tablespoons of minced lean corned beef add enough oil mayonnaise to make moist. Put half a hard boiled egg white in the center of each circle of toast. Fill with corned-beef mixture. The egg should be trimmed to stand firmly on the toast. Sprinkle the grated yolk around the edge of the toast and garnish with snips of pimento.

Caviar Canapes

Spread fingers of toast with lemon butter. Cover with a layer of caviar, sprinkle with grated hard boiled egg yolk. Cut large, ripe olives in halves and remove the stone, keeping each half as perfect as possible. Fill olive cup with oil mayonnaise and drop a "dot" of pimento in the center of the dressing.

Crab-Meat Canapes

Dip fingers of white bread in melted butter and brown quickly in a very hot oven. Season crab meat to taste with salt, paprika, nutmeg and lemon juice. Pile lightly on the toast, cover with grated cheese and put in a hot oven long enough to melt the cheese. Serve hot.

Sardine Canapes

Remove skin and bones from sardines and rub to a paste with hard boiled egg yolk, using lemon juice to keep moist. Toast thin rounds of bread and spread with mustard cream. Cut the whites of hard boiled eggs in slices about one-eighth of an inch thick, crosswise. Put a slice in the center of each canape and fill with sardine paste. Mince the remaining white around the edge with a sprinklin of minced parsley.

Two hard boiled eggs will be sufficient for six canapes. Use the center slices for holders and the ends for mincing.

CHILDREN PLAY IN FAIRY LAND

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 13. The children's play rooms in some of the homes here are real fairylands in themselves.

They are the invention of Miss Lillian Hunter, artist, who goes about transforming simple four walls into a veritable country of make-believe for the edification of the children.

Thus the tots meet little Alice in her travels through Wonderland, and their imagination is allowed to convert the creatures of the book into real human beings and animals.

For two years children and grown-ups saw Miss Hunter's illustrated fairy tales in a local newspaper. Then one day one of the grownups asked her to paint a freize for her children's nursery.

Stimulates Imagination

"I chose Robert Louis Stevenson's 'Young Night Thoughts and Dreams' for my first playroom," says Miss Hunter, bringing out her portfolio of sketches. "Over the mantel, I painted a shadowy picture of the land of sleep with a castle vaguely seen in the distance—all fairy tales should have a castle. Beside the fireplace stands the Black Knight in armor. Around the room are child characters from story and history—nearly 100 of them.

"Just think how it stimulates the imagination to live each day with your story book heroes. It was more successful than I dreamed it would be, for the mother of the four children who play in this room says that even her three-year-old son knows every character and can lisp the story.

"Here is a Peter Rabbit nursery. I designed and painted the furniture to go in this room. There is not a tale of Peter and his friend, Benjamin Bunny, that the children do not dramatize.

"Another room which I have just finished has the whole story of Alice in Wonderland.

Tip-Top Town

"Perhaps the most elaborate piece of work I have eve done is in a house which by the strange irony of fate was sold three months after it was completed to a bachelor and his widowed mother. But I am glad to know that his nieces and nephews consider one of their greatest treats is spending the day in 'uncle's playroom.'

"It is an English village street with two houses, a theater, a store, an animal cage and a garden with a sand pile. The door to this child's paradise bears the name 'Tip-Top Town.'

"There is no limit," Miss Hunter concludes, "to the subjects one may choose and the lessons that may be taught. The minds of little children are easily molded like the clay with which I sometimes amuse myself. Give them something to stir their imaginations and they will go on and invent all kinds of games about a story book figure, for their greatest joy is in the land of make-believe."

Every Stewpan needs Bovril

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

WOMEN ARE STRONGER

Recently I read an article complaining how many women were losing the "sap of life," as the article expressed it. Through change in occupation, mode of living, change in marriage relations and the average number of children, weakness was attacking our female population. Women in working occupations, where the strictest regulations are not enforced, were gradually showing a let-down in physical condition. The spirit of "don't care" seemed to pervade many districts where workers predominated.

I must confess that, to me, it seemed to be all the other way, so far as physical or athletic conditions are concerned. In fact, I am strongly of the opinion that many kinds of work improved rather than weakened women in general.

More women even of the middle and working classes enter into sports of some kind today than ever before. They wear fewer clothes to hinder and impede their movements. Their garments are also far more sensible and conducive to health in every way.

It is well known that even a moderate amount of exercise causes the heart to beat more quickly. Unless the exercise is excessive, although the heart beats fast, there is a steady, regular rhythm, so that the right ventricle sends more blood through the vessels of the lungs and the left ventricle more blood through the rest of the body. This increase of blood through the lungs permits more oxygen to be taken into the blood and more carbonic acid to be excreted, and both of these conditions are favorable to muscle growth and bodily health.

Perhaps the best gain of all to girls and women through exercise is by an increased appetite. It enables food to be more rapidly absorbed from the stomach and intestines as well as giving more complete oxidation in the tissues.

Women are getting stronger and healthier. All our college records prove it and averages will soon be available to show results.

GAMBLING

Never a shortage of moths for flying into the candle flame. In the first 10 months this year, over 190 million shares of stocks changed hands on the New York Exchange.

In the corresponding months of 1901, sales totaled over 230 million shares. And the average since 1900 has been 160 millions for the same months.

Like all gambling, it's run on the law of averages. And the suckers come along, year after year, by the same law.

GREAT PROGRESS IN LAST CENTURY

Radios, Airplanes and Autos Have All Been Invented in the Last Century.

Roger Dolan writes: "These contraptions such as radio and the airplane and the auto are wonderful, of course. And they've all come in our generation, so we must be a race of super-men. But isn't it more remarkable—at least, difficult to understand—how it took the human race so long to figure these things out?"

There is a definite thought.

In the last 100 years, man has made greater progress than in all time that went before. This is debatable, but the "yes" side will win every time.

When the novelty wears off, we learn that the new marvels are simple after all. So simple, we say, "It's a wonder no one thought of it before."

Men of history, through thousands of generations—possibly millions—made very little real progress. Then everything seemed to come overnight, and is still coming. As if the whole past had been preparatory and our century merely is reaping the harvest.

To some extent that's true.

The real answer, though, is this: It is only within the last century that the best brains have devoted themselves to industry, mechanics and higher sciences applied to practical things.

The best brains used to "go in for" the arts and professions. In our generation, they apply themselves to economics—inventing and putting the great inventions to use.

Jules Verne dreamed about it. The modern Jules Verne does it.

With this as a background, it's logical that most of our big present economics problems are in the nature of details or loose ends which will be caught up later, when we learn to apply the great inventions correctly.

CASTE VICTIMS IN INDIA "PIGS"

Millions "Pollutors" and Slaves to Aristocracy — Abuse Forces Emigration.

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 14.—Once a slave, always a slave, pollutors, untouchable, prohibited even the ordinary rights of human beings, outcasts in their own country—that is the story of the treatment of millions of "helots," or people of low caste, by those of the higher classes in India.

Lines are drawn in India which "aristocrats" will not cross, though the helots are starving. Subjection to tyranny has led them to leave their country in increasing numbers every year, to find careers in other lands where no implacable bar to their success in life exists.

Forbidden Water Supply

In the Madras Presidency alone 6,500,000 Hindus are classed as "untouchables" and the public water supply is absolutely forbidden in nearly every village to castes numbering one-sixth of the entire population of the Presidency. They are barred from walking along the public streets where their superiors reside and from sections where they live. The small farmer finds himself continually the loser through his inability to enter a shop or street to dispose of his produce. Conditions in Bombay and other sections are as unfortunate as those in Madras.

In six districts of the Madras Presidency more than one person out of every five is theoretically not allowed to come within 64 feet of the higher castes without pollution. The purification ceremonies, however, are now generally neglected by the "noblemen," except by the most orthodox, but in many areas the restrictions are quite pronounced.

Debt Produces Slavery

In many cases, according to the Labor Commissioner, "the Panchama field laborer is so tied up with debt to his master (who takes care the debt shall not be redeemed) that he is practically in the position of a serf. The system of man-mortgage by which the laborer binds himself and frequently his heirs to service till a debt is redeemed is well known . . . . In the course of the special officer's inquiries in Tanjore and other districts it has been found that in many parts the Panchama, whether laborer or small farmer, is continuously a loser.

"Theoretically, all government offices are open to persons of every class and creed, but a rich and respectable gentleman who recently returned from abroad was made to go outside a certain public office when it was discovered that he was of low caste. In the recent Ganjam famine it was found necessary to find work for the outcasts on a different part of the works from the other laborers. Even in the presence of actual famine, the rules of distance had to be obeyed."

There are in the British colonies and Dominions no "helots" of any race, but what is tantamount to slavery has undoubtedly existed in Madras, though forbidden by the penal code. An investigation by the Royal Commission led to the discovery that professional men—doctors and lawyers—were sons of those who emigrated from India as simple coolies and would never have advanced beyond that stage had they remained there to be hounded by the aristocracy.

CANADIAN MOUNTED POLICE CELEBRATE.

It Is Fifty Years Since This Law-and-Order Outfit Was Founded.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police celebrate. It's just 50 years since the founding of this celebrated law-and-order outfit. Movies and fiction have made them famous, deservedly so.

It's said of the "Mounties": "They never come back without their man." A case is even on record where one of them walked into Regina headquarters with his prisoner after a 30-years' chase.

Cost a lot of money, yes. But it was worth it, if only for its psychological effect. News of such exploits spreads all through the Far North.

When the Royal Mounted were organized in 1873, Indians were carrying on a feud with the soldiers, who wore blue uniforms. To impress the Indians that they were not soldiers, the Mounted decided to wear red coats—and still do.

The red coats made excellent targets. Indians naturally decided that the wearers must be fearless—just as our Indians respected the frontiersmen who let their hair grow long to indicate they weren't afraid of being scalped.

Respect for the law begins with respect for law enforcers.

The life of a Royal Mounted member is not all gun-play. He explores for his Government, makes maps, mineral formations. He watches for forest fires in his district and helps fight them. He tells settlers how to farm scientifically. Arriving during an epidemic, he turns out to be an able doctor.

All around, the Royal Mounted are more active in the fields of peace than in playing Sherlock Holmes in the country of muskeg and caribou.

RADIO NEWS

There are two big essentials to the advance of human affairs. One is transportation. The other is communication.

Until the year 1900 the private citizen was dependent upon wholesale forms of transportation. There was the railroad and the steamship, and there was nothing else, 7xcept of course, for such special things as adventure and pleasure.

In the year 1900, the automobile became practical for the individual, and the whole world, as far as there was a road, became open to the private individual. A profound change in human affairs was brought about. And now the limitation of the road is to be eliminated by the flying machine. The entire earth is about to be made available for private transportation.

Communication must accompany transportation. Radio gives this communication. But unless we have private radio for the individual, we are just where we were in 1900. We need individual, world-wide, radio to match individual world-wide transportation. That is what organized amateur radio, in the form of the American Radio Relay League, has accomplished.

Amateur transmitting stations exist in the private residences of over 16,000 American citizens. Several thousand exist in the Dominion of Canada. MacMillan at the North Pole is in communication with any citizen on the North American continent by organized amateur relay. England, France, Holland, Argentina, Cuba, Mexico, Australia and New Zealand have several hundred amateurs and private communication has begun to leak across the oceans from all of them.

From the American Radio Relay League will spring a World Amateur Radio League. What man dares to say what the effect of this international world-wide acquaintanceship will be? Political barriers will fall as they have fallen between the United States and the Dominion of Canada. The influence upon world peace will be profound.

That is where amateur radio is leading us. That is the destiny of The American Radio Relay League.

LEFT HOME TO GIVE BURGLARS A CHANCE

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Burglars entered the home of Isaac M. Oshinsky, Brooklyn, so often that ten days ago Mr. Oshinsky and his family moved out. Mr. Oshinsky, a cloak manufacturer, took up quarters in a hotel in Manhattan, determined that he would not live in his own home again until he could have assurance that his family would not be endangered by marauders. He was moved to that action by the fifth burglary in his home since last August.

He emigrated from Kings County on the very day of the fifth loss. And on the very day that he moved out three private detectives moved in. They supplied themselves with several days' provisions and agreed not to quit the premises until the burglar had had at least a reasonable time to come back for the things he had missed.

Nothing happened until Sunday night. That night the three detectives said they saw a man jimmying the bathroom window on the ground floor of the house. They arrested after a chase, Hans Gebrin of the White House Lodging on the Bowery, Manhattan.

Police at the Parkville Station, Brooklyn, where Gebrain was locked up on a burglary charge, said they found on him a gold fountain pen and diamond stick pin, which were among the loot stolen from the Oshinsky residence ten days ago.

In the first robbery of the Oshinsky house the loss was said to have been $20,000 in jewelry, cash and silverware.

The police said they knew Gebrain also as Hans Walk, Hans Bever, Hans Lang and Hans Brauer, and that in January, 1914, he was sentenced to the Elmira Reformatory for burglary; in 1916 he got two years in Sing Sing for burglary; in 1918 he got four years on the same charge, and in July, 1922, he was sent to the penitentiary for a year for burglary.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

Wealth consists of all useful, material things owned by human beings. Money is not always wealth. Wealth is usually not money.

All wealth, of whatever kind, must have the following three qualities:

1. It must be useful.
2. It must be material.
3. It must be owned by human beings.

Anything which we want is useful, whether it is good for us or not. Material is anything that has substance, weight, and can be handled. Ownership needs no explanation.

There are many things which are not wealth because they possess only one or two of the three essential elements. For instance, air is useful and material, but is not owned by human beings. Good health is useful and owned, but is not material.

Money is material and owned by human beings, but it may, or may not be useful. It would not be useful on a deserted island or if it had depreciated too much, as in the case of the German mark or the Russian ruble.

Money can be considered wealth only as long as it can be exchanged for something which we want, because it is the exchange value which determines whether or not it is useful.

A common stock is often more valuable than a preferred, in spite of the names.

Since preferred stock is relatively safer than common its dividend rate is usually fixed, on the theory that a stock which takes less risk is entitled to a limited return.

Consequently after the preferred dividend is paid, the common stock receives all the further benefit from earnings.

In prosperous years the major part of the earnings may belong to the common, and naturally part of them are declared in larger cash dividends. Thus the rate on the common may be higher than that on the preferred.

That is why it frequently happens that the common stock sells at a higher price than the preferred.

Mothers Should Not NEGLECT BRONCHITIS In the Babies

Mrs. E. Langdon, Kingston, Ont., writes:—"My baby had bronchitis when he was two weeks old, he recovered from the attack but took it again, several months later, and on account of the severity I was almost panic-stricken to know what to do for him. My mother advised me to try Dr. Woods' Norway Pine Syrup, as she had used it for several years with splendid results.

I got a bottle, and after I had used it I could see a decided improvement in him; after several bottle he was completely relieved.

My boy is now two years old, and he has never had an attack of bronchitis since.

As a mother, raising a family, I am very grateful to know that I have found a real remedy for bad colds and bronchitis, as it lifts care and anxiety from an anxious mother's shoulders."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is 35c. a bottle; the large family size 60c.; put up onl yby The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

LOVING GOOD MUSIC

The purpose of a music memory contest is to develop the ear for good music and teach one to appreciate the masters and their compositions. A young child looks forward to the prize, but at the same time he has acquired benefits that will not be readily forgotten, while an older child works for more definite results. In the contests only the best music is given, which is to be identified together with the names of the composers. The contests are especially beneficial to those who do not have music in the home; and they may be the means of awakening latent talent of some future musician. The earlier in life a child enters these contests the more apt he will be to appreciate good music.

ORCHARD POLLINATION DISCUSSED BY EXPERT

What to Do With Self-Sterile and Self-Fertile Varieties of Fruits.

Many of our commonly grown varieties of fruits are "self-sterile," that is their blossoms will not develop into fruits when pollinated with their own pollen, but require pollen from another variety. The grower who is planning to set out new orchards should carefully study the question of self-sterility and plant accordingly.

Peaches Planted in Blocks.

Peaches do not need cross-pollination, and can be planted in solid blocks of one variety with assurance of full crops. They are "self-fertile." Almost all of our other tree fruits, however, are either completely "self-sterile" or partially so. Partially self-sterile varieties may give fair crops in seasons when bloom has been heavy and weather conditions favorable during blooming. A set of three or four per cent. of the blossoms in a heavy bloom will give a crop. It is in seasons of light bloom or of unfavorable "setting" weather that "cross-pollination" is so essential.

Bartlett Pears Partly Self-Sterile

A given variety of fruit may vary in fertility with climatic conditions or other modifying factors. In California, the Bartlett pear is partially self-sterile in the coast valleys and is greatly benefited when other varieties are interplanted. Higher up in the foothills of California the Bartlett is sufficiently self-fertile to give good crops even when planted in solid blocks. In Ontario the Bartlett is practically self-sterile, and must have other varieties planted with it to insure good crops.

Sour Cherries Self-Fertile

Sour cherries are self-fertile, and can be planted in solid blocks of one variety. Sweet cherries on the other hand are all self-sterile, and in some cases, as in the varieties Bing, Lambert and Napoleon, are also "inter-sterile"; that is the pollen of Napoleon for example will not fertilize either Bing or Lambert. Black Tartarian is one of the best varieties to plant for pollination purposes. Most varieties of plums are also self-sterile. Apples vary in fertility, but there are few varieties which do not materially benefit from interplanting of varieties so as to secure cross-pollination.

What varieties of each fruit should be planted together for cross-pollination purposes? The problem is largely one of blooming date. The Experimental Station will be pleased to advise each grower as to his own particular plolination problem.—E. F. Palmer, Hort. Exp. Station, Vineland Station.

BREAD HOARDING RIFE IN GERMANY

Fashionable to Stow Away Several Loaves Against a Rainy Day — High Prices Are Cause.

By CARL D. GROAT

BERLIN, Dec. 14. — (United Press)—Bread hoarding is the latest mode in Germany.

Official restrictions, plus enormous day-to-day price jumps, have made it fashionable to stow away several loaves of bread "against a rainy day." The ordinary German loaf is nearly a yard long, made of Black rye flour, and costs anywhere from 15 cents to 40 cents, according to valuta fluctuations.

The Government has ordered that no bread shall be sold except with "Brotkarten"— bread cards— but nowadays one pays little attention to ordinanances, especially when they are issued by the dozen daily.

So one, fearing that the morrow will bring no bread, buys "under the hand" several loaves at a fancy price and stows them preciously, like diamonds, beneath lock and key in the food chamber.

Some bakeries still respect the law to the extent of refusing to sell over one loaf to one person.

Then the housewife becomes ingenuious. If she has children of her own she sends them along for more loaves; if she is childless, she borrows the neighbor's youngsters to make a "Schiebung"—an illicit deal —for her.

CHRISTMAS WAIFS.

"It came upon the midnight clear,
That glorious song of old—"
Quaint Christmas waifs were wont to sing
As 'round the lanes they strolled—
Gay Yuletide minstrels they, to whom
Wassail and coin were doled!

But, nowadays, there stand outside
Our homes, unwarmed, unfed,
Poor waifs who shiver with the cold,
Whose hands are chapped and red,
They neither pipe nor carols raise
For lack of daily bread.

Shabby and starved and pitiful,
How can such children sing
Or greetings give to Mary's Son
In joyful caroling?
They have no part in mirth whose lives
Are maimed and suffering.

Oh, slow of heart! The friendless poor
We compassionates
Since blessed is! The little Christ
Roams with these Christmas waifs,
Give, lest you drive this year away
His blessing from your gates!
—Mazie V. Caruthers, in the New York Times.

AUSTRIA RAISES FREIGHT RATES.

VIENNA, Dec. 14.—(Associated Press)—In an effort to meet the railway deficit, Austria has increased freight rates 10 percent. Even with the increase the rates are far below pre-war time. Advances in passenger rater are under consideration.

WINTER EGG PRODUCTION

It is high time to think of preparations for the winter. The houses should be thoroughly disinfected and lime washed; leaky roofs, broken glass, torn cottons and cracks in the walls mended and everything put into A1 shape before the pullets are brought in from the range.

This should be done sufficiently early so that the pullets will not receive a check. When they are brought in conditions should be made as much as possible as they were when on range; that is, the houses should be kept as open as possible so that the pullets will not suffer from the confinement—as no doubt many of them have been used to roosting in the trees.

Feed scratch grain sparingly so as to keep the birds active and give them all the green feed you can get them to eat. If a variety of green feed is used and it is given in various forms the birds can be induced to eat more of it than if only one kind is used. Sprouted oats, chopped clover, rape, cabbage or anything in the way of green feed that will prompt the birds should be given them. It may be used both separately and chopped up and mixed in a moist mash.

Unless care is taken when the birds are put in, to feed sparingly with grain and heavily with green feed they are liable to become sluggish; if any tendency to this is noticed Epsom salts should be freely used, about a pound to 100 birds.

The following methods of feeding have given good results:

A hopper of dry mash composed of equal parts bran, middlings, cornmeal and oat chop and half part tankage is kept before the birds at all times, as is also water, grit, oyster shell and charcoal. When possible milk is also supplied. When milk is not available additional meat food must be supplied. In the morning the birds are given a very light feed of scratch grain scattered in the litter, green feed is also supplied, at noon a moist mash is given in which is mixed a goodly proportion of chopped greens, at night a full feed of scratch is fed.

Where lights are used—and they add greatly to the early winter production—an extra feed may be worked in.

GETS GOOD POSITION.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Dec. 14.—Miss Eileen McBride, niece of the late Sir Richard McBride, former Premier of British Columbia, has been appointed by the grain men of British Columbia to the position of clearance clerk for the grain-clearing station here.

GERMANS FOOLED BY BOGUS COUNT.

Self-Styled Royalty Find It Easy to Flimflam the German Public.

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—(Associated Press)—Democratic Germany has not ceased to worship at the throne of royalty and because of this bogus princes with hyphenated and unpronounceable names often flimflam the German public.

A make-believe prince with a sense of humor and taste for expensive automobiles and high living recently lived high in a number of German cities at the expense of exclusive hotels and garages which cater to the high-born by assuming the title Prince Hanshorst von Isenburg-Bierstein. His name varied from time to time.

In North Germany he posed as Count von Ohr, or Count of the Ear Sometimes he paid his bills in bad checks when proprietors became too insistent, but generally he moved along before they got tired of extending credit to royalty.

Berlin police officials have run down the man's record and say he is a twenty-four-year-old salesman who has been known in police circles of North Germany for several years. In some cases where he was not able to obtain an automobile he engaged chauffeurs and explained to hotelkeepers that his auto was coming in a few days.

HOW CAN HON. SCHOOLBOY STUDY BESIDE HON. GIRLS.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—The greatest fault with the American school system is its co-educational method, in the opinion of Jinnosuke Suto, director of the Municipal Girls' High School in Osaka, Japan, who has been studying Chicago schools.

M. Suto opined that, regardless of a boy's ambition, he can not keep his mind on his work with an attractive girl sitting beside him. He stated the rule also worked inversely with girls.

He also remarked that many American boys ride to school in automobiles, whereas in Japan a boy must be rich to afford a bicycle.

NO TROUBLE TO FIND MAN FOR THIS PLACE

TWICKENHAM, Eng., Dec. 14.—(Associated Press).—The official ale taster to the Duke of Northumberland, Frederick Stuckley, of Sion Manor, Isleworth, is dead. In the good old days when English ale was real ale, pungent, rich in color and possessing a kick unobtainable from any of the lighter, frothy brews at one time familiar in America, many Englishmen considered the ducal ale taster the most fortunate man in the King's realm.

He had the authority to enter a public house, call for beer, taste it, and condemn it if not of good quality. In recent years, however, he had not taken advantage of his official position.

The office of ale taster extends back to the time when the Saxons ruled in England. The injunction to the official on assuming his duties was as follows:

"You shall swear that you shall well and truly serve the King's Majesty and the Lord of this Leet, in the office of ale taster.

"You shall have diligent care during the time of your being in office to all the brewers and tipplers within your office, that they and every one of them do make good and wholesome ale and beer for man's body, and that the same be sold according to the prices limited and appointed by the King's Justices of the Peace."

But He Went Down Fighting!

It's the last stand of a heroic fighter. Half a dozen angry hounds at his throat. The water red from his blood. His body, torn in a dozen places, sinks lower and lower. Now, only his head remains above the surface. A snarl—and all is over. The hounds bark gleefully. They got their prey. Mister Wolf is dead. It all occurred in the field trials of the South Texas Wolf Hunters' Association at San Antonio. Nine wolves and a deer were killed in the three days the event was on.

ECONOMIC BREAK-DOWN IS HARD ON GERMANY.

Markets Afford Very Little In the Way of Foodstuffs.

KOTTBUS, Dec. 14.—(Associated Press)—Rural Germany is suffering the same sort of disorganization and demoralization that is going on in the great cities and industrial centers. This city of 40,00 persons is located in the center of a comparatively fertile argricultural region 40 miles from Berlin. Still the markets afford very little in the way of foodstuffs.

There are no eggs, no milk, no fruit and very few vegetables of any sort to be had in the shops and markets. Farmers refuse to bring their products in town. They cannot buy anything they need with paper marks and prefer to eat their products rather than sell them for paper which is practically worthless to them.

Even in the small villages surrounding Kottbus the situation is much the same. Persons who want to obtain chickens, eggs, turkeys and potatoes make trips into the country and carry foreign money or clothing with them to exchange for foodstuffs.

PRINCE AND PRINCESS RUN PARIS RESTAURANT

By JOHN O'BRIEN.

PARIS, Dec. 14 (United Press).—"Hey, there, colonel, a little bread, please."

"How about my soup, captain?"

"Say, where's that filet de sole I ordered ten minutes ago, major?"

These and other similar, sometimes more forcible, demands are heard twice daily in a little restaurant near the Madeleine. It was started by the Princess Marishkine, granddaughter of the Grand Duke Nicholas, who led the armies of the Czar of all the Russias intil the debacle. The Prince Narishkine mixes the cocktails and other drinks at the bar.

The Princess surveys the help, consisting of ex-officers of the Russian army, from pantry boys to waiters. An aunt of the Princess sits at the cashier's desk and checks the figures presented by the waiters.

OLD-TIME OBSERVERS GOT ANSWER IN SKIES TO KNOTTY QUESTION

A Girl Born in January Is Very Likely to Become a Good Housewife.

PRAGUE, Dec. 14.—(Associated Press)—From time to time Prague gives up to some persistent delver in records of the past that are not without interest. For it is an ancient city and its museums and bookstalls are filled with chronicles of what its people said and did in other centuries. A recent discovery is an old book on astronomy which shows that the men of that day spent no little time in endeavors to read what they called the "enigma of the ages," in other words, their womankind.

Based on the influence supposed to be exerted on humans by the constellation of the planets in the month in which they were born, this volume analyzes girls, according to the calendar, as follows:

A girl born in January is very likely to become a good housewife. She will incline to melancholy, but will have a gentle disposition. February girls will be good mothers, and faithful.

March maidens, however, will be locqacious, contentious and quarrelsome, while April babies will grow up to be mercurial and unsteady women.

May guarantees merry and good-tempered girls, while June gives them passionate and fiery temperaments, with an inclination to superficiality.

July produces the roses among women, according to this old sage; beautiful but thorny. Born a month later they are amiable and sensible, but rather keen for rich husbands.

Girls born in September are of fine susceptibilities and always ready to help others; they will, therefore, be welcomed everywhere, but should guard against being imposed upon by selfish people. October favors the earth with creatures who surpass all others of the sex as to the depth and ardor of love.

Women born in November are kind hearted and friendly; if they are not is it always the fault of somebody else, never their own. The last month of the year brings forth racy and very good-looking girls. Unfortunately they cannot be recommended to earnest men, for they are very extravagant and always on the hunt for sensations.

XXIV. (Continued)

Once more he heard the key rattle, but higher . . . almost in his consciousness . . . for the first time it seemed to sound a double note of warning . . . he had a sudden vision of a locked door—and not a door locked on a mere secret.

He swung about impatiently. The explanation of his mood was this hideous interval to be got through. Heaven alone knew how. No wonder he had felt a sensation of terror. When a man is in the unsatisfied stages of love he must expect occasional attacks of greensickness, sullen passions intensified by unreasoning fear. And he was luckier than most. He had been the confidant of men in love, with hope deferred or blasted, and although he had been sympathetic enough, and convinced that men had a for deeper capacity for suffering than women, still had his pity been tempered by a certain contempt. Those had been the times when he had flouted the idea that he was basically romantic; and that he had never made a jackass of himself over any woman had induced a feeling of superiority that had expanded his ego. Now he was convinced that his capacity for love put their to shame, and he was filled with pride at the thought. Still—he wished it were Saturday night.

He was crossing the room to his solitary table when he saw Jim Oglethorpe enter. His first impulse was to avoid him. The restaurant was well-filled and he could easily take a table in a corner with his back to the room. But dining alone was a melancholy business at best—and tonight! If Oglethorpe brought up Madame Zattiany's name he could change the subject or state bluntly that he had his reasons for not wishing to discuss her. As he stood hesitating, Oglethorpe caught sight of him and almost ran across the room his face, which had looked heavy and worried, glowing with pleasure.

"Jove, this is luck!" he exclaimed. "Alone? So am I. Got in this morning and found Janet had a dinner on for those infernally noisy friends of hers. Got something to think over, so thought I'd come out here. This is really luck, as I was going to hunt you up tomorrow. Let's sit here. I want to talk."

He had led the way to a table in a remote corner, secluded, so far. He beckoned the head waiter, who agreed that it should remain secluded. Then he asked Clavering to order the dinner, and, folding his arms, stared out of the window, his face sagging once more. He was still a young man, not more than forty-five, but in spite of his love of out-door sport he showed a more consistent love of eating and drinking in flabby muscles and pouches under the eyes. It was an amiable, rather weak but stubborn face that had been handsome in youth when his eyes were bright and clear skin covered firm muscles, and it would be handsome again when years had compelled him to diet and his already faded hair had turned white; his features were regular and his figure well-knit under its premature accumulations.

He produced a flask from his pocket when the waiter had discreetly turned his back, and their ice-water might have passed for cold tea.

"Think I'll come to the point," he said. "You know me well enough not to mind anything I say."

Clavering glanced up from his oysters in alarm. "There's just one question I won't discuss," he said sharply.

Oglethorpe stared. "You don't mean to say you're interested in her? So much the better! And it strikes me you can't have any objection to discussing her with me. I'm her father, ain't I?"

"Her father—are you talking of Janet?"

"Who else? I'm worried as the devil. Have been ever since I got in this morning. I'd telegraphed I was coming, and when I got to the house Molly told me that mother wanted to see me at once and I posted down there. It was about Janet, and you know more about it than I do."

"I suppose I know what you mean. But it turned out all right. She happened to meet me, not some man who might have annoyed her. Of course she shouldn't have taken such a risk, but what can you do with these flappers? They're all in league together and you might as well let them go their little pace. It won't last. They'll soon be older, and I don't suppose you intend to play the heavy father and lock her up."

"No, but I'd like damn well to get her married. Mother told me a pretty tale. It seems she made a row at Sherry's last night, making you and some lady you had with you as conspicuous as herself. Mrs. Vane was there and carried it straight to mother. Mother's no fool and had already got on to this younger generation business and given Janey one or two tongue lashings, but she never dreamed it had gone as far as it looks. Roaming the streets alone at one on the morning! She'd undoubtedly been drinking last night—God! I've a notion to take a switch to her. And I suppose she was pretty well lit the night you picked her up. I've never seen a hint of it. Janny's spoilt enough. Her mother never had the slightest control over her and she could always get round me. But she won't in the future. I'll get top-hand somehow. God! My daughter! Tell me your side of it, will you?"

Clavering, who was genuinely fond of Oglethorpe, and believed, moreover, that he had not yet heard of Madame Zattiany, gave a cautious and colorless account of the adventure.

"It is possible that she had had a cocktail or two," he concluded. "But you must expect that. If the flapper should adopt a coat of arms no doubt it would be a cocktail rampant with three cigarettes argent on a field de rouge. However, it wouldn't be a bad idea if you took her in hand. That is, if you can."

"I'll do it all right. D'you mean to tell me she was at Farren's without a chaperon?"

"There may have been a chaperon to each couple for all I know."

"You know damn well there wasn't. No chaperon would have left her alone."

"But surely, Jim, you know that chaperons are practically obsolete. They don't gee with cocktails and petting parties. The New Freedom! The Reign of Youth!"

"Damn nonsense. No, I didn't know it. I supposed she was properly chaperoned, as girls of her class always have been. You know how much I care for Society, and I haven't got to the chicken stage either. Took it for granted that certain cast-iron conventions were still observed, in our set at least. Of course I've seen her drink cocktails at home and thought it rather cute, and I've rubbed the paint off her cheeks and lips once or twice. Girls are making up nowadays as if they were strum pets, but some little fool started it, and you know the old saying: 'What one monkey does the other monkey must do.' It never worried me. Of course I've heard more or less about these young idiots; they're always being discussed and written up; but somehow you never think those things can happen in your own family. . . . I went straight home and blew up Molly—haven't had a sight of Janet yet—and of course she bawled. Always does. When I told her that Janet had been at Farren's alone she protested that Janet had told her she was going to bed early that night. Even last night, when she had a theatre party, she understood that some young married woman was along. But Molly's a fool. What on earth am I to do with Janet? There were no such girls in my young days. Some of them were bad uns, but as discreet as you make 'em. Didn't disgrace their families. Some of them used to drink, right enough, but they were as smooth as silk in public, and went to a sanitarium to sober up when it got the best of 'em. But these girls appear to be about as discreet as street-walkers. You don't think they kick over the traces, do you?"

The Mother of Prosperity

"Where the cow is kept and cared for, civilization advances, lands grow richer, homes grow better, debts grow fewer."

The above is an extract from the preface of a book entitled "The Cow, the Mother of Prosperity," copies of which are being distributed by the Bank of Montreal. This book is probably the best popular treatise on dairy farming which has ever been published. It has been written with a view not only to guiding the farmer in the selection and breeding of the best and most profitable types of daily cows, but also to guiding him in the care and feeding od dairy cows in every condition of climate and soil throughout the continent of North America. The author, Mr. Ralph A. Hayne, of the Agricultural Extension Department, International Harvester Company, in his foreword, describes the cow as one of the greatest blessings to the human race. "No nation or people," he says, "has become highly civilized without her. She produces the best human food on earth. She makes this health-building, strength-giving food from grass and coarse plants. Without her agriculture is not permanent or prosperous, people are not healthy or happy. Wherever the cow has taken her rightful place, and man has done his part we find farms furnishing an income every week of the year. We find homes with conveniences. We find intelligent, thrifty, debt-free people with minds and hearts alert from steady employment. We find a good citizenship, a good agriculture. Truly the cow is the mother of prosperity."

He proceeds to describe typical localities to which the cow would bring prosperity. Then he tells how to select the right kind of cows, describing in detail the good and bad points of cows from head to tail. The breeding, care and feeding of cows, the best kind of feeds in various localities, the construction of barns, the making of silage, the testing of cows and their milk, methods of milking and the type and care of dairy utensils, the best methods of marketing milk, the care of calves, either for rearing or for the production of veal, the use of manure, the best breeds for varying conditions and the treatment of diseases are all dealt with fully and in plain language that anyone can understand.

A valuable feature of the book is the fact that every point dealt with is illustrated by photographs specially taken for the purpose or by diagrams Over 250 photographs are reproduced.

The Bank of Montreal is doing a splendid work for farmers by having a special edition of many thousands of this valuable book printed for free distribution throughout farming districts in Canada. We understand that the demand for the book has exceeded all expectations, but that a reserve supply has been secured, so that a limited number is still available free of cost. Application for the book should be made to any branch of the Bank of Montreal.

RUSSIA TO FIGHT THE BIG TRUSTS.

Peasants and Workers Investigate the Management of Syndicates and Trusts.

(By JOHN GRAUDENZ)

MOSCOW, Dec. 11 (United Press).—"It is quite possible that some of the trusts or syndicates will be destroyed, following the investigation as to the management, or mismanagement, being made now by the commissariate of peasants and workers inspection," Garan I. Krumin, chief editor of the Economical Life, tole the United Press in an exclusive interview.

"It was our paper which started the campaign against the policy of raising the prices of all industrial and manufactured goods beyond reason, exorcised various trusts and syndicates. The practice has usually been this way: When a trust was formed from ten to twenty-five per cent were added to the prices fixed by the factories. And when, later on, a syndicate was formed out of various combined trusts, the same amount was added again.

"This method of private capitalistic countries can not go on in a country with state capitalism and our paper is advocating the idea that the trusts and syndicates ought to be able to sell the goods at the prices set for themselves by each factory. If they are unable to earn the cost of their existence by better sales and management they ought ot be liquidated and the various factories ought to sell their goods separately.

100 Per Cent Dividends

"A very important reason for the incredibly increased prices is the desire of the trusts to show a good balance sheet. But what would an American business man say to a dividend of some times far more than 100 per cent? He would perhaps say, 'Thank you,' but at the same time that business could not be sound and something was sure to be fishy. And so it is. The consequences are the present sales crisis, heretofore unexperienced in Russia.

"There is another thing. These high dividends have been maintained despite the fact that immense amounts have been spent for the reconstruction and installation of the various factories and administrative offices. In any other sound business, these amounts would probably be amortized within a score or more years, but our syndicates have done this all in one single year. These sums could only be accumulated thrtugh raising the prices of goods.

"It is known that the government ordered a reduction of prices by 25 per cent. This, of course, again could only be done in a country with state capitalism. I am convinced that a further reduction of about the same percentage would not cause many trusts and syndicates to go bankrupt.

"While the disinclination of the peasant to buy goods at present high prices is an embarrassment, it also has a good side. The peasant only sells his products when he needs money to buy industrial and other goods. Unless he gets a very high price for these products, the peasant turns to raising more livestock and horses.

PAGED BY RADIO

Besides complete listening-in service maintained by a large apartment hotel in Philadelphia, the tenants and guests enjoy the novelty of being paged by radio. A central control at the office connects with all important parts of the hotel, where announcements are made and guests called.

STREET CARS CEASE ON ACCOUNT LOSSES

BRESLAU, Dec. 14.—(Associated Press)—Unable to bear the deficit piled up daily by the numerous lines, Breslau has suspended street car operation. The situation resulted from the depressed financial and commercial conditions. Recently street car fares were insufficient to even pay the wages of employes, and there was little chance of increasing fares because the mark's decline was swifter than the time needed to put increased fares into effect.

Similar steps have been taken in many smaller cities, but Breslau is the first great metropolitan city to abandon its tramways.

Dr. Erich Gloeden, regarded as an authority on on town building, says German towns are now paying for the sins of their fathers in town building, and urges a revision in plans for the future work so that all workers shall live within 15 minutes' walk from their places of business. He argues that factories built on present-day plans are not unsightly nor objectionable to be placed near residences. He would locate parks, churches and schools in the open country surrounding the industrial center.

Dr. Gloeden would not eliminate street cars entirely, but would have them operated as express lines furnishing a through service to connect the various industrial centers.

RADIO FIREBOATS.

Fires along Boston Harbor, Mass., have less chance of spreading since the installation recently of radio apparatus on three fireboats. The boats patrol the shore as far as Neponsit and are able to keep in touch with land more easily than by means of the signal light system heretofore in use.

KIWANIS CLUB SAY FAREWELL TO J. ROLLINS

Popularly Known as "Jim" Among Kiwanians, the Pastor of St. Andrew's Church Will Be Missed by His Associates.

A PRESENTATION

Referring to Rev. James Rollins as a valued member of the Kiwanis Club, Jack Allen conveyed the regrets of Kiwanians in the departure of this popular pastor to his new charge in Renfrew. The occasion was the weekly luncheon of the club, with Jack McKone, and later, Charlie Cook, presiding.

"We all regret that Jim Rollins has decided to leave us," Jack Allen said, "for he has proven himself among us as a man." Addressing Mr. Rollins, he said: "We trust your life may be happy and successful in your new field, You have been not alone a minister of the church in Peterborough, but a very eminent citizen, and have done all that any man outside as well as a minister could do. You served overseas in two capacities and returned as a chaplain. The men appreciated your services and have told me you were a man among men."

Mr. Rollins was presented with a silver mounted umbrella suitably inscribed ,and with a gold eversharp pencil.

In his reply, Mr. Rollins said he had enjoyed the fellowship of the Kiwanis gatherings. They are distinctly worth while, he said, adding that he would never forget his associations with the club. "I leave Peterborough with real regret," he said, "and it will be in my mind every day for years."

Address by Rev. Lloyd.

The speaker of the day was Rev. O. G. H. Lloyd, who gave a short address on the life of David Lloyd George Owing to the short time at his disposal, the speaker was able to give but the smallest glimpse into the life of the war-time Premier of Britain, but he made his remarks interesting to the audience.

"I believe David Lloyd George will come out from behind the cloud where he is now hiding, and be the greatest man in Britain yet," was Mr. Lloyd's introduction. "In fact, he is the only man for Britain in the present situation."

The speaker believed Lloyd George should have the chief place of honor in the Great War, for he carried the burden and proved himself a type, a symbol, of his day. "He embodies the sympathies, the wrongs and the passions of a nation and a day. He is an idealist hoping for a great dawn for humanity."

A HEAVY FROST DESTROYED CROP.

Girls Have Market in Their Front Yard, to Help Keep Wolf From the Door

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 14. — Three years ago a heavy frost destroyed 53 acres of fruit trees on the farm of Mrs. John Sass and Mrs. Anna Hopf, sisters, near Lakeside, O.

This stroke of ill fortune, instead of proving their financial ruin, as they expected it would, really set them on the road to financial independence.

Forced to do something to keep the wolf from the door, the sisters began an experiment with a little farm market in their front yard. They used a small table to display the produce, and placed their children in charge.

Table to Shop

They expected a small patronage from passing motorists, but little did they dream they would attract the customers that soon started to flock to their roadside mart.

The result was so satisfactory that next season they built a ten-foot counter to replace the table and erected a large bulletin board.

At the end of the second year they had paid off all of the obligations against the farm. Now they have a regular shop known as "Pomona Shop," in keeping with the name of their farm, "Pomona Acres."

They net in a single summer as much profit as the average town grocery store makes in a year.

The experience of these sisters is typical of that of tens of thousands of farmers the country over. The automobile is responsible. It is reversing the old plan whereby the farmer brought his goods to the market. Now the consumer comes to the farmer.

The roadside market is making business men of the farmers and is dealing a stiff blow to the middleman. Thousands of them are making, in three or four months, incomes as large or larger than the annual salary of the average city dweller.

With the profit from these wayside marts, hundreds of farmers are paying off their mortgages just as did Mrs. Sass and Mrs. Hopf. Other hundreds have bought automobiles or radio sets with the income and others have spent the money in travel.

The National Farm Market Bureau here recently sent out 21,592 questionnaires to farmers in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin. The bureau received 5,481 replies from farmers who were running bona fide roadside markets.

Ninety-four per cent. reported financial success, 41 per cent. declaring they had made $2,000 or more in a season. Fourteen per cent. had made more than $5,000.

Other answers revealed that women were conducting 21 per cent. of the markets and that 34 per cent. were all-year stands, selling some commodity in winter.

Travel on Profits

Eighteen per cent. declared they had raised farm mortgages from the profits; 2,214 purchased automobiles, 708 installed radio sets, 2,612 bought pianos, phonographs or other musical instruments and 312 spent the winter in Florida or California on their market profits.

One hundred per cent. said their profit was greater this way than dealing through a middleman and 3,168 sold all their products through their own stands.

The average number of customers per market daily is estimated at 38.

But one of the roadside stands reported 1,436 customers in a single day.

All of which proves that the roadside market is here to stay.

PROMISCUOUS USE BULLETIN BOARDS

A Few Individuals Think It is Unnecessary to Secure Permission.

The Examiner finds it necessary to advise the public that the bulletin board which is maintained in front of its office is for the dissemination of news and not for the promiscuous posting of notices calling attention to public meetings. Only in cases of emergency will the Examiner permit the Board to be used for such notices, where it is not possible to convey the desired information to the public through the newspaper, and only when such request is made through the office. As it is now, individuals come along and plaster notices allover the board without any permission from the office and with no apparent concern about defacing the board. There are lots of poster boards around town that can be used for this purpose, but we believe it would be just as necessary to secure permission for their use as it should be to use the Examiner bulletin.

ELEVENTH ARREST HOME BANK TRIAL

Daly Secretary Was Placed Under Arrest This Morning.

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—The eleventh arrest in the Home Bank case was made to-day when T. S. O'Connor, private secretary of H. J. Daly, President of the Bank, was arrested in Daly's office by inspectors of the Criminal investigation department of the Ontario Government, on a warrant as a material witness for the prosecution against the directors and officials of the institution, O'Connor's name was mentioned in the report of G. T. Clarkson, liquidator at meeting of depositors, as being indebted in upwards of $30,000 in connection with Home Bank shares pledged by Mr. Daly, to American Banks.

After hearing counsel for an hour this morning Mr. Justice Fisher at Osgoode Hall made an order appointing G. T. Clarkson and I. E. Weldon who have been acting as provisional liquidators of Home Bank, permanent liquidators of that institution, Justice Fisher, announced that if he is satisfied that he has authority to appoint inspectors of the estate, he will name eleven chosen by the creditors at the meeting. His Lordship was under impression that one inspector from each of the six provinces affected would have been sufficient. An additional order was made granting liquidators authority to borrow from other banks immediately sum not greater than $3,750,000 for the purpose of paying an interim dividend of twenty-five per cent to depositors. The only objection raised to appointment of Messrs. Clarkson and Weldon as liquidators was the point voiced by R. A. Reid as to conduct of meeting of creditors in respect of voting by proxies. It is also suggested that the Trust and Guarantee Company of Toronto should be associated with the liquidators.

Judgment Reserved.

After hearing a long argument by counsel, Mr. Justice Middleton to-day reserved judgment on the application of the defendant directors and officials of the Home Bank for a mandamus compelling County Judge Coatsworth to proceed with the trials of their cases under "Speedy Trials Act."

The object of the defendants, it is understood, is to secure the trial before the county judge, without a jury. W. N. Tilley presented the application for the mandamus today on behalf of the defendants, and D. L. McCarthy, acting for the Attorney-General of Ontario, opposed it.

Mr. Tilley contended that if a man was committed for trial at one assize and is to be tried at the next assize, he might elect to be tried by a county judge, under Ontario procedure.

DECISIVE BATTLE IS NOW PENDING MEXICO

President Obregon Planning to Wipe Out the Rebels With One Stroke

By Frederick G. Neitmer, United Press Staff Correspondent)

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 14.—(11 p.m. delayed in transmission)—A decisive battle in the west, wiping out the rebel forces under General Estrada in Jalisco, rather than a final crushing of the revolutionary army of General Guadaloupe Sanchez in Vera Cruz by the full force of Federal arms such appeared tonight to be the plans of President Obregon, now directing operations from the field.

One reason for starting yesterday was that Obregon is extremely superstitious. A relative of the President told the United Press that Obregon said before leaving for the front that all the big battles of the last revolution were won by him on the thirteenth.

It was thought Obregon might seek to launch his Jalisco attack on this date.

The President said before leaving he did not expect to be gone from the Capitol more than a week. He told friends he would telegraph from Guadalajara, a city now held by Estra.

The frist skirmish in this vicinity went in favor of Obregon, just as he and his friends had expected.

The Federal Commander General Aaro, won a tactical triumph over Estrado's troops near Labarca. An enveloping movement forced the insurgents to withdraw hastily, to prevent wholesale capture.

As it was twelve rebel officers were captured in the Jalisco sector and were promptly executed by firing squads.

The battle was reported to have been sanguinary. Stirred to martial fervor by a review by the Mexican President, 8,000 picked troops were ready to-day to be hurled in an offensive against Estrada rebels near Guadalajara.

President Obregon established field headquarters in preparation for the attack it was believed that the offensive might start Thursday and that the rebels of the West would be beaten within three days at the outside.

JEWELRY DONATED FOR NEW SHRINES.

Catholics From All Parts Send Gems and Jewelry As Offerings For National Edifice.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (Associated Press).—Catholics from all parts of the country have sent so many gems and pieces of jewelry as their offerings for the National Catholic Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, now being erected at Catholic University, that a large safe deposit box has been requisitioned to hold them. Many strange and interesting trinkets, ranging from a society woman's jewels to an old man's gold rimmed spectacles, have been received to be melted down and converted into chalices and other sacred vessels to grace the many altars that will be erected in the shrine.

Children's rings, a cigarette case, wedding rings, heirlooms of small value but priceless for the associations, and diamonds and other precious stones, including some clusters of great worth, have been sent to the Rev. Dr. Bernard A. McKenna, secretary to Bishop Thomas J. Shahan, upon whom has devolved the duty of raising the fund to build the great edifice.

Most of the jewels were gifts from living persons, many others were willed to the fund. Several persons sent in their mothers' wedding rings, and the letters accompanying all requested the articles go into the forming of such holy vessels as will be placed on or nearest the altars. While most of the gifts were received from Catholics in the United States, others came from devotees in Europe and South America.

One of the most valuable of the gifts was a cluster of diamonds given by a Washington woman, which was valued at more than $3,000. A Colorado miner sent a gold nugget; a soldier in Hawaii sent a diamond; and a veteran of the Civil War offered his gold ring.

The shrine is to be the largest edifice of the Catholic Church in America. Only a portion of the crypt has been completed. It is estimated the structure will cost between $5,000,000 and $7,000,000, and will accommodate 3,000 persons.

JUDGE KNOX YESTERDAY DISSOLVED ASSOCIATION

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Federal Judge Knox yesterday signed a decree dissolving the Cement Manufacturers' Protective Association.

On October 23 Judge Knox ordered the dissolution of the association on the ground that it operated in violation of the United States anti-trust law. His decision was reached after extended litigation by the Government.

The decree was viewed by Attorney-General Daugherty last night as laying down comprehensive and definite code of business ethics, with respect to trade associations.

The decree holds associations whose membership includes the principal cement manufacturers of the United States to be an unlawful combination in restraint of trade.

INTERESTING ADDRESS LOCAL COUNCIL WOMEN

Women Have Discovered That the Hand That Rocks the Cradle Does Not Rule the World.

The regular monthly meeting of the Local Council of Women was held yesterday afternoon in the green room at the Y.W.C.A. Mrs. A. Mowat presided. The session was marked by an interesting address given by Mrs A. J. Langford on "The Sttaus of Woman as a Citizen, Past, Present and Future," and a resolution was brought in by the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham, relative to the part that should be taken by members of the Local Council in consideration of municipal elections which will have an added zest this year by reason of the inclusion of a large number of women in the ranks of municipal voters.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mrs. J. Wearing, the treasurer's report given by Mrs. N. D. Seaton, and Miss S. A. Tom? kins read the correspondence, which included a letter from the Board of the Peterborough Public Library, expressing themselves as agreeable to allowing the Library to remain open on Sundays, under supervision of the Council; a letter from Mrs. Parsons, National corresponding secreary, who has been given a position by the Federal Government to lecture in England on Canada for six months, where she will also attend the meetings of the British Empire Exhibition, and the meeting which has been called under the auspices of Lady Aberdeen, to take place in 1924, when all the women of the world age invited to participate in a conference to determine means of preventing war; and a letter from Miss Miriam Greene-Ellis of Edmonton, who is anxious to include Peterborough in an itinerary of illustrated lectures, describing a trip down the Mackenzie River to the Arctic Ocean, taken by her some time ago. Miss Ellis would charge $50 for this lecture, or proceed on a fifty-fifty basis. It was decided to leave this last matter to the sub-executive, to make enquiries as to the possibility of securing a suitable hall, suitable date, etc.

Ashburnham League's resolution.

A delegtaion present at the meeting from the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham consisted of Mrs. R. H. Parsons, Mrs. G. L. Hay, Mrs. T. H. Glover, Mrs. W. A. Graham, Miss I. Morgan and Miss E. Scott. A resolution presented by the League for the Council's consideration was read by Mrs. T. H. Glover: "It was resolved at the last meeting of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham that it would be advisable to request the Women's Council to call a public meeting before the municipal elections are held, and ask the prospective candidates for the Board of Education and the City Council to address this meeting and express their policies for the forthcoming year, so as to give the women a chance to become acquaintd with these policies. It might be advisable to have this meeting in connection with the Ratepayers 'Association meeting."

A second resolution was read from the Ashburnham League also: "That any addition to the Collegiate Institute should include accommodation for vocational training."

One member of the Council thought that education regarding the importance of the ballot and its use was impertaive, also that it was a right and propar thing to have the Board of Education and City Council returned by acclamation, that opposition and competition were necessary to bring out the best candidates, and that women interested should come forward and nominate others, either men or women, or both.

Another explained that many additional women voters who will have the franchise this year on account of the inclusion of wives of tenants or porperty owners in the voting lists for municipal elections. It was finally decided to express the Council's sympathy with the first resolution, and the secretary was instructed to communicate with the Tenants' and Owngrs' Association and find out the date of thire meeting, after which the matter will be left in the hands of the Citizenship Committee, of which Miss A. Lancaster is convenor.

Re Technical Education.

Explaantion of the second resolution was made by several members of the Ashburnham League, who expressed themselves as anxious, it it were decided finally to go ahead with an extension to the present Collegiate quarters, that this extension should contain some provision for technical education, as being an absolute necessity to children coming under the provisions of the Adolescent Act, who were not desirous of going ahead with academic training as a preparation for their life work.

Members of the Council expressed themselves as in sympathy with this viewpoint also and one member explained the difference in cost to the city as being only $50,000, the academic school extension requiring an outlay to the city of $200,000, while the additin, including conveniences for technical education, would cost the city $250,000. For this difference of $50,000, it was claimed, there would be available six more classrooms, three shops: wood-working, metal-working and an electrical laboratory, besides the industrial laboratory.

The Council went on to endorse the candidature of Mrs. W. R. Morris for the Board of Education, and also that of Mrs. Arthur Stevenson as a second member, should be decide to compete for the position.

Mrs. Langfords' Address.

Mrs. (Rev.) A. J. Langord, speaking on "The Status of Woman as a Citizen, Past, Present and Future," was listened to with profound attention, during the course of a thoughtful address delivered in quiet, impressive fashion.

Mrs. Langford declared that men and women were created equal by God. There was no difference in in the soul that was breathed into both alike; the image and likeness of the Creator. It was only when men, inflamed by the idea of conquest and desiring sons to carry out his designs, began to forsake the ancient idea of monogamy, that the woman, by consenting to this arrangement, dropped in his sight to a lower plane. The sin of Sarah, in abetting the designs of Abraham by giving him her handmaid, Hagar, was instanced as an ancient example of woman's acquiescence and descent from power. "Woman stooped, and then man looked upon her as inferior and made laws which set her lower still and exalted himself to a higher place. In the laws of Moses you will see how man had usurped the place of woman. Even then there were double standards for morality, and woman has been degraded ever since she stooped." In Japan, declared the speaker, the laws of religion itself compel a woman to obey her husband, no matter how degraded she may become through her observance of these so-called laws of religion.

Tribute to Men Helpers.

The speaker paid a fervent tribute to the work of those men who had, through long years, supported the claim of women for equal rights, and to whose untiring efforts they owed their present status.

ra theree nneenrange .ES ES ES

She referred to the women's meetings of an older day when they would be addressed by men who impressed upon them the old ideas: the one that declared that the hand that rocked the cradle ruled the world, the other that enjoined on women the sole duty of staying in the home and training up their children, so that when they grew up they would not depart from the ways pointed out to them. The fallacy of both of these sayings had been proved time and again, said Mrs. Langford. Women had discovered that the hand that rocked the cradle had nothing to do with ruling the world, and they discovered also that when their children grew up, no matter how careful their mother's training had been, they often departed from the ways pointed out to them in youth.

In the case of the boy, when he left home and entered into the way of the clan spirit, it was a natural thing for him to put his clan first, and to prefer to disobey his mother rather than disobey the rulings of his group.

"When we send our children, pure and clean and sweet, with high ideals, out of our homes into the world, it is not what we call the bad men and women of the world that do them the most harm. It is what we call respectable people who often have the worst influence over our children." The boy, declared the speaker, will turn in disgust from the down-and-outer of the streets, but he will go down to the bowling-green, "where lawyers and doctors and merchants and ministers, well-dressed and well-groomed, congregate," and he will admire one of these men and make a hero of him. Perhaps then some minister in the crowd will draw out a cigar, and commence to smoke. What is the boy to think? Will he remember what his mother has told him? That tobacco is physically and morally a menace. With the girl also, it is not the woman of the streets who will attract her, but the society woman who is lax in many ways, and whom she may admire.

"Women, while trying to train their own boys, should go out and try to train also the boy of the alleyway, so that when their own boys go out among these others, they will find them not so different from themselves. "The fault for bad conditions did not lie at the doors of mothers in days gone by, because we had no power to change them. We had only the power of moral suasion, which we found out was absolutely useless when used against politicians Now, we have a ballot, and if we neglect to use it, the fault is at our doors."

Woman's Influence.

Mrs. Langford quoted the utterance of the governor of Colorado, the first state in the union to grant women the suffrage, when asked ten years later what was the most outstanding result in his State of the women's vote. He answered that it was in the quality of the men who acted as legislators in the halls of the State's Assembly. It was discovered that women would vote only for the best men brought forward, and therefore each party strove to find and bring out the very best to run for office.

"Women should avoid dabbling in party politics," declared the speaker, who went on to say that, according to the politicians, at certain election periods the return of such and such a party was the only thing possible to save the country from ruin. However it had been discovered that the country did not go to the dogs under either party, that each made mistakes, and each did good things for its country, because both were animated by a desire for service to the nation.

The sensible course to pursue was that of voting for the best man, and in judging the best candidate, it was necessary to use reason and common sense. "No man, however, no matter how fine he may be in social life, is a good man for the country if he is running for parliament, and getting the support of the liquor and gambling interests. Make no mistake about that, for these liquor men make no mistake in the man of their choice."

Miss A. Lancaster, who Mrs. Langford declared, was responsible for securing her services in making such an address to the ladies, read an extract from a letter published in the Examiner of a year ago, in which it was claimed that women should use their privileges in securing such recreational and health facilities for the city as would make Peterboro an ideal place in which to live, and that they should not emulate the men of Peterboro, "who have proved derelict to their duties as citizens."

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mrs. Langford for her interesting address.

QUEST OF GOLD HAS DEVELOPED INTO BUSINESS

The Sourdough Does Not Now Wander the Wastelands Pursuing the Illusive Bonanza—Mines Are Highly Organized

INTERESTING TALK

The age-old quest for gold that from earliest times has challenged the spirit of hardihood and adventure in man was the subject of a very interesting talk in the Chamber of Commerce last night by A. F. Brigham, general manager of the Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines. The meeting was under the auspices of the Peterboro Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, and was featured by the presence of a great many citizens. R. B. Rogers presided.

Mr. Brigham covered the ground very thoroughly, going into not only the methods in vogue at his mine, but covering the systems in other Northern Ontario mines and in the South African mines, where he was engaged a number of years. In the latter place Mr. Brigham was associated with the late Cecil Rhodes for two years, during which time he said he fell completely under the spell of the great man. "You have heard Rhodes vilified," he said, "and he never defended himself. He never had time to contradict the charges — he was too busy doing things."

Rhodes, he said, had only the good of others and the development of the great country in mind when he opened his mines and consolidated them. "Isn't there a man in Canada who will apply these principles to the North Country?" asked Mr. Brigham. "We need such a man to open up the great resources of our north land. Rhodes never knew he was whipped—probably because he never was."

In concluding his address, Mr. Brigham made an appeal for consideration of the problem of the north and the opening of its treasures. "I am an apostle for the North," he said "I am in earnest about it, and will do my part. There must be some man in Canada who will rise up and see the possibilities there. In Cape Town Legislature Rhodes pointed over the shoulder of Table Mountain and declared, 'there's your hinterland.' There's just as good material in Canada as anywhere else in the world," said Mr. Grigham, amid applause, adding: "It requires someone to see the possibilities in it and with the determination and energy to bring them out."

History and Operation.

In the course of his explanatory talk, Mr. Brigham described in detil, but in easily comprehensible language, the processes involved in bringing gold from its lair in the quartz veins to the bullion boxes.

In 1909, he said, a man named Wilson, grubstaked by a Chicago man, found the dome mine, so-called because the quartz protruded from the ground like a dome. A vein of gold discovered there was 2 feet by 5 inches, and there have been no spectacular discoveries of gold in the Porcupine district since.

A couple of million dollars in gold ore were taken from the Porcupine Crown mine, he said, but this is now idle. Just over the hill a man put in his pegs in what is now Hollinger mine territory.

"There are no bonanzas in the north country," declared Mr. Brigham. "The country must be developed by hard work, guided by expert knowledge."

One of the difficulties in mining in this country is the general nearly vertical dip of the veins. This means that if valuable ore is found the doubtful quantity is the depth to which it extends. The most wonderful mines in the world are those where the veins run horizontally, and it is easy, by following the vein, to estimate the value. The value of the property is an indefinite problem in the Hollinger field, but there is a strong probability from present indications that gold will persist in paying quantities farther than it can be followed. A test showed a value of $150,000 per vertical foot to the 425-foot level and a further test to the 800-foot level ran a little higher. "We have plans completed to carry the shaft to the 3,000-foot level and that, at $150,000 a foot, would return $450,000,000 in gold on a property of twenty acres. Of this $220,000,000 will be spent in winning the gold."

"With the exception of a few imported chemicals and certain licenses for American patents," said Mr. Brigham, amid applause, "this $220,000,000 will be spent in the Dominion of Canada."

Describing the methods of drilling, sinking shafts, and hauling the ore, Mr. Brigham said there are 13,000 tons of ore coming out of that district every day, with an average value of $8 a ton. In the mines the ore is hauled by electric locomotives, about 75 tons of ore being hauled on one train. The round trip of a locomotive in the mine from the loading point and back averages 6,000 feet. In connection with the operation of the locomotives, the speaker remarked that the development of the mines is inseparably linked up with Hydro-Electric development, as they could not operate on a paying business without electric power.

Interesting Facts.

The output of tailings, or waste material, from the Hollinger mine, would fill a coal train over a mile long every day. The disposition of this 5,000 tons of debris daily is a difficult problem, Mr. Brigham said.

Sixteen hundred assays are made every day to ascertain the exact quality of the ore being mined. A research department is maintained to examine the history of the rocks, about which nothing is known yet.

The same rocks are found in the Rocky Mountains, in Labrador and at Lake of the Woods, showing the possibility of development in other fields quite as rich as the Porcupine district of Ontario. What is required, Mr. Brigham said, is belief in the project and energy and intelligence to guide in the development work.

Among the constructive suggestions offered by the speaker, he advocated the allowance by the Government of the entire royalty collected from mining operations to the towns connected with the mines until they are sanitary and provided with schools. A very large element of the population of these towns is technically trained and desirous of living decently. The mines to-day are paying for men with brains rather than for men with brawn, and a good type of town should be built. The old-time miner who was lured from place to place by the prospect of gold just ahead has gone into the past and his place has been taken by huge projects with large capital. Prospecting as well as mining should become the object of organized money, Mr. Brigham believes, in order to open up the vast tracks of land which abound in this mineral wealth in Northern Ontario and throughout Canada.

Mr. Evans, of Belleville, a visitor last night, suggested that there are possibilities of gold found in paying quantities in the counties of Hastings and Peterboro. Diamond drill work, he said, could be inexpensively used to locate the gold, and up-to-date methods of mining substituted for the crude methods which brought results scores of years ago in this district.

The lecture was concluded with the exhibition of four Government films depicting the mining industry and processes from the staking of the claim to the boxing of the bullion. A vote of thanks was proposed by E. R. Shirley, vice-chairman of the Peterboro Branch of the E.I.C., and Ross Dobbin, chairman, also voiced his appreciation of the address.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, Dec. 13.—Major Swadding, who has recently returned from West Africa for a short holiday, addressed the Young People's League of the Methodist church on Monday evening at their regular meeting. Major Swaddling illustrated his address by interesting limelight views of the different tribes in Central Africa, their manner of life, customs, etc., and told of the work which is being done there by the different missionary societies. Major Swaddling's work is in connection with the Congregational church Missionary Society and he took it up after returning to Canada at the conclusion of the great war. With his wife, he is now spending a short vacation with his sons, Messrs. George and Charles Swaddling here.

A number of strange curios from Angola, West Africa, which were brought back by Major Swaddling, are to be presented by him to the Royal Ontario Museum at Toronto, it is stated. These curios include a bag of witch doctor's fetishes, used to cast an evil spell on the witch doctor's victims, and also said to be useful in curing all sorts of diseases. A native harp from Angola, a charm stick used by the natives of Angola against snakes, sculpture and a witch doctor's mask, carved with a handmade iron knife.

PURPOSE OF TONIGHT'S MEETING

Editor, Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In extending, on behalf of the Executive and members of the G.W.V.A., an invitation to the present City Council, and aspirants thereto, and to those similarly situated as to the Board of Education, to meet with us at our hall tonight, and in most heartily and even urgently inviting all returned men to be present, you will note that this action is in line with aims and objects announced at the commencement of our membership campaign as fit and proper aims for veterans. In this case the aim is the study of civic problems and what is meant by and included in civic government. If we are to intelligently judge who are the best men to elect, we must first know what are the problems to be dealt with. In ordinary life, if we have a wiring job to be done in our house, we do not usually ask a blacksmith to do it for us. In electing a council it would seem reasonable to first find out the kind of work to be done and then elect the most fitting men to do it. Whether they are good fellows and popular would seem to be a very secondary consideration.

The matter which looms up largest at times like this is, ordinarily, the number of mills in the tax rate. Is it not equally important that good value is got for the money raised by taxes? To find this out we must first know where the taxes go and who has the spending of them. The Board of Education expends a good deal, and its expenditures are largely out of control of the Council. The Police Commissioners also seem to control another item of expenditure, and so on.

For years the tendency seems to have been to give to more permanent bodies the estimating and expending of monies for one purpose after another, until the aldermen complain that there is but little left over which they have control. Is this because for generations the voters elected to the councils quite likeable fellows, who may have had few qualifications for the job on hand, i.e., got the blacksmith to do the wiring because we liked to have him about the house?

We should learn our job as voters. Our City Clerk has been widely recognized as an expert on civic government, and greatly skilled in civic problems. He will be able to sketch for us in a comparatively short space the outline of the government of a city. What functions are divided off and given to separate bodies, whether elective or otherwise, and what remains to the council to deal with, what is the nature of these problems so remaining, and what is or has been done about them by this or recent councils?

After he has told us this, we expect to hear from the Mayor and aldermen what they have done, or not done, with these problems, each committee chairman taking up especially the work of his committee and giving us, as briefly and clearly as he may, the accomplishments of his particular branch.

Then it is up to us, by questions to bring out those points which are not clear to us. Time will not permit of questions on any but important matters and such as will serve to make clear our understanding of municipal matters and enable us to judge how these matters have been dealt with, or are proposed to be dealt with, by the members of Council or Board of Education or those who offer themselves for election to these bodies.

Primarily we go to learn, possibly we may also be able in instruct—in any case we are sure to be interested in the proceedings and the interchange of ideas will be to the general advantage. We think it will be shown at least that the Veterans have turned from war to peace, from destruction to construction, and that they bid fair to prove as efficient in peace as they proved themselves in war.

KORETZ'S RELATIVES TURN OVER $400,000 FOR RESTITUTION

CHICAGO, Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press).—The relatives and friends of Leo Koretz, the Chicago attorney, sought by the authorities as an alleged swindler, who fleeced the investors in the lumber and oil scheme of a sum ranging from two million dollars to five million, have arranged to turn over to-day as a restitution fund, four hundred thousand dollars given them by Koretz before he disappeared a week ago.

County Grand Jury inquiry into Koretz's alleged activities began today along with the Federal Grand Jury investigation into the operations of the Bayano River Trust Co. of Panama, said by the authorities to be a mythical promotion scheme managed by Koretz for more than ten years.

Meanwhile foreign lands, air and sea are looked to as possible places of refuge for Koretz. He is thought to have escaped from Central American country in either a speedy motor boat or airplane.

SLAVE OF WIFE SHE KILLED HIM

Husband Worked at Two Jobs to Buy Comforts For Pleasure-Loving Wife.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—From 7 in the morning until 2 in the afternoon every day, including Sundays Irving Gross, twenty-three, worked as a clerk in a physical culture establishment on lower Broadway.

From 3 in the afternoon until 11.30 at night the youn man worked in the Hudson Terminal branch of the New York Post Office.

For three years this drain upon his physical and mental resources had gone on. Friends begged him to stop, saying:

"It will kill you."

Young Gross died Wednesday. He was killed, not by his self-enforced sixteen-hour day, but by two bullets fired it is alleged, by Mrs. Essie Kaufman Gross, also twenty-three, in their flat on the sixth floor of the Dawson apartment house, Audubon avenue and One Hundred and Seventy-third street.

Had Struggle, She said

Held without bail in Homicide Court for examination to-morrow the young wife shrieked:

"He wanted to divorce me. It was his life or mine. We struggled for the revolver. It went off. I didn't pull the trigger."

After her arraignment, other lights were thrown upon the domestic tragedy that came to public knowledge when young Gross the bullets in his head, staggered down six flights of stairs and collapsed inside the street door.

For instance, Mrs. Rose Palmer, sister of the husband, disattached herself from a group of relatives shouting for vengeance upon Mrs. Gross and said at her home, No. 117 East One Hundred and First street:

"My brother was the victim of a nagging, threatening pleasure-loving woman. He held two jobs to furnish a home for her. He worked like a slave to give her comforts. But she wanted luxuries and she wanted him to take her to fashionable places.

No time for Relaxing

"How could the poor boy do that when he worked so hard earning money for her that he hasn't had eight hours sleep out of twenty-four since their marriage six years ago?

"Last Sunday, she went to Earle L. Liederman's physical culture office, where Irving worked seven hours a day, and made a scene.

"He finally told her he would leave her if she didn't stop her nagging. She said she would kill him if he did. Often she told him he would 'wake up dead' if he didn't give her more attention."

Liederman bore out what Mrs. Palmer had said, so far as his knowledge extended. He said:

"Gross was a quiet, well-mannered boy. He worked for me faithfully for three years from 7 a.m. until 2 p.m. Then he went to the post office to put in eight or nine hours more. He seemed ambitious.

All His Hours Taken

"I don't see how he had time to do much more than work and sleep. Mrs. Gross did come down here last Sunday and make something of a scene."

The prisoner's other, Mrs. Kaufman, lives at No. 1958 Second avenue. Relatives retained Abraham Krimsky, of No. 63 Park Row He pleaded with Magistrate House for an adjournment so that he could consult his client.

She was held on a short affidavit charging her with suspicion of having shot her husband to death. Tears were streaming down her face. She refused to talk to Assistant District Attorney Morgan Jones or newspaper men and would not confirm the report that she had said, shortly after her arrest:

"I killed him because I loved him."

BOARD OF WORKS TO POLICE CITY

Tug of War Team Ready to Jump Into the Breach

The Board of Works' tug of war team recently held their annual business meeting, and it was a very enthusiastic bunch of men who met together to talk over the past season's accomplishments, and to formulate new plans for next year.

Mr. Harry Evans was again unanimously chosen and appointed president and general manager, with Mr. C. S. Stapleton as secretary-treasurer. Mr. W. H. Lytle was chosen and appointed captain, replacing Mr Jack Thirnbeck, who held the position last year, but who wished to revert to the ranks, rather than assume the responsibilities that this office entails. He will, however, retain his membership and in this way, his wisdom, gained from past experiences, will always be available to the executive.

Several important matters of business were discussed, and it was decided to increase the number on the team from twelve to eighteen men. This was considered by the executive to be a good move, for if the police force resigned, President Evans could police the city from the ranks of his splendid men, and still carry on.

It was also decided to have regular practices during the winter, and also to organize hockey and soft ball teams from the ranks for the purpose of keeping in the pink of condition for the events that are sure to come in the spring.

"Anchor Man Murphy," the veteran of the group, addressed the meeting and in a few well chosen remarks, related to the men some of his past thirty years' experience in sports of this kind; of the number of cups he had helped to win, but had never seen. He also said, that if all went well, he would again issue a challenge in the spring, to hold any three of a competing team, a remarkable feat he accomplished at the local Fall Exhibition, to the delight and entertainment of the big crowd, but to the chagrin of the three strong men, who undertook, and said they would pull him all over the lot, you understand.

CHARLES STAPLETON,
Bailiff 1st. Division Court U. C. P. & V.

Peterboro', May 27, 1856.

Charles S. Stapleton, Sanitary Inspector, was the recipient on Monday of a curious old relic in the form of a notice of Sheriff's sale, issued in 1856 under the signature of Mr. Stapleton's father.

Charles Stapleton, father of the present city official, was Bailiff of the First Division Court of the then United Counties of Peterborough and Victoria. H. Norton, grandfather of to-day's Sanitary Inspector, was jailer at that time, when the present Victoria or Court House Park was a bush-covered waste.

The circular was printed by the "Dispatch Print," The Dispatch being a weekly newspaper that flourished over sixty years ago. Although yellow and fragile, the bill has been well preserved, and is easily legible.

STORM SIGNALS ON GREAT LAKE

White River Maintains Reputation as Coldest Spot in Canada.

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Ushered in by heavy gales over Lake Superior which caused vessels to seek shelter in convenient harbors, King Winter descended upon Ontario last night with snowflurries and temperature recessions ranged from 12 to 36 degrees Ottawa enjoying spring like weather with thermometer registering 52 degrees yesterday morning suffered greatest drop, 14 degrees being recorded during night, in Toronto mercury dropped thirty points. Weather throughout Ontario to-day is fair and cold but official forecast of Dominion Meteorological office promises slight moderation to-morrow. White River retained its reputation as coldest spot in Ontario with temperature of 24 below zero while Chapleau recorded 10 below and Sudbury zero.

CHINESE LANGUAGE IS THE SIMPLEST

To Learn, to Speak and Read, It Requires No More Time Than to Master German.

Chinese is simpler than any of the European languages. And to learn to speak and read it requires no more time than to master German, French or Spanish, claims Franklin C. H. Lee. He teaches Mandarin Chinese at Columbia University.

His native assurance impresses us, for we inherited a notion that for a white man to learn Chinese is next to impossible.

If it's true that Chinese is as easy to learn as German, French or Spanish, another bit of inherited hokum is exploded. Hokum is being exposed so repeatedly in our iconoclastic age—hokum of long and dignified standing—that we're beginning to wonder if the general impression of three-dimensional life has been built on a quicksand foundation.

Ed Howe has challenged the ancient belief that a red rag inflames a bull. Ed makes out a plausible case to the contrary—says it's merely one of our false inherited notions.

Explorer Stefansson claims the Far North is an attractive climate, with multitudes of flowers in season, and the winters no worse than in some parts of our northwest. He says our idea, that the Far North is a terrible ice country, is inherited from Greeks who didn't know and explorers posing as heroes.

So it goes. Medical theory has been turned topsy-turvey in the last few generations. Einstein has overturned many of the applecarts of science. Old ideas about home life and child-rearing have been tossed in the waste basket.

About all that's left unexploded is economics. There the ancient theories hold forth firmly, striking their long whiskers and shrieking, "Infidel!" when hokum exploders like Ford and Edison challenge such things as the money system.

VICTORIA, B. C.—Authentic records show that a total of $456,635,568 was authorized for new companies incorporated by the Dominion and the Provincial Governments during the first half of 1923.

U.S. SEEN AS NATION OF WINE CONSUMERS

Italy Says America Is Finding Grapes More Productive of Wealth Than Wheat.

By CAMILLO CIANFARRA.

ROME, Dec. 14 (United Press).—Prof. L. Marescalchi, president of the Wine Growers' Association, has just told the dry forces of Italy that while they are endeavoring to reduce the area devoted to wine in order to increae that for the growth of wheat, the American farmer is just discovering that grapes will pay him immensely more than corn or wheat.

Prof. Marescalchi has also made a series of prohecies. He says that the near future will clearly show that the repeal of the Volstead act in the United States is not absolutely necessary and that the question of prohibition will be automatically solved by the individual American in a way that will make the average Italian wine lover blush.

"In a year or two," Prof. Marescalchi says, "you will see the American maiden advertising among her accomplishments that of making table claret. The future American housewife will not only serve her husband a good, spicy dinner, but a sparkling glass of wine. A decante full of red, dry Chianti will stand majestically on the center of the table, and the tired husband will sip 'bottled sunshine,' as the Roman poet says, while reading his favorite paper and blowing the incense from his 'brier ceiling-ward.

"A triple revolution is in sight. In the near future every home will include a cool cellar to keep the home-made wine; wine will replace coffee at dinner and supper, and farmers will be more interested in the quotation on the price of grape than in that of wheat.

"The loving wife will be glad, too. She will no longer fear the effects on her husband of the deadly and costly concoction peddled by the bootlegger. Furthermore, wine will supply a wholesome "jag" that can be slept off in a few hours. The bootlegger will die a natural death."

BODY WAS FOUND AFTER DROWNING

Companion Thought Nicholson Had Reached Shore and Gone Home—Death Not Known For Several Hours.

KINGSTON, Dec. 14.— (Canadian Press)— The body of Harold Nicholson, Portsmouth, was found this morning on Robinson's Point, Dr. A. E. Ross, coroner was called and decided that death was due to accidental drowning. Yesterday afternoon J. Grady and Nicholson went out duck hunting on the lake in separate skiffs. They started to return about dusk, encountering some rough weather, according to Grady's story, Nicholson shouted for him to keep away as he was in dangerous place. Grady did this and landed safely. He thought Nicholson had reached shore in the meantime and gone to his home only learning some hours later that he had not returned. A search early this morning revealed the body.

CONDEMNED MAN IS CONTENTED TO DIE

Gustave Dube, Hanged This Morning For Murder of His Wife, Told Police He Would be in Heaven.

QUEBEC, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press)—Gustave Dube was hanged at eight o'clock this morning at Montmagny for murder of his wife in 1920, whom he was found to have shot while he claimed he was killing hens on his farm in St. Adelbert. Until last night he had expected that he might obtain delay or commutation of sentence.

Returning from Montmagny, where he attended the execution of Dube, Sergeant Bernard of the Provincial Police, stated that he had never seen a sentenced man so happy to die. His last statement to the Provincial official was "this evening you will be at home having your supper with your family, while I will be in Heaven."

LUXURY MAKERS WERE HARD HIT BY QUAKE

TOKIO, Dec. 14 (Associated Press)—Industries in all parts of Japan are feeling the effects of the decreased demand as a result of the earthquake and fire. Unemployment is on the increase everywhere except in the devastated area where there is plenty of work, especially for manual laborers.

Farmers, too, are complaining that the reduction of the duties on food products has brought down the prices of what they have to sell. Meanwhile the builders and their workmen, and the people who supply building material, are reaping a harvest, charging in many cases exorbitant prices for the merest makeshift buildings.

Workmen are surprising their employers. An American resident here for upwards of 50 years, and indirectly an employer of many workmen, says the Japanese never worked so hard before. They have given up all amusements and have unreservedly set themselves the task of making the destroyed cities habitable.

WOMEN ARE FACTOR IN BUILDING PLAN.

Skyscrapers Must Have Benefit of Their Ideas to Be Perfect — Report of Builders.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14 (Associated Press)—The increasing influence of women in public and political affairs has become a factor in the planning of skyscrapers. A report of the building planning service of the National Association of Builder Owners and Managers discloses that women must be accorded as much consideration as that given the sinking of caissons.

Building managers have found, according to the report, that if the project is to be successful it must have the good will of women, who may be either employes or visitors. This consideration is reflected chiefly in planning for adequate and attractive rest rooms which, the report says, no longer can be classed as luxuries in office buildings.

The report covers a variety of "human frailties," including the habits of messenger boys pencilling corridors and jumping down the stairs. The pencil habit has given rise to the term "pencil line" for the height of marble wainscotting in corridors, which is raised to such a level that the pencil line may be easily cleaned from the walls. Landing places at the turn of stairs, the managers report, have become landing places in fact for messenger boys, whose duties have compelled the installation of specially constructed slabs to withstand the impact of their jumps.

Awning fires are being prevented through the dipping of the fabric in a fireproofing substance, another item shows, while theft of brass fire hose nozzles has been stopped through the use of cast iron nozzles.

SCHICK TEST IS BEING MADE

The Schiek test for diphtheria is being administered to pupils of the Prince of Wales School to-day under the direction of the School Health Officer Dr. A. W. McPherson. A large number of pupils are taking the test with the approval of their parents and it is expected that this will be the case with the other schools. It should be understood that pupils who may wish to take the Schiek test must do so when their own school is visited or otherwise it can only be done at their own expense.

PRESTON PHILLIPS NOW DISTRIBUTOR.

He Has Walked Over 135,000 Miles Distributing Samples For Different Companies.

Opportunity is not found, it is made. Take the case of Preston E. Phillips of Bay City, Mich. Near his home was a gully. Boys hired to distribute samples and circulars used to short-cut their labors by dumping their wares in the ravine.

Phillips was looking for an opportunity.

He found it—in the ravine.

It occurred to him that business concerns would be willing to pay a good price to have their advertising matter and samples distributed honestly, thoroughly, reliably.

That was 20 years ago. Today Phillips has a good business. He has walked 135,000 miles, handing out to the housewife everything from pink pills to yeast cakes and breakfast foods.

Phillips is not a millionaire. There's no reason why he should want to be. But he did succeed in his goal of making a good living and being his own boss.

"I get as much out of life as any man in town," he claims.

Dozens of times a day he is invited to sit on the porch and rest, have a cup of coffee, a glass of water, and so on. Trifles? Well they're pleasing to every one—the sort of things happiness is made from.

The main point is that Phillips created his opportunity—for he was one of the very first to get the idea of becoming a community sample distributor. The larger cities now have big organizations that do the same.

Opportunity is created—usually. It is found—rarely.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14. — (United Press).—Nine persons an hour are killed by preventable accidents in the United States every hour of the twenty-four, declared Richard E. Kropf, supreme regent of the Royal Arcanum, to a conference of fraternal insurance executives called here to consider a safety-first campaign. The fraternal bodies are planning a general revival of safety educational drives, it was said.

AT THE CAPITOL.

Photoplay fans at Capitol Theatre last night found the motion picture different in "Pioneer Trails," a Vitagraph special production. Here in a film of the early west was visualized in a dramatic manner that thrilled and pleased a delightful story of young love and youthful daring. It is the kind of story that picture fans crave and so seldom get.

"Pioneer Trails" is a human interest story, despite the fact that it goes back to the days of the great gold rush of 1849 for its start, and is all the more colorful because of the pleasing atmosphere set by this period. The story opens with a prologue of tremendous appeal, that of a young couple with their boy setting out for the unexplored recesses of the west in a prairie caravan. Midway to their destination the train is attacked and the part, with the exception of the young man killed off by the Indians. This sequence is one of the most realistic ever seen on the screen. It gives the spectators a thriling idea of what the early settlers were up against.

The boy is found by another group of pioneers and is adopted by Mrs. Salter who rears him as her son. Twenty years later finds the boy grown to manhood in a mountainous home. He risks his life to stop a runaway stage coach. This is a splendid scene of daring and sends a real thrill shimmering up and down the spine. By this daring Jack Plains meets Rose Miller and falls in love with her. Philip Blaney her father's secretary, tries to force his attentions on the girl. Jacks foster mother interferes and is shot down by Blaney. Rose flees in terror and is taken in by "Laundry Lou," a loveable character.

Jack is accused of the crime, but eludes the sheriff with the aid of "Easy Aaron" Cropsey, itinerant lawyer and roadside philosopher. After many complications Jack manages to clear his name and win the girl that he loves. A fake marriage and the Robert Dale estate figure materially in the developments.

Alice Calhoun again shines in a charming role, that of Rose Miller. No sweeter or more delectable person could have been found to play this part. And Alice Calhoun lends that gracious touch to it that wins the hearts of all.

Cullen Landis, the brilliant young fighter of the screen, who made such a name for himself through his work in Vitagraph's great sea story, "Masters of Men," gives a characterization of his dual role in "Pioneer Trails" that justifies the great popularity he is attaining with the fans. A daring strapping youth is he, — clean, virile and strong. His acting reflects an understanding of histrionic art few seem to know.

"Pioneer Trails," while strongly reminiscent of the "westerns" of the early days of the movies, when Indians and cowboys were the strong points of the pictures, is decidedly refreshing after the innumerable "society plays" of to-day. It is not "The Covered Waggon" but it is one of the best adventure pictures seen heer for a long time. A novel short subject called "Sing Them Again," introducing some well known old songs in which the audience join, the words being shown on the screen, is something different, and was one of the strong points in the Capitol programme last night.

BIG SPECIAL SHOW AT CAPITOL SATURDAY MATINEE.

Saturday matinee will see a great show at the Capitol for children. As well as the thrilling Western story, "Pioneer Trails," the fourth episode of Hurricane Hutch's exciting serial "Speed" will be shown. This episode is called "The Quagmire" and is by far, the most thrilling yet shown. Along with it will be a double comedy bill and a review. All this for the regular admission of 11c for children and 25c for adults.

AT THE ROYAL.

EMERSON HOUGH'S NEW PICTURE "THE MAN NEXT DOOR" SPLENDID HUMAN INTEREST COMEDY DRAMA.

Vitagraph's Super-Feature From Famous Novel by Author of "The Covered Wagon" Is Lavishly Produced and Wins Hearty Commendation of Audience.

Cast of "The Man Next Door."

Bonnie Bell	Alice Calhoun
Colonel Wright	David Torrence
Curly	Frank Sheridan
Jimmy	James Morrison
David Wisner	John Steppling
Mrs. Wisner	Adele Farrington
Katherine Kimberly	Mary Culver
Tom Kimberly	Bruce Boteler

Emerson Hough, author of "The Covered Wagon," has had another of his famous western novels, "The Man Next Door," produced on the screen. This is one of Hough's most human stories dealing with a girl born and bred on a great Wyoming ranch, who tries the luxuries of the city and finds love and happiness back West.

Vitagraph's production, directed by Victor Schertzinger, has done full justice to this very human story. The cast is especially strong, and the characters are thoroughly sincere. The picture play follows the book faithfully, and we see life on the Circle Arrow Ranch, owned by Old Man Wright, in Wyoming. His foreman, Curly, who tells the story in the book, is the active motivating character in the picture and provides endless laughter when the two cattlemen reach the city in which Bonnie Bell, educated at an Eastern college, is to live. Bonnie Bell builds a mansion next door to Wisner, whose wife is the dictator of society. Bonnie Bell finds that all of her father's millions will not get her into society, and in her loneliness she makes friends with the gardener of the Wisner estate. The comedy drama that arises out of this friendship, which finally brings to Bonnie Bell her heart's desire, won the hearty commendation of the audience at the Royal Theatre last night.

The production is one of the most lively that has been seen here for many months. The ranch life is pictured with fidelity, and the scenes showing the mansion in which Bonnie Bell found, only loneliness are the most costly examples of studio architecture that have been screened.

David Torrence gives a splendid impersonation of Colonel Wright. Frank Sheridan wins much laughter as Curly, and James Morrison plays the hired "man next door." Pretty Alice Calhoun, a favorite with screen fans in this city, plays Bonnie Bell, giving to her the sparkle of youth. Others in the cast are adequate.

NEW BOY STAR IN "MICHAEL O'HALLORAN"

Gene Stratton Porter, one of America's best beloved novelists, has discovered a new boy star.

Test many of the well known boy actors of the screen, Mrs. Porter finally decided on True Boardman, as nearest approaching her ideal of her character, "Mickey," the manly little newsboy of her novel, "Michael O'Halloran," which she produced and personally supervised at the Thos. H. Ince studios, and which will be the feature offering at the Royal Theatre commencing Monday.

True Boardman is twelve years of age and presents a new and unusual type of boyhood to the screen. He is a slender young chap, having a poetic, aesthetic face, deep blue eyes of great intelligence and a winsome boyish smile of spontaneous joyousness.

His work in "Michael O'Halloran" is destined to place him in the first rank of young screen actors—and his role as "Mickey" gave him tremendous possibilities for emotional expression and the appeal of a different and distinct personality.

Irene Rich and Claire MacDowell, who have the two leading feminine roles in "Michael O'Halloran," Gene Stratton-Porter's personally supervised production now ready for distribution, are both deep students of the drama. Miss Rich confesses that her highest ambition is to play the role of Stephen Phillip's "Francesca," while Claire MacDowell still has hopes of playing "Ophelia."

Both of these famous actresses do some of their finest and most finished work in "Michael O'Halloran."

JONES' LATEST FILM SCORES BIG HIT.

"Snowdrift," the latest William Fox production starring Charles Jones, which was shown for the first time last night at the Regent Theatre, has a vigorous story, lively action and a splendid supporting cast. Superb photography of the snow-covered wastes of the Yukon adds a distinctive note to the picture.

This latest action picture with Jones was made from the story of the same name by James B. Hendrex, who is well known for his stories of Alaska and the gold fields. Scott Dunlap directed the production in which Jones has the role of Carter Brent, also known as "Ace-in-the-Hole," a renegade mining engineer from the States. Dorothy Manners is seen as "Snowdrift," the child of white parents who were lost in a Northern blizzard, and Irene Rich plays the part of Kitty, the "Queen of the Yukon."

Each Jones picture serves more and more to increase our faith in this daring and capable young actor. This screen story is of a different type from his latest pictures, and gives Jones an opportunity for some vigorous action that should provide excellent screen entertainment for movie fans.

TWO LEAGUES ACCEPT AMENDED DRAFT PLAN

International Refused to Consider Draft Proposal--Minors Hold Centre of Baseball Stage at Chicago

NO MANAGER BONUS

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Restoration of the draft with a slight modification was accepted by two Class AA. leagues, the Pacific Coast League and the American Association, here yesterday, acting independently of the International League, which refused to consider the draft proposal.

The American Association and the Pacific Coast League, under the new draft arrangement, agree to accept surplus players from the major league under conditions that they will be eligible to the draft for the price of $5,000.

This was the plan submitted to the Pacific Coast League, the American Association and the International League, in addition to the other minor leagues a year ago, but was rejected by all leagues with the exception of the western.

Under the new plan, the major league players released to the clubs in these two leagues will be eligible to the draft, one player only to be drafted from each club. The players developed by the club, will not be subject to the draft.

Officials of the two leagues said their clubs would be benefittted inasmuch as players with major league training would be available.

Minors Hold Stage.

With the major league meetings out of the way, the minor leaguers had the stage to themselves yesterday. The National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues voted to hold their 1924 meeting in Hartford ,Conn., and authorized an audit of the Association's books. The audit was authorized after demands made by Dr. Charles H. Strub, President of the San Francisco Club. He said that John H. Farrell, Secretary of the Association, had handled $1,800,000 during the 1923 season and without questioning the efficiency of Secretary Farrell's administration, wanted to know what disposition had been made of the funds.

The National Association officials also adopted a resolution placing the minor league managers in the same class as players in regard to their contracts. The resolution provides that no minor league manager shall accept a bonus in addition to his salary and that he will not be paid additional sums for the sale of players developed.

Oppose Joint Meeting.

The minor leaguers, while not taking any official action, opposed meeting in the future with the major leaguers.

The minors accepted the amendments such as had a bearing upon the minor leagues that were acted upon by the major leagues yesterday, with the exception of one pertaining to the player list.

The minors rejected the proposal to include five unseasoned players in the list of 25 allowed after June 15.

John Kelleher, infielder of the Chicago Cubs, has been claimed by the Boston Nationals by the waiver route.

"Dixie" Carroll, outfielder of the Los Angeles Pacific Coast League Club, was traded to-day to Louisville, of the American Association, for Lyle Bigbie, outfielder.

JUNIORS FORM HARRIER CLUB

Road Work Has Been the Finishing Touch to the Training of Younger Hockey Squad.

The mild weather has neither deceived nor distracted the candidates for the junior hockey club, about twenty of whom have turned out regularly every Tuesday and Friday night during the last few weeks for the conditioning stunts laid down by Walter Jackson.

Recently they have wound up their gym. stunts at the Y.M.C.A. with a canter up to Auburn and back, and every one of the boys has stuck to the work with an interest and earnestness that has greatly encouraged both Jackson and Lou Lebarr, Sr., who are handling the team.

The squad is now ready to hitch on their skates, and from last night's dip in the mercury there should be plenty of ice presently.

SHORT OF PLAYERS.

Picton is about as devoid of players as a hen of teeth and thus will not be represented in the intermediate series this year. Last year they had a good team but no substitutes and when through injuries, their regulars were put out they were handicapped and Trenton gave them a bad drubbing in the play-offs. They have a nice junior team coming on and with proper coaching will be ready to step up to higher company and give a good account of themselves.

LIQUOR VOTE IN 1928.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Dec. 14. — The Legislative Assembly, after a very stormy debate, agreed to-day by a vote of 52 to 21 that New South Wales would hold its first prohibition referendum in 1928.

A HIGH PRICED STAR

ROGERS HORNSBY

The feature bid at the Chicago big league convention was the offer of $275,000 by Charles H. Ebbets, of the Brooklyn Club, for Rogers Hornsby, noted second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals.

It was intimated, said one report, that Charles H. had heard Sam Breadon, one of the officials of the Cardinals, say that he would accept no "money offer" for his star, and so the Squire jumped at the chance of a bit of publicity. But this statement may be doing an injustice to the Dodgers' president, for he may be really sincere in his proffer, who knows?

Baseball magnates collapsed into their chairs at the size of the offer. Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, made no reply.

DEMPSEY PLANS 1924 CAMPAIGN

Back in New York to Go to Work—Has Varied Offers For Engagements.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14. — Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, arrived in New York yesterday ,ready to map out his 1924 plan of campaign. He and Jack Kearns, his manager, probably will confer with Tex Rickard within a few days regarding a return match with Luis Firpo and possibly other engagements, but the title holder probably will not climb into the ring again before the outdoor season.

"All of the leading challengers are to be given their chance," said Dempsey, "Tom Gibbons, Harry Wills and Luis Firpo are the boys who seem most entitled to a crack at the crown and they'll get it. Whether an elimination tournament will be arranged, I don't know, but unless such a tournament is staged and that best of the three contenders decided, I'm willing to take them on one after the other."

"Jack came here to go to work," Kearns replied. "He has been offered a vaudeville tour, motion picture engagement, and an extended programme exhibitions in this section, but we have not decided which to accept."

CRIQUI PASSES UP HIS TITLES

Has Not Been the Same Since Punishing Fight With Johnny Dundee.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—Eugene Criqui's titles of French and European featherweight champion will be given to Edouard Mascart should Mascart defeat Henri Hebrans, the Belgian fighter, in their bout here next Tuesday night.

This announcement was made officially last night by the International Boxing Federation after it had considered a letter from Criqui's manager saying Criqui would be unable to meet Mascart to defend his title owing to injuries sustained recently in a bout with Hebrans. The letter was considered by the Federation as practical abandonment of his titles by Criqui.

M. Eudeline, Criqui's manager, announced in his letter that the former featherweight champion of the world would be physically unable to meet Mascart to defend his European championship within the period of delay fixed by the Federation, that he renounced the privilege of demanding the delay, and that he cannot accept Mascart's challenge.

The injuries Criqui received in his bout against Rebrans October 6, are given as the cause. Thus, this bout, the entire proceeds of which went to charity, has caused Criqui financial losses of more than a million francs in the matches he passed up in the United States and Europe.

M. Eudeline affixes the certificates of two doctors declaring that Criqui's hands are in such shape as to prevent him from fighting for another six months. Close friends of the fighter, however, say the crushing defeat and terrific punishment he received at the hands of Johnny Dundee hurt him more than did the damaging of his hands in the fight with Hebraue. The little fellow is said not to have been the same since his return from the United States.

CHIHUAHUA CITY, Dec. 14.—'Twas calm and peaceful when a fiery little Irishman blew into town one rainy morning couple years ago.

All the rebels, big and little, had quit revolting and retired behind the swinging doors to sip their mezcal and tequilla.

Jimmy O'Brien, who'd come down from the north—Juarez, to be exact—couldn't dope it out.

"Why and wherefore all this sudden cessation of hostilities?" friend Jimmy demanded.

And then he learned the truth. Wet grounds, it was, that had brought the temporary armistice.

Jimmy laughed at the idea. He went behind the swinging doors and dragged out all the rebels, and put them to fighting again—this time, on the baseball diamond.

And, ever since, they've been scrapping, as they never scrapped before, even riding across the border to clean up on their Gringo brethern.

It all started with O'Brien's "Greenlegs", which soon became a box office attraction in competition with the bull fights. And then it spread like a raging forest fire all the way down here as far as Chihuahua City and Torreon, where the greatest of all Mexican insurgents, Pancho Villa, met his Waterloo a few weeks back.

The international boundary commission figures it's a great stunt for future reconciliatory measures.

Here, folks, do we behold the "Greenlegs"—every mother's son of 'em from a one-time prominent revolutionary family.

Glancing across the line-up we gaze upon.

Efforts are being made to bring a big league team to Juarez for training this spring and O'Brien predicts that baseball will replace the toreador's art as the national sport of north Mexico in another year.

French Olympic Committee Aim to Make Winter Games the Best Yet.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—The French Olympic Committee, directors of sporting federations, clubs and close followers of athletic in France in general are bending every effort toward making a creditable showing at th 1924 Olympic Games but are under no misapprehension as to the prospects of French athletes winning the games. While not unduly pessimist they readily admit that France will not finish first, but find solace in the thought that the Olympic Games are the greatest manifestation of international sports in existence and that the vanquished do not necessarily emerge from them with a loss of prestige.

"While we would much rather win the Olympic games than finish among the also rans," said Frantz Reichel, general secretary of the French Committee, "we feel that great benefit will be derived for athletics in France by the mere presence and participation in all branches of sport of the 4,000 or 5,000 athletes—the best in their lines of endeavor in 52 countries. There is one thing, however, that we may win and that is the acknowledgement of all interested that the 1924 Olympic Games were the best organized since their revival. This we will try to do."

GOLF PROS HEAD SOUTH

It's tough to be a golf pro. As soon as the snow and sleet arrive in the north the golf pro must pack his irons and woods and get out his white linens and depart for Florida or the Pacific Coast. When he gets there he must go out on the links and play in tournaments, the cash prizes in which frequently reach the $5,000 mark.

C.N.R. GRAIN RECORD.

During the period under review 2590 cars of grain were delivered at Vancouver over the same line.

May Bar Players Who Refuse Olympic Trip.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 13. — Players of the United States Amateur Hockey Association who will be selected to accompany the United States Olympic hockey team abroad, and who refused to make the trip, may be barred from participating in league hockey during the coming season, President W. H. Haddock, President of the Association, announced here to-night.

"Only legitimate excuses will be considered," he said.

"Some of the clubs," said Mr. Haddock, "are looking at the matter from a selfish point of view, and instead of insisting upon their players going, are really encouraging them to stay at home in order to give their clubs a better chance for the national cup competition this year."

A Fine Putting Green for $25, Made of Cotton Seed Hulls, Neuest Golf Idea

SAN ANGELO, Tex., Dec. 14. — Putting greens made of cotton seed hulls—refuse from the white "gold" of the Dixie plantations—is the latest innovation in southern golf, an innovation that has not only proved its merits in a practical way, but in an economical way as well.

Cotton seed hull greens can be built at an approximate expense of $25, depending upon the size and formation of the green.

The construction of greens such as exist at fashionable courses in other parts of the country entail expenditures mounting high into the thousands. At the noted Lido and Pine Valley clubs, for instance, the members point with pride to certain greens that cost something like $10,000 to build.

In some respects, of course, these greens are vastly superior to the cotton hull greens. They are more attractive to the eye, and the undulations are probably more intriguing. But they are no better to putt on, and that is the important thing in considering the merits of a green. Cotton hull greens have proven so satisfactory that arrangements are being made to install them in most of the clubs in this part of the country.

President C. W. Hobbs of the local country club explains that cotton seed hull green idea in this way: "Before building the greens must be excavated deep enough to hold about six inches of crushed rock. A coating of oil or salt is then applied to kill vegetation. On top of this place about three inches of selected hulls, pack the hulls tightly, roll them evenly and then take out your putter and get busy."

Sounds simple, doesn't it? And imagine the cost, a putting green for $25!

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — | New York Stock Exchang — and Curb Prices —

Today's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(United Press). — Over night reflection upon significance of the weeks advances on crude oil prices and the remarkably favorable showing of the November foreign trade figures furnished the motive power for a continuance of bullish demonstrations in the General Industrial list on the Stock Exchange at the opening today.

The sugars were especially buoyant in the early dealings, Punta Alegre and Cuba cane preferred reaching new high ground on the movement. The oils were strong with standard of New Jersey and Sinclair experiencing particular activity, while Baldwin was the outstanding feature of the Industrial leaders, Industrial stocks continued to display marked buoyancy through the first hour some of the old time leaders like Baldwin and American Can. returned at the head of the forward movement which broadened further under the influence of their leadership. New high ground on the current upswing was achieved by industrial alcohol, cast iron pipe and numerous specialties. The oils were the strongest group moving ahead uniformly with the Standard stocks in the van in Sinclair the turnover reached enormous proportions the stock attaining its best levels in many months in response to rumors of various important transactions involving Sinclair. The names of Stinnes and Sinclair have been linked ever since the latter's arrival from Europe.

A NOVEL DISPLAY OF SCHOOL WORK

Clock Ticks Off the Spare Time in a Day's Schedule

F. W. Colwill, of Montreal, supervisor for the Canadian International Correspondence Schools Limited, has a good demonstration of the work done by pupils of the schools on display in the window of J. T. O'Connell's, Hunter street offices, where it will remain for a week. The window has been decorated in bright fashion in colors of orange and green, and against this background have been arranged the various attractive posters and advertising devices of the Schools, of which W. J. Donovan is the district manager.

An animated advertising display at the back draws attention to the slogan: "Are you getting ready for the job ahead?" by means of a moving pointer which is labelled—"These are the hours that count," and which ticks off the minutes of the section marked "Spare time, five hours," in the allocation of the day's twenty-four hours to work, meals, sleep and spare time.

A novel three-piece display, with concave sections, illustrates the advance made by the man who takes advantage of the Correspondence Schools courses. He is shown when getting practical experience in the shop, when studying at home for promotion, and finally as an executive, looking out his fine factory window. Another display card itemizes the steps to success, via the Schools route, such as "pluck, skill, energy, courage, ambition and finally promotion." I.C.S. text books and descriptive pamphlets of the many courses line the side wall.

There is an interesting exhibit also of the handiwork of various students, including heads and figures of men and women, in repose and in action, done in pen and ink and crayon; still life subjects in the same mediums, and in water color drawings; architectural drafts and the presentation of a Gothic arcade, illustrating pen and ink. some good examples of light and shade work, and a few pieces in black and blue tints of the wash and gouache sketches.

Some idea of the range covered by the International Correspondence Schools may be gleaned from the fact that during last year an average of 407 diplomas per month were issued to students, and the postage bill of the Schools came to over $900 a day.

In Peterboro, within the fifteen years that Mr. W. J. Donovan has been in charge of the local agency, there have been nearly 1500 students to take advantage of the different courses, and many of the city's big establishments number among their executives students who have successfully lifted themselves by the aid of the Schools. In one case it was a carpenter who decided to study through them, and became a successful architect; in another a boy from the farm attained an enviable position in the office of a large manufacturing concern; in still another a mechanic became one of the chief executives of the same establishment. After taking the advertising course alone, several of the successful students gained good positions in other cities of Canada and the United States.

In Sydney, C.B., the Dominion Coal Company counts 70 per cent. of its executives in students of the Schools. It was in the Maritimes, also, that a servant girl took a course in commercial illustrating that revealed exceptional talent in this line, and secured for her a lucrative position in this class of work.

That the I.C.S. courses do not conflict with work undertaken by night Technical classes, is the assertion of Mr. Colwill, who says: "The great aim of the schools is cooperation, not competition. Many of the teachers in the Night and Technical schools are graduates of the system, and know its value. Many men holding responsible positions are graduates of this famous educational institution, and are proud of it."

PREMIER INTENDS TO DISCUSS THE RUHR SITUATION

With the German Representatives—Holds to a Number of Reservations

PARIS, Dec. 14. — (By Webb Miller, United Press Staff Correspondent.)—Premier Poincare agreed to-day to discuss with the German representatives any proposals the German Government may have to make regarding the situation in the Ruhr and the Rhineland, with the following reservations:

1—Nothing will alter the French policy not to evacuate the Ruhr and Rhineland until reparations are paid in full.

2—The question of the Separatist movement in the Rhineland shall not be discussed, because this is a purely German question, in which France is neutral.

3—There shall be no discussion of the general question of reparation.

4—Conservations shall be limited to purely Franco-German question.

Under these conditions Poincare said he would receive the German emissary, Von Hoesch, to-morrow, if what the latter had to say aimed to facilitate functioning of the Ruhr accords or the work of the high commissions.

If it is a fresh manoeuvre on the part of Germany to take advantage of America's attitude toward the experts commissions, or of the British election result, the French Premier does not care to hear what the Germans have to say, it was stated semi-officially.

If Germany has any proposals to make on the subject of reparations let her make them to the Reparations Commissions, Poincare said.

Regarding a proposed appeal for aid by Germany to the League of Nations, the League Council took occasion to announce it would refer any such appeal to the Reparations Commissions.

NARROW ESCAPE IN STORE FIRE

Proprietors Wife and Daughter Compelled to Flee in Night Clothes —Store Destroyed.

KINGSTON, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Fire which broke out on Wednesday night completely destroyed the general store and garage of Card Brothers at Mountain Grove, entailing a loss of fully $15,000. The first almost claimed the lives of Mrs. Card and her little daughter, who were retiring when a lamp in the main part of the store exploded and they were obliged to rush from the path of the flames clad only in their night clothes.

IN LOVING MEMORY

Of our little, Darling, Joseph Edwin Kemp, who died Dec. 14, 1922.
One precious to our hearts has gone,
The voice we loved is stilled,
The place made vacant in our home
Can never more be filled.
Our Father in His wisdom called
The boon His love had given,
And though in earth the body lies,
The soul is safe in heaven.

TOO MUCH WINE

A teacher in one of the local schools was putting some of his junior boys through the rifle practice that occupies their attention at certain periods. "What is the matter, Johnny," he said to one small boy, "you aren't shooting very well today. You haven't come anywhere near the bull's eye. What's wrong?"

"I don't know, sir, said the lad. "I was down in my mother's cellar a while ago tasting some of her dandelion wine."

Society

A farewell tea, accompanied by a presentation and address, was given for Mrs. James Rollins by the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's church, at the home of Mrs. V. Foster, Gilmour street, yesterday afternoon, attended by between sixty and seventy ladies. Mrs. Foster was assisted in receiving by the president of the society, Mrs. F.L. Robinson. The ladies presented Mrs. Rollins with a handsome black walnut dinner wagon the presentation made by the honorary vice president, Mrs. A. Macfarlane, accompanied by an address read by Mrs. B. McClennan. Mrs. Rollins acknowledged the gift and address in a brief eloquent speech. Tea was poured by Mrs. M. Kerr and Mrs. R. B. McWilliams cut the ices. Tea room assistants were Mrs. W. R. PRESIDENT OBREGON ON FIRING LINE PREPARES FOR IMPENDING BATTLE

Government Report Says One Column of Rebels Have Been Defeated Trying to Join Estrada Forces and Two Generals Killed.

REBEL REVERSES.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15. — (Canadian Press).—A statement issued by the Mexican Embassy here last night said official advices from the Mexican capital reported that the general advance of Federal troops against General Estrada's revolutionary forces began Thursday. The advance forces under command of Generals Amaro and Amarillo started from Tapuato, the reports said, adding that a definite engagement with the rebel forces was expected shortly.

Forces led by the rebel generals Fermin Carpio and Magana, the advices said, had been defeated in northern Jalisco while trying to effect a junction with the Estrada forces, General Carpio, his brother, Marco Carpio, and General Magana being killed in the action.

The government advices claimed that the entire west coast of Mexico from Sonora to Chiapias, with the exception of the port of Manzanillo, was under federal control.

False reports and orders, some purporting to have been issued by the federal authorities at Mexico City, have been transmitted to Mexican diplomatic and consular offices abroad by the rebel faction at Vera Cruz, the advices said, in an effort to gain their adherence.

LABOURERS IN CAPITAL ENLIST WITH OBREGON

EL PASO, Texas, Dec. 15.—President Alvaro Obregon is on the firing line personally directing the troops who, under Generals Amarillas and Amaro, are marching on Guadalajara, according to a telegram received by the Mexican consulate in El Paso from Mexico City yesterday.

Aroused by the examples of the executive, thousands of laborers have evacuated Vera Cruz for Mexico City to obtain arms with which to assist in the movement. Textile workers, released from Mexico City factories, have, meanwhile, received arms and equipment and left for the Vera Cruz front to fight the forces under Geieral Sanchez.

At Teziutlan, the major in command of the garrison tried to turn his forces over to the Adolfistas, but his comamnd refused to obey orders and the town is still loyal to the Obregon government.

While reports show that all military chiefs invited by De La Huetra to join his forces have peldged their loyalty to the government, it has been confirmed that many desertions are occurring in the Estrada ranks at Jalisco. At the capital little credit is given news from the revolutionary forces.

Working classes in Mexico City are indignant over the death of the president of the labor syndicate at Vera Cruz and are rallying to the colors, as the rebels are blamed for his death.

MAY FIGHT AT SEA.

HOUSTON, Texas, Dec. 15. — Five Mexican naval officers from Mexico passed through Laredo at noon Friday en route to New Orleans, where they will take over the Mexican gunboat Bravo, which has been in dry dock there, according to messages here. They are said to be under instructions to proceed to Vera Cruz and engage in battle with the gunboat Zaragoze, which is now held by the rebels.

BOMBARD VERA CRUZ.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 15.—The Mexican gunboat Bravo, which has been in port here several weeks, undergoing repairs, has been preparing for several days to put to sea, go to Vera Cruz, stronghold of the De La Huetra insurrectionists, and bombard that city.

BY-ELECTION IN KENT NEARS END

Conservative M. P. Says King Government Sacrifices Maritimes For Progressive Support.

RICHIBUCTO, N.B., Dec. 15. — (Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)—With election day less than a week away the Kent County by-election campaign entered its closing phase last night with a Conservative meeting at West Branch, addressed by R. B. Hanson, M.P. and a Liberal meeting at Richibucto village, addressed by Hon. P. J. Veniot, Premier of New Brunswick. Both speeches for the most part were repetitions of those previously delivered by the same speakers.

The Premier, speaking in behalf of the Government candidate, Alfred Bourgeoise, defended the record of the Federal Government referred to important public works to be undertaken in the county including the taking over of the Richibucto hydro and reiterated the assertion made last night by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Marine, that officers of the Royal Mounted Police would never again enter this county in the enforecement of the fisheries regulations.

R. B. Hanson, speaking at West Branch in the interests of A. J. Doucette, scored the King Government for having, as he alleged, sacrificed the Maritime Provinces for the political support of the Progressives in the west and contended that the Maritimes needed most of all men at Ottawa who would place the interests of the provinces before the interests of party.

IRISH PARLIAMENT VOTES TO IMPRISON WITHOUT TRIAL FOR OFFENSES AGAINST STATE

LEADER CHOSEN IN ALBERTA BY CONSERVATIVES

W. J. Blair Assumes the Direction of Party in the Province — Was Unanimously Elected.

BENNET DECLINED.

EDMONTON, Dec. 15.— W. J. Blair, a successful farmer whose home is at Provost, Alta, late yesterday afternoon was the unanimous choice of the Alberta Liberal-Conservative Association for provincial leadership of the Conservative party.

Mr. Blair's nomination was made following refusal of the leadership for personal and business reasons, by Hon. R. B. Bennett, K.C. of Calgary, former Minister of Justice. E. W. Ewing of Edmonton and A. A. McGillivray of Calgary, also were nominated but they declined

Mr. Blair announced that he was prepared to accept the unanimous will of the convention, that he would shortly so arrange his personal affairs that he could give practically his full time to the duties of his office, and he was confident that the Conservatives would carry Alberta at the next election.

The nomination committee recommended that a provincial association be formed, that choice of a leader be deferred and that Mr. Bennett be made president of the association, with the tacit understanding that he act in a general way as leader of the party without the official title or responsibility. There was immediate objection to this proposed course, and an amendment was moved that the convention proceed at once to the choice of a leader.

Demanded a Leader

Explanation was made on behalf of the committee that the difference between a leader and a president was chiefly one of name, and that a leader who was not a member of the legislature was in a rather awkward position. The suggestion was voiced by H. A. Mackie, of Edmonton, that there might be a few self-opinjonated persons who thought to get their own way by deferring the appointment, but there was "room for them in the farmers' party." The majority felt, however, that the effect of the convention largely would be wasted if they did not make a definite choice at that time; that they would "drift without a rudder"; and one delegate declared there were "a hundred men in the convention as good as John B. Boyle or Herbert Greenfield." It was decided by a close vote that the leader should be appointed, and Mr. Bennett's name immediately was suggested and nominations closed. His refusal to accept reopened the matter and Mr. Blair's unanimous election was greeted with hearty cheers.

Has Been Organizer

Mr. Blair has taken an active part in politics for many years as a Conservative organizer in this district and as a member of Parliament for Battle River.

The convention closed at 6 o'clock after adopting without discussion in the last few minutes a provincial platform which pledged the party if returned to power, to reduce the number of Cabinet Ministers and members of the Legislature and salaries in both cases. The platform declared that the "serious" financial condition of the province was a legacy of liberal administrations since 1910 ,that the farmer government had done nothing to remedy the situation and violated the principles of responsible government.

Conservative Revival

EDMONTON, Dec. 14.—Declaring that an effort was being made by certain Liberal leaders to set the western provinces against Ontario and Quebec, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, addressing the provincial Conservative convention briefly this afternoon, expressed the opinion that the revival of Conservative strength from coast to coast had set in with tremendous force.

"It is claimed that an attempt is being made to make these new provinces subservient to the old, hewers of wood, and drawers of water in the interests of the east," the liberal leader said. "I want to say that there is not anywhere in the east any antagonism towards the west, and easterners will join the west at any time in working for anything which they are convinced is for the good of all Canada. He is no friend of Canada who preaches those doctrines of separation."

Shipped 2759 Deer From Algoma Area

SUDBURY, Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Hunting synopsis prepared by the Algoma division of C.P.R., covering territory between Cartier and the Soo in the west and Chalk River in the east, shows 4,615 hunters' tickets were sold to points in the division this fall.

Deer shipped out totalled 2,759, against 2,550 last year. Hunters got 89 moose and 11 bear, against 75 and 34, respectively, last year. Parry Sound section was most popular, drawing 2,208 hunters, who got 1,591 deer, one moose and one bear. Pakesley station alone shipped 714 deer. Pickerel shipped 227, Point Au Baril 186, Rutter 119 and Bigwood 114.

Chalk River shipped 130 deer and five moose, while the New Kipawa line saw 30 deer and 40 moose shipped. Fifty-three moose and six bears were killed east of North Bay. That section shipped 542 deer, 53 moose and six bear for 797 hunters.

RUSSIA OFFERS TRACTOR TRADE

Canada's Opportunities in Land of Soviets Is In Agricultural Machinery, Commissioner Reports.

OTTAWA, December 15 Canadian Press — Although the Department of Trade and Commerce has for some time been expecting the announcement of a trade mission from Russia to Canada no advice has been received to date The Canadian government is working in accord with that of Great Britain, and the Minister of Trade and Commerce has stated that the Canadian Government will be willing to receive a Russian delegation whose personnel is satisfactory to the British Government.

Canadian Trade Commissioner L. D. Wilgras of Hamburg, has recently made an extended tour in Russia, and has reported to the Department on General conditions. He believes that Canada's principal opportunity for trade with the Soviet Republic is along the lines of agricultural machinery and equipment.

During the first six months of this year Russia imported binder twine to the value of some $300,000 to be used for the present season's harvest.

The trouble at present as regards the purchase in Russia of Canadian agricultural implements, says Mr. Wilgress, is the low purchasing power of the peasants. Two large Russian co-operative societies are the principal distributors for such machinery. One has a combined membership of 53,000 individual societies, while the other counts 37,500 branches. Mr. Wilgress believes there is an excellent opening for a Canadian tractor on the Russian market, since the government is devoting much attention to the use of tractors for agriculture, especially on the State farms. He also reports a shortage of cream separators in Russia, and a demand for saws and other logging apparatus.

The construction of grain elevators in Russia also offers an excellent opportunity for Canadian firms to supply that country with elevator equipment, he asserts.

POLISH CABINET RESIGNS

WARSAW, Poland, December 15 (Canadian Press). — The Polish Cabinet, headed by Premier Witos, resigned last night

In Parliamentary circles the opinion is held that a business Cabinet is the only solution of the crisis.

The question of resigning arose over a split in the Governmental bloc reducing the Government's majority in the Chamber to 215 votes out of the 444 votes, due principally to the defection of 5 deputies of the group of Premier Witos, who left the party because of differences over the Land Bill.

Maciej Rataj, speaker of the Diet, has resigned and political observers express doubt as to whether the Radicals and non-Polish deputies will be able to form a stable bloc.

ALE BOAT HEADS INTO LAKE ERIE WITH HER CARGO

Launch "Dawn" Hugged Canadian Side of Niagara River With U. S. Cutter Keeping Pace.

"NORA" IN TROUBLE.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 15. — The motor launch Dawn of Cleveland, with her cargo of ale intact, crept along the Canadian shore of the Niagara River to Lake Erie last night, with the United States coast guard crew under Captain Daly paralleling her journey near the United States shore.

The two boats faded from sight far up the lake as night closed in. Capt. Daly, who chased the Dawn into Fort Erie on Monday night and maintained a four day watch on the craft, apparently was determined that the ale-runner would have no opportunity to land on the United States shore during the night.

It was understood that the skipper of the Dawn paid $300 into the Canadian customs to obtain the release of his boat and cargo, the landing at Fort Erie on Monday night having been contrary to the Dominion customs laws.

The captain of the Dawn did not say why he was proceeding west on the lake when his cargo was consigned to "Havana, Cuba."

Rounded the Reef.

It requires a strong engine to round the reef at the head of the Niagara River, without getting into United States waters, but the Dawn apparently did it to the satisfaction of Captain Daly, who made no attempt to seize the launch during the trip to the lake.

A Buffalo police boat watched the Nora, the companion craft of the Dawn, while the hide-and-seek was on in the darkness out on the lake. The Nora, also ale-laden, is reported to have developed engine trouble and it is said that the Canadian customs will give permission to transfer her cargo to another boat. The Nora is unwieldly and probably would have difficulty in keeping out of United States waters in a trip from her present berth to Lake waters.

Cargo of 500 Cases.

The buyers of the 500 cases of ale on the two boats are reported to have headquarters at Lasalle, on the Niagara River, near Niagara Falls, regarded by the United States federal authorities as the present centre of the rum-running trade along the Niagara frontier.

EIGHT BOATS FOR WINTER STORAGE

Fleet May Be Increased at Fort William But Is Now Same as Last Year.

FORT WILLIAM, Dec. 15.—At present there are eight boats here that will winter for storage, the four American boats being the S. B. Way, the Pontiac, the Farr and the Luzon, and the Canadian boats, the Emperor, Beaverton, Westmount and Midland King. The Beaverton was the last package freighter to arrive here and has just finished discharging her cargo.

It is possible that some late arrivals may swell this number but at present the fleet is the same as that of last year, when eight boats, with a capacity of two and one-half million bushels, wintered here.

The J. J. Sullivan and McC. Kennedy are reported up-bound, light for grain, having cleared the Soo yesterday. It is not known whether they will stay here or make the trip down within the next two or three days.

Turkeys Scarce in Goderich Section

GODERICH, Ont., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—With the Christmas dinner and its turkey not far distant, local dealers are scouting the country picking up anything that looks like a bird. For some years now the farmers have not bothered very much about raising turkeys because it took too much time to watch them while young. Wholesale prices are very firm at 17c a lb. live weight, and 25c to 27c dressed. Young hens fattened will bring 30c. City buyers are not bothering here on account of the scarcity.

LADY VISITORS SEE TUT'S TOMB

Howard Carter Begins Dismantling Fragile Canopy—Work of Four Days.

LUXOR, Egypt, Dec. 15.—The excavators had four hours of hard work at the tomb of Tutankhamen Friday morning, when a start was made with the dismantling of the great canopy over the shrine of the pharaoh. As a preliminary, a set of wooden steps specially made to measurements supplied by Howard Carter, director of the exploration, was erected beside the shrine. Mr. Carter mounted this and began working with the roof of the canopy, which is in three parts, sloping down from one end to the other and surrounded with the carving of a serpent, heavily gilded. Wooden wedges were inserted and a start made with raising the first section.

The work is extremely difficult and exhausting as in the thirty centuries it has been in place the wood has shrunk appreciably and the excavators always have in mind that the merest slip of the hand may do incalculable damage to the brittle substance and its elaborate decoration.

It is estimated that the removal of the covering will take at least four days. Work for the day was discontinued at one o'clock but the tomb was reopened in the afternoon to admit a party of lady visitors, friends of the excavators.

Transfer Cunard Ships To Canadian Service.

LONDON, Dec. 15.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—It is understood that the Cunard Company is about to make an important new development in its Canadian services. One or two of the large ships now operating in the New York service will be transferred to the Quebec and Montreal services, it is stated.

The Cunard Company announced to-night that the ships in question were the Coronia and the Carmania and that the new service will commence in April next. The developments projected mean largely increased sailings amounting in some cases to more than two a week.

CALCUTTA NEEDS NEW LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

CALCUTTA, Ind., Dec. 15.— In consequence of the sweeping success of the Swaraj, or Home Rule Party, in the recent elections, the legislative council of the Bengal Government has resigned and the Governor has invited the leader of the Swarajists, C. R. Das, to undertake responsibility for the transferred departments of the Government. Mr. Das has promised to consult with his party leaders and to communicate his decision to the Governor later.

The Swaraj Party also had a great success in the elections in many other provinces.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—Dr. H. S. Hele-Shaw has informed the Royal Society of spectacular results, he he obtained with a stream-line filter along which liquids can be passed under pressure through thousands of tightly packed, perforated paper sheets. He says he took the color out of red wine and tea and milk, leaving instead of the last named a tasteless fluid, like water.

TWO KILLED AND FOUR INJURED BY FLEEING NEGRO

Farmer Shot Down By Black Tenant Who Escaped to Canebrake Pursued By Posse.

REPORTED AT BAY.

GREENWOOD, Miss., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press)—Two dead and four wounded were the known casualties last night in a man hunt which began yesterday noon when Joe Pullen, negro tenant farmer, shot and killed W. T. Sanders, planter, and escaped to a canebrake near Drew, 25 miles north of Greenwood, armed with a pistol and shotgun, and kept up a running battle with his pursuers at intervals throughout the afternoon.

Posses with bloodhounds still were on the trail of the fugitive last night.

Sanders was killed when he went to the negro's cabin to arrange a business settlement, and R. L. Methevin was shot to death as he approached a ditch in which Pullen had taken refuge. The wounded are A. L. Manning, C. A. Hammond, Kenneth Blackmore and Luther Hughes. Manning was shot at the time Sanders was killed. The others were posse men who were felled in encounters with the fugitive.

One report was that two of the wounded had died of their injuries. Pullen also is reported wounded.

According to reports from Drew, the negro, after killing Sanders and wounding Manning with a pistol, went to his cabin and obtained a shotgun and supply of ammunition. He then made for the canebrake.

Hughes, Hammond and Methevin were the first of the posses to fall before the negro's fire.

Late reports last night from Drew stated that Pullen had been located hidden in a slough three miles from the scene of the first killing.

FOUR BANDITS IN GUN FIGHT

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Four escaped convicts, who were cornered after leaving Minneapolis post office last night, shot and wounded policeman and two bystanders, one of the gunmen was captured and taken to police headquarters where he gave name of "Red" Ryan. All four of men are alleged to have escaped from Penitentiary at Kingston, Ont. by setting fire to prison barn and climbing over walls, later they are alleged to have robbed banks at Detroit and Chicago.

Those shot were Patrolman Norman L. Schaef, seriously wounded, Gustaf Erickson, Minneapolis slightly wounded, Carl Erickson, son of Gustaf slightly wounded. Four were followed to Minneapolis about a week ago, and were seen to collect mail regularly at General Delivery window, last night when they called they were followed by eight patrolmen, detectives and secret service operatives when they got to sidewalk the detectives closed in on quartet. Ryan drew gun and shot at one of detectives. Bullet missed its mark, and struck Gustaf Erickson. Then moment later, Ryan's companions whipped out their revolvers and started firing as they ran. Police returned fire and one of bullets wounded Ryan in shoulder. Bandit ran into front entrance of clothing store and started through it to alley Ryan stumbled over box as he reached the rear entrance and was overpowered, other three escaped.

NO COMPROMISE WITH DE VALERA AND FOLLOWERS

Dail Eireann Passed the Second Reading of Public Safety Bill By 53 to 13—Courts Obstructed.

HOLD 4,500 NOW.

DUBLIN, Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—The Public Safety Bill, extending the power of the Free State Ministry to arrest and detain without trial persons, deemed guilty of certain specified offenses, passed its second reading in the Dail Eireann yesterday by a vote of 53 to 13. This signifies its acceptance in principle by the House.

During the debate there was strong adverse criticism of the measure for some of the members, one of whom, a Laborite, declared it resembled 'the Russian system."

Minister of Agriculture Hogan said it was impossible to try thousands of prisoners, especially as under the existing conditions it would be unfair to expect witnesses to come forward.

Attorney General Kennedy said he had many reports from the country of juries refusing to convict and of the difficulties of getting witnesses to testify.

Armed Men at Large.

Home Minister O'Higgins in concluding the debate said there were areas of the country where armed men were still billeting themselves upon the people. The Government was vindicating the rights of ninety per cent. of the people.

The minority voting against the measure was composed almost entirely of Laborites.

The bill has set at rest all rumors of an intention on the part of the Government of the release of the 4,500 prisoners now held in jails or internment camps. Eamon De Valera, the Republican leader, and all his chief followers are held in custody under a special statute giving the Ministry power to arrest and detain them without trial.

This statute, however, was only temporary and expires on February 1. If the Government thinks it unsafe to release the prisoners by that date the new bill is proposed, extending these exceptional powers one year.

Offences Specified.

It is provided that all the existing prisoners may be held and that future arrests may be made upon the issuance of a certificate by the Minister that he has reasonable grounds for suspecting that the person arrested was concerned in the commission of certain specified offenses. These offenses not only include incitement or assisting in revolt against the State, and in such crimes as the possession of arms or explosives, robbery, arson or the destruction of property, but also the offense of interfering with or preventing the lawful use or occupation of any land and even the offense of manufacturing illicit spirits or being in possession of the utensils or material for such manufacture.

It will be made an offense to wear without authority any police or military uniform and to assume for unlawful purpose any military rank or title. Powers of search are given to any responsible officer who can arrest a suspected person and detain him for a week pending the issuance of a certificate by the minister. An appeal council is provided, as under the former Act, but up to the present the prisoners have made little or no use of this organization.

TO REVIVE THE COTTAGE INDUSTRY

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(Associated Press).—A practical and scientific effort is being made at the Long Ashton Institute, Bristol, to revive and develop the ancient English willow industry.

After considerable research specimens of the creeping willow have been found, and are now under cultivation. The slender canes this plant sends up are very tough and for finer basketwork are valued at $350 a ton.

MRS. BERT DODGE DIED AT ISLAND

Death Will Not Be the Subject of an Enquiry

NEW YORK, December 15. — Captain Gloster Armstrong, British Consul General in New York, stated to-day that his office had had no request for an investigation in the case of Mrs. Bert Dodge, of Liverpool, England, who died of pneumonia while being held at Ellis Island.

Mrs. Dodge, with her baby girl, Kathleen, had come to join her husband, an English bricklayer, now living in Boston. The British Consul said that Dodge had not made any complaint to him and that so far there had not been any intimation that Mrs. Dodge's death was due to negligence. Officials at Ellis Island stated that the Dodge case was conducted according to routine required by the United States immigration authorities.

FORT WILLIAM'S POWER LOWERED

The Kaminiatiqia Power Company Have Received Orders Not to Lower the Water in Dog Lake

FORT WILLIAM, Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press.) — The Ontario Government has notified the Kaministiquia Power Co. that no more lowering of the water in Dog Lake will be permitted. The company has notified the city that under these circumstances it is possible that the company will have to curtail the city's power supply and this might affect public utilities here.

It is understood that the Hydro-Electric Commission has made an offer to the power company to sell its power, but that the offer is not satisfactory to the company.

The city council at a meeting specially called has asked Premier Ferguson to render what assistance he could to break the deadlock.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Literary Society Held a Meeting — St. Thomas Church Anniversary.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 15.— The literary society of the Continuation School held their meeting on Friday afternoon, the president, Ewart Tucker in the chair. After the reading of the minutes by the secretary, Jean Burnham and an opening chorus, the following programme was given:

Recitation—"Current Topics," by Gertrude Gray.

Piano Solo—by Gwendolyn Hutchison.

Reading, "Winter Sports," by Mildred Brown.

Wand Drill by 11 girls—Marjorie Sayes, Gladys Tucker, Jean Burnham, Marie Kenyon, Jean Fairbairn, Alex. Johnston, Elizabeth Russell, Muriel Matchett, Kathleen Fowler, Dorothy Hall, Hazel Armstrong.

Piano Solo—by Ewart Tucker.

Chorus by the school choir.

Piano Solo—by Lynden Russell.

At the close ballots, each with a pupil's name written on it, were passed the understanding being that a gift for the one whose name was drawn should be placed on the Christmas tree next Friday afternoon when the closing exercises will be held. The official opening of the school building will not take place until after the holiday season.

The anniversary services on St. Thomas' church will be held on Sunday, December 16th, which happens also to be the sixteenth year since the church was opened in 1907. Rev. Canon McNab, of St. Alban's cathedral, Toronto, will be the preacher for the occasion.

The "Wide Awakes" group of Canadian-Girls-in-Training held their weekly meeting on Wednesday evening, fourteen members being in attendance. After the business period, during which arrangements for serving tea at the bazaar on Saturday were completed, the devotional period was entered upon. The talk for th evening was on "The Annuficiation," the study to be continued next week at the Christmas meeting when the birth of Christ will be taken up by the leader.

The girls will provide the programme and refreshments at the Ladies' Aid meeting in February by special request. The group is now preparing chorus for the annual Sunday School entertainment on New Year's night, and practice was held at the close of the meeting on Wednesday evening.

Rev. R. B. Grobb, of All Saints' church, Peterborough, will deliver his illustrated lecture on the "Passion Play" in the Methodist church, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society ,on Monday, December 17th, at 8 p.m. There has been a general desire to have this lecture repeated here not only by those who enjoyed it thoroughly a few months ago when Mr. Grobb gave it in the town hall, under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Thomas' church, but also by many who were unable to attend on that occasion. This will be the last opportunity of hearing Rev. Mr. Grobb as he leaves early in January for Chicago to assume the duties of his new position in church work.

On account of the entertainment in the town hall on Thursday evening the meeting of the curling club was postponed for one week and will be held in the council chamber on Thursday, December 20th, at 8 p.m. This is an important meeting when the skips are to be appointed and rinks chosen for the season. A full attendance is requested.

Mrs. E. Whyte and Mrs. J. R. Eakins, who have been visiting their sister, Mrs J. Fitzgerald, and other friends in Toronto for the past two weeks, have returned home.

Miss M. E. Fisher has closed her home heer for the winter and will spend the holiday season with her sister, Mrs. (Rev.) B. Matheson, Stratford, afterward resuming her studies in social service at the University of Toronto.

Rev. S. W. Dean, of the Christian Stewardship and Finance Department of the Methodist church, has been secured for the Methodist Sunday school anniversary services on Sunday, Dec. 30th. Mr. Dean will preach morning and evening and address the school in the afternoon. Miss Pearl Newton, the well-known elocutionist, assisted by members of the school and other local musical talent, will provide the programme for the annual entertainment on New Year's night.

HEART WAS SO BAD HAD TO SIT UP IN BED

Mrs. O. E. Fitzgerald, 106 Ross St., St. Thomas, Ont., writes:—"In the Fall of 1921, I was taken ill with my heart, but I did not pay much attention to it. I kept on with my household duties, but seemed to become worse and worse, and finally had to call in a doctor. He said I was all run down and was a nervous wreck. I had a severe pain in my chest which would move over to my heart and it became so bad I could not lie down, as when I did I had such a smothering feeling I would have to sit up in bed till it passed away.

I tried several remedies, but with no good results. Finally, I was induced to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I took 7 boxes, and I am now as well as I was 30 years ago, and I am now 65 years old."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all druggists or dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PARKDALE TEAM DROPPED A GAME

Nosed Out by Owen Sound in a Fair Exhibition

TORONTO, December 15. Canadian Press. — The Owen Sound Juniors got the surprise of their young lives here last night when they only managed to defeat the battling Parkdale team by 4 to 3 in the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association game.

The Paddlers, not fancied by many to win, or even hold the visitors to a close score, had as much of the play as their vaunted opposition and right until the final second were in the running. In those last few minutes the Owen Sound goal keeper was called upon to turn aside some hard shots. Locals were not as good stick handlers as the Owen Sound players but they outchecked this experienced aggregation, and with a little more luck in their shooting would have won.

PAT NORTON HAS BEEN ARRESTED

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—It was decided by Attorney-General's Department yesterday afternoon to act upon the information received at London, Ont., that Pat Norton, an alleged accomplice of the Murrell Brothers in the Melbourne Bank robbery, is under arrest at Aurora, Indiana. Don't Dose a Cold —Use Vicks

External Treatment With Vaporizing Salve is Best

Mr. Alex McDougall, Box 655, Regent St., North Sydney, Nova Scotia, writes: "I had a bad cold in my head, I tried many remedies but had no relief until I used Vicks. It is also the best salve I ever used for a cold in the chest. Put some Vicks VapoRub on your chest, cover with a flannel and you have a sure remedy. Fo a cold in the head, melt a little VapoRub, and inhale the vapors. In a short time your cold will be gone."

Vicks VapoRub is an externally applied vaporizing salve. While it acts like a liniment or plaster, it is also inhaled as a vapor, and so gets into the throat and lungs immediately. The cold is often broken up overnight.

Vicks is the modern direct treatment for all cold troubles, the successor to goose grease, camphorated oil, liniments, poultices and plasters.

Used for a croup and children's colds Vicks gives remarkably quick results and also avoids nauseating internal dosing. Just as good for adults and for skin inflammation, such as cuts, burns, bruises, bites, stings.

At all drug stores 50c a jar. For a free test size package write Vick Chemical Co., 344 St. Paul St., W., Montreal, P.Q.

Though Vicks is new in Canada it has a remarkable sale in the States. Over 17 million jars used yearly.

BLUE DANUBE IS TRADING CENTRE

Dredges at Work in an Endeavor to Make River Ready For Heavy Transportation.

VIENNA, Dec. 15.—(Associated Press).—All the romance is being wrung from the historic old Blue Danube made famous in song, music and story almost everywhere. Prosaic Danube boatmen who care but little about waltzing are looking forward to next summer which promises to be the busiest, in a transportation way, in the river's history.

Dredges have been at work on the river, and this natural trade route through central Europe to the Black Sea, Constantinople and Odessa has been greatly improved and developed. New boats with larger carrying capacity are being built for the spring trade, and transshipment facilities are being developed.

Completion of the Danube-Rhine and the Danube-Elbe canals also will add to the river's importance as a shipping route.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Apathy over civic issues in Peterborough is not confined to the campaign for positions in the City Council, but includes the Board of Education as well, no new candidates having so far announced themselves for this body.

In fact, there are rumours that the vacancies on the board will be filled by acclamation.

Under ordinary circumstances such a development might be take to mean complete confidence in the Board of Education and thorough satisfaction with the manner in which the educational requirements of Peterborough are being dealt with.

But such a construction is scarcely justified on this occasion, in view of the fact that the members of the board do not see eye to eye with each other on the question of providing additinal Collegiate Institute accommodation and facilities for technical education.

If there is no contest for the board at the January election the only interpretation that is logical is that the ratepayers are utterly indifferent to these questions, have no views one way or another and don't care a button how the problem is handled.

The importance of cleaning up this question is so great that the attitude of the people toward their representation on the Board of Education is a matter for regret.

A much different kind of campaign might reasonably be expected under the circumstances.

FARM LABOURERS ONLY.

A survey of the British harvesters who are stranded in Toronto discloses the fact that the majority of the men are mechanics of some kind—there is not a farm labourer in the crowd.

From that statement it is evident that not much care was exercised in the selection of harvesters last summer.

The officials seem to have been satisfied to accept any person who was ready to come, and the result is that a considerable proportion who are not farm labourers cannot be absorbed on Canadian farms and equally unable to find industrial employment are now on the rocks.

The circumstances surrounding this whole episode should serve as a warning to Hon. J. S. Martin, the Ontario Minister of Agriculture, in his immigration campaign.

Unless the men he entrusts with the carrying out of his policy rigidly insist that the immigrants they select for Ontaorio are bona fide farm labourers the Province is likely to find the harvester immigration experience duplicated.

The Minister is satisfied that a large number of experienced farm workers can be used on the farms of this Province, but the success of his scheme is conditional upon the success of just such men and the exclusion of others who are likely to become a charge upon the community.

THE COUNTY POLICE.

Robbers drove into Wardsville, robbed two stores and the Post Office till, had what they needed to eat in one of the stores, got in their car and drove off. It was some hours before the community knew of the happening.

That suggests a change that has come in recent years, says the London Advertiser. The only way doubtful characters could get around a few years ago was on the mixed way freight. The only way they could escape was by the next one. Of course, officers had to move slowly, too. Today the holdup man has his own private transportation system in the shape of a car parked at some convenient point. Once in there, and given the start of an hour, the roads of the world are open to him, and his chances for escape are fairly good.

Wardsville has no constable. The Reeve recommended one man, on authority from the County Council, but he would not act, so there has been nothing done since. So far the rural sections have been fairly free from crime, although the car bandit hits quick and without advance notices.

The fee system for county constables is not likely to get much service in the way of running down crime. For instance, had there been a constable at Wardsville, and had he started off to pursue the robbers, he might have spent a day or so on the work, for which he would have to depend on the temper of the county officials to get his pay. If he had a warrant to execute, or an arrest t omake, he would get 13 cents a mile, and $1.50 for making the arrest. Otherwise he gets nothing.

LOOK TO THE LEGISLATURE.

A favorite argument against the present system of Police Commissions is that it violates the spirit of democracy. "The people who pay should have some say in police matters" is the expression most frequently heard.

There is much in that contention that is popular, and yet it is open to question from a logical viewpoint.

The Police Commission consists of the County Judge, the Police Magistrate and the Mayor.

From what source does this commission get its power?

From legislation passed by the Ontario Legislature.

And the Legislature is composed of members elected by the people and responsible to them.

In other words, if there is anything wrong with the Police Commission, as constituted at present, the representatives of the people of this Province must be blamed, for the Act creating the commission was passed by them.

The logical channel, therefore, for correcting faults complained of is the Legislature.

It is there that relief must be looked for, and it is there and there only that any hope for a change can exist.

The people elect the Legislature; the Legislature names the Police Commission.

If the people want a different commission they have only to look to the presentatives they elected.

IF THE POLICE QUIT.

A second instalment of pay for the city police became due today, and the members of the force have now been at work a month without remuneration.

Meanwhile there has been a legal battle in progress, in which suits for wages, applications for prohibitory mandates and other devices dear to the hearts of the lawyers have played a prominent part.

This battle is not yet over—but the police are still without pay, and the immediate result of the legal sharp-shooting may be a decision on the part of the force to quit.

The police are being ground between the two contending bodies, the City Council and Police Commission, and there are signs that they are becoming—to borrow a phrase from the vocabulary of war days—"fed up" with empty pay envelopes and litigation.

If they do decide to quit—what then?

Two months ago the Examiner pointed out the danger of such a development, and suggested to the Council the advisability of having some plan of action ready for the emergency.

Apparently, however, the Council has nothing to offer as a substitute for the protection afforded by the Police Department should that protection be now withdrawn.

It is not a pleasant position for a city to find itself in—and the trouble could have all been averted if the Aldermen had been satisfied to postpone their fight for a month or two and had picked the legislature as the suitable arena for the conflict.

However, the city fathers decided upon guerilla warfare rather than a major action, and the consequence seems likely to be a city without police protection.

COMMON SENSE IN RELIGION.

One of the supreme needs of today is more consecrated common sense in matters of religion. It was never intended that religious fervor and common sense should be divorced, and yet so often pious people are carried away with foolish sentimentality and childishness, and fail to put into their religious life and activities the same qualities they so constantly put into other phases of life.

There is no doubt it was this thought which impressed Jesus when He said: "The children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light." In that remarkable parable of "the unjust steward," in which the steward pulls off a clever bit of rascality in order to gain friends after losing his position, Christ does not commend him for his dishonesty, unfaithfulness and trickery. What He claims might be imitated is his foresight, initiative, promptitude and wisdom. If a steward could use all these splendid qualities for low purposes, why should not Christian people lay hold of them for noble ends? The people of the world use every faculty, reason, ingenuity, wisdom and imagination to further schemes, while the "children of light" are often content to plod along without laying hold of these qualities. Vice is so often wide awake, while virtue sleeps. What a wonderful change would come over the world if Christian people tapped the full services at their disposal, even from the human as well as the divine springs from which power may flow!

The manner in which "the children of this world" concentrate and scheme, and throw themselves into their plans and purposes in life is a challenge to "the children of light" to greater thoroughness in Christian living. Many Christian people are quite apathetic regarding the culture of the soul. Some one has said a boy learning to whistle will put more concentrated energy into his task than some Christians put into the culture of Christian character. St. Paul certainly urged Christian people to put the same energy and common sense into Christian development as athletes put into the preparation for the Grecian games. Surely spiritual good is worth striving for more than material good. At a dinner party Lord Tennyson was seated next to a lady who spoke contemptuously of an approaching wedding, remarking that the groom was practically penniless. Tennyson fumbled in his pockets and producing a penny, slapped it on the table, exclaiming: "There, I give you that. That is the god you worship." There is no doubt more ability, shrewdness and wisdom is put into making a living than in the culture of a life.

Lift the argument into the realm of Christian service. Men of the world enter upon some scheme for the community, and they apply their ability, thoroughly organize; put time and expense into their project, realizing the value of efficiency. They enter their work with great enthusiasm, and succeed. Why should not the Christian church, and the men of the churches, put the same enthusiasm and foresight into Christian work?

Perhaps where Christian people need common sense more than anywhere else is in the stewardship of time and money. There is nothing which will more reveal the character of a man than the use he makes of time and money. Money is not filthy lucre. It is the reward of concentrated energy and represents labor and life. People talk about the value of prayer, Bible-reading and retreats for deepening of the spiritual life, all of which is good, but there is nothing which will so reveal life and deepen Christian experience like a right attitude to time and wealth. We need a good deal more common Christian honesty as stewards of these things. Money should be rightfully acquired and faithfully spent.—London Free Press.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Peterborough may have to stage a new recruiting campaign—this time for the police force.

The interest shown by the G.W.V.A. in municipal politics should be duplicated by other organizations. It would lead to a livelier campaign—and better civic government.

The legal battle over the police pay is being fought out with an intensity worthy of a better cause.

Some of the workless British harvesters who are being taken care of in Toronto complained because they couldn't have ham and eggs for breakfast. Doubtless they thought they ought to be billeted at the King Edward.

AN AWFUL ATTACK OF PIMPLES ALL OVER HIS FACE

Pimples breaking out on the face and other parts of the body is a sure sign that the blood is not in proper shape.

While the skin is the object of the attack the real seat of the disease is in the blood on account of the entire circulation being poisoned.

Burdock Blood Bitters quickly and effectually banishes pimples and all other skin diseases as it goes right to the root of the trouble by cleansing and enriching the blood.

Mr. Conad Anderson, Kelfield, Sask., writes:—"A year ago I had an awful attack of pimples. They broke out all over my face and I could not get rid of them in any way. One day a friend told me about your Burdock Blood Bitters and let me have a bottle he had to spare. After using it I noticed a change, so I bought three more bottles, and now I don't know there is such a thing as pimples."

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—The nearly 8,000 cattle sent in to the Union Stock Yards this week was altogether too many for the market. Veteran salesmen do not recall a period when conditions have been so bad and prices so unprofitable to shippers. Last year's fall markets were not good owing to the heavy receipts of Western cattle, but they were a vast improvement on the past two weeks. In addition to other factors the unseasonable weather has been hard on the beef trade, and packing houses with the most modern equipment are having difficulty in hanging beef with success.

The local abattoirs and smaller butchers were able to get supplies for Christmas without paying any fancy figures, and in fact, very few of the butchers were much out of the ordinary. Only one bullock brought 9½ cents a pound and another medium weight sold at 8 cents. Except for these there was nothing above 7 cents and this was paid for finished shippess. Baby beeves met a poor market. One extra good sold at 12 cents a pound, but only a few others made 10 cents, and the large percentage went at 7 to 8 cents a pound.

For the general run of good well finished handy weight steers and heifers it was hard to get over $6.25 a cwt., and some substantial killing heifers sold on Wednesday at $5.40 a cwt. A load or two of good steers would have sold on Thursday at 6 cents had they been on the market. The open winter has produced a lot of poor killers, which have been left out to the weather. The raw weather has seriously impaired their killing quality, and a sample load of this kind, 1,300 lbs. each was offered on Thursday and turned down at 5½ cents a pound.

The calf trade has been good, and salesmen are only complaining of the shortage of the real good vealers, which have sold up to and over 12 cents. Medium and good calves were marketed at 9 to 10 cents, and common calves from 6 to 7 cents.

Lambs have had the reverse action of the week before the present, when the price moved up $2 a cwt. to 12½ cents. Monday's market of this week was down half a dollar a cwt. to 12 cents, and by Thursday this was reduced almost another dollar. This week's close was probably 11 to 11½ for choice lambs. Heavy and poor quality lambs were not wanted on Thursday much above 10 cents a pound. Few sheep are arriving and this market keeps quite steady.

Making provision for paying taxes sent in over 12,000 hogs this week, but the runs were taken without lowering the price below $7.50 a cwt. f.o.b. Sales to the smaller outside packers were made 10 to 15 cents a cwt. higher than this.

TORONTO WOMEN HAD CLOSE CALL IN CAR

BELLEVILLE, December 14. — Mrs. Emmaline Pankhurst, Mrs. Perry, Miss Ferris, and Miss Heuson, all of Toronto, were in danger of their lives at the level crossing at the edge of the city yesterday afternoon, when their car was within a few inches of being struck by an east bound passenger train.

They were motoring from Ottawa to Toronto, and the presence of mind of the driver, Miss Heuson, saved the lives of the party.

She was approaching the crossing, which is a bad one, and did not see the approaching train until it was nearly upon them. Too late to get across the tracks with safety, she instantly applied the brakes and turned the car at the same time into the ditch. The train rushed by. The car and the four ladies in it were upset in the drain. They were not seriously hurt.

A KITCHENER MAN FACES A CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER

KITCHENER, December 14 (Canadian Press). — Joseph Krawchynski, of Waterloo, was arrested early this morning by the Provincial officers, and charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Paul Kramaichuck, the young son of Nick Kramaichuck, near Hagey's Crossing, last night, when an automobile, containing eight persons, mostly children, crashed into a hole on the roadside Young Kramaichuck was instantly killed, Martha and Annie Kramaichuck probably fatally injured, and others sustained more or less serious injuries.

Krawchynski will appear in the Galt Court this afternoon.

The accident occurred about six o'clock, when a small motor car, containing Krawchynski, Nick Kramaichuck, and six children, Paul Martha, and Annie Kramaichuck of Hagey's Crossing, and Marie, Joe, and Clara Stednick, of Kitchener, returning from a funeral at Kitchener, swung off the road and crashed into a hole, ten feet deep.

The children, who were in the rear of the car, were thrown underneath, while Krawchynski, who was driving, and Nick Kramaichuck, were thrown some distance, and were not seriously hurt.

Following the accident, Krawchynski, whose identity was not known until two o'clock this morning, disappeared. He took the radial to Kitchener, and thence to Waterloo, where he went to bed.

Kramaichuck was unable to render any aid alone to the children, and hurried to Preston for a doctor.

A motorist took Paul, Martha and Annie Kramaichuck and Clara Stednick to the Galt Hospital, while the two Stednick children were taken to a nearby farmer's house.

No hope is held out for the recovery of Martha and Annie Kramaichuck.

An inquest will be held on Paul Kramaichuck at Preston this afternoon.

BUDS ON ELDER BUSHES.

PORT ARTHUR, Dec. 14. — Young elder bushes with sprouting buds similar to those developing late in the month of May, have been found growing in the vicinity of Port Arthur. A sample branch was examined to-day and it was found to be filled with sap to branch tips. The buds protruding from the branches are about one half inch long, green and yet undamaged by frost.

UNDERTAKER SUED VICTORIA COUNTY

For Recovery of Bodies of Children Drowned in Pigeon River--Judgment Reserved.

OMEMEE, Dec. 15.— Division Court is such an unusual occurrence in Omemee that on Friday when court was held, the Council Chamber was packed from 11.30 a.m. to almost 6 p.m. Judge Swayze presided.

Several cases were on the docket but owing to the lengthy evidence only two were heard.

The first that came up for trial was that of Mr. C. L. Morcombe, undertaker, suing the county for expense attached to the recovering of the bodies of the Clarke children who met their death by drowning in Pigeon river last summer, when suspicion arose after they were buried that they had suffered foul play. R. J. McNeillie, county treasurer, was present and acted in the interests of the County. Evidence showed that the treasurer had offered the sum of $21 which was $10 short of what plaintiff asked. The Board of Commissioners had looked into the matter but nothing more was granted. Lawyer R. I. Moore of Lindsay acted for the plaintiff, while Lawyer A. M. Fulton acted for the defendant.

The second was Mr. J. Stone, suing Mr. B. Hume for money he had loaned him and which the defendant claimed he did not owe, having paid him back in grain, etc. Lawyer Moore acted for plaintiff and Lawyer Fulton for defendant.

Judgment was reserved in both cases.

A third case that of Mr. T. J. McConnel suing Mr. R. J. Cornwall for the price of wood, while the defendant holds a counter claim for hay drawing of lumber, etc., against plaintiff. Owing to the late hour, only the plaintiff's evidence was given when the court was adjourned.

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE RAGING

Canadian Cattle May Be Introduced Into Great Britain for Breeding Purposes.

LONDON, Dec. 15. —(Canadian Press Cable.)—The veterinary officials and representatives of the public bodies and the veterinary societies from all parts of the United Kingdom together with the representatives from Canada, Australia and South Africa held a meeting at the Royal Sanitary Institute, and passed a resolution declaring it desirable to allow the introduction of breeding heifers from Canada into Great Britain subject to government certificate that they are free from tuberculosis.

One London cattle inspector, referring to the wholesale slaughter of cattle proceeding in England as a result of the foot and mouth disease outbreak, said he was confident that if Canadian heifers were imported as a temporary measure, importation would become permanent when the farmers heer realized the quality of the Canadian cattle.

SINGAPORE BASE NOT ABANDONED.

London Denies Report From New York — Is Without Foundation.

LONDON, December 15 (Canadian Press). — There is no foundation whatever for the report received yesterday from New York to the effect that the Singapore Base has been abandoned, says a note issued last night by the Secretary of the Admiralty.

A despatch from London on Thursday announced that the cancellation by the Government of the proposed visit of the Earl of Cavan, Chief of the General Staff, to Singapore, and the Dominions, was interpreted in some quarters as recognition that its plan to spend nine and a half million pound on a naval base at Singapore was not likely to materialise in view of the effect of the elections on the Government's political fortunes.

CAMPBELLFORD PROVES ECONOMY OF DAY LABOR IN BUILDING OF SEWERS

Garry Street Work As Originally Planned Has Been Completed at a Saving of $1,244 Under Lowest Tender.

MASONIC CEREMONY.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 15. — The town has completed its second venture in building sewers by day labor instead of under the contract system, and the result shows a substantial saving to the ratepayers.

When it was decided to construct the Garry street sewer some members of the Council were in favor of having the work done by contract, as the street laborers were at that time busy with sidewalk building. Tenders were called for and two were received. T. Brown offered to do the work for $6,770 and John A. Hall's bid was for $5,797. Both tenders were for the sewer alone and did not include the cost of the water main. The engineer's estimate for the improvement was $6,102.

After a long discussion and in the face of considerable opposition, the Council finally decided to contruct the sewer by day labor. It was pointed out at the time that Street Foreman Fox had been successful in the construction of the Wellington street sewer, and a majority of the Councillors had confidence in his ability to repeat the performance.

Sewer Cost $5,153.

The total cost of the Garry street sewer was $5,313, including the water main, or $484 below the lowest tender, which did not include the latter improvement. From this total there is to be deducted $65 worth of sewer and $95 worth of water pipes purchased for Garry street, but turned over to the sewer on Ranney street. This reduces the actual cost to $5,153.

While the sewer was in process of construction it was decided to extend it 60 feet on petition of property owners who resided on a side street. This meant an outlay of at least $600 additional, and this amount must be taken into consideration when comparing the total cost with the tenders received. The Garry street sewer as originally planned would therefore have cost $4,553, or $1,244 less than the lowest tender, a substantial saving to the property owners benefited, who pay 60 per cent. of the cost, as well as to the town which puts up the balance.

Foreman Fox has scored another success on the Ranney street sewer, built from Bridge street to the New High School. No tenders were asked for this, but Mr. Fox has completed the job for $1,200 less than the engineer's estimates.

It is likely that all sewers in the future will be built on the day labor plan. Work on the Rear and Second streets sewers may be started during the winter as the most of the cut on these thoroughfares is through solid rock, work on which is not seriously affected by cold weather.

Shot At Sign.

Two black foxes were shot at the entrance to the Pattee & Wolf Foxes Ltd., on Saturday last. Mr. Jack Pattee has been on the look-out for the hunters. It happened this way. Two beautiful oil paintings compose part of the arch which adorns the entrance to the fox farm. Some hunters evidently mistook these two foxes for live ones and fired a shot at each one. Had they been live foxes it certainly would have meant sudden death. The sign was erected at considerable expense and is quite an attraction for motorists as they pass by Car In Ditch.

A motor car from Peterboro with two passengers, a young man and woman passed through the village the other night going towards Selwyn. The young man changed his mind at Kellys Corner and in an attempt to turn around backed his car into a six-foot ditch. Mr. George Bell who lives near by was awakened by cries for help arrived on the scene and with the aid of a shovel succeeded in getting the car back on the road. No damage was done to the car or the passengers.

MENACE TO THE COUNTRY

Authorities Not Aware What is Going on Thinks Mr. Justice Kelly

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Dec. 15 —"I cannot bring myself to believe that the authorities, either of the Federal or Provincial Governments, really are cognizant of what is going an and what has been organized, into a real menace to our country. You may be sure all will be referred to the proper authorities."

Mr. Justice Kelly made this statement in grave tones before starting for Toronto on the conclusion of the Assize Court trial of a case in which two factions of Ukranians claim possession of the club property. He had previously taken the case under advisement, and was not referring to the merits of either claim, but commenting on the evidence adduced bearing upon the preparations throughout the Western Provinces for an uprising among the foreign elements, particularly central Europeans.

BEGGED HIM TO TAKE THE MONEY FOR OIL STOCK

Even Relatives of Leo Koretz Among His Victims in Four Million "Panama Oil Bubble."

IS A FUGITIVE.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14. — More trouble piled up to-day for Leo Koretz, fugitive promoter of a $4,000,000 "Panama oil bubble."

Koretz, who varied the usual practice of the alleged swindler by picking as his victims his own relatives and persons with large sums of money, many of whom begged him to take it, was reported named in a true bill voted by the grand jury today charging larency and operations of a confidence game.

At almost the same time an involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against him by three creditors whose claims totalled $6,500 and a trust company was named receiver.

The origin of the "Panama Oil Bubble,' organized as the Bayona River Trust Company, in which friends and relatives of Leo Kortez are said to have lost millions, today was ascribed by his intimate friends to a swindle perpetrated on Koretz in 1910.

"A relative of an attorney named Dan Belasco," said Attorney Francis F. Matthews, "came here in 1910, announcing he had concessions for rich timber lands in Panama. He sought someone to invest $10,000 to pay for cutting and shipping some of the timber. Koretz invested that amount and that was the last seen of that promoter.

"Koretz made a special trip to Panama to hunt for the man and while there he evidently acquired a lot of local color for his own great est promotion venture— the Bayano Company, and the inspiration which carried him through 13 years of frenzied finance."

Those who invested with Koretz described his methods as the exact reverse of the ordinary type of promoter. He was invariably reluctant to accept the money of his friends to invest in his schemes, and always made it appear that he had to sacrifice some of his own holdings to share them with others.

"My dear Anna," said one of his letters, "I am trying to figure a way of letting you have a little stock in the Bayano River Trust but up to date I have been unable to do so. I can well understand your anxiety aid would like to help you out. I will do so at the first opportunity."

A report submitted to the early investors in the Bayano Company in 1910, said the region was "capable of producin almost beyond the dreams of avarice.' Rubber, timber, cotton of pink, white and yellow, sugar cane, cocoa, coffee, peanuts, and a lengthy list of other products were named.

But it was the oil possibilities on which he later dwelt to the sorrow of his investors. It was "oil," that was featured on the handsome souvenir menus of an elaborate banquet to seventeen of his investors in June, 192. On the cover was a child hood photograph of Koretz, and the frontispiece was another labelled "the man of to-day." Farther along were his own caricatures titled "Wallingford,' and "Ponzi". One of the guests on that occasion, a prominent clothier, ruefully recalled to-day that he had rushed a check for $30,000 to Koretz's office, the very day of his disappearance.

Do Trifles Annoy and Upset You
Do You Have Frequent Headaches
Do You Quarrel With Those You Love
Do You Jump When the Door Slams ?

Well Known Hospital Physician Says These Are Some of the Danger Signals of Exhausted Nerve Force—What To Do

One of the most terrible of all human ailments is exhausted nerve force. It weakens all the vital organs of the body and as a result all kinds of alarming symptoms may appear. Some people get nervous indigestion, pains over the eyes, in the heart, and across the small of the back; in others the first symptoms are mental instead of physical—sleeplessness, worry over trifles, or inability to concentrate on your work.

The nervous mother is upset by her children, squabbles with her husband, has frequent fits of the "blues" and bursts into tears over the smallest troubles. In such cases it is worse than useless to waste time taking stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs; the starving nerve cells must have nerve food which is supplied by the blood. Any physician will tell you that if the blood supply were cut off from any nerve in your body that the nerve would die.

If you have any of the symptoms of nerve force exhaustion, you should at once take steps to enrich your blood. This can be quickly and most effectively accomplished by the free use of Nuxated Iron, which not only increases the activity of the blood making organs, but feeds true red blood food directly to the blood itself and thereby helps to create millions of new red blood cells.

The discovery of organic iron as contained in Nuxated Iron is one of the most valuable red blood making scientific discoveries since the creation of modern medical science, and its effect in helping to create new nerve force and revitalize worn-out, exhausted nerve cells, is sometimes most amazing.

Try Nuxated Iron for two weeks and if at the end of that time you have not obtained all and even greater benefits than you expect, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money.

NUXATED IRON INCREASES THE NERVE FORCE AND GIVES NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

GRADUATION DIPLOMAS PRESENTED TO PUPILS

Commencement Exercises of Collegiate Institute Held Yesterday Afternoon.

Commencement Exercises of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute were held yesterday afternoon in the Institute's assembly hall, which was filled with members of the different classes, their parents and friends. A. A. Fowler, chairman of the Board of Education, presided. Presentation of graduation diplomas was made by Rev. C. W. Rose, D.D., pastor of Murray street Baptist church, Nicholls Scholarships were presented by W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., Commercial diplomas by A. Mowat, B.A., Public School Inspector, Athletic prizes by Miss M. Elliott, B.A. and V. R. Henry, B.A., and special prizes by A. S. Zavitz, B.A. and Principal H. R. H. Kenner. At the conclusion of the exercises, the staff and graduating members of the fourth and fifth classes entertained friends and parents at afternoon tea.

The chairman, A. A. Fowler, congratulated the boys and girls on a successful year, both in academic pursuits and in sports, which he said were almost as important in school life as the educational side, and also congratulated C. S. Browne and the rugby team.

Achieved Greatness.

Rev. Mr. Rose spoke briefly on the subject of "Achieved Greatness," saying that the greatness achieved through life was merely the releasing of possibilities stored within the boy or girl at birth. "The Great Giver of good things has not been nearly so partial in the distribution of His good things as we are inclined to think. There are potential statesmen in many of our homes and schools, waiting for some Samuel with his annointing oil to come forward and set free their latent powers. These things are generally developed through a course of education. Greatness is really service in the interests of mankind. I believe also, that in this generation of growing young men and women there are more latent capacities for greatness than have ever yet been discovered in the history of the world." Mr. Rose went on to emphasize the importance of placing the spiritual side of education and the development of moral faculties as highly above the mental training as the latter is now placed above the mere physical training of the body, "so as to enable us to make a life as well as a living, and to control the giant forces of our nature as well as the titanic forces of the material world."

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., presenting the Nicholls Scholarship awards, spoke in eulogistic terms of the generosity and kindness of the late Mrs. C. Nicholls, who had left perpetual reminders of her bounty in these educational gifts as well as in the handsome parks that beautified the city.

Mr. A. Mowat expressed his concurrence in the opinions enunciated by Rev. Dr. Rose. He said that many young people conceived the idea that secondary schools were formed for the purpose of fitting them for fine positions, and that thereafter they would travel an easy road in life. "But that is an incident, not the end of your education." Mr. Mowat stressed the importance of provision that should be made for a three-year course in the commercial departments, saying that English alone required more time than was now given to it, and said that another disability of the commercial classes was their separation here from the parent school.

Athletic Awards.

Presentation of athletic prizes was made by Miss M. Elliott, B.A. to the girls, and to the boys by V. R. Henry, B.A. Both reviewed the activities of the teams during the year. Miss Elliott gave an interesting resume of the progress of physical education, and its effects on the people of the countries where it flourished, from the time of the early Greeks and Romans to the present day.

Mr. Henry spoke of the prowess of the boys in different events, both in the field day programme, when a spirit of friendly rivalry was apparent, and in the games, when team play and the spirit of co-operation was evident. As auxiliary awards for prominence in various events, a number of small gifts were presented to Howard Young (pearl-handled pocket knife), to H. Doughty, (fountain pen), to Boyd Craw, (pearl-handled knife), W. Merrell (ditto), Grant Miller and W. Archibald, (cuff links), G. Noftall, (watch chain), Vernon Beavis (pen), Clayton Frost, (knife), S. Hope and S. Chambers, (cuff links) and to the winners of the new field day 'jockey race', A. Cole and R. Thompson, for excellent team spirit displayed; a humorous gift of a tooth brush and tube of paste to each, and to Form Five Relay Team, composed of Orville Martin, Ira Sanderson, Alex Craw and Howard Young, boxes of chocolates. The Board of Education donated these prizes.

From the Athletic Association were presented to the victorious school rugby team, crests inscribed "Eastern Ontario Champions, Interscholastic O.R.F.U., 1923."

Graduationa take 23 .enm 4

The captain of the team, Howard Young speaking for the group, paid a tribute to th, excellent work as coach of C. S. Browne, and presented the latter with a pair of gold cuff links. Mr. Browne replied in appropriate terms, and the class yell was given for the evidently popular coach.

Special Prizes

Special prizes which are awarded each year to the boy and girl receiving the most ballots on the counts of character, scholarship, leadership and enthusiasm in athletics, were presented by their donors, Mr. Zavitz and Mr. Kenner in turn to this year's winners; Miss Sheila Thompson and Farron Stevens.

The valedictory address was given by Miss Ruth Sharpe and proved to be an entertaining glimpse, told in humorous fashion, of many of the funny incidents connected with school life, and struggles of scholars with mathematics and language thorns, Miss Sharpe closed her paper with an allusion to the fact that "the cream of the students in the Collegiate come from the country," and a regret that Peterboro, under present conditions, was likely to lose much of the cream.

Mr. Kenner spoke briefly of the fine record made by Miss Sharpe in honor matriculation examinations when, on eleven papers, she received eleven first-class honors.

An enjoyable musical programme included several school choruses, led by C. S. Browne, M.A., one of which was particular effective rendition of the stirring "It's Canada" number, and two appearances of the boys' chorus, who made a hit with their humorous selections. Miss Jean Bryce, who also acted as accompanist for the various choruses, played very charmingly a variation of "Alice, Where Art Thou?" and Arnold Spencer gave a violin solo, in well-played rendition of Beethoven's Minuet.

ST. THOMAS CHURCH MILLBROOK STAGED AN ENTERTAINMENT

The Proceeds Amounted to Sixty Dollars — The Cast.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 15. — The town hall was well filled on Thursday evening, in spite of most unfavorable roads and weather, when the play, "Miss Buzby's Boarders," a comedy in three acts, was given by the A.Y.P.A. of St. Thomas church. The characters were all well taken and the audience kept interested and amused throughout. Several had considerable memory work in connection with their parts Mrs. W. Hilton and Miss Ada Attwool deserving particular mention, and the successful acting in practically every case called for dramatic skill as well. The little colored maid "Florinda," of the Topsy variety, mischievous and bubbling over with fun, provided many a hearty laugh especially when insisting, "Don' noboddy cotch dis chile telling nuffin. No-siree.'

The opening piano duet by Mrs. Allen and Miss A. Attwool was warmly applauded, as were also the piano solos by Miss M. Collins between the several acts. Much credit is due Mrs. (Canon) Allen and Miss Mary Turner who largely assumed the responsibility for training the characters and staging the play, the scenes, two of which were laid in the parlor at Miss Buzby's boarding-house and one in Miss Marr's dressing-room at the theatre, being appropriately and attractively arranged

The cast of characters was as follows: Jerome Townsend, a lover somewhat in the background, Mrs. F. Lowery; Felix Marden, who is not afraid to come to the front, Mr. M. Gray; Mr. Smith, a mysterious individual, Mr. J. W. Hutchison; Alexander Pettifer, a worm that finally turns, Mr. R. Stone; Jimmie Spangler, a song and dance artist, Mr. F. Wells; Marguerite Marr, a star in vaudeville, Miss A. Attwool; Lillian Wendale by the villain still pursued, Miss Pearl Lamb; Pansy Purple, Jim's professional partner Miss Geraldine Morton; Amelia Buzby from the country, keeping boarders in the city, Miss M. Pitt; Mrs. Pettifer, with a mind of her own and willing to speak it, Mrs. W. Hilton; Florinda, the colored maid at Miss Buzby's, Miss Irene Lamb.

The receipts were in the neighborhood of $60.00.

LOTS FOWL ON LOCAL MARKET

The Axe Must Have Worked Overtime to Account for Today's Slaughter.

The axe-helves that industrious peddlers were dispensing some weeks ago must have been turned to good account when attached to the business end of the axe during the past week. There must have been much lamentation among the barnyard colonies recently, of the number of slaughtered fowl on the farmers' market this morning is any evidence of a sudden, lamentable decrease in the number of fowl colonies around Peterboro. Hundreds of birds occupied the tables and covered the side benches in the open section this morning. At a late hour quantities of them remained unsold. The jam was a real Christmas one, and the prices steadily dropped. Turkeys, opening at 35c a pound, went down to 25c, geese from 25 to 20c, ducks from 28 to 23c, and chickens were generally priced at 20c. One elderly lady, holding to a 30c price for ducks triumphantly asserted her intention of taking three remaining birds home, and eating them all herself, before she would lower the price, but others surrendered to the inevitable result of a loaded market, and dropped their prices.

Eggs and butter were fairly plentiful, the former selling from 65 to 60c a dozen, the latter from 40 to 38c a pound. Cream was 25 and 30c a pint.

In the open section there was much meat available in sides and quarters, beef at 10 and 12c, pork at 14 and 16c, and 15 and 17c a pound.

There was plenty of fowl on sale downstairs also, the men evidently helping out the ladies in the sale of the surplus stock. A calm pig's head with closed eyes, reposed peacefully on the fender of a parked car, and the heart and liver of another porker was available for the price of 30c.

Potatoes were $1.50 a bag, onions 75c a peck, and apples were a popular commodity. Boys ranged in price and quality from 50c to 65c a peck, Russets were 50 and 45c, Grahams Golden and Baldwins 40c; and Baldwins, by the four-peck box were $1.35.

Wood in loads was plentiful. A noticeable element in many of the loads is the neat piling which seems to be replacing the old system of helter-skelter disposal in the carts. Stove-length hardwood was $12 a load; tamarack, $9; mixed elm, ash and birch, $9, and a good mixed load, $10.00.

The auctioneer was selling ladies' shoes in small dainty sizes at $1 and $1.25 a pair.

JUDGMENT WAS POSTPONED BY JUDGE HUYCKE

In Chambers This Morning His Honor Set Case Forward Until Tuesday on Motion of G. W. Hatton--Influenced by Toronto Agreement.

PAY FOR POLICE

Judgment in the case of the police against the Corporation of the City of Peterboro, was enlarged by His Honor Judge Huycke sitting in Chambers this morning, and will be re-opened on Tuesday next.

This was done on motion of G. W. Hatton, K.C., counsel for the police constables. R. R. Hall, K.C., and Joseph Wearing, City Solicitor, were also present.

In view of an agreement between G. N. Gordon, K.C., acting for the city, and the Toronto solicitor for the police, H. S. White, K.C., in which it was mutually decided to let Mr. Gordon's prohibitory motion stand over pending the return of judgment in the Newhall case, Mr. Hatton said there was no other course open to him than to ask for an enlargement.

Mr. Hall said at a meeting of the Manufacturers' Association this morning the members undertook to pay the policemen if the Council does not. With Roland Denne he asked an appointment with the Association, and informed the members that with one or more of them they were willing to back a note to see the policemen were paid.

Mr. Breyfogle preferred the course of pointing out to the City Council the gravity of the situation, and Mr. Patterson pointed out that the underwriters might cancel all the insurance on factories if the police force ceased work.

As an outcome of the meeting Mr. Hall said the Manufacturers Association unanimously agreed to pay the members of the police force on Tuesday if the salaries were not forthcoming from the City Council on Monday. The amount that will be paid will not be that under litigation but the last two weeks' wages which become due to-night, and which have not been sued for.

Judge Huycke—"That is placing the burden in the wrong place"

Mr. Wearing said he thought the Court of Appeal may give judgment on Monday. If the judgment is in favor of Chief Newhall, then judgment will go in the other cases alike. In that event there will be judgment against the city, and it will be so much easier for the city to pay. At present they cannot legally raise the money, but with a judgment against them they would be compelled to. If, on the other hand the judgmnte goes in favor of the city there will not be any demand for money.

Mr. Hall made it clear that which ever way the judgment goes the policemen must be paid. "The statement of the Manufacturers' Committee is clear," he said. "The policemen must be paid and shall be paid."

GERMAN TRAINS ARE CURTAILED.

Fast Trains Are Cut Off—Hotels Make Travelling Unpleasant.

HAMBURG, Dec. 15.—(Associated Press).—Train travel in Germany during the coming winter is not promising of either comfort or dependability. There are not so many fast trains as formerly between the big cities; there have been other curtailments, and there are fewer sleeping cars.

Outside the great cities the hotel accommodations also are far below those of normal times. There is little motor touring, and few foreign tourists are visiting the remoter places of interest. Consequently hotels which once were acceptable are now very unsatisfactory.

The liquor business, which was once the mainstay of many inns, has declined so greatly that bars are practically closed. Many inns in small towns are even short of bread, and innkeepers share the general demoralization and disorganization which has spread throughout the economic and social fabric.

DIAMOND HUNTERS HOPEFUL SUCCESS

Canadian Flag Hoisted on the Mazaruni River --Peterboro Man With Party.

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—(Special.)—"The Canadian flag will be seen on the Mazaruni river for along time to come."

This is the message that comes to Toronto from the Canadian diamond expedition to British Guiana, Lester MacGillivary, president of "the venture," old boy of St. Andrew's College, tells in a letter to the Old Boys' Association of the College the story of the expedition, the landing at Georgetown, Demerara, the trip by canoe and motor boat into the heart of tropical forests, the cold wet nights, the steaming days, the first mining operations, sickness striking the party, the death of Verne Stokes, the return to Georgetown, the second trip into the forest and the search for diamonds by the Mazaruni river.

The river trip was a series of paddles, portages and hauls.

"When we came to some rapids," MacGillivary says, "the paddlers would get out and haul the boats along with ropes, working in among the trees and rocks until still water was reached. Sometimes, after a desperate struggle, we would commence to slip back and the captain would work the boat to shore and the men would catch the branches of trees and vines and haul the boat ahead. In places the river is very wide; in other places, a large number of islands. We could almost imagine we were amongst the Thousand Islands."

Mining operations were begun near the Puruba river. "We built a 'tom'," MacGillivary tells, "a box-like affair, usually about five feet long, two feet wide, one foot deep and open at each end. Near one end is placed slantwise an iron plate with half inch perforations. The 'Tom' is set flat. At one end is placed a small box called the 'Tom' box. Gravel is shovelled int the 'Tom.' Another man washes the clay and gravel and forces it through the 'Tom' iron. Another man throws water into the 'Tom' and a fourth man fills his hand sieve from the 'Tom' and this material is jigged, that is, shaken rapidly from side to side. In such a way the heavier stones are placed in the centre of the sieve. If there are any diamonds they should be found in the centre of the sieve."

"MacGillivary started on a trip up a branch river.

"Verne Stokes died the day I left," he continued.

"On our return two more of the party were ill. So we packed up and, leaving our supplies where we could pick them up, were turned to Georgetown."

At Georgetown some of the party decided to give up the venture. The others made the second trip into the forest and began to mine near the Mazaruni river. "Present indications lead us to believe," says MacGillivary, "that we will meet with success and I think the Canadian flag will be seen on the Mazaruni river for a long time to come."

A son of Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton of this city is a member of the above party.

EXCHANGE BAFFLES THE IMAGINATION.

Box of Matches Costs More in Paper Marks Than the Greatest Fortune in Germany in 1914.

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—(Associated Press).—Before the war the wealth of the entire world was estimated at about three trillion gold marks. That number of gold marks, at the rate of early November, was worth only about two dollars. A box of matches today costs more paper marks than there were gold marks in the greatest fortune in Germany before the war. The fortunes of Bertha Krupp, the Prince of Henckel-Donnersmarck and the Duke of Oldenburg were variously estimated at from one to three hundred million gold marks, but a beggar would scarcely accept that number of paper marks today.

Germany's entire circulation in paper notes before the war was less than the number of paper marks which can be realized today by converting a gold pfennig into paper marks.

Every seventh week, on the average, since the close of the war, the number of marks which could be realized on a dollar has been doubled, and thirty-seven duplications have sent the exchange figures into the trillions and baffled all imagination.

U.S. LEADING IN DEBT INCREASE,

America Ahead of Entire World in Boosting Public Debt, Says League of Nations.

By HENRY WOOD.

GENEVA, Dec. 15.—(United Press).—The United States is now leading the entire world in increase in public debt, according to a world-wide study just completed by the League of Nations.

Reduced to the basis of pre-war prices for the purpose of comparison, America's public debt is now just thirteen times what it was before the war.

The English public debt comes next, with an increase of seven times over the pre-war debt, and France comes next, with an increase of only three times of her pre-war debt.

One of the surprising developments of the league's investigation into the present status of public debts, however, is the fact that it is only in those two countries where the increase has been the greatest, namely, the United States and England, that any substantial progress has been made toward the repayments of these debts.

According to the league's investigation, Finland carries off the palm for the smallest increase in her public debt; South Africa comes next, and then Switzerland and Sweden.

Wiped Out by Inflation.

Germany, however, is marked down as being about the luckiest country of them all, because of the fact that by her "kolossal" inflation of currency her public debt is practically wiped out.

Another interesting fact which the league investigation developed is that the loans issued by Holland, Sweden and Switzerland in the United States during 1919, 1920 and 1921 have since been virtually all brought back by wealthy individuals of those countries.

The league's investigation also covered the present status of the budgets of all the leading countries of the world. While it was found that a policy of severe retrenchment has been put into force in nearly all countries and heavy saving effected, nevertheless, the increase in the public debts of virtually all countries has swallowed up all that has been saved in cutting down administrative expenses.

The detailed report is now being sent by the league to all of the nations of the world as an indication of what progress is being made towards getting back to "normalcy"

CITY ADMINISTRATION WAS TOPIC DISCUSSED AT FRIENDLY MEETING

City Clerk Armstrong was a Tower of Strength to the City Council on Appearance in G. W. V. A. Hall — Ran Gamut of Civic Policies.

STILL NO MONEY

When Mayor Taylor and the Aldermen went on the platform of the G. W. V. A. Hall last night they faced an audience of about 150 interested veterans, who showed their visitors every courtesy and indicated by their questions that their ideas were constructive rather than destructive. No great policies were put forward by any of the speakers, nothing altogether new was proposed for the advancement of the city, and there were none of the fireworks which sometimes characterize such meetings. The interchange of views was dispassionate, and fulfilled the aim of the executive of the G.W.V.A. in calling the meeting, which was the enlightening of the members in the methods of civic government. City Clerk Armstrong's statement of the duties and limitations of Municipal councils was particularly interesting and instructive, and Dr. N. H. Sutton, President of the G.W.V.A., showed a keen perception of the problems of the city. The police situation was touched upon several times, and while the members of the City Council affirmed their desire to pay the constables, they were almost unanimous in stating the impossibility of doing so, owing to lack of funds. Many expressions of regret were made in consideration of the position of the members of the force who, it was recognized, had individually no active part in the dispute now going forward.

The past, present and ultimate disposition of Riverside Park were discussed at length, the leasing of it this year being criticized by Dr. Sutton and the handing over of the park to the P.A.A.A. being endorsed by a vote of the veterans present.

Taxes, paving, sewage disposal plant, hydro, combination school, city manager and the physical extension of the city received their modicum of attention.

President N. H. Sutton of the G. W. V. A. presided, and there were present from the City Council Mayor W. H. Taylor, Aldermen Robert Morrison, Nagel Phelan, Walter Stocker, W. T. Holloway, J. O. Fife and M. J. Maher. Mrs. W. R. Morris and Roland Denne represented the Board of Education.

Civic Government

Mr. Armstrong opened his address with a comparison between a city council and a person, under the law. "An individual can do anything he likes except what the law says he must not do," he said, "but a City Council can do only what the law says it may do."

The City Council in Peterboro' is composed of ten Aldermen and the Mayor, and is different from most Municipal Councils of Ontario. The law declares that the city must be divided into wards, with so many aldermen elected from each ward annually. Peterboro' has varied this, and Aldermen are elected by a general vote. A special law here provides that there shall be ten Aldermen elected for a term of two years each, half retiring each year, and the Mayor retiring annually. The date for nominations for persons for civic positions is set for December 23, unless that date falls on a Saturday or a Sunday, in which case the nomination day shall be the Friday previous. December 23 this year is on Sunday, hence nominations will be received on the 21st.

The franchise has been changed and extended of late years for municipal elections, Mr. Armstrong said. Some years ago women having the qualifications required of men voters were allowed to vote if they were widowed or single. Then all women who owned property were permitted to vote, and today the wives of qualified voters are admitted to the poll on a level with their husbands. This comes into operation in Peterboro' for the first time with the approaching election, and has added several thousand names to the voters' lists and sixteen polling places in the city.

In addition to the Council there are seven other bodies charged with the administration of the city's affairs. The City Trust, which is peculiar to Peterboro', was formed in 1861 with five members appointed by the legislature to act as trustees between the council, the citizens and the debenture holders. The City Trust administers all real estate that is the property of the city. The members are not appointed for life, this having been changed in 1908, but are now appointed by the City Council for a term of five years, one retiring each year and being eligible for re-election.

Commissions

The Utilities Commission consists of three members appointed by the people. The law provides that two members should be elected annually by the people and the third member should be the Mayor, but in 1902 this city introduced the present system, providing that no member of the Council should sit on the commission.

The Police Commission is constituted by act of the legislature, and under that act the police are governed by the commission, consisting of the County Judge, the Magistrate and the Mayor. Its duty is to appoint the police and make regulations governing them. The Council has to provide the money—"whether all the money they want, I don't know," said Mr. Armstrong.

The Board of Health, consisting of the Medical Officer of Health, and three ratepayers appointed by the City Council, has the authority to take any measures necessary to control epidemics, and the city council must provide the money. It manages the Isolation Hospital and the money must be provided by the Council.

The Public Library Board manages the Public Library, asking the City Council for the money required. The Council must furnish this money up to a limit of one mill to the dollar.

The Board of Education manages the Collegiate Institute and the Public Schools. It is elected by the people, and consists of nine persons elected by the citizens for two year terms. The Separate School Board has the right to appoint one member on the Board of Education to look after Collegiate Institute matters. The City Council must furnish the money this Board asks for.

Peterboro' has another local body which has been running for 25 years or more, the Central Charity Board, composed of representatives of the churches and the relief officer.

The City Council is divided into eight Committees for the carrying on of the city's business. They are: the Board of Works; Fire, Water and Light; Finance; Property; Legal; Railway and Parks; Fuel and Manufacturers' committees.

Obtaining Money

Money required for the City Council's own projects and uses and for the other bodies is usually appropriated about March 1. After the assessment has been made, revised by the court of appeal and decided on appeal by the County Judge, and the Council receives notice of the amount of assessment for lands and buildings and income, it strikes the rate and levies taxes. The Council must make estimates yearly, and must not spend any more money than it has levied, without a vote from the people. It may, however, take money from one department to pay unexpected expenses in another.

The City Council may issue debentures for certain purposes, such as building of sewers and similar work under local improvement, without a vote of the people. It may aslo build schools on the recommendation of the Board of Education or under certain conditions extend water-works and light without a vote.

The Provincial Board of Health has great power, and an order from it to install a sewer or waterworks or a disposal plant must be obeyed. Debentures for this class of work require no vote.

On the conclusion of Mr. Armstrong's explanation of civic economics he was subjected to a barrage of questions which showed the attention which had been paid to his remarks.

He was asked whether any appropriation comes from outside the city to finance the city. "The only amount I know is the tax which the Provincial Government collects from the railways, which it apportions to the municipalities through which the railways run, amounting in the case of this city to about $600.00," he replied. "They take out of that share a proportion for the maintenance of hospitals, and what is left goes to the cities. On the other hand, the Provincial Government takes a good deal out of the city, in the amusement tax, for instance."

Question: "Is there any ruling on whether the members of the police force must be residents of the city or not?"

Mr. Armstrong: "There is no legal requirement. The Police Commission may appoint anyone they wish."

Mr. Armstrong was accorded hearty applause.

Mayor Taylor's Address

"The City Council during the past year has given close attention to the business of the City and has endeavoured to transact the business in the interests of the ratepayers.

"One subject that has engaged the attention of the Council for several years has been that of sewage disposal. You know that an order was issued by the Provincial Board of Health that the sewage had to be treated, and that the Townships south of the City entered an action in the Courts to compel the City to construct disposal works. This would have been done long before this only that there is a serious difference of opinion between the City Engineer and the Council and the Provincial Board of Health as to the system that should be adopted. The Provincial Board insists on the installation of the activated sludge system, which the Council is advised by its own officer is in an experimental stage and is costly to operate, while the Council wishes to install a double tank system. This dispute has been carried on for several years. In order to properly protect the City, the Council had the City Engineer visit cities where these systems were in operation and make a study of them and he still advises the double tank system. The Townships have been patient while this dispute has been on, and we hope that it will soon be settled. This fall the Minister of Health in the Ontario Government has interviewed on the subject and a settlement of the question is hoped for so that the work can be proceeded with. In the meantime the City has purchased a site for the disposal plant and is constructing a main sewer down Park Street to the river, so that as soon as the system is decided upon the work of construction may proceed and the plant put speedily in operation.

There was no street paving done for several years until this year, and this year the Council decided that some of the main streets should be paved. George Street is now paved to Romaine Street and Hunter Street East to the top of the hill east of Armour Road. In all one and a quarter miles of streets were paved this year. A drain has been laid on Water street to the Canadian National Railway near Hilliard Street and this street, from Brock to Dublin Streets and from Antrim to the railway, will be ready for paving next spring. The Council has also made preparations for paving on other streets, including McDonnell to Reid Street, which next year's Council may proceed with if they should so desire."

Low Tax Rate

"The tax rate this year was two mills lower than last year. This was accomplished by careful preparation and scrutiny of the appropriations. It is always difficult to forecast what the rate will be. Next year the interest and sinking fund for the debentures to pay for the paving done this year will have to be provided for and there may also be part of the cost of the new outfall sewer to be looked after, but even with this I am hopeful that the Council will be able to keep the rate down. The rate this year is 34 mills. This compares favorably with other places, as Brockville 38, the Sault 37, Oshawa 43, Guelph 38, Ingersoll 40, London 34.7, Sarnia 36, Woodstock 37.5, Galt 44, Kingston 51, Dundas 50, Smith's Falls 52, Cobourg 42, Whitby 45, Port Hope 45.

The Police Dispute

"It is unfortunate that the difference between the Council and Police Commission has arisen. The Council is of the opinion that the Legislature gave it authority to revise the amount of the estimates for the police department, and it did reduce the Commission's estimates by over $3,800.00. The Council believes that the appropriation they made of $25,000.00 is enough to provide adequate police protection. The Commission did not agree with this and ignored the action of the Council. The suit the Chief Constable has entered for salary and other expenses will decide this question. If the Council has the responsibility of deciding the amount of the expenditure for police protection they must use their judgment in fixing the appropriation, for if they are responsible they must be in a position to account to the people for the amount that is expended. At the same time we believe that the Council should have the authority, as the Legislature intended they should, of deciding what this municipal department should cost. If it should happen that the courts decide against the Council we can then go to the Legislature and show them that the amendment they made to the Act does not accomplish what they intended and ask them to pass a further amendment so that there can be no mistake about it.

It will be the duty of the Council next year, as in the past, to carefully guard the interest of the ratepayers, and to see that the necessary services are given at the lowest possible cost."

* * *

Question: "You quote rates of other towns and cities. Is their assessment higher and their tax rate lower?"

Mayor Taylor: "I don't know the value of the property in other cities."

Mr. Armstrong: "The law provides that the city shall provide an assessor, and he is directed by law to assess all property at actual value, and the city has no control of it. I don't know whether they assess at actual value in other places or not. Property goes up in value in a growing town and declines when business stagnates. The assessor should endeavor to strike through these to the actual value." Referring to a list which he held of the twenty-four cities in Ontario, showing the taxes per head of population and with the highest figure at the top, Mr. Armstrong said Peterboro' is eighth from the bottom.

Police Question Again

Question to Mayor Taylor: "What would be your stand regarding a by-law compelling the Chief of Police to be a resident in the city and the constables as far as possible chosen from the city?"

Mayor Taylor: "I was always in favor of anyone drawing money from the city living in the city. The present Chief has been on the force a long time and no move has been made to put him out."

Question: "Why not fire him if we can't get him into the city?"

Mayor Taylor: "The Commission has the hiring and firing and the Council has nothing to do with it."

Mr. Layfield: "Is it not possible, without the dignity of the Council being lost, to pay the policemen and in some way pile up a reserve to settle the question afterwards? These men have served us faithfully or you on the Commission would not have retained them. Couldn't this be done even if the City Council has to go back on some words they said last March? Every business man has had to go back on his plans since then."

Mayor Taylor: "I would like to see the men paid, we are not antagonistic toward them at all. But the appropriation has been exhausted."

Mr. Layfield: "That is not the fault of the individual man."

Mayor Taylor: "A private corporation could pay the men, but the law will not allow us to exceed our appropriation."

"Has that never been done?"

"It may have been done, but it could be questioned."

S. Whatley: "Is there no surplus in any other department to pay these men, whom you will have to pay sometime?"

Mayor Taylor: "In looking over the appropriations it is pretty hard to know what it will take to the end of the year. We are running along smoothly at present, but we can't tell just what we will have. We may have enough to pay them."

S. Whatley: "Suppose the judgment goes against the city, how are they going to pay it if they have no money now?"

Mayor Taylor: "We would pay the men and carry the amount on to next year."

Mr. Layfield, expressing the fear that a crisis will be reached on Saturday, said he thought there were enough citizens who will back notes for the City Council to see the men get their money. "I will go my share," he declared. (Applause)

Alderman Stocker: "If the citizens will be patient for just a few hours everything will be settled."

Mr. Layfield: "That's good. That settles it."

A Missing $5,000

Secretary Whatley of the G.W.V.A. enquired about a sum of $5,000 which was collected during the war years, and which, after the object for which it was collected was dead, had been handed over to the Council through the Legislature. Mayor Taylor said it had been turned over this year to the Charity Board for deserving cases.

Answering Dr. Sutton, the Secretary said the money was collected for citizens who were brought into adverse circumstances through the war. It was administered by the Patriotic Committee, which was distinct from the Patriotic League.

Dr. Sutton: "I would like to ask you, Mr. Mayor and members of the City Council, has that purpose for which the money was collected been served by the disposal you have made of it? Is it not a fact that the Charity Board has gone on from long before the war and that funds have been raised right along and this fund was turned over contrary to the object of the people who subscribed to it?"

Mr. Armstrong: "Th fundis was not for soldiers; it was for others than soldiers who were in adverse circumstances due to the war. After the war the trustees said it was impossible to administer the fund for the purpose for which it was raised, since the cause no longer existed. They asked legislation for the Council to take charge of it."

Dr. Sutton: "Do you think then the object of the donors has been served and the present disposal is quite in order?"

Mr. Armstrong refused to commit himself, saying he was merely stating the history of the case.

Ald. Phelan Satisfied

"The financial condition of the city is good," Alderman Phelan declared. "One argument in favor of that statement is that Peterboro' got the best price for debentures of any city of its size in Canada. We got money for the city at 5.23 per cent., and finances have to be good to get a broker's bid at that price."

The rate last year was 36 mills, the chairman of the finance committee recalled, and this year, by careful consideration and pruning, the Council cut it down to 34 mills, at which rate the Council will break even.

Taxes this year amounted to $691,905.64, of which, up to November 30, $632,883.85 had been paid, this being 91.47 of the total roll.

The City Council out of every dollar raised in taxes has control of only 29 cents, he said. Any candidate for Alderman or Mayor therefore, has a hard task to assure the taxpayer there will be a reduction. The uncontrolled sum of 71.51 cents out of every dollar is made up of schools, city debentures, Nicholl's hospital grant, administration of justice, police department (on $25,000 basis), public library, Queen Mary hospital, suburban roads and mothers' allowance. Over these the City Council can exercise no restraint. This leaves the Council about 28½ cents to provide for such things as charity, fire protection, garbage and water for fire protection.

Mr. Layfield: "Has the finance committee ever thought of raising money for the city by selling locally small bonds at 5¼ or 5 1-5 per cent? It has been done successfully in other cities."

Alderman Phelan: "Local improvement bonds are sold in the Treasurer's office regularly. Somewhere about $35,000 worth have been sold locally this year, mostly in blocks of $1,000. In large amounts we believe it is better to call for tenders from the large bond brokers in Toronto.

Riverside Park

Dr. Sutton asked whether the City Council has any settled policy regarding Riverside park, and the adjacent property which he described as an eyesore. The only policy, Alderman Phelan said, is to keep the park as an athletic ground and after the adjacent ground is filled in to make a big public park.

Dr. Sutton criticized the action of the Council in last year leasing the park to "a bunch of ball players who for several reasons, have laid themselves open to the charge of being a veiled professional club. Possibly the object was to secure revenue for the City Council. The policy of having a small party playing a game in the field while our young men and boys look on will result in a C3 nation There has been talk of issuing an injunction to restrain the city from using the park for that purpose. We would like to see the property dealt with by somebody or a committee which would follow one policy instead of shifting one year after another. A settled policy will make every little expenditure gradually shape to a harmonious whole, even if we can't do much right away. There are many men who have no axe to grind and no accounts to conceal who want to encourage the general use of the park to permit our young men to indulge in athletics such as will make them stronger, better citizens."

Alderman Phelan defended the city's policy this year, saying the lease to the Peterboro' Baseball Association for $1,000 just about covered the cost of insurance, the cost of repairs, and the interest on the money invested. For that sum the Baseball Association used the park and sub-leased it to the Peterboro' Baseball Club for games. They gave it to the local young players in the city league free. Lacrosse and rugby also benefitted. In September, Alderman Phelan said, the Association made a small charge in the final games after the big team was out of the running, in order to pay the expenses of the caretaker who would not ordinarily have been in attendance "There are not enough athletic grounds in Peterboro'; there's no getting away from that," he concluded.

Dr. Sutton: "Have you or any member of the Council any scheme looking toward more athletic grounds?"

R. Denne suggested the use of the Exhibition ground. "Let the City Council take over the exhibition ground on a yearly basis," he said, "to make a playground for Peterboro'. It is too big for one week a year. Use it for toboggan slides and a playground for the city." (Applause)

Dr. Sutton, reverting to Riverside park, put a question to the audience as to whether it favored the park being handed over to one sport to run or its being handed to some organization such as the P.A.A.A. which has the interest of all sports, for management. On a division, the veterans unanimously favored the P.A.A.A. control.

A Christian Duty

Alderman Maher said he put up a strong fight last year for the P.A.A.A. and he quite agreed with the feeling of the meeting regarding the park.

Regarding the police question he remarked that the present situation is the result of the lack of co-operation. "It is our bounden duty as Christians," he said, "to respect the laws under which we live, but it is our added duty to have a wrong law corrected. I think that is the view the Council takes."

With respect to the residence of the Chief Constable, Alderman Maher said he had moved in Council that no money be paid to any man employed by the city living outside the city limits, but it was found the council had no control.

Question: "We hear a lot of talk about city employees living outside the city, but did the city ever consider extending the city limits to take in that part?"

Mr. Armstrong: "There was a discussion about it some years ago. The law provides that if any section wishes to join the city there must be a petition from a majority of the residents. No petition has come to the city."

Board of Works

Alderman Stocker won hearty applause by his straightforward presentation of his report as chairman of the Board of Works. His report was one of achievement, and he gave full credit to the City Engineer and his associates in the engineering department.

During the last two years, Alderman Stocker said, he had spent considerable time in the business of the City, and some people asked him what he got out of it. "Gentlemen, the satisfaction of doing something useful in my leisure time as all the recompense I wish. I have tried to do the best I could, but I don't suppose I have pleased everybody."

The matter of the waterfront was broached, but was not discussed at any length, Alderman Stocker saying no plans have been made for its beautification, except at Riverside park, where a considerable area of ground will ultimately be reclaimed. Dr. Sutton suggested having the ground at the North of Riverside park at its present level and preparing it for tennis and other games.

To purchase a paving plant, Alderman Holloway said, would mean that $100,000 must be spent on paving to get a return from the investment. The better system as a plan of road work would be to rebuild some of the streets in the districts of the average taxpayers.

Alderman Holloway said in his opinion a combination school would be of more benefit to people with money to continue their childrens' higher education, and that people all over should not be taxed for this.

"There was some talk of the police force quitting to-morrow," he continued. "I have received some assurance—I am not giving this on my own responsibility—that they could not stop work and that it would be criminal on their part to resign even if they did not get their money."

"I said in Council that I thought it a shame that men should be with out money at this season, and I would be in favor of scraping up all the money from our other appropriations to pay them some, if not all."

More About Police

Alderman Morrison said he thought the police commission should have taken some steps before now. "If they had taken some steps when granted the $25,000 we might have saved this mess. They decided to stick to the $28,000. As far as we understand it will be decided in the near future."

Alderman Fife declared his platform is for a bigger and better city to live in. He had a vision of a city with a population of forty or fifty thousand people not many years ahead "We must realize that Peterboro' is a city with great possibilities and a great future. The year 1924 should have a progressive council. One of the greatest assets to a city is co-operation from all organizations—from you and from all commissions—toward a bigger and better city.

The city manager plan of civic administration was discussed, Mayor Taylor and Alderman Phelan reporting on their visit to Shawinigan Falls to investigate the government there. Mayor Taylor said: "I could not see they had anything on us as far as management went."

The fact that although only a small city and young, Shawinigan Falls, has a debenture debt nearly as big as Peterboro's is not a recommendation for the city manager plan said Alderman Phelan.

Board of Education

Mrs. Morris, whose term on the Board of Education expires this year, and who will stand for re-election, told interestingly of her work on the Board. She took issue with Dr. Holloway on the school question, declaring the combination school would really benefit those children whose parents could not afford to give them higher academic education. The building would have four rooms as an extension of the present High School, which would be used for academic training. Eight rooms, 3 shops, laboratories, lectur, rooms and domestic science rooms would be available for technical and allied training.

At the present time, acording to figures prepared by Mr. Blackwell which were undoubtedly higher than the actual costs, since he had made provision for every contingency and added a percentage, a combination school could be built at a cost to the city of $265,000. This includes the equipment and is the net amount after deducting the Government grants which amount, on this type of school, to 50 per cent of the building costs.

An eight room extension to the High School accommodating about 300 pupils would cost $215,000 to the city, there being no Government grant.

Mrs. Morris concluded by calling attention to the gradual awakening of interest in educational matters, which she regarded as full of promise for the future.

Roland Denne said the school question is one for the people to decide. The building committee, he declared, should bring in both plans and let the citizens decide. "We cannot give the child of to-day too much education for his own good and for the benefit of Canada," he said. Mr. Denne suggested a meeting to be called before the municipal election to discuss the school question, and in this he was endorsed by Mrs. Morris.

Books and Authors

(By F. M. DELA FOSSE)

It is an easy enough matter to present to one's readers topics in which they are known to be interested, and which one feels they will be at pains to read and ask questions about. But it is not so easy to write on a topic which from time immemorial has been eschewed as dry as dust and whose exponents are looked upon, often wrongly, as about as dry and uninteresting as the cause they represent. Whatever the real reason, it is an undeniable fact that the section devoted to books of a religious character in any Library are the least sought after by readers. Perhaps it is because the churches are, very erroneously and unfairly, supposed to provide all that is necessary in the way of instruction, or, again, because the religious book, as a rule, is not written in a vein to excite one's enthusiasm. It is strange that it should be so, as the literature of religion is as voluminous as that on any other subject. From the days of the disciples and long before the Christian era there have been sermons and religious dissertations, and masterpieces in prose and poetry, in which the religious bent in man's mind has been brought very prominently into view.

Notwithstanding this remarkable fact, the sad truth confronts us that although we are ready enough to fight for our faith, and on occasion, to die for it, most of us remain unregenerate enough to refuse to live for it.

One of the first things that is likely to strike anyone who looks over the books of a religious nature in the Public Library is the fact of their remarkable variety. It is easy to understand why this should be, when we consider that amongst all races, from the earliest times, there has been a very pronounced belief in the existence of a Supreme Being. So the reader, anxious to get light on the religions of ancient or modern nations, will not be disappointed if he comes to the Public Library in search of information.

He will not be disappointed also if he wishes to see how the preachers and controversialists of past days compare, for style, oratory or argumentative power, with those of the present, and if he has a philological turn of mind he will take up Richard Baxter's Saints' Everlasting Rest, and be amazed to find that the language in that book is very little removed from that in common use by ourselves. Baxter always went straight to the point, and is said never to have troubled to polish his phrases by the use of fine words. He lived 240 years ago, but his writings are intelligible to everyone to-day, and especially to those who have not had the benefit of a classical education. Jeremy Taylor was the antithesis of Baxter in this respect, and his great book, "Holy Living and Dying," is a study in fine phraseology.

Information on almost any aspect of religious thought may be found on the Library shelves. There are many who cannot find the time to make a study of the history of religion, but who would like to obtain a working knowledge of the various creeds and dogmas which have been current in the world. Any such will find a very serviceable little book on our shelves entitled "Ten Great Religions," by James Freeman Clarke, in which he outlines the main features in the ethnic and Catholic standpoints and compares them with each other.

MILLBROOK CHURCH SUCCESSFUL BAAZAR

Millbrook Girls Group in Charge of the Arrangements.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 15. — The Canadian-Girls-in-Training group of Grace Presbyterian Church held a successful sale of fancy goods, homemade candy, etc., with afternoon tea served, on Wednesday, opening at 3 p.m., and continued during the evening, when many who could not come earlier in the day availed themselves of the opportunity to be present.

Mrs. H. R. Armstrong generously gave the use of her home for the occasion. The warm rooms, with their shaded lights and bright Christmas decorations, were in pleasing contrast to the dull, chilly atmosphere out of doors. The dainty tea-tables were laid in the dining-room, and evidently the hot cup of tea was most welcome, judging by the number who patronized this section of the bazaar.

Those assisting were: Misses Leola Huggins and Edna Byers at the candy table; Misses Alice Armstrong, Dorothy Hall and Mary Wood at the fancy work table, and those serving tea were Misses Phyllis Brown, Norma Staples, Kathleen Fowler, Elizabeth Russell and Hazel Armstrong. Miss Anna Russell, leader of the group, had a general oversight of the proceedings, Mrs. J. R. Eakins and Mrs. H. J. Armstrong assisting Mrs. H. R. Armstrong with her duties as hostess.

Practically everything was disposed of, the financial receipts being most satisfactory.

MANUFACTURERS PETITION THE CITY COUNCIL

Will Ask That Policemen Be Paid Pending Litigation Meetiug Today

WANT PROTECTION

At a largely attended meeting of the Manufacturers' Association, held this mornig, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, by reason of a dispute between the Board of Police Commissioners and the City Council, the pay of the policemen of the city has been, and is being, withheld from them, pending decision of certain questions by the courts of the Province.

"And whereas, no good purpose is being served by this deferred payment of the earned pay of the policemen of this city, which in due course must be paid by the city.

"And whereas, the protection of life and property in this city is at issue, and of paramount importance.

"And whereas, the imposition of inconvenience, of need and of possible suffering on the policemen and their families, is, in our opinion, absolutely uncalled for and unnecessary to the settlement of the question at issue between the Council of the City of Peterboro and the Police Commission of the city. Now therefore be it

"Resolved, by the Manufacturers' Association of the City of Peterboro, assembled in emergent meeting, that the City Council of Peterboro be urged to immediately provide the necessary funds, without prejudice to the question at issue, to fully satisfy the unpaid pay of the said policemen, and to continue to do so, to the end that the city's protection shall continue, the policemen may not suffer, and that the city may not be placed in a humiliating and questionable position as to its financial and business management, and be it

"Resolved, that a copy of this section on the part of the Manufacturers' Association be immediately despatched to the Mayor of this city, and also given to the press."

FOUR BANDITS

Norman ("Red") Ryan, bank bandit, who with five others made a sensational escape from Kingston Penitentiary on September 10 last, and was shot and captured here last night, following a gun fight, confessed, the police said, to having escaped from the Canadian institution. He stated that on November 5 he held up the Grand Avenue State Bank in St. Paul and obtained five thousand dollars, and that with other gunmen he had been operating in various parts of the United States since their escape from Portsmouth.

From the fact that, according to Minneapolis despatches, "Red" Ryan, the notorious Canadian bank bandit and ex-convict, has confessed to a bank robbery in St. Paul, it is thought in Toronto that Ryan proposes to take his chances with United States justice and fight against extradition to Canada for trial in Toronto on the charge of holding up a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia on September 27 last, and of escaping from Kingston Penitentiary a few weeks previously. Canadian authorities have been trailing Ryan for a long time, and he has had several sensational escapes. In Toronto he just missed being taken at a dance, and his boarding-house here was watched by armed police for days. On one occasion, when the police here heard that Ryan was hiding at Wagner's Bay, near Hamilton, a posse in autos rushed to the neighboring city in autos, and with Hamilton police besieged the place, but the bird had flown. In addition to serving the balance of his term at the Ontario Provincial penitentiary, Ryan has the prospect of facing trial in Canada on several serious charges, in which, if convicted, he would probably be sentenced to many additional years' confinement. Even though he is held for some years in the United States, he may still have to answer to the Canadian charges, of course.

CLASSES GATHER IN KNOX CHURCH

Officers Elected and Plans Discussed for Coming Year.

Last evening in the basement of the Knox Sunday school a banquet was given by the members of the Ladies' Bible Class and the Men's A.S.K. Class. Preceding the banquet a short meeting of the men's class was held at which officers for the year were elected as follows:

President, D. V. Canning; Vice-President, G. Wallace; Secretary, H. Morden; Treasurer, B. Watt; Chairman of the Social Committee, P. Trussler; Chairman of the Sick and Visiting Committee, I. McKenzie and Purchasing Agent, A. Trussler.

Vice-President George Wallace gave a short address, thanking his fellow class mates for electing him to the position of Vice-President. He also stated that he hoped the class would go ahead as much this year as it has in the last few years. He said he would do his utmost to help the progress of the class in every way.

Secretary Hugh Morden and Treasurer B. Watt also thanked their fellow members for the positions allotted to them.

President D. V. Canning congratulated Mr. A. McKenzie, the class teacher on the good work he had accomplished in the past year and said he hoped he would be with the class for the coming year.

Mr. McKenzie was given a presentation from the boys of the class. In his reply he thanked the boys for the gift and also pointed out some of the good work the boys had done during the past year. He stated he would take over the class for another year.

Mrs. A. McKenzie, teacher of the Girls' Bible Class, also spoke. She congratulated the boys on the good work they had done during the year, and she hoped that they would do more this year than ever before.

JOE PULLEN WAS KILLED BY A MOB

DREW, Miss., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Joe Pullen, a negro tenant farmer, died at two o'clock this morning from the effects of a score of machine gun bullets after he had battled a posse of several hundred men for seven hours, killing three and wounding nine others, three probably fatally. The trouble started about noon yesterday, when Pullen shot and killed W. T. Saunders, aged 45, on whose farm he lived, after an argument over a debt owed by Pullen.

THE CAUSE OF SICKNESS

Almost Always Due to Weak and Impoverished Blood.

Apart from accident or illness due to infection, almost all ill-health arises from one or two reasons. The mistake that people make is in not realizing that both of these have the same cause at the root, namely poor blood. Either bloodlessness or some other trouble of the nerves will be found to be the reason for almost every ailment. If you are pale, suffering from headaches, or breathlessness, with palpitation of the heart, poor appetite and weak digestion, the cause is almost always poor blood. If you have nervous headaches, neuralgia, sciatica and other nerve pains, the cause is exhausted nerves. But run down nerves are also a result of poor blood, so that the two chief causes of illness are one and the same.

If your health is poor; if you are pale, nervous or dyspeptic, you should give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. These pills act directly on the blood, and by enriching it give new strength to worn out nerves. Men and women alike greatly benefit through the use of this medicine. If you are weak or ailing, give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and you will be pleased with the beneficial results that will speedily follow.

If your dealer does not keep these pills you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PASTORAL LETTER TO BE ISSUED

His Eminence Cardinal Begin, to Issue Letter of Far-Reaching Effect.

QUEBEC, Dec. 15.—On the occasion of the new year, his Eminence Cardinal Begin will issue a pastoral letter, as Metropolitan of the Roman Catholic Church in this Province, which is expected to have a far-reaching effect. At the Cardinal's palace nothing is divulged in this connection, but as far as can be ascertained the letter will refer to modern dances, the liquor question and other matters of manners and morals. It is understood that the stand of the Church regarding all dances, especially some modern introductions, the popularity of which is growing, will be defined. Regarding the liquor question, the illicit fabrication and importation in violation of laws are mentioned as the probable targets which will be aimed at in the ecclesiastical pronouncement. Some time ago a warning was given by the religious authorities in this diocese against illicit distilling, and the pastoral letter will likely follow the same line.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

A WORD TO THE PEOPLE.

Editor Examiner,

Taking a look backward—we'll not say how far—any ratepayer who dares to think is amazed at the downward trend of affairs in our beautiful city. Just listen to the meetings as reported. Internal strife and suspicion, external difficulties not straightened out—no need here to enumerate the instances. The years are behind us. Insurance companies judge the future by the past. If this can be done in municipal affairs, oh boy! let me suggest a possible remedy. Let the Mayor call a public meeting in a large place and that meeting appoint its own chairman; then name two men—good men, strong men—who can speak well—representative men. These two —and no more—run for the high honor of being Mayor of the city.

The same method also be adopted with the Aldermen. Two for each—and no more. This will eliminate the possibility of every Tom, Dick and Harry from entering where he is not fit for and is not wanted.

Truly yours,
G. W. MULLIGAN,
804 George street

New Method of Reducing Fat

A news item from abroad informs us that the American method of producing a slim, trim figure is meeting with astonishing success. This system, which has made such a wonderful impression over there, must be the Marmola Prescription Tablet method of reducing fat. It is safe to say that we have nothing better for this purpose in this country. Anything that will reduce the excess flesh steadily and easily without injury to the stomach, the causing of wrinkles, the help of exercising or dieting, or interference with one's meals is a mightily important and useful addition to civilization's necessities. Just such a catalogue of good results follow the use of these pleasant, harmless and economical little fat reducers. We say economical, because Marmola Prescription Tablets (made in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription can be obtained of any druggist the world over or from the Marmola Company, 4613 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. for one dollar a box which is a decidely economical price, considering the number of tablets each box contains. They are harmless.

"I Was Terribly Weak After Baby Was Born"

Mrs. H. McClure, Norwood, Ont., writes:

"After my baby was born, I was terribly weak and run down, with pains across my back. I had heard so much of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food that I decided to try it. Three boxes proved enough to make me quite strong and well again. I also used Dr. Chase's Ointment for a rash which broke out on the baby, and the rash disappeared completely in a short time."

"I'm dead sure that Janet hasn't. She puts on the cap and bells partly because it's the fashion, partly because she thinks girls are alive and having their fun for the first time. But she's no fool. She nearly floored me once or twice. She'll take care of herself."

"Girls don't take care of themselves when they're drunk. But I've an idea there's something else the matter with her. At least mother has."

"Something else?"

"In love."

"Well, there's your chance to marry her off. The sooner the better. But why should it drive her to drink? If she's fixed her affections on any of those chaps that dance at her beck"——

"She hasn't. She's in love with you."

"What!" Clavering dropped his fork. When the waiter had rushed to present him with another and retired, he still stared at Oglethorpe as if he had been stunned by a blow between the eyes. "Whatever—what on earth put such an idea into Mrs. Oglethorpe's head? The child can't endure me. She pretty well proved it last night, and I've always known she disliked me—since she grew up, that is. To be perfectly frank, aside from the fact that I don't care for young girls, she always irritates me like the deuce, and I've never made any secret of it. Night before last I couldn't well have made myself more disagreeable if I'd rehearsed for the part."

Oglethorpe grinned. "Lot you know about girls. Just the way to make 'em crazy about you. Like all idealists, you don't know a thing about women. Being a rank materialist myself, I know 'em like a book. The emancipated flapper is just plain female under her paint and outside her cocktails. More so for she's more stimulated. Where girls used to be merely romantic, she's romantic—callow romance of youth, perhaps, but still romantic—plus sex-instinct rampant. At least that's the way I size 'em up, and it's logic. There's no virginity of mind left, mauled as they must be and half-stewed all the time, and they're wild to get rid of the other. But they're too young yet to be promiscuous, at least those of Janet's sort, and they want to fall in love and get him quick. See the point?"

"No doubt you're right. But I'm not the object of Janet's young affections. She's either led your mother to believe it for purposes of her own, or Mrs. Oglethorpe has merely jumped at that conclusion—well, Heaven only knows why."

"You know why. Because she'd like it. So would I."

"Good Lord, Jim! I'm nearly old enough to be her father. Barely ten years younger than yourself."

"You'll never be as old as I am this minute, and I'd give my eyes to see you married to her. Moreover, I'm convinced mother's right. Janny let out something—broke down I fancy, although mother wouldn't give her away any further. And you used to be fond of her when she was a child. She's sat on your lap a hundred times."

"My dear Jim," said Clavering drily. "You've just pronounced yourself a man of consummate experience. Need I remind you that when a man has held a girl on his lap as a child, she is generally the last girl he wants on his lap later on? Man loves the shock of novelty, the spice of surprise. It's hard to get that out of a girl you have spanked—as I did Janet on two different occasions. She was a fascinating youngster, but a little devil if there ever was one."

"She's full of fascination yet. I can see that, if I am her father. A year or two from now, when she comes to her senses——"

"Oh, cut it out, Jim! I won't listen. Even it were true—and I'd stake my life it isn't—I—well——"

"D'you mean there's some other woman?"

"I don't care to talk about it—but—let it go at that."

"Sorry. I'd have liked it. You could have made a fine woman out of Janny. She has it in her."

Clavering did not express his doubts on this point aloud. He was in truth horribly embarrassed and hardly knew what to say. Not for a moment did he believe that the minx was in love with him, nor would he have taken the trouble to find out, even to please Jim Oglethorpe and his mother, had Mary Zattiany never crossed his horizon But he felt sorry for his friend and would have liked to banish his brooding distress.

"'She's in love with you.'"

"Look here!" he exclaimed. "You'll have to buck up and take her in hand. After all, you're her father and she respects you. No girl respects her mother these days, apparently, but the father has the advantage of being male. Give her a talking to. Tell her how cut up you are. She's too young to be as hard as she likes to think. Don't preach. That would make matters worse. Appeal to her. Tell her she's making you miserable. If that doesn't work—well, your idea of taking a switch to her isn't bad. A sound spanking is what they all need, and it certainly would take the starch out of them. Make them feel so damned young they'd forget just how blase they're trying to be."

"She might run away," rumbled Oglethorpe. "I believe I'll try it, thought, if worse comes to worst. I'll have no filthy scandals in my family."

"Why not collect all the fathers and plan a regular campaign? Without their allowances they'd soon be helpless. It would be a battle royal and might make history! Might also get hold of the father's of these young chaps. Few have independent incomes."

Oglethorpe laughed for the first time. "Not a bad idea for a bachelor, Lee. Maybe I'll try it. Let's get out of this. How about the Follies?"

XXV.

When a man has cultivated a practical and methodical habit of mind and body he pursues the accustomed tenor of his way, whatever the ferment of his spirit. Clavering's spirit was mercurial, but long since subject to his will, and it would no more have occurred to him to neglect his regular work because he was in love and a state of suspense than to put on petticoats and walk up Fifth Avenue. It might be better or worse under foreign impact, but it would be done, and all else banished for the hour.

There were times when he wrote better surrounded by the stimulations of the office; when he was neither fagged nor disturbed he worked at home. During this week of incertitudes he rose late, lunched with friends at the Sign of the Indian Chief, a restaurant where the cleverest of them—and those who were so excitedly sure of their cleverness that for the moment they convinced others as well as themselves—foregathered daily. Then he went to the office and wrote or talked to other men until it was time to dine. He could always be sure of companionship for the evening. On his "day off" he took a train out into the country and walked for hours.

There was a great deal of scintillating talk in his group on the significant books and tendencies of the day, and if the talk of French youth in their clubs before the Revolution may possibly have been profounder and more far-reaching in its philosophy, more formulative in its plan of action, owing to a still deeper necessity for change in the social order, the very fact that these brilliant young Americans had no personal grievance but merely sharpened their wits on matters in which they were intelligent enough to take an interest, saved their cleverness from becoming mordant or distorted by passion. It was an excellent forcing-house for ideas and vocabulary.

But their most solemn causeries were upon the vital theme of The American Reputation in Letters. Past. Present. Future. This was the age of Youth. Should any of the old reputations be permitted to live on—save in the favor of the negligible public? If so, which? All the recent reputations they would have liked to pronounce equally great, merely on account of their commendable newness, but they were too conscientious for that. They appraised, debated, rejected, finally placed the seal of their august approval upon a favored few. Claques were arranged if the public were obtuse. The future? A few, a very few, were selected from the older group, many more from the younger, and ordained to survive and shed their undying beams for posterity. From these judicial pronouncements there was no appeal, and the pleasant spaces of the Sign of the Indian Chief, so innocuous to the uninitiated eye, was a veritable channel house that stank in the nostrils of the rejected; but, inconsistent even as life itself, those melancholy graves were danced over by the sprightly young feet of the elect. Sometimes there was a terrifying upheaval in one of those graves. A dismal figure fought his way out, tore off his cerements, and stalked forth, muttering: "But I stride on, austere. No hope I have, no fear,'" leaving a puzzled uneasiness behind him.

But for good or ill, it was a matter for congratulation that criticism was at last being taken seriously in the United States.

There was a jazz party at the studio of a hospitable girl artist where Clavering danced with several of the prettiest young actresses of recent Broadway fame until dawn, and drank enough to make him as wild as the rest of the party had it not been for the seasoned apparatus inherited from hard-drinking Southern ancestors. Altogether, he gave himself little time for thought, and if he felt at times an inclination to dream he thrust it from him with an almost superstitious fear. He would speculate no longer, but neither would the run the risk of invoking the laughter of cynical gods. If unimaginable disaster awaited him, at least he would not weaken his defenses by a sojourn in the paradise of fools.

He avoided Oglethorpe and Dinwiddie, and although he had engaged himself to dine at the Goodriches on Thursday night he sent an excuse.

On Thursday morning, as he was turning over the pages of one of the newspapers his eye was arrested by the name Zattiany. He never read Society paragraphs, but that name would leap to his eyes anywhere. The announcement was as brief as "Social notes" always are in the daily editions of the morning papers: "Mrs. Oglethorpe gives a luncheon tomorrow at her house in Gramercy Park to the Countess Zattiany of Vienna."

So! She had satisfied Mrs. Oglethorpe. That was one on Dinwiddie.

On the following night he bought himself an admission ticket to the Metropolitan Opera House and entered at the close of the second act. As he had half expected, she was in Mrs. Oglethorpe's box, and it was crowded with men. He fancied that his older friend looked both glum and amused. As for Dinwiddie, his expression was half-witted.

He went home and took a bromide. Sleep, being a function, is outside the domain of the will, and he had had little of it since Tuesday. And sleep he must if he was to be in alert command of his faculties on the following night.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

A RIDDLE FOR A COLD DAY

And our soldiers are strong we make famous ones.

What do you think the next riddle was about that the Riddle Lady asked in Riddle Town?

But there What a very foolish question As though you should know without hearing it

Well, this was the riddle:

"I'm as soft as cotton and white as milk,
As thick as a blanket and smooth as silk,
I'm as merry as sleigh bells and gentle as rain,
And tobogyan down roofs to your window pane.

"And I peep inside as you dream on your bed,
And wink my eyes at your cute little sled,
Then I, quietly beckon and call to the others—
I've hundreds of rollocking, tumbling brothers.

"And then they come rushing, elbowing for room,
Sky-dust, as they're called, from the Old Woman's broom;
And away we all fly to the road on the hill,
And cuddle together, and lie there still.

"In the morning you come with the girls and the boys
All shouting and laughing and making a noise,
And you stamp and you tramp and you slide on our back,
And soon you've a slippery, glistening track.

"Then you build a brave fort and you use us for walls,
And out of us also you make cannon balls;
And our soldiers are sturdy (we make famous ones),
With dishpans for helmets and broomsticks for guns.

"We love all the children, their noise and their fun,
The thing that we dread is the hot shining sun,
When up in the sky his stern visage appears,
We are very unhappy and melt into tears.

"What is it?" asked the Riddle Lady.

"What hill was it you spoke of?" asked Jack and Jill. "Was it the one we fell down?"

"It's just the hill nearest to any little boy's house," said the Riddle Lady. "Or girl's either."

"I know the answer," cried Nancy, and at the same time Nick called out, "I know it, too It's snow."

"Right" said the Riddle Lady. "And the prize today is a sled. You'll have to go partners with it, my dears. But there is room on it for you both."

Internal Bathing Removes the Cause of Painful Hemorrhoids in a Natural Way.

When the intestines fail to dispose of all waste matter properly and quickly, poisons find their way into the blood. This poison lowers the general health, causing hemorrhoids, constipation and digestive troubles.

Internal Bathing makes the colon, or large intestine, function naturally, thus the actual cause of 95 per cent. of diseases is removed.

Mr. A. N. Steele, Cupar, Sask., writes: "I had been troubled with my stomach, piles and constipation for years until I had become very thin and looked 20 years older. A leading doctor in Regina told me that the main canal was badly ulcered. I gradually became worse, until one day, when purchasing a threshing outfit from Mr. Russell of Regina, Mr. Russell noticed my condition, and said: 'I can cure you. Get a J.B.L. Cascade.' Well, I did so, and the first night I used it I slept all night for the first time in weeks, and in a short time felt quite myself again. It also cured my piles, which had troubled me for years."

If you are troubled with constipation, don't drug yourself. Internal Bathing with the J.B.L. Cascade is the only permanent way. This wonderful appliance is the invention of Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell, New York. It is pleasant and easy to use, and will serve the whole family. It should be in every home. See the J.B.L. Cascade at Warne Drug Company, where it will be shown and explained to you. Ask for 32-page booklet all about Internal Bathing, it is free. Or write Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, 168 College Street, Toronto, Ont.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, this mixture saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out, and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

It is a wise policy to keep a substantial per cent of one's resources in the form of cash on hand.

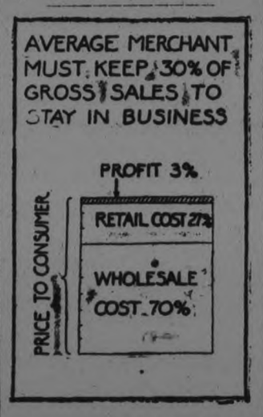
It is a strange fact that men who will work so hard to get money appear so anxious to get rid of it when they do get it. Few men keep enough cash on hand. As soon as they get money, they either spend it or put it in some more or less permanent investment.

1. A substantial balance in a checking account.
2. A savings account.
3. High grade saleable short-term securities.

It should be noted that cash on hand does not necessarily mean idle money. Short-term securities and savings accounts pay interest. A substantial balance on a checking account makes a man a more valued customer of a bank, and puts him in a stronger position should he desire to borrow from the bank.

When a man has plenty of cash on hand, he is fully prepared—

1. To pick up investment bargains.
2. To take cash discounts in making purchases.
3. To meet emergencies.



The average retail merchant doesn't make as big a profit as most of his customers think.

Service is expensive. A retail merchant must pay rent, transportation, taxes, wages, and incidental expenses, to give his customers the service they demand.

Responsible business research bureaus estimate that, aside from the grocery business, an average of 30 cents out of each dollar we pay a merchant for goods, must go to him if he is to stay in business. Out of that 30, only 3 cents is profit, the other 27 representing the expense of retailing over and above the price paid to the wholesaler. The strange part is that the same average cost apparently holds true for all sizes of stores, whether they are a system of chain stores, big department stores, or just the little neighborhood store around the corner.

We may believe sometimes that our neighborhood store is holding us up. When we stop to consider that the storekeeper has to add 41 per cent to the wholesale price (which is equivalent to 30 per cent of the selling price) just to stay in business, it puts a different light on the matter, and we realize that the margin of profit is not so large after all.

SOILED LACES.

Laces that are slightly soiled may be cleaned by burying them for a week or so in a mixture of cornstarch and calcined magnesia.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

This year apples are so plentiful and perfect that it behooves every housewife to use them as often as possible.

Although apple pie has been called "the great American dessert" it palls if used as a steady diet.

These apple puddings have more food value than apple pie and are delicious and novel.

Apple Meringue Pudding

One and three-fourths cups stewed apples, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon orange rind, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 egg, ¼ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cornstarch, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar, few grains salt.

It will take three to five apples, depending on the size, to make the required amount of sauce. Stew in as little water as possible to prevent burning. When tender rub through a sieve. While hot add spices, butter, grated rind and juice of orange, salt and well-beaten yolk of egg. Beat well. Mix sugar and cornstarch and gradually beat into mixture. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake, covered, for 20 minutes in moderate oven. Beat white of egg until stiff and dry with one tablespoon cold water. Beat in sugar and spread over pudding. Return to the oven to brown the meringue.

Blushing Apples

Six apples, 6 tablespoons sugar, 3 teaspoons butter, 1-8 pound tiny red cinnamon candies, 1 cup boiling water.

Select red applies and pare, leading a band of skin around the center. Remove core. Arrange in a baking pan and fill cavities with butter and sugar. Add water and drop in the candies, sprinkling them over the apples as much as possible. Bake in a slow oven, basting frequently with the juice in the pan. When tender remove from oven, arrange on individual plates for serving and pour over syrup. Let cool. The syrup forms a jellied coating over the apples. Serve with or without whipped cream.

Brother Jonathan

Six apples, 1 cup flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, water, ¼ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, butter.

Pare, quarter and core apples. Butter a baking dish and put in apples, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon and dot with bits of butter. Add a very little water to prevent burning until the apples begin to bake. Make a dough of the flour, salt and baking powder sifted together, the butter rubbed in with the tips of the fingers and the water cut in with a knife. Spread over apples and bake in a moderate oven until apples are done. Serve warm with sugar and cream.

Apple dumplings are made with this same dough. The dough is rolled about three-eighths of an inch thick. Cut in circles and arrange sliced apples in center. Pull edges of dough together and bake in a moderate oven. Baste with hot water. The apples are seasoned as in Brother Jonathan.

WARM COATS

Short sport coats of brushed wool buttoned closely about the throat and have suede belts with large, decorative buckles.

HIGHLY EMBROIDERED

Elaborately embroidered duvetyns are favorites among overblouses. The hip-blouse and jacquette types are most popular.

CREPE AND SATIN

Georgette crepe and satin ribbon make an alluring combination for a party frock. It has a one-piece underbodice and gathered side panels.

ON GIRLS' FROCKS

Among the frocks for school girls, one notices the effective use of scalloping about the neck and hem.

JACQUETTES WANTED

Modern women seeks the fur jacquette for her winter's street wear. They come in beige, tan, brown and gray caracul and in natural squirrel.

BOTH MAJOR LEAGUES WILL OPEN SAME DAY

Representatives Agreed on April 15th, Thereby Smoothing Out Work of Schedule Committees — Minors Dissatisfied.

WASTED THE WEEK.

CHICAGO, December 15 (Canadian Press). — One of the final acts of the baseball magnates who have spent the week here in business meetings and player trades, was the agreement of th major league representatives on the opening date of 15th, April.

Last year the Leagues opened on different dates.

President Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburgh Nationals, said that the opening date was virtually the only thing agreed upon, but that the task of the Schedule Committee of each League next February were considerably smoothed by this arrangement.

Dreyfuss, President John A. Heydler, and a few of the minor league magnates, who are directors of the National Association of Minors, were the last of the diamond magnates to leave last night.

The American Association yesterday adopted a schedule of 168 games, also opening 15th April, the Western clubs opening in the Eastern cities as usual.

The minor league club owners were unanimous yesterday in their dissatisfaction with the results of the Chicago meeting, as the minors' joint session took up so much of the time of the league presidents that the leagues were able to do but little real business of their own.

O. H. A. OFFICIALS MAY TAKE ACTION

Will, Perhaps, Prevent Seniors From Playing Intermediate Hockey.

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—The withdrawal of the Argonaut senior and junior teams from the Ontario Hockey Association series this season leaves a problem for the O.H.A. officials to solve, and an interesting announcement may be made in a few days. It is reported on good authority that some mighty capable senior players have been secured by the North Toronto intermediates, but opinion is general that the O.H.A. will have something to say about the matter.

It is frankly admitted that the calibre of senior hockey will not be as high this winter as it was during the past few seasons. The migration of players to the United States, plus the departure of the Canadian Olympic team early in January leaves gaps hard to fill. Willing youngsters are ready to step in, but it will be some time before they are able to make the fans appreciate their worth.

Food For Thought.

The exhibition games at Pittsburg Cleveland and Boston will be watched with interest. Close followers of the sport say that for the first time in history the United States teams can match or surpass in strength the majority of the Canadian amateur teams. There is not much glory for Uncle Sam in this matter, as the U.S. teams are composed of former Canadian players. But the fact that such a state of affairs exists gives the O.H.A. officials food for considerable thought.

With these conditions prevailing, it is not thought likely that the O.H.A. will grant permission to senior players to perform as intermediates. This would be an injustice to the other intermediate teams.

An effort is being made to keep the Argonaut junior players together, and enter them in the O.H.A. series under another name. The seniors, however, are divided. St. Mary's secured one of them, Bruce Findlay, the smart little centre player who used to chase the puck for St. Andrew's College juniors.

EPINARD WINS RACES IN FRANCE

Trip to America Involves Sacrifice of Chances at Big Stakes.

NEW YORK, December 15 (Canadian Press). — By comin ghere in July, Epinard, the French champion three-year-old, will lose opportunities to win 1,000,000 francs, in events which will take place during his United States sojourn, Pierre Wertheimer, owner of the thoroughbred, said last night.

The French champion, however, will run five races before leaving Europe, one at Epsom Downs for the Coronation Cup, one at Ascot for the Royal Hunt Cup, and three in Paris, for stakes totalling 400 000 francs.

Present plans are for Epinard to meet United States horses in the East and in Kentucky, so that the Middle West may see him.

SIKI'S FRIENDS START CABARET

Montmerte Moves to Downtown Paris in All-Night Black Cabaret.

PARIS, Dec. 15.—(United Press). —Montmartre is moving downtown. It is taking on a dusky hue in the process. In other words, for the first time since the pre-war days of boulevard night joyousness, there is an all-night cabaret right in the centre of Paris and it is coal black.

The owners are black—there are Senegalese compatriots of Battling Siki, imported Cubans and two or three whose accent might have been imbibed in Georgia. It is called "The Plantation." Advertising handbills proclaim it as the "home of negro talent."

It opens at midnight and closes in time to let the patrons grab coffee and rolls as the little cafes of the district are starting work about seven. Up to that time they have been paying the usual hundred or hundred and twenty francs a bottle for twenty-franc champagne. A fact to be noted is that the patrons here are not the wealthy tourists who crowd the Montmartre resorts. In "The Plantation" you may see fifty French to one foreigner.

The dusky boys who run the place make no secret of their belief that this is the French method of protesting against the treatment of the "colored brothers" in certain establishments frequented by Americans which led to several appearances in the police courts during the summer. However that may be, French officers of high rank, wearing uniform and decorations, have visited the place recently and the number of high-priced automobiles standing for hours outside demonstrates the class of people to which the customers belong.

Another Country Heard From for the Clympic.

PARIS, December 15 (Canadian Press).— Jugoslavia has telegraphed her entry in the Olympic winter sports event- at Chamonix, making the total of countries entered for these event- fifteen, an unprecedented number for winter sports competition.

Sweden is entered for the 500, 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000 metres skating event-, figure skating for men and women, all ski events, and the hockey and bob-sleigh competition.

Canada is entered for the same skating events as Sweden, and in addition, the mixed figure events.

Very wide shawl collars of fluffy fur are seen on the newest winter coats. The side fastening is almost universal.

STARS AT BILLIARDS

TADEO S AGANUMA.

The Japs are coming fastin all branches of sport, but in none are they showing to better advantage than billiards.

Tadeo Saganuma, the twenty-year-old wizard of the cue, won the international 18-2 junior balk-line championship, recently staged at Detroit. He defeated Joan Bruno, of Antwerp, in the finals, 300 to 211, in nineteen innings of play.

DONOVAN ONE OF GAME'S IMMORTALS

They Called Him "Wild Bill," But Control Was His Greatest Asset

By BILLY EVANS.

Bill Donovan is dead.

I can't believe it. I am waiting for some one to tell me it isn't true.

It seems only yesterday that I was chatting with him in the lobby of the Pennsylvania Hotel in New York. The time dates back to the world series, the middle of October, yet I can still feel that hearty handshake of Bill's and his genial "Hello, Will." He always had a habit of so addressing me, probably because he knew I didn't like it. With the greeting went the smile, characteristic of Bill Donovan.

I asked him what his plans were for the coming season. He was a bit undecided, said he would probably return to manage the New Haven club, where fans and owner had treated him royally. Yet it seemed to me as if Donovan was yearning for another whirl at a big league job.

Now Fate has decided the issue. The Great Empire has called the final out. Bill Donovan is but a cherished memory in the realms of baseball.

I'll wager he died with a resolute smile playing over his countenance, in spite of the horror of the situation. Bill Donovan was nothing if not courageous. Put to the test scores of times on the ball field and never found wanting, I am sure he answered the final tragic call like the brave soldier he always was.

Goodby, Bill. You were a man worth while.

Had Great Control.

Donovan was unquestionably one of the greatest pitchers that ever graced the major leagues. Early in his career he won the title of "Wild Bill"- because of lack of control. That title stuck with him to the very end, yet during the last ten years of his career it meant nothing, for control was Donovan's greatest asset, the secret of his success.

Donovan had a world of stuff and a master brain. Realizing the value of psychology, he made use of the brain to make use of it, plus the courage of a Spartan. No situation was too tough for Bill Donovan. In the pinch he was always at his best.

Bill Donovan

Starred With Tigers.

Donovan had no greater admirer than Hughey Jennings, now assisting John McGraw in managing the New York Giants. Donovan was at the top of his game back in 1907-08-09 when he was winning pennants for the Detroit Tigers by his great pitching. Hughey Jennings was managing the Tigers at the time. I once heard Jennings remark when complimented on the showing of his club:

"If Bill Donovan's arm holds out, I will probably be called a Miracle Man at the close of the season. His pitching is making me a great manager."

A few years ago when discussing the old pennant-winning days at Detroit, I heard Jennings say:

"We had quite a ball club, but Donovan was the man who made the Tigers a pennant winner. In a pinch it was always Donovan who got the assignment. When some pitchers faltered Donovan was always ready to step into the breach. When not pitching Donovan was equally valuable keeping up the morale of the club. He was always the optimist. No game was ever lost with Donovan until the last man was out."

Gave Jinx the Ha-Ha.

When one considers that Donovan was pursued by a jinx during the latter part of his career, it is rather remarkable that his optimism never deserted him.

Twice when managing the New York Yankees it looked as if he was certain to win, only to have the jinx assert itself and ruin his chances. Starting west on one trip in first place and picked to win, practically every regular on the team suffered injuries and when the club returned home it was hopelessly out of the race.

It takes a real man to smile and keep on fighting in adversity. Bill Donovan was such an individual.

fear that the name "Wild Bill" carried to every American League batsman. Few batters hugged the plate with Donovan pitching and at opportune moments Bill would cut loose with a wild pitch that would heighten the fear.

If I were asked to name the six greatest pitchers I ever umpired for, Bill Donovan would occupy a high rating in that list. Aside from dazzling speed, Donovan had a great curve ball, such a curve as few modern pitchers boast. There was a sharp break and a downward drop to his outcurve and his inshoot had a hop that made it almost unhittable when Bill was right.

Bill Donovan will go down in baseball history as one of the truly great pitchers. He had everything, the mechanical ability and a keen

MACK'S GREAT "FIND" PITCHED IN THE MAJORS 15 YEARS AGO

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 15.—Baseball material must be as scarce as many claim it is. The owners of major league teams bewail the fact that no good youngsters are coming up. Minor league owners say they have none fit for major league use. That is, they tell you that when talking confidentially, although most of them have the habits of horse-traders when they step in the baseball market and start dealing with the majors. The minor leagues are packed with David Harums but the lower type have a few of this type among their owners as some deals in the past have proved.

At this meeting the Philadelphia Americans bought Paul Strand from Salt Lake City. Strand was highly touted all last summer and several major league owners went into the West to have a look at the outfielder. Connie Mack kept after him for months and he made two trips to Salt Lake City to study Strand. He bought him.

Strand Hit .394.

With Salt Lake City this Strand fellow hit .394 this year and he made more than 40 home runs. The four-bagger total does not mean so much because most of them were hit on parks where the fence were built to make home run hitting an easy matter. He fielded well.

Now we hear of strand, "a sensational youngster," going to the majors. But the major leagues will be nothing new for Strand; that is, nothing entirely new. The newness all depends on Strand's memory.

Fifteen years ago this same Strand was in the majors. He was a pitcher then. He did not pitch well enough and was shifted to the minors. Done as a pitcher he turned to the outfield, for he was fairly fast and he could hit. And so, 15 years after Strand is sent out of the majors as a pitcher he is brought back as the prize outfielder of the season. He says he is 29 years old. One may conclude, then, that he could not make good as a pitcher because of his extreme youth; a boy of 14 is a bit too young to be permitted to run loose in big cities and consort with the sort of rowdies that were playing major league ball 15 years ago.

And Another Deal.

Another deal brought Ray Kramer to Pittsburgh. He is a right handed pitcher, with a sidearm delivery. He has an effective fast ball, which he delivers underhand. The curve is used with the sidearm delivery. He was the property of Oakland in the Pacific Coast League. In the last seven or eight years he has showed enough to win more than 20 games each season for a second division ball club.

Probably no one reading these lines remembers Kramer but an even dozen years ago John J. McGraw had him. He pitched for the New York Giants. He did not pitch well enough to last long and McGraw sent him out. Twelve years pass, and he returns to the majors as a new find.

Fifteen years after Strand is sent into the minors he returns to the majors. Twelve years after Kramer is dumped into the tangled bushes he comes tottering back. Those that say baseball material is scarce and no good ones are being developed, must be correct.

BOWLING

SUMMARY OF LAST NIGHT'S BOWLING AT THE WATER STREET ALLEYS.

There was some good bowling turned in at the Water Street Alleys last night when six different leagues were seen in action.

In the Mercantile Five Pin League the Westclox took three straight from the league leaders, the Wm. Hamilton outfit. The Western Clock aggregation turned in some of the best bowling seen in the Mercantile League. In their first game they broke the record for a high score in the league, when they rolled over one thousand. This is some score for a five man team. Two of their men went over two hundred while DeGraw rolled 194, Stokes 157 and Spillsbury 151. Wyatt was high man for the evening with 677 for his three games. The rest of his teammates were also in the limelight with big scores, DeGraw rolling 612, Yelland 520 and Stokes 505. For the losers Roberts rolled 530 and Frost 524. Wyatt had the high single of 259.

LAWSUIT OVER THROWING BALL

Custom of Tossing Last Ball Into Bleachers Will Be Stamped Out.

The habit of throwing into the bleachers the last ball used in games will probably be stamped out next season. Already it has cost several major league clubs heavily and the experiences of last season emphatically show the danger of the practice.

Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Nationals, is strictly against it. He has reasons to be.

The thing had been done at Forbes Field in Pittsburgh for some time without any serious mishap, but at the close of one game the ball was thrown low into the bleachers. There was a mad scramble. A boy in one of the top rows started down after the ball. He slipped and struck another boy who, on being hit, fell heavily. His arm struck a broken pop bottle and he was severely cut. Blood poisoning developed. The arm had to be amputated. Result: Dreyfuss is made defendant in a suit for $50,000 by the boy's parents.

In the same park a short time afterwards George (Mickey O'Neil, a Boston catcher, threw a ball low into the stands. His aim was bad. He hit a spectator in the face, breaking his glasses. The man's face was cut. Result: Dreyfuss is made defendant in a suit for $20,000 damages.

O'Neil was fined $1.25 (the cost of a new ball) for throwing with careless aim. Hearing of this, O'Neil made serious protest. "It surely was not his fault that the spectator's face got into the way of the ball."

In the Cubs' park in Chicago, the practice has been continued for some time. Here, also, a ball struck a spectator in the face, broke his glasses and cut him. He complained to the club about it. The club bought the spectator a pair of new glasses and that ended the matter. He had no thought of bringing suit and the club considered itself lucky to escape.

Alexander Alekline, Russian chess master, has arrived in this country, demanding recognition and rubles, in the order named.

Mr. Alekline in admitting that chess is a pastime for intellectuals, neglects to explain how he overcame the requirement.

Walter Johnson hit 20 batters last season, all of whom are still suffering from headaches.

In order to minimize the brutality of the sport, Mr. Alekline suggests the chess players in future matches wear 16-ounce gloves and break at the command of the referee.

Surprise is expressed that the colleges of the country have failed to take steps to popularize chess, as if the students haven't enough frivolous things to do already.

Chess is supposed to stimulate the brain and the suspicion exists that those who play chess need brain stimulation.

CHILEAN BATTLER IN FIRST DEFEAT

His Three Previous Victories Were All by Knockout Route.

New York, December 15. Canadian Press. — Johnny Shugre of Waterbury, Conn., last night administered to Luis Vincentini, the Chilean lightweight, the first defeat he had suffered since coming to the United States. Shugre was given the judge's decision after their 12 round bout in Madison Square Garden last night.

Vincentini weighting 136½ lbs., had a pound and a half advantage in weight.

Chilean led on points up until the 12th when Shugre made a sensational rally and brought to an end the string of American victims that Vincentini had vanquished since coming here. His three previous victories were all knockouts. It was the Connecticutt boxer's ability to rally after severe punishment that most surprised the fans at the ringside.

In the 7th Vincentini had his opponent on the verge of a knockout but he could not get the devastating punch over.

Leading Garrison Softball Series, Winning All Games.

Plenty of good plays and a fair share of comedy were contributed by the military teams in the Garrison Softball League at the Armouries last night when Vets 2, Gunners H. and Rangers 1 were returned winners. Gunners H. are leading the race, having won all games played

Vets 2 sent six runners across in the sixth to overcome the football crowd's lead and it was good enough to win. The score:

Vets Football .....00081111—12
Vets 2 ....0432260x—17

Batteries — F. Dyer and Burroughs; Perks and McGee.

Ranger's Band made the leaders travel fast for four innings, when Gunners H. fell on Nicholl's pitching and were helped along the runways by the Bandsmen's wobbly nest in the field. The score:—

Band ....22001000— 5
Gunners H .....13009010—14

Batteries— Nicholls and R. Dyer Piercy and Mackey.

Rangers 1 found the going hard against Dunkerly's twirling and the clean fielding of his teammates. The gunners pulled off a pair of double plays, and played snappy ball McLean on the hurling heap for Rangers was poorly supported, particularly by Bob Mackey. The score:

Rangers 1 ....32050161—18
Gunners H. .....00100102—4

Batteries —McLean and Gimblett and Gimblett and Mackey; Dunkerly and Lebarr.

Umpires—Kay and Calladine.

He Disposed of All His Stock to Messrs. T. F. Ahearn and T.P. Gorman

OTTAWA, Dec. 15.— (Canadian Press.)—E. P. (Ted) Dey has disposed of all his stock in the Ottawa Hockey Association Limited to Messrs. T. F. Ahearn and T. P. He was a fine player himself in his younger days; he has seen the game grow from the modest beginning until it has become Canada's national game. This deal, which was completed to-day, leaves Frank Ahearn and Tommy Gorman in sole control of the Ottawa Hockey Association.

VATICAN WILL SHOW MISSIONARY LABORS

Most Unusual Exhibition Being Prepared For the Coming Jubilee—Scientific and Orthnographic.

By CAMILLO CIANFARRA.

ROME, Dec. 15.—(United Press).—Although the press has so far said very little about it and official communiques have been, as usual, conspicuous by their absence, the fact remains that the Vatican is preparing a very unusual exhibition, and on such a scale as to make a permanent impression on all the tourists and pilgrims who will visit Rome during the coming jubilee, or holy year.

After the consistory, last May the Pope wrote to Cardinal Van Rossum, perfect of propaganda, to prepare a missionary exhibition for the purpose of acquainting the faithful with the doings of Catholic missionaries in all parts or the world, the results achieved and the work that is being done to initiate them into the complex mysteries of modern, civilized life.

As usual, the Pope's order was not discussed; a small committee was immediately formed and letters despatched to the four corners of the world, ordering the heads of the missions to collect the necessary material. The response was immediate and enthusiastic on the part of 400 missionaries stationed in Africa, Asia and the South Sea Islands.

A single Italian mission stationed in Africa applied for 3,000 square metres of space which was reduced to 1,000 metres, as the available space does not exceed 23,000 square metres.

The exhibition will be divided into two branches, the scientific and the ethnographic. The first will house the maps of the districts where the missionaries are working, and will give complete idea of the country, the location of the tribes and the institutions established for their needs.

The othnographis exhibition will prove the most interesting. According to the instructions issued to the missionaries they must forward to Rome objects used by the savages in their every day life, tools of the different trades, idols, arms, furniture, cooking utensils, etc. For the larger objects, like huts, homes, boats, replicas on a smaller scale will be made.

Above all, the circular letter says, the missionaries should forward everything pertaining to the religious of the different peoples, like wooden idols, objects of worship, priests' frocks and replicas of places of worship.

The exhibition will be housed in the Pigna Court of the Vatican, where a pavilion will be erected at each of the four corners, and in the Vatican gardens, where other pavilions will occupy fifteen thousand square metres of space. Spread throughout the Pigna Court and the gardens, the visitors will find all the exhibits that can stand all kinds of weather. Cardinal Van Rossum directed that a fire house be erected nearby the Pigna Court and trained firemen recruited. Fire fighting apparatuses have also been purchased.

The exhibition will be opened to the public on December 25, 1924, and will remain open throughout the following year.

CONVICTS PARDONED

KINGSTON, December 15. — Canadian Press, — Forty convicts at the Portsmouth penitentiary are to be allowed out on parole in the course of a few days. Their time would be up around March 1st, so they are being given three months off their sentence.

This will reduce the number of prisoners in the penitentiary to 690.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — | New York Stock Exchange — and Curb Prices —

Today's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. — (United Press). — Stocks closed the week with a display of strength which completely set at rest the doubts regarding the fundamental soundness of the speculative structures' present position. So eager was the demand found for all classes of the issues at slight recessions from the recent highs that the re-actionary movement which had set in toward Friday's closed gained little headway. Its influence was still noticeable in the early dealings, but before the first hour was over fresh buying came into the industrial list which carried this part of the market to new high ground for the present advance. Oils played the most prominent part in the demonstration because of the cumulative evidence that the industry was in the throes of one of its characteristic reversals. In the last hour even the rails joined the upward movement, advancing under the leadership of Chesapeake and Ohio among the standard issues and the Eries in the low-priced class. All traces of the early irregularity were wiped out by the start of the second hour, and many sections of the market swung into a vigorous renewal of the forward movement. Corn Products continued to display sensational strength, reaching a further record high at 151½ on persistent reports that contemplated capital readjustment involved a dividend equal to $14 a share on the present stock. Substantial gains took place in numerous specialties. Stocks maintained a strong tone in the final dealings and closing prices were at the week's best.

Pronounced strength in Houston and Pacific Oil kept the oil group at the head of the upturn in the general list, and Pacific Gas and Electric was featured in the public utilities, reaching new high ground for the year at 93 in response to the establishment of a $8 dividend basis earlier in the week. Despite heavy profit-taking in Friday's final dealings, the industrial average closed in new high ground for the current upswing, encouraging confidence regarding the market's ability to absorb realizing sales. Weekly trade review reported active holiday trade with more cheerfulness in large industries. Prices in the early trading on the stock exchange continued under the influence of the irregularity prevailing at the previous close, but a strong undertone was in evidence in the general list. This was heightened by the conspicuous strength of industrial leaders, especially Corn Products, which attained a further record high at 149 7-8. After the early selling had been taken care of, the general market developed a better tone under the influence of conspicuous strength in the whole oil group. New highs on the movement were reached by the Pan-Americans, Pacific Oil and most other representative issues. Invincible was a leader in the low-priced class, reaching its best price of the current recovery at 11¾. This strength was based on the belief of interests connected with the management that the stock has been selling out of line with other oil companies on the basis of comparative property values.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

THREE BIG PICTURES AT CAPITOL NEXT WEEK

George Melfords' latest Paramount production of "Java Head," a story of the later forties in old Salem town and of the Orient, is the attraction at the Capitol, next Monday and Tuesday.

Charming in every respect, admirably directed and interpreted by a featured cast including Leatrice Joy, Jacqueline Logan, Raymond Hatton, George Fawcett and Albert Roscoe, "Java Head" is a picture one cannot soon forget.

The story has to do with a seaman of old Salem who rescues a high born Chinese girl from ruffians in China and although he loves a girl in his home town, he marries her. He takes his bride home with him and then follow many incidents of great dramatic interest, all calculated to hold one's attention as by a spell.

ALICE BRADY IN JUNGLE DRAMA COMING TO CAPITOL

Alice Brady in 'The Leopardess,' a thrilling story of the jungle, will be seen at the Capitol next Wednesday and Thursday. This is one of the most thrilling stories that Miss Brady has been seen in and will provide plenty of excitement for lovers of adventure.

WALTER HIERS AT CAPITOL FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

Walter Hiers the stout comedian whose very smile carries a million laughs, will be the attraction at the Capitol next Friday and Saturday in his latest comedy success, "Mr. Billings Spends His Dime."

AT THE ROYAL.

Famous Authors' Greatest Novel at Royal Theatre on Monday. — Gene Stratton-Porter's Michael O'Halloran.

Gene Stratton Porter personally supervised the production of her famous novel, "Michael O'Halloran," coming to the Royal Theatre Monday, and is an achievement in the film world.

Twenty five youngsters have been used in the picture which promises to bring to the screen a new note of fresh and charming realism and beauty.

However, "Michael O'Halloran" is not a child's story. It is a three fold story with little "Mickey," the newsie, flashing like a gleam of sunlight through the heavier theme of the heart-breaking tragedy as illustrated in the story of a rich society couple and the lighter more pleasing romance of a charming pair of young lovers.

True Boardman, Jr., youthful son of the pioneer cowboy of the screen, portrays "Mickey," the lovable news boy with the motto, "Be Square."

Mrs. Porter is convinced that she has found a distinctive and different type of boyhood in True and claims that he posses the "photogenic" face, that is to face, something deeper than the mere facial features, more, the soul of the person photographed.

Mrs. Porter has entered the motion picture field with the avowed intention of fulfilling what she believes is a two-fold duty to her big reading audience, to give them on the screen her own conception of her famous characters and to make certain that these readers will not be disappointed by a distortion of the characterization.

Her carefully selected cast promises to carry this out. It includes: Ethelyn Irving, Irene Rich, Claire McDowell, Charles Clary and others.

BOARDMAN WAITS TO BE "NEWSY."

True Boardman, who plays the leading role in "Michael O'Halloran," picturized under the personal supervision of the author, Gene Stratton Porter, and which will be presented at the Royal Theatre, commencing on Monday, sold papers on the corner for a few days prior to beginning his work as "Mickey," the manly little newsboy of the story.

Concerning his "corner," True who is twelve, says:

"Selling papers to folks who want 'em is easy, but making a market for 'em is hard work.

"I used psychology in my work; all the boys do.

"When we saw a man with a long face we'd yell the biggest disaster in the paper; when we saw a lady who looked as if she might be in the movies or would like to be, we'd holler out the latest news about the film colony.

"Selling papers is just like selling apples; you've got to have them attractive.

"Anybody who feels sorry for the newsboys is crazy; they have a peach of a time; stay down in the middle of all the excitement, watch the fire-engines go by and see all kinds of interesting people every minute.

"Selling papers is just like playing a game—only the prizes are in real money.

"Some day when I'm through in pictures I'm going to have a corner and be a newsboy."

Young Mr. Boardman is bringing an unusual degree of realism to his role as "Mickey," the newsboy.

AT THE ROYAL.

THE REX STOCK COMPANY.

For their second play of their limited engagement here the Rex Stock Company is going to offer perhaps the funniest comedy ever staged, "Twin Beds." Like the first play it does not give all the company a chance to appear, but that in no way detracts from the value of the comedy. Our old friend Bill Yule has the chance of a lifetime as Signor Monti the singer. To say that he is funny is putting it very mildly. Playing across from him as his wife is the stellar comedienne, Hazel Williams, "the red head," and between the two of them they keep the theatre in an uproar. Rex and Zana of course appear in the leading parts, the forme as the husband with the grouch and the latter as the cry baby wife. Billy Seymour plays a nice young man whose name should have been Gertie, and the balance of the cast have all good roles.

WHERE WILL YOU SPEND CHRISTMAS?

In all the cycle of the year there is no time that brings families together as does the Yuletide. Though you were at the ends of the earth you would long to be at home for Christmas, and if it were at all possible you would be there. GERMANS WILL OPEN PARLEYS

Ready to Discuss the Ruhr Situation With France and Belgium.

(By Webb Miller, United Press Staff Correspondent)).

PARIS, December 15. — A first step towards opening direct Franco-German conferences regarding the Ruhr and the Rhineland situation was taken to-day when a German emissary, Herr von Hoesche, visited Premier Poincare at 9.30 this morning.

Von Hoesche requested that negotiations to facilitate the accords reached regarding the resumption of industry in the Ruhr be opened at once.

Poincare, who received the German somewhat hesitatingly, and with many reservations, did not immediately reply.

The French Premier requested Von Hoesche to submit his suggestions in writing. When this is done, Poincare will reply in writing.

Von Hoesche asked Poincare if he were not ready to negotiate concerning all outstanding Franco-German questions.

The Premier replied that France certainly did not intend to negotiate regarding Germany's reparations debts to this country, since that was a matter that came within the jurisdiction of the Reparations Commission.

Poincare asked a number of pointed questions, such as, what did Germany understand by the word "negotiations," and did she propose they should be formal or informal?

The German Charge d'Affaires at Brussels requested an interview with Foreign Minister Jaspar to take place simultaneously with the visit of Herr von Hoesche to Premier Poincare at Paris.

It is understood that Germany is asking direct negotiations with Belgium regarding the Ruhr and Rhineland accords.

IN MEMORIAM.

THORNDYKE.—In loving memory of Edwin, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Thorndyke, who departed this life November 16, 1922.

Not dead but only sleeping, dear Edwin,
Free from all sorrow and pain;
You have gone to that beautiful heaven of rest,
Where we all hope to meet you again.

Do not ask us if we wiss him,
He was always good and true,
Never murmured in his sufferings,
No one knows what he went through.

—Sadly missed by his Auntie and Uncle.

IN MEMORIAM.

KEMP.—In fond and loving memory of our dear little Edwin, who died December 14, 1922.

Farewell, farewell, our baby dear,
We shall sadly miss you here.
But your memory fresh we'll keep
While in death you sweetly sleep.

Deep in our hearts lies a picture
Of a loved one laid to rest,
In memory's frame we shall keep it
Because he was of the best.

Our lips cannot speak how we loved him,
Our hearts cannot tell what to say,
We have lost, Heaven has gained,
One of the best the world contained.

(By Frederick G. Neumeier, United Press Staff Corespondent.)

Mexico City, December 15. — Federal forces defeated rebels in a battle in the east to-day, while eight battalions, with artillery and machine guns advanced against General Estrada in the west.

Insurgents under Colonel Silvestre Trevino were met at Exitlan, in the state of Puebla, and routed after a fight, according to advices from that front. In the west where the federals are, the plan is to rush Estrada before turning upon the rebel columns advancing from Vera Cruz. Obregon's troops approached Guadalajara which they expected to take before the end of the week.

Another federal success was announced in despatches from Tepic, the capital of Nayarit, which was recaptured from the rebels.

Tacit admission of a set back in the east, however, was contained in a statement by President Obregon in which he said: "Every point the rebels take between Vera Cruz and Mexico City, is on the line of march and we shall not have so far to go when we turn to crush them."

Obregon showed unconcern over the progress of fighting in the east by proceeding from Irapuato, where federal troops concentrated for review to La Piedad, Capital of Jalisco on a military train.

The president has sent home for his riding clothes leading to the belief he may be intending to mount a horse and lead his troops in the field.

Battle of the West.

The battle of the west has begun according to reports to Adolfo de la Huertas' headquarters here.

General Estradas' troops, augmented by four regiments which deserted Obregon, bringing three batteries and ten airplanes to the rebels, were in contact with the advancing federals at Celtaya.

In the cast according to a rebel version, Obregon's troops are evacuating Puebla. General Lachuga, who commanded the federals, surrendered at the moment he was expected to defend the city of Puebla.

(Official despatches to the Mexican government regardin the fighting in Puebla told of a rebel rout on Thursday.)

The fighting is continuing in Tehuacan and another battle is expected momentarily at Santa Lucrecia, reports from sources friendly to Dela Huerta declared. In all parts the reports say the troops of the rebel General Guadaloup Sanchez dominate the situation, while Obregon forces at Sanmarces retreat to defend Mexico City.

One half of General Sanchez's men left here last night to make a decisive attack at Santa Lucreca.

YOUNG INVENTOR AND HIS HOOK-UP

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 15. —Six months ago, Melvin Grimes, former Minneapolis alderman, went among his closest acquaintances and tried to arouse their interest in an invention of his son's.

It was what the young inventor, David Grimes, called an inverse reflex radio circuit—one whose three tubes did the work of five ordinarily.

But the friends of Melvin Grimes —even those who knew radio— looked it over and turned aside. "Just another hook-up," was the general opinion. So no one took a chance in the new venture proposed by the amateur's father.

Now, six months later, young David Grimes is $500,000 ahead. His hook-up had been purchased for that amount, say those who are close to him, and he is now in New York with the firm that bought his circuit, perfecting the invention.

Young Grimes is only 25. And a semi-millionaire.

When he was still a high school student he built a wireless telephone, one of the first used in his district. He was a student in the engineering department of the university here when the war broke out and he entered the aviation service. During his army service, it is said, he conceived the idea which made him rich and famous.

RATEPAYER DECLARES INSURANCE COULD BE CANCELLED FOR CITY

Points Out What Would Happen if Policemen Quit --Calls on the City Council to Resign--Review of Police Issue.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

The City Council has treated very lightly the high responsibility of their position and have ignored the very onerous duties that are imposed upon them, not only by law, but by the confidence that has been reposed in them by the ratepayers of Peterboro.

The City of Peterboro is assessed for upwards of $20,000,000, and the ratepayers of Peterboro are paying about $700,000 a year for the various services that are rendered to the city, whether in the form of permanent investments or in the form of ordinary annual expenditure.

The amount involved in the "tempest in a teapot" is only $3,843. That is a very small amount of money as compared with the total annual expenditure.

And yet for the sake of having the Council perform its plain duty to supply to this city police protection they are prepared to throw the doors wide open to thieves, thugs and criminals to rob and destroy.

The common-sense people of this city are not in favor of the modern plan of carrying on our own affairs on the principle of the Soviets of Russia.

The insurance companies in Canada would have a legal right to cancel their policies covering all the property in the City of Peterboro that is insured against fire in the event of this city being without police protection.

The members of the police force of Peterboro are an honorable body of men and have performed their duties faithfully and have the highest regard for the faithful performance of their duties.

Representative men in this city have voluntarily come forward and have offered to pay the salaries of the police force and take an assignment of their claims against the city in order to fight their battles on their behalf.

The City Council is being given until Monday night to provide for the payment of their police force, and if they do not do then definite notice is being served upon them that the representative men in this city will not tolerate their neglect of duty which would justify criminal action being taken against every single one of them.

If the City Council do not pay the members of the police force or make provision for their payment on Monday night then the citizens of this city will gladly contribute the money to the members of the police force that is necessary to pay their salaries, and they will obtain assignments of their claims and take immediate action to enforce payment.

The ridiculous part of the whole situation is that some of these members of the same Council who have proved so unfaithful in petty things are now about to appeal to the ratepayers of this city to again elect them on account of their faithful service.

If a board of directors were guilty of such conduct as that of the aldermen then the shareholders would be justified in dismissing them.

The men who should be dismissed are not the policemen but the members of the City Council.

EUCHRE PARTY.
The Sons of England held a very successful euchre party last evening in their hall on Hunter Street. The next party will be held on 28th December. The winners of the first prizes were Miss Winnie Parsons and William Gray. The consolation prizes went to Mrs. Lorne Campbell and Mr. Fred Collin. After the prizes were awarded, refreshments were served and community singing followed.

THE BOETHIAN CLUB.
The Boethian Club of George Street Methodist Church, together with several of the intermediate Sunday School classes, held a pretty bazaar yesterday in the Lecture Hall, with a good attendance during the afternoon and evening. The ladies had a number of daintily decorated booths, where pretty and useful things were served, and tables for afternoon tea. Decorations were carried out with vari-coloured paper streamers and festoons and quantities of Christmas evergreens and tinsel, making a pretty appearance in the big hall. The "Made in Canada" big square central enclosure was particularly attractive. The Sunday School classes of Mesdames Gardiner, Coons, Hetherington, Shields, and the Misses Higgins, Elliott, Brownscombe and Outram, had charge of the various booths.

Presentation to Rev. and Mrs. James Rollins

At a congregational meeting held last evening in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the presentation of a purse of money to the departing pastor and his wife, Rev. JAPANESE SHORE LINE IS BIGGER.

Earthquake Made Bay Deeper and Shore Line Longer—Valuable Land

TOKIO, Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Japan's area has been considerably extended as a result of the earthquake. There has been a marked change in the shore line of the Miura and Izu peninsulas which form Sagami Bay, the centre of the disturbance.

According to experts the bay is many fathoms deeper and along the shores rocks heretofore immersed are showing, forming small islands, while residences built on the seashore have considerable stretches of land between them and the sea which, when reclaimed, will be of great value.

The admiralty boats have been out for some weeks now preparing new charts of Sagami Bay and surrounding waters. New charts of Tokio Bay also have been completed.

The metereological officials find that the land rose to the extent of nine feet on Miura and parts of Boso peninsulas and at Choshi, at the mouth of the Tone River, north of Tokio, and about eight feet at Oiso on Izu peninsula. On the other hand, the earth has settled at Inatori, a village at the extreme southern end of Boso peninsula, and at Ochima or Vries Island, just opposite Inatori.

Paris plans to use its subways for the removal of rubbish.

BRAVE AVIATORS PICTURE VOLCANO.

Take Photographs of the Fire Pit of an Active Volcano.

HILO, Island of Hawaii, Dec. 15. — (Associated Press). — Airplane photographs of the fire-pit of an active volcano were taken recently by United States army pilots, who successfully performed this daring feat over Kilauea, the largest continuously active volcano in the world.

A group of four planes did the work. In a sudden descent directly over the inner crater they went down to within a few hundred feet of the roaring inferno of lava within the encircling walls.

Heavily buffeted by the up-rush of super-heated air and gas fumes arising from the pit, the aviators drove their planes straight ahead, while the daring photographers leaning far outboard, took a series of rapid-fire photographs of the tumultuous molten lava directly beneath them, according to witnesses of the feat. A series of unusually graphic views was taken.

Those who participated in the flight were Lieutenants J. M. McCulloch, W. N. Armis and Ned Schramm; Captain R. G. Hoyt, communication officer; R. C. Wriston, photographer, and three enlisted men.

SIDE CURTAINS ON CAR OBSTRUCTED VISION OF PARTY OFF TO CONCERT

Didn't Notice C. P. R. Passenger Train Saturday Afternoon Until It Was Only a Few Yards Away—Two Boys in the Front Seat Injured.

Train Crew Exonerated.

OTTAWA, Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Four young girls were instantly killed and two boys injured in a level crossing accident near Manotick early Saturday afternoon when the C.P.R. Ottawa-Toronto express crashed into the automobile in which they were driving. The accident is considered to be the worst level crossing fatality in Eastern Ontario in recent years.

Hazel Tomkins, 13, and her sister Grace, 10, were killed and their brother Melvin, 19, slightly injured, while their cousins, Bessie Tomkins, 16, and her sister Doris, 12, were killed and their brother Henry, 14, internally injured. Henry Tomkins is expected to recover.

The party of six, with Melvin driving and Henry sitting in front with him, were proceeding to a Christmas carol rehearsal at Manotick church. With his view obscured by the side curtains, Melvin Tomkins failed to see the train until he was already on the tracks. He stepped on the gas, but failed to clear before the train crashed into them, hitting the rear wheel and instantly killing the four girls and carrying the debris of the car for 30 feet. The two boys were thrown clear in the crash.

Engineer Absolved.

An investigation carried out by railway officials Sunday absolved from blame Engineer T. Jelly of Smith's Falls. Many persons witnessed the accident, including Mrs. Henry Tomkins, mother of Hazel and Grace.

Melvin Tomkins, the driver of the car, was able to give a very clear account of the accident.

In Sight of Home.

Mr. Henry Tomkins' house, from which the party started on their ill-fated trip, is on the south side of the railway tracks and almost opposite Manotick station. A private road runs from the house towards the tracks. Along this stretch the car was going slowly, in low gear, as the surface of the road was rough. The four girls were in the back seat, and the car was curtained in.

He did not hear the approaching train. Added to this at the point where the road crosses the track the view of an approaching train is partially obstructed by the difference in level and by the presence of a tree or two and a little scrub brush.

Almost Across.

The car was actually on the track when Young Tomkins saw the oncoming train. It was too late to stop and back up, so he stepped on the gas and tried to get clear. The fact that he was in low gear prevented his doing this, but the front part of the car was clear of the track and the back wheels almost across when the engine struck it. He was hurled clear of the car and landed on his back. He was dazed for a moment, but quickly got up. His cousin, Henry, was lying in the ditch between him and the car and got up very shortly afterwards and walked. Melvin thought that he was unhurt. The four girls were lying about 20 or 30 feet away, neither of them together. They appeared to have fallen on their heads and there was no sign of life.

Didn't Hear Train.

Melvin, according to Manotick people, was a careful driver and had had no trouble with the car, which was a new one purchased by his father last spring. He was driving with particular care on this occasion, owing to the rough nature of the frozen road. He did not hear the approach of the train and that was the sole reason of the accident.

C.P.R. Statement.

Mr. J. H. Hughes, assistant superintendent of the Ottawa division of the C.P.R., conducted the investigation into the accident here Saturday night. As a result of the investigation he issued the following statement:

"The investigation shows that the whistle of the engine was sounded for both the public crossings at Manotick. The bell, too, was ringing before and at the time of the accident. The bell is an air bell ringer, and sounds automatically.

"The train at the time of the accident was travelling at its usual speed for that point, namely from 35 to 40 miles an hour, as it did not stop at Manotick. The motor car which the engine struck was not seen by the engineer till he was right up to it. We found that the people in the car had some trouble in starting the car and it took them some time to get it going. They were going to a concert rehearsal and because of the trouble in starting the car were a bit late. There is a rise where the lane crosses the tracks. They were evidently hurrying to make up for lost time, and got on the track just as the train was a very few yards away.

"No blame could be attached to the engineer, Mr. T. Jelly of Smith's Falls, or to the fireman, Mr. Nolan."

IRENE'S LATEST

Major Frederick McLaughlin, wealthy Chicago society man, coffee merchant and sportsman, has become vivacious Irene Castle's third husband. The wedding was solemnized in Chicago. The major, as his title implies, has been a soldier, too, just like Vernon Castle and Robert Treman, the dancer's former spouses.

MODERN DANCE IS CONDEMNED

His Eminence Cardinal Begin Has Condemned Many Pleasures.

QUEBEC, Dec. 17. —His Eminence Cardinal Begin has thrown a bombshell. A pastoral letter from the Metropolitan of Quebec, and head of the Catholic church in this province, which was read in all the churches of the Archdiocese yesterday morning, condemns most of the modern dances, denounces illicit fabrication of liquor, sale or smuggling of liquor, contrary to the civil law, and warns the faithful against attending questionable plays or moving pictures.

The denunciation of dancing is in such general terms that already many social functions arranged in view of the approaching festive season have been cancelled. In case of violation of the edict against indulging in classes of dancing referred to, the Cardinal has ordered the confessors to hold such offenders as being guilty of a grave sin of disobedience.

A document was prepared at a recent Synod held in this city, which was presided over by His Eminence by the representatives of the church from all sections.

Toronto Catholic clergy approve Cardinal Begin's ban on dancing.

OBREGON QUITS PUEBLA REBELS CLAIM CAPTURE

Federal Forces Merely Evacuated the City Preparing Trap For Huerista Troops, Says Government Report.

WILL FIGHT YET.

VERA CRUZ, Dec. 17—Revolutionary forces, according to El Dictamen are in possession of Puebla, and trains already are running between Puebla City and this port. The capture of Puebla was affected by forces under General Antonio Villareal.

Says Rebels Fall Out

EL PASO, Tex., Dec. 17.— The El Paso Times Sunday received the following telegram from Francisco Torreblanco, private secretary to President Obregon:

"On board Presidential Special Train, Apizaco, Tlaxcala, Dec. 15:

"After reviewing the troops engaged in operations against the City of Guadalajara, where the rebel divisional commander, Enrique Estrada, is active, and giving the necessary instructions for the campaign, President Obregon returned to Mexico City. After a few hours in the capitol, the President journeyed to Apizaco, where he spent the day reviewing the troops about to attack the forces of the rebel general, Guadalupe Sanchez.

"The first formal fighting probably will occur Sunday or Monday and all probabilities indicate the rebel forces will be competely routed. The Republic generally remains quiet and no branch of the public services has been interrupted. The President believes that with the loyal elements in the army the Government can count upon and with the masses of the farmers and working men who daily are offering their services to the Government, the revolution will be quickly quelled. It is reliably reported here that substantial differences regarding future plans have arisen among the rebel leaders.

"Rival leaders, it is said, are fomenting a movement of the elimination of De Le Huerta and plan to assume the leadership themselves. De La Huerta, his enemies say, is displaying characteristic weakness in dealing with those who plot to get rid of him."

(Signed) "F. Torreblanco,
"Secretary to the President."

"I would like to have your opinion of the matter, John."

Then up rose every member of the board: John Frook, chairman, John Kall, commissioner, John Taylor, treasurer, and John Hayne, superintendent.

CLEMENCEAU IN AUTO ACCIDENT

French War Premier Cut About Face By Broken Windshield.

ST. GERMAIN-EN-LAYE, France, Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press). — George Clemenceau, France's war Premier, was quite severely hurt in an automobile accident while driving along the Nantes-Paris road. Clemenceau's face was cut by glass from the broken windshield, and he was brought to the hospital here. The surgeons found it necessary to put in several stitches, after which the former Premier proceeded to his Paris home, where he arrived some hours later than expected, but apparently little the worse of his mishap.

His chauffeur suffered more serious injuries, and remained in the hospital at St. Germain. ed by an automobile," Georges Clemenceau, octogenarian, "Tiger" of France, veteran of the Franco-Prussian War of 1870, and of innumerable political battles, told the press to-day.

The ex-Premier sat with his grizzled face completely swathed in bandages, sipping nourishment through a straw.

EDMONTON, Alta., Dec. 17. — (Canadian Press).—An increase of more than one hundred million bushels of wheat over last year's wheat crop in Alberta is shown in the final crop report just issued by the Department of Agriculture. With an average yield of 28 bushels to the acre from a total acreage of 5,973,753 acres, this year's yield is estimated at 167,265,084 bushels, as compared with 65,740,693 in 1922, when the average yield to the acre was 11½ bushels.

BRITISH ELECTIONS MAY INTERFERE WITH NAVAL STATION AT SINGAPORE

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Dec. 17. — (Canadian Press). — Minister of Defence Bowden, in a speech delivered Saturday, said he hoped that the British elections would not interfere with the establishment of a naval base at Singapore. The postponement of the proposed work, the Minister said, probably would mean the reconstruction of the entire naval plans for the defence of Australia.

SHIP FOUNDERS IN HEAVY STORM 22 MEN DROWNED

Only Five of Crew of Twenty-Seven on the Norwegian Steamer Reported Saved at Norfolk, Va.

LIVERPOOL BOUND.

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press)—The loss of life in the foundering Saturday of the Norwegian steamer Runa, which went down off Frying Pan Shoals was placed Sunday by Coast Guard officials at 22 men, after receipt of word from the cutter Modoc that a lifeboat had been found with all of its occupants dead.

Only two lifeboats, officials said, were launched. One of these was picked up with its four survivors by the tanker W. W. Mills, which also rescued a fifth man from the water. These men are believed to have been the only ones saved out of a crew of 27.

Six bodies are believed to have been in the boat picked up Sunday by the Modoc, although the advice from that vessel did not state. Earlier messages, however, had said the boat was adrift with six men.

Saw Floating Bodies.

The Modoc, which was rushed to the scene upon advices that the ship had gone down in the gale, was still searching the vicinity yesterday. Floating bodies were sighted by the W. W. Mills and the Merchant and Miners' Transportation Company steamer Berkshire, but it was not disclosed whether either steamer stopped to pick them up.

Officials here are doubtful whether this could have been done in the rough seas. Early reports last night from the Modoc said it was too rough to attempt to transfer the survivors from the W. W. Mills and that steamer was proceeding to Sabine, Texas. Nothing had been developed to indicate the cause of the wreck.

Bound For Liverpool.

The Runa was a small steamer, but was considered to be in good condition. She had been plying on the Atlantic for years. She bunkered at Newport News, December 9, proceeded to Savannah, the same day, and sailed Wednesday for Liverpool from Savannah.

The Modoc will remain in the vicinity until hope of finding more bodies is given up.

THIEVES RAID LOCAL CHURCH

Members of St. Paul's Church Choir Lose Two Fur Coats to Plunderers During Service.

Thieves last night invaded St. Paul's church during the hour of evening service and made their getaway with two fur coats, the property of ladies who were members of the choir. The coats were valued at $150 and $350 respectively.

The theft took place between 7.30 and 8, the thieves evidently knowing the plan of the church and the fact that the owners were engaged in the service. The coats were left in the choir room when the ladies donned their choir gowns.

Mrs. Walter Byers, 608 Chamberlain street, and Miss Grace Morgan, 368 Mark street, were the victims.

At the time of the theft the police were on duty at a fire which partly consumed the Stevens' Confectionery Warehouse, and when the call was turned in there was only one man on duty at the police station. He could not leave his post, and in the short interval that elapsed before he colleced other men the thieves made good their escape. The police are working on the case.

SOUTH AMERICA QUAKE DESTROYED TWO TOWNS

Many Persons Killed and Injured Near the Border of Colombia and Ecuador — Numerous Villages Believed Damaged.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press)—Many persons were killed and a larger number injured by an earthquake which destroyed two small towns Saturday in the region of Ipiales, near the Colombian-Ecuadorian frontier. Already eighty-five dead have been recovered from the ruins of Cumbal, which with the town of Chile, suffered most severely from the efforts of the shocks, according to the reports thus far received.

Chile is situated on the slopes of the Chile Volcano, to the eruption of which the present disaster is attributed.

The road from Cumbal to Ipiales is obstructed by great landslides, and the full extent of the earthquake has not yet been learned. Numerous surrounding villages are believed to have been badly damaged, and a commission of government officials has been sent to inspect the affected zone.

The volcanoes of Cumbal and Chile are in active eruption.

FRENCH ACCEPT PROPOSALS FOR GERMAN PARLEY

But Intimate That Questions of Ruhr and Rhineland Are Limited By the Scope of the Inter-Allied Commission.

ARE NON-COMMITTAL.

PARIS, Dec 17—The French Government has acceptd, with limitations, the German proposals submitted by Herr Von Hoesch, Charge D'Affaires, concerning conversations Germany desires to enter into with France, as well as Belgium, on the Ruhr and Rhineland questions.

The reply, which was handed to Herr von Hoesch last evening takes the form generally expected, according to an official summary issued by the Government.

It is pointed out that as the German Government has already made known the import of its proposals, there was no need to delay publication of the gist of the French reply.

Passive resistance having apparently ceased in the Ruhr, premier Poincare declares that he is always ready to confer with an official representative of the German Government on all questions which this government wishes to bring before him; at the same time he remarks that he reagrds such questions as of equal interest to the Allies, and therefore the French Government reserves the right of concerting with them before replying.

Adhere to Treaty

With respect to reparations, the French Government, as it has frequently declared, will never consent to take that question out of the hands of the commission instituted by the treaty, nor consider any regulation not strictly conforming with the treaty.

The Commission, adds M. Poincare, will continue to function, with all the powers conferred upon it, and without its rights, so far as relates to Germany, being diminished in any possible manner.

"The exchange of ideas proposed by Germany, to which the French Government does not refuse to lend itself," continues the reply, "cannot, therefore, have for its object infringement of the prerogatives of this commission, nor can it be a preparatory step, direct or indirect, for revision of the treaty."

Concerning the Rhine and the Ruhr, the reply says, the French Government has nothing to change in the views already set forth; it cannot agree to take matters out of the hands of the Franco- Belgian authorities in the Ruhr, or the Inter Allied High Commission, in the other occupied territories.

Hear Suggestions

As to the establishment of modus vivendi in either of these regions, M. Poincare is fully disposed to listen to suggestions from the Berlin Government and communicate them, if circumstances admit, with his opinion, to competent authority. He will, notably, accept any discussion on prolongation agreements with the industrialists, the re-establishment of economic life and administrative questions, it being understood that France maintains her full right not to accept the reintegration of those persons expelled except after individual examination.

M. Poincare includes by drawing attention to the fact that the Inter-Allied Commissions of military control have not yet been able to resume their regular duties and declares that while this state of affairs exists Germany cannot claim to be loyally executing the Treaty of Versailles.

Rounded Up Bank Bandits in West

REGINA, Sask., Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press).—The arrest of eight persons, including two women, in Havre, Montana and Salt Lake City, Utah, is believed by United States authorities to have cleaned up the bank robbery gang which has been operating along the Saskatchewan-North Dakota-Montana boundary for the last three years, according to word received Saturday by Polivincial police headquarters.

Chief among the captives was that of Arthur J. Davis, alleged by the Montana police to be one of the leaders and the boldest in the gang of outlaws which preyed on banks in the northern States and the Prairie Provinces. The rendezvous in which four men and an 18-year-old girl were taken in Salt Lake City were found acetylene torches, electric drills, fuses and other tools common to the safecracker's outfit.

LIFEBOAT SENT CREW TO DEATH

Capsized With Men Leaving Shipwreck—Others Remain on Vessel.

MARSHFIELD, Oregon, Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press)—The steamer C. A. Smith, loaded with 1,500,000 feet of lumber struck on the submerged rocks of the North Jetty at the entrance to Coo's Bay Harbor Sunday morning and will be a total loss.

Eight or ten men of the crew were lost, when a lifeboat was capsized as it was being lowered into the water.

Seven of the crew of 24 were taken off the vessel by Captain Jensen, of the Coast Guard, who reached the stranded craft in a lifeboat. Others of the crew refused to leave the vessel because of the high seas breaking, and Sunday night were still aboard the craft.

Five men could be seen from shore clinging to the surf-torn steamer.

LLOYDS TO MOVE AFTER 149 YEARS

Will Build a New Home in Heart of London.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Lloyds, the famous marine and general insurance corporation, has decided to remove from the Royal Exchange, where its headquarters has been for 149 years, and build itself a new home at an estimated cost of £1,200,000.

The company has secured an acre of land in the heart of the busiest section of the city and the razing of the old buildings on the site preparatory to the erection of the new structure is expected to begin soon.

Lloyds had its origin in a small coffee house about 1688. Started by Edward Lloyd, the business grew so rapidly that in 1692 its owners were obliged to seek larger premises. Before the end of the eighteenth century, it had become the acknowledged centre of the world's marine insurance, a position which it since has held.

POLICE WAITED IN GIRL'S HOME UNTIL HE CAME

Commanded Her to Invite Him When He Telephoned If He Might Call--Shot Dead As Door Opened.

CLIMAX TO CRIME.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Lured to the home of the girl he loved by a ruse, Arthur Brown, fugitive Canadian bank bandit, and pal of Norman "Red" Ryan, leader of a desperate gang, who was captured in a gun fight Friday night, walked into a police trap Saturday afternoon and was shot to death by Detective William Meehan.

Brown was killed as he stood on the porch of a house where the girl, Irene Adams, a waitress, lived. Miss Adams was taken in charge by the police Saturday morning when they were informed that she was acquainted with Brown.

She admitted she had known him for some time, and said that Friday night she had been to a theatre and later to a cafe with him, half an hour before he had figured in the gun fight in front of the Minneapolis Post Office. In this fray detectives captured Ryan in the lobby of the Post Office after a tussle in which Ryan was shot.

Telephone Call.

Miss Adams informed the police that she was expecting a telephone call from Brown. She said that she knew nothing of his criminal career. With detectives, Miss Adams went to her home, and waited. Shortly after noon Saturday Brown telephoned and asked if he could come out to see Miss Adams. Speaking to him under directions of the detectives, she asked him to come.

About one o'clock Brown came to the side of the house and knocked. A detective opened the door a few inches, and was instantly recognized by Brown, who drew a revolver. Meehan fired. Brown staggered back a pace and sank to the floor.

"You've got me," he groaned and died. Brown had been shot through the heart.

Reward of $500.

A $500 reward for Brown's capture, offered by Canadian authorities, is expected to be presented to Meehan.

Brown's home is believed to be in Detroit, Mich. He was serving ten years in the Ontario Provincial Penitentiary for housebreaking, and had broken jail with Ryan. Brown is said to have shot a Canadian police officer in escaping.

Ryan and R. R. Tucker, Deputy Warden of the Ontario Penitentiary, who has been in Minneapolis looking for the fugitive, identified Brown.

When Ryan saw Brown's body, he gazed at his friend's features for a full minute and tears welled into his eyes.

"That's tough, isn't it? I wish I was on the slab with him," he said.

"It was a woman who did it" declared Red Ryan escaped convict last night in discussing his capture in Minneapolis, Friday night and subsequent killing of his pal Arthur Brown, alias Sullivan by Detective on Saturday afternoon.

"Brown always had a falling for women and I warned him against it. I learned a lesson long ago, that you can't get too friendly with women, when you are wanted. They will turn you up every time." Ryans remarks were directed against Irene Adams, a Minneapolis girl, who help

A SPANISH PRISONER LETTER IS RECEIVED BY LOCAL RESIDENT

Nothing Small About His Request--A Bunco Game That Bobs Up Quite Frequently.

The Spanish prisoner is to the fore again. With commendable frequency this gentleman bobs up, by way of petitioning letters, in many different parts of the country. Now he has tackled Canada, and Peterboro has been favored with one of his missives. Something like his illustrious confrere, the Spanish Cavalier famed in song, he "sits in his retreat," supposedly a cold cell in a Barcelona prison, and distributes broadcast appeals for money. Theer is nothing small about this gentleman, either. He isn't asking for a shoestring allowance. He comes right out in the open and requests the loan of $360,000, on the strength of the contents of a secret pocket in his portmanteau. He evidently has faith in three things: the romantic element which would respond to an appeal from a languishing Spanish prisoner, the fairy tale that says the New World is paved with gold, and the truth which prompted the famous saying, "There is one born every minute."

Following is a copy of the letter received from the "Spanish prisoner" by a resident of Peterboro:

Barcelona, 2-f-11-23

"Dear Sir: Being imprisoned here by bankruptcy I beseech you to help me to obtain a sum of 360,000 dollars I have in America being necessary to come here to raise the seizure of my baggage paying to the Register of the court the expenses of my trial an drecover my portmanteau containing a secret pocket where I have hidden two cheks payable to bearer for that sum. As reward I will give to you the third part viz., 120,000 dollars. I cannot receive your answer in the prison but you can send a cablegram to a person of my confidence who will deliver it me addressed as follows.

"Suho Mirs, Lista Correos, Lerida. (Spain). Most, Dale.

"Awaiting you answer to instruct you all my secret now sign only R. First of all answer by cable, not by letter."

ROBBERS MADE OFF WITH BODY

Were Captured After a Revolver Duel With Police.

TOKIO, Dec. 17—(United Press). — Memorial services for Osugi Sakaye, the murdered Communist leader, came to a startling close on Sunday when three men seized the casket containing his ashes and fled with it in an automobile. They fired on their pursuers with revolvers, but were arrested later.

The theft took place under the eyes of a heavy police guard assigned to the memorial services to prevent violence from the Nationalist leader, who opposed the idea of honoring the former Radical leader.

The widow of the murdered man, also of Communistic belief, who has served several jail sentences for arousing the ire of the suspicious Tokio police, seized a gun and fired at the men as they made off.

Osugi Sakaye, foremost of Japan's Radicals, was shot and killed by Captain Amakasuay of the Gendarmerie during the turmoil that followed the earthquake disaster in September.

In nearly all Chinese cities a large percentage of the inhabitants live in a sort of hand-to-mouth fashion, buying food from restaurants. Hot water is sold from stands.

A HUMAN TORCH.

The physics department of the University of Iowa was doing a bit of experimenting. It was necessary for someone to submit to the test. And that wasn't easy. His clothes had to be soaked in gasoline and then ignited with a match. The subject was to jump into a tank of water. Captain McCullough of university swimming team volunteered. Here he is—his jacket a mass of flames—accomplishing leap. He suffered no ill effects.

THE SALVATIONIST HEAD DENOUNCES DOLE SYSTEM

LONDON, Dec. 17 — General Bramwell Booth, in a preface to the annual report of the Salvation Army's social work, says:

"I sometimes wonder if what is called the dole is not almost, if not quite, a grave misfortune. I do not think it possible for the ordinary reader to imagine the moral deterioration and mischievous influence on all alike springing from this evil thing."

ANNUAL BAZAAR OF LADIES' AID AT LAKEFIELD

Methodist Sunday School Colorful Scene of Gaily Decorated Booths—Proceeds Were $177.

G.W.V.A. OFFICERS.

LAKEFIELD, December 17.—The annual bazaar of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church was held on Friday afternoon in the Sunday School Room. The ladies had spared no effort to make the room attractive and with the daintily trimmed booths and cosy tea room, the effect was inviting and a rainbow of colour.

From 3 to 6 o'clock the place was thronged by a crowd, in which the ladies were in the majority, but more than one brave man attended and was heartily welcomed.

Miss Webster, president of the society, received the guests and shared with Mrs. S. Spence the position of general convenor. Mrs. S. Pearson and Mrs. R. Nugent assisted in receiving and welcoming the visitors.

The attractions were very numerous, and each was thronged with an eager crowd. Miss Loloa Waldon furnished music during the afternoon which added to the pleasant effect.

The aprons were in a booth trimmed with yellow and black streamers and was in charge of Mrs. Botterill convenor, Mrs. H. Girven, Mrs. W. Hamblin, and Mrs. Elmer Milburn.

A booth devoted to articles for babies was one of the most attractive in the room with its dainty decorations of baby pink, silver and white. Amid the jackets, bootees, and dainty babies' wear, was a large doll which was nearly the size of a baby and drew closer attention to the many articles made to adorn his royal highness the baby. Mrs. aBrtindale, Mrs. Purry, Mrs. Erskine, and Mrs. J. Northey were the ladies in charge.

The most popular booth with the children was the dainty little nook in charge of Mrs. A. Darling and Mrs. J. H. Payne, which was trimmed with spring-like green and yellow, and stocked with every variety of home-made candy known to the local cooks. The sweet attractiveness of this booth never waned all afternoon.

The home cooking and domestic science table, with its pretty green and white arch, was the Mecca of most of the ladies, and many toothsome dainties changed hands, cakes, pies, tasty little tartlets, etc., vanished from the table, and were carried off by eager purchasers Mrs. J. Charlton and Mrs. W. Northey were the ladies in charge.

A scarlet and white stall contained the dolls and dolls' clothes and the wool articles. The dolls' section vied with the candy table as the most attractive to the "little women," who have their anxieties as to how their family of dolls can be kept clothed. Mrs. R. Simpson, Mrs. J. Blewett, Mrs. A. Jory, and Mrs. Scriver spent a busy afternoon in this popular booth.

The fancy work and white wear stall was a popular resort, especially with the ladies, and presented a Christmasy appearance. With its poinsettia decorations, the colour scheme as scarlet and white, and it was a difficult matter to judge whether the dainty articles for sale were prettier than the decorations or vice versa. Mrs. McMillan was the convenor of this committee, and was assisted by Mrs. G. H. Soence, Mrs. T. H .Sherin, Mrs. W. W. Leonard, Miss Milburn, and Mrs. A. Northey.

The violet and white bower where the handkerchiefs were displayed was very dainty, and the handkerchiefs, which retain their old-time popularity as Christmas gifts, were readily sold by Mrs. A. D. Payne, and Mrs. McConkey.

The Tea Room.

The tea room was very pretty, and was a railed space in the centre of the hall, with an entrance which was a veritable bower of Christmas trees, and led into a most attractive tea-room with daintily set tables and with abundance of thin bread and butter and delicious cake to be eaten by the visitors. A feature of the tea room was the realistic fireplace, which occupied one end, with two comfy wicker chairs set invitingly in front of it. Streamers of rose pink added a further touch to the charming scene. Mrs. Charles Grylls was the convenor of this committee, and was assisted by a capable corps of assistants. Mrs. W. Madill filled the position of cashier, while Mrs. Grylls and Mrs. Nathan Payne poured tea. The tea room assistants were Mesdames Percy Spence, H. Dunford, H. Wagar, F. H. Richardson, John Hendren, and Gordon Northey.

Mrs. R. Bullock, Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. Darling, and Mrs. R. Little also assisted on the tea committee.

The sum of $177.00 was realised, which was very gratifying to the ladies, who have devoted months of time towards making the bazaar a success. Those who attended can heartily endorse its success from every point of view.

G.W.V.A. Meeting.

The annual meeting of the G.W.V.A. was held in the club room on Tuesday evening and these officers were elected for the coming year:

HER CHILDREN HAD WHOOPING COUGH

This is one of the most dangerous diseases of children. It starts with fever and cough. The cough is at first short and sharp, but gradually increases in severity and occurs in sudden spasms, vomiting follows, and sometimes there is nose bleed; the child turns livid in the face, the eyes appear as if they would burst from their sockets, and suffocation seems eminent till relief is brought on by the "whoop."

Dr Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will clear the bronchial tubes of the collected mucous and phelgm and in this way ease the racking cough, and in a short time make is disappear.

Mrs. L. Ambrose, Sarnia, Ont., writes:—"My little ones were both sick with whooping cough. I read where Dr. Wood 's Norway Pine Syrup was good, and I only used two bottles and they were better. I had chronic bronchitis for three years and tried everything until, finally, I got 'Dr Wood's'. I would not be without this remedy."

FIRE ATTACKED A CANDY WAREHOUSE

Threatened the Lives of Residents in Upstairs Apartment—Big Damage to Stevens Warehouse.

Fire which started about 8 o'clock last night in the rear of the Stevens and Co. confectionery warehouse at the corner of George and Dalhousie Streets, caused damage to the building amounting to about $1,000 and as yet unestimated damage to the stock. The lives of Thomas Miller, his wife and three children, who live in an apartment over the warehouse, were menaced, but they made their escape and took refuge in the C.P.R. gatehouse nearby.

The fire was first noticed by Tom Miller, who is employed by the Machine Telephone Co., when flame and smoke broke into his apartment. He raised the alarm and succeeded in getting his family from the threatened building. On the arrival of the fire department the door was opened by Leslie Stevens, and Chief Gimblett was met by a sheet of flame. The work of the firemen was rendered difficult by the thick smoke, and the centre part of the warehouse was completely gutted.

The blaze spread upstairs through two partitions, and it was necessary to tear down the walls to reach the flames.

Mr. Stevens had left the building shortly before the alarm was given, and returned immediately.

A CALIFORNIAN LIKES CLIMATE

Former Campbellford Man Writes Home—Fire on Ranney Street

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 17.—J. I. Adams has received a letter from B. I. Gibson, who was in business here for a number of years, but who sold out, and, accompanied by his wife and son, left a few months ago to settle on an orange plantation at Highland, Cal. Mr. Gibson writes that the weather there is delightful, that the thermometer stands at from 80 to 85 degrees every day at noon, but that the nights are comfortably cool. The trees on his plantation are loaded with oranges and other semi-tropical fruit, and the people are prosperous. The population of Los Angeles, not far from Mr. Gibson's home, is increasing at the rate of 4,000 a day owing to the influx of tourists from the north.

George, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gibson, who was formerly a dentist in Picton, has passed the required examination and has been licensed to practice his profession in California.

Fire on Ranney Street.

The fire brigade was called at 6 o'clock Saturday evening to a house on Ranney Street, owned by Herb. Leonard, and occupied by G. Nicol, manager of the Bank of Montreal. The woodwork of the house had caught from the wire of an electric toaster, and the firemen arrived just in time to prevent a serious fire. Fire Chief Davidson estimates the damage at $50.

Farm Buildings Burned.

There was a serious fire near Wellman's Corners Friday night, when the residence, large barn and pigpen belonging to S. Dracup were totally destroyed. All the family, with the exception of Mrs. Dracup, were absent at the time. The fire started in the house from some unknown cause and soon spread to the outbuildings. The neighbors who gathered from all sides worked heroically to save the furniture and the contents of the barn, but the loss was almost total. Mr. Dracup owns a fine herd of thoroughbreds.

CARELESS PEOPLE HAVE ACCIDENTS.

A Woman Reaching For Her Hair, Puts Curling Tongs in Her Eye — Blindness Follows.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Carelessly reaching for her hair with a hot curling iron, a woman accidentally sticks the iron into her eye. It blinds her. Queer accident? It has happened to five women in America in the last few months.

Another odd case: A Swiss cheese (its holes filled with accumulated gases) exploded when it was cut open at a Long Island Fair. A spectator had an eye severely injured by one of the flying fragments.

Then there's the case of the baby who playfully gouged a man's eye with its thumb. Another man's eye was badly cut by the sharp kicking leg of a stray grasshopper.

These strange incidents, reported by the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness, are reminders of the uncertainty of life. Fortunately, the masked dangers are few and far between. Nevertheless, the improbable occasionally happens.

It is comparatively easy to dodge the common dangers of life. All that's needed is personal caution, along with a few of the safety devices with which man tries to make this a fool-proof world.

There is cause for surprise when a Swiss cheese exploded, but not when a train strikes an auto. The train rarely leaves the track to hit any one.

Avery Hopwood, the playwright, once took a steamer trip up a Chinese river. His cabin was shared by a fussy young Englishman who was constantly spraying, fumigating and disinfecting — using every known precaution to dodge Chinese plagues.

Despite all this, the Englishman contracted smallpox, while the less careful passengers escaped. How do you explain? Fate?

REV. G. I. CAMPBELL ON PERSONAL WORK

Gave Address in Dunsford Methodist Church — Survey of Community.

DUNSFORD, December 15. — On Friday afternoon, Rev. G. I. Campbell of Ottawa, representing the Social Service Society, gave a wonderful address on Personal Work, or "Win one campaign."

Mr. Campbell very broadly expressed how the church work could make a survey of the whole community.

Rev. Mr. Hie of Bobcaygeon also spoke on the same line, specializing on personal work.

From seven to eight o'clock a meeting of the officials and boards of the church adopted the Survey proposal of Mr. Campbell. After the close of this meeting Rev. G. I. Campbell gave a lecture illustrated by lantern slides, aided by Rev Mr. Hie, which was very much enjoyed by all. A hearty vote of thanks was moved by Mr. H. Elliott and seconded by Mr. Robert Brien to Mr. Campbell for his instructive addresses both afternoon and evening.

Rev. Mr. Trumpour, pastor of the church, acted as chairman.

The young people of St. John's English church are busy preparing for a play to be given in the near future; also the Methodist church is preparing for a Christmas concert.

Miss G. Richardson is training her pupils for the Christmas tree to be given in the school on Friday next.

ed police to find Brown. Ryan says he is 26 years old and that he grew up around Detroit. He told police of escape from Penitentiary and of going into United States with three of convicts. "But we went back to Canada for a week," he said. "That was when they say we held up bank in Toronto, I am not saying whether we did or not. We were in Twin Cities off and on, making trips east, but did not turn trick until about six weeks ago, when we stuck up bank in St. Paul. We got five thous and dollars out of that job, but most of it is gone now. After stick up we came to Minneapolis and then went to Boston, Philadelphia and some other cities. Brown had met Adams girl before tha. I met the girl the same night, but after we got to our room I told Brown to lay off. I warned him that a woman would get him into trouble.

We came back here a few days ago, planning to pull another job. I knew Brown had telephoned the girl but thought he would have sense enough to keep away.

Just as I thought, though, he went to see her, after I was caught, instead of getting away. It didn't surprise me when I heard they had him but I was sorry to hear he was dead. I would have gone that way, if it would have saved his life."

When Ryan say Brown's body he gazed at his friend's features for a full minute and tears welled into his eyes.

"That is tough isn't it."

"I wish I was with him," he said.

—don't rack your brain
they'll all like EVERSHARP and WAHL PEN

How many Christmas presents are you going to give? Check over the names. Do you know that you can give every one of them Eversharp or Wahl Pen, or both, and stay well within your allowance?

Eversharp and Wahl Pen simplify your Christmas shopping. They make a delightful gift. For who wouldn't be proud to own the world's favorite pen and pencil? And who wouldn't be proud to give a gift of such exquisite beauty?

Remember, no other pencil can be like Eversharp. Its features can't be copied. The rifled tip that grips the lead and prevents it from wobbling is exclusively Eversharp's. Ask to be shown the automatic index. Look for the eraser under the cap — and the supply of extra leads.

The all-metal Wahl Pen is another great writing achievement. Here is a pen that can never split. It is made in durable gold and silver. It is beautiful. It is distinctive. It will last a lifetime. And it holds more ink.

Give Eversharp, Wahl Pen or both in the velvet-lined gift box. Eversharp, $1 to $50; Wahl Pen, $4 to $50. Look for the name on each.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1923.

SAVED THE SITUATION.

The members of the Manufacturers' Association and several other public-spirited citizens have for the time being at least saved Peterborough from being left without police protection.

Had it not been for the action of the manufacturers at Saturday's meeting there is little doubt that the police force would have quit their posts on Saturday night, and a serious situation would have been the result.

The association has merited the thanks of the community for stepping into the breach and for undertaking the responsibility.

The speedy cleaning up of the present unsatisfactory situation will be welcomed by the whole community.

There is general sympathy for the members of the police force, but sympathy is a poor substitute for wages at the Christmas season, and whatever the merits of the controversy between the Commission and the Council the majority of people feel that an injustice has been done to the police in compelling them to work for a month without pay immediately preceding Yuletide.

COMPULSORY VOTING.

The old argument as to the feasibility of a system of compulsory voting is being revived by a number of newspapers impressed by the general indifference of the ratepayers in their respective communities to municipal issues.

The report that France is reported to be considering legislation to compel its citizens, under a penalty of an additional tax, to vote is adding interest to the discussion.

It is just a question, however, whether anything would be gained by forcing a man to vote who has not enough interest in the campaign to exercise the franchise on his own responsibility.

A ballot in the hands of such a citizen would be of little value.

Perhaps a better system would be a process of elimination that would strike off the voters' lists those who fail for a couple of elections to take advantage of their franchise.

Such a plan would cut out the deadwood from the voters' lists, and it migat be the means of awakening a large proportion of lethargic ratepayers to a sense of their duty not only to the community in which they live but to themselves.

The man who fails to vote is perhaps cheating himself more than he is anybody else -- and if that aspect of the situation could be driven home there would be no need of any talk of compulsory voting.

KEEPING GOOD MEN OUT.

Nomination day is almost at hand, and the paucity of candidates definitely in the field at this stage of the campaign is such as to warrant serious thought on the part of the electorate generally.

The situation in this respect is even worse than usual so far as surface indications go, for few new names have been spoken of as possible aspirants for the Council or Board of Education.

There is a distinct call for service in both bodies, for the Board of Education has a school problem of considerable proportion to solve, and there is a number of items on the Council agenda for next year that will demand business ability and clear thinking if they are to be carried out successfully.

Peterborough has many citizens capable of good work in the civic government, but many of them hold back from municipal politics because of the general indifference toward civic issues and the feeling that they may be passed over in favour of the able bluffer and the good "jollier" among the candidates.

The knowledge that hundreds of citizens who might be expected to take a live interest in the selection of the civic governing bodies refuse to go near the polls on election day, is keeping men out of the campaign whose names should be on the ballot paper.

It is an unfortunate condition of affairs—but it exists—and the Examiner is unable to suggest anything that might be done about it.

The need of good men is so apparent that no emphasis of that phase of the situation is required—and yet the fact remains that good men hesitate in the face of the stolid indifference of their fellow-citizens.

PLANTING NEW FOREST AREAS.

Owing to the marked menace of fire to the forests of this Province, the sensible policy has been announced by the Government of taking still more active measures in the matter of planting trees, says the Montreal Star. Some timely information is to hand regarding the steps already taken in this connection. The fact is pointed to that as far back as 1908 the Minister of Lands and Forests established a nursery at Berthierville, and two hundred thousand plants, comprising Scotch pine, Norway spruce and European larch, formed the bulk.

Two years later large numbers of these seedlings were utilized in starting a nursery in a sandy section near Lachute, and excellent results have been achieved —great numbers of trees are now to be seen on long stretches that were considered to be about worthless. In various other parts of the Province similar nurseries are today in evidence. Millions of plants are now to be seen in these breeding places. The ambition of the Forestry Department is to produce from fifteen to twenty million plants annually. It is to be sincerely hoped that this desire will be realized.

Owing to destructive forest fires and the butchery of trees by lumbermen and others, there is a very crying need, indeed, for both forest preservation and the planting of new forest areas. With the passing of years, the tremendous value of our forest areas is becoming more and more apparent. In European countries forest culture has long been practised, with resultant streams of wealth to the people.

The idea of having still larger forest areas patrolled by airmen is a good one and should be acted upon without delay. All over Canada unnumbered miles of fire-scorched trees are to be seen, their blackened forms bearing mute and pitiable testimony to the tremendous cost of carelessness, and the lack of still more efficient forest protection.

RIVERSIDE PARK.

The question of the proper policy for the City Council to pursue in connection with Riverside Park occupied a considerable portion of the time devoted to the discussion of civic issues at the meeting in the G.W.V.A. Hall on Friday evening.

The Council was criticized for leasing the grounds during the past season to the Peterborough Baseball Association, although it was not shown that other sporting organizations had not received equally as good, if not better, treatment from that association as when the park was in private or other hands.

The argument was advanced that the more young men that could be encouraged to take an active part in athletic games rather than watch them from the grandstand the better it would be for Peterborough, and that fact cannot be successfully disputed.

But it is by no means clear that this condition would be arrived at even if Riverside Park was offered free of charge for the use of all the city's sporting organizations.

It costs money nowadays to participate in athletic games, particularly in competitive leagues—and if the sinews of war are not forthcoming in the way of gate receipts the career of the majority of sporting organizations is short-lived.

People cannot be driven to patronize games in which they are not interested, and any attempt to force them into doing so is foredoomed to failure.

The simple fact is, that senior baseball as represented here by the Central Ontario League is by far the most popular outdoor sport.

Between 2,000 and 2,500 people look forward to seeing a senior baseball games every week, and they are a factor in the situation that cannot be overlooked in discussing the disposition of Riverside Park.

As citizens of Peterborough they want baseball played in the park across the river, and they have a right to feel that their side of the case shall be considered.

In other centres in the district the claims of senior baseball are not disputed.

Grounds are provided at a much smaller charge than the local club is called upon to pay, and the popularity of the game as a community affair is recognized.

ADVERTISING CANADA.

Major W. J. Baxter, an advertising man of London, Ont., aroused the Montreal Publicity Association to a high pitch of enthusiasm last week with an address entitled "Merchandising Canada." The vision and penetration of the speaker on the subject of "selling" Canada to the world so impressed the association that it resolved to present a copy of his address to Premier King. After describing the untouched wealth, the immense potentialities of the Dominion, he asked if it were possible to bring about a speedy development of our resources by remaining silent about them. He instanced Sir Clifford Sifton's bold advertising policy in the days of Laurier, when he bought advertising in the United States, Britain and else here, and opened service stations to serve the people who were attracted by his advertising. "Sifton sold Canada," said Major Baxter. "He advertised Canada. He marketed Canada. The result was two million settlers in five years. He was bold in his advertising. Let that sink in."

Major Baxter called attention to statistics showing that from January to June of this year 77,925 Canadian citizens entered the United States, while the immigration during that period was 53,592. The twelfth Canadian city is not in Canada, but in Michigan; there are 58,894 Canadians in Detroit.

He pointed out it was advertising that made the trade names of American goods household words in Canada, and said that the Americans were the greatest users of printer's ink in the world. "The story of the great Canadian and American manufacturing successes," he said, "is the story of men who were bold in their advertising. The story of a greater Canada can be told now to our everlasting advantage, and it can be told best by Canadians."

Major Baxter strikes the right note. Not only is Canada not advertised enough, but she is not advertised right. To judge by the Canadian Government's advertisements in English periodicals, while they would not disgrace a second-rate merchandising store in a small town, they utterly fail to convey any real conception of what Canada is. Psychology does not enter into them. They draw no vivid picture of Canadian life. No appeal is made to many of the motives that arouse action. They ask for farm help and domestic servants in such terms that, too often, only the adventuring or despairing are attracted. A picture of Canada should emphasize in an attractive manner good and plentiful food, the telephone, the automobile, radio, future independence, success. Capital should be attracted by determined, bold, skilful propaganda. The Government should call into consultation the best brains of the advertising world of Canada, men who have studied the whole subject from the viewpoint of modern psychology as applied to selling; it should be prepared to spend more money on advertising. A million dollars invested in wise up-to-date advertising would yield interest at a high compound rate.—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

You can at least shop early this week—for your own benefit and that of the staffs of the stores.

URGES ELECTION ON DEFEATED POLICY.

Marquis of Hartington Contesting West Derbyshire on Baldwin Platform.

LONDON, Dec. 17.— (Canadian Press Cable.) — The Marquis of Hartington will probably have a stiff fight to keep West Derbyshire for the Conservative party. This is the only eelction still undecided, postponement of the election having arisen owing to the death of the Liberal candidate and retiring member C. F. White just before the general election. Despite the country having decided against Baldwin's policy the Marquis of Huntington still appeals to the electorate on the Premier's protection proposals which is regarded as a rather treacherous foothold. He draws some support, however, through the respect in which the house of Cavendish is held in Derbyshire.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15. — Wheat gained a little in value to-day owing somewhat to bullish views taken of Canadian crop estimates of 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 bushels less than the Canadian Government's latest figures. The market closed firm, 1-8 and 1-4c. to 3-8c. net higher, with May $1.08 1-2 to $1.08 5-8. Corn finished at 1-4c. off to 1-4c. and 3-8c. up. Oats unchanged to 1-8c. lower, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 10c.

According to a revised report issued by the North-western Grain Dealers 'Association, the 1923 yield of wheat in the three prairie provinces of Canada has been over-estimated by the Canadian Government and under-estimated by the Grain Dealers' Association. The fact, however, that the previous estimate from the Grain Dealers was raised by them to-day 34,000,000 bushels, attracted hardly any notice, whereas the inference that the Canadian Government total should be reduced was given considerable attention. Furthermore ,bulls were apparently confident that domestic demand would in time prove sufficient to diminish greatly the stock of wheat in the United States and that likelihood of winter crop damage and of acreage reduction would have important influence on the market.

Manitoba Preparing Grain Marketing Act.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 17.—(Canodian Press)—A grain marketing agency, similar to the Alberta system now in operation, probably will be introduced at the next session of the Provincial Legislature, according to reports in government quarters Saturday. A recent caucus of government supporters is said to have approved of a plan which eliminates the compulsory feature of the Wheat Board Act defeated at the last session. Instead of being introduced by a member of the Cabinet, it is believed the bill for a voluntary marketing organisation will be sponsored by a private member.

TRENT RIVER

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 15.—The many friends here of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Hore of Campbellford deeply sympathize with them in the sad and sudden death of their son, William, who was well known in this locality. Mr. and Mrs. H. Pollock and Mr. Sam Ellis attended the funeral at Campbellford yesterday.

The temperature has lowered considerable the past couple of days. The roads are frozen hard and ice formed on the smaller ponds.

Mr .H. J. Scott, Director of the Canadian Explosives Ltd. of Victoria, B.C. left for home Saturday after visiting his aunt, Mrs. C. French.

WANT BEER IN HOTELS.

EDMONTON, Alta., Dec. 17.—(Conadian Press)—The Government was urged by a delegation representing the wohelsale merchants of the Province to permit the sale of beer in hotels when the new liquor law is brought into operation. The merchants declared that the travelling public would get better service in the hostelries if their request was adopted. The commercial travellers of Alberta will make a similar recommendation on Monday.

BUSY SUNDAY FOR PRINCE OF WALES

Participated in Anniversary Festivities of the Soldiers' Organization at Talbot House.

LONDON, December 17 (Canadian Press Cable). — The Prince of Wales took a leading part yesterday in the festivities of the eighth anniversary of Talbot House, otherwise known as "Toc H.", the well-known soldiers' organisation, and also attended a thanksgiving service at All Hallows Church in the city, where he unveiled a casket for his Lamp of Maintenance, and placed in repose the sword of Major Edmund Street, one of the founders of the organisation; which he brought back from Canada with him recently.

The assistants to the Prince were Sir James Barrie and Lieut.-General Sir Charles Harrington.

The following quotation from Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" appears on the pedestal of the rest for the sword:

"Then said Mr. Valiant, for Truth I give my sword to him that shall succeed me in my pilgrimage."

On placing the sword in its resting-place the Prince said:

"Let us faithfully remember our elder brother, and try, with God's help, to do our duty."

The Prince wore a "Toc H." tie, soft collar, and flannel trousers. He later attended another impressive ceremony at the Guildhall, at which he and the Duke of Devonshire spoke, the Prince referring to his recent experiences with the "Toc H." He recalled his welcome by Winnipeg two months ago. He was sorry not to have seen his friends in Montreal, but the fact that the second ada most certainly showed that the foundations of the organisation of the great Dominions had been well and truly laid.

MADE GIFT OF $500 TO I.O.D.E. MEMORIAL FUND

Engineer Caddy Presented $75, Bringing the Fund Total to Approximately $2,500 — Names of 600 New Electors, Mostly Women, Added to the Voters' List.

Appreciate Treasurer.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 17.—The Town Council winds up the year with a surplus of $1,000, the same amount which they had to the good when they closed the business of 1922. Of the $9,000 appropriated for roads and bridges, Councillor Cole, Chairman of that committee, is able to show a balance of about $700. Just as they did a year ago, the Council voted to the I.O.D.E. memorial fund the sum of $500.

This grant gave rise to considerable discussion at the statutory meeting, which was held Saturday, and at which every member was present, except Councillor Meiklejohn.

Deputy Reeve Wilkinson urged that the grant be made after Councillors Cole and Dorrie had made a motion to that effect. The erection of a suitable memorial, he said would be a slight recognition of the service rendered in the war by the young men of the town, and he was surprised that the matter had so long been delayed.

Some Opposition.

Reeve Anderson questioned the wisdom of tying up $50 of the town's money before it was definitely known when the memorial was to be built or what form it was to take. He argued that the Council should issue debentures for a memorial, instead of making a grant, when the proper time arrived. Councillor Allan also was in favor of economy. Councillor Carter declined to vote on the question until it was decided what form the memorial was to take. The motion favoring the grant was then carried by the following vote:

Yeas: Mayor Meyers, Deputy-Reeve Wilkinson, Councillors Cole and Dorie.

Nays: Reeve Anderson, Councillors Burke and Allan.

Engineer Caddy's Donation.

This was not the only contribution to the memorial fund. Engineer Caddy, who was allowed $75 for his expenses in connection with the suit brought against the town by Messrs. Mason & Hawkrigg last spring, over the Front street sewer, gave the full amount of his bill to the I.O.D.E. for their fund, which now amounts to something like $2500.

Increase in Salaries.

Town Treasurer Wood's salary was increased from $150 to $250 a year on motion of Councillor Allan and Deputy Reeve Wilkinson.

The vote was unanimous as all the members of the council agreed that Mr. Wood was rendering the town valuable service for inadequate compensation. In former years it was the custom to allow him a bonus for extra work but he has received nothing but the regular salary for the last three years. The construction of sewers and other public works add to his duties.

Assessor Mulhearn, who held that position in 1922, received a salary of $250. When he was reappointed at the beginning of the year nothing was said as to his pay. There had been considerable extra work in connection with the assessment this year. The assessed value of the town has been increased by about $25,000 and the names of 525 new women voters have been placed on the roll. In view of this extra work Mr. Mulhear was given an increase of $25.

The Coming Election.

There are 1600 residents entitled to vote at the coming municipal election, 600 more than were on the list a year ago. On account of this increase it was decided on motion of Councillor Cole to have two deputy returning officers and two poll clerks appointed for the two largest wards, one and three. The necessary bylaw was passed and the votes will be recorded at the following places:

Ward 1—At the town hall, C. A. Wilson and M. Mulhearn, deputies; V. Hay and E. Bayes, poll clerks.

Ward 2 — At the shop of George Moore, Fred J. Smith, deputy, C. Weston, poll clerk.

Ward 3 — At the armouries, John M. Arnold and Mrs. C. W. Turner, deputies; Mrs. Walter Lowe and John Fox, poll clerks.

Ward 4 — At Henson's shoe store, John Plumpton, deputy, H. Coxwell, poll clerk.

The deputy returning officer will receive $5 and the poll clerks $4 for their services; owners of the voting booths will be paid $4 for the use of their premises.

Minor Business.

Edward Nancarrow was granted another lease of the weigh scales at the depot at a rental of $192 a year to be paid in monthly instalments.

A rumour has been in circulation around town that the engineer is allowed 5 per cent on his own estimates for the construction of sewers. It was made clear at the meeting on Saturday that his pay for preparing the plans for sewers is not based on his figures but on the actual cost of the work when completed which is generally below the estimates.

Mrs. Margaret West wrote thanking the Council and the Water and Light Commission for floral tributes sent on the occasion of the death of her husband, E. C. West, who before his health failed him was a valued employee of the municipality.

A firm of brokers in Toronto offered to purchase the debenture issue of $28,800 for the new high school the price named being 99.12. This offer was not considered, and the debentures will be sold by tender. The first issue was disposed of at a handsome premium.

The nomination meeting will be held at the Royal Theatre on the evening of December 27, and the election on Monday of the following week.

The town has spent $81.70 for war stamps on its official documents during the past year. Town Treasurer Wood explained that every time a note is renewed a new set of stamps must be affixed. On one document alone the cost of the stamps was $17.

ASPIRES HIGHER.

JAMES DORRIE.

CAMPBELLFORD, December 17.—Councillor Dorrie authorizes the Examiner to state that he will be a candidate for the deputy-reeveship ot the coming election. Mr. Dorrie is ready to stand on his record for the past two years. He was always opposed to the building of a new High School without a mandate from the ratepapers, and with Reeve Anderson stood pat on this platform when the final vote was taken.

UNIONS PICK MEN FOR GOVERNMENT

Demand of Ramsay MacDonald Prospective Posts For Their Representatives

LONDON, Dec. 17. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—J. H. Thomas, the railway Labor leader, whose suggested appointment as foreign minister in the event of the Labor party coming into power, has been criticised in some quarters, when interviewed in regard to the suggestion that various unions were sending ultimatums to Ramsay MacDonald, the party leader demanding posts for their various representatives, said: "I suppose what some of those people think is that trade unions are taking the place of the usual wives and cliques when cabinets have been formed by other parties, but obviously those people either don't know the leader of the opposition or they are trying to humbug the public."

Mr. Thomas said he was well aware of many moves to try to prevent Labor forming a government. Such people and a limited section of the press failed to realize the unfair position that attitude placed His Majesty in.

"We have claimed that the King in all those matters would always act constitutionally and I have absolutely no hesitation in saying that would be the position."

Mr. Thomas concluded by declaring that a Labor government would not attempt to pull down and disrupt the Empire but would rather make it worthy of all its citizens.

Government Claims Sales Tax Priority

OTTAWA, Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press).—An action in which it will be contended that the Government has priority over other claimants in the matter of collecting the amount of sales tax has been taken in the county court by the King against the Capital Broom Co. and Mrs. Harry Young.

The action is to enforce the payment of $179 sales tax under the provisions of the Special War Revenue Act. The writ commencing the action also asks for an accounting and for the recovery from Mrs. Young of the proceeds of a sale, made on her behalf, on a distress warrant for rent.

CHILDREN GAVE LUNCH CONCERT

Bonarlaw Scholars Display Talent in Varied Programme — Proceeds For Winter Lunches.

MARMORA, Dec. 17.—On Friday evening the annual school concert at Bonarlaw was held in the schoolhouse. The room was packed with an interested audience. The proceeds are to provide the children with a hot lunch during the winter months. For this purpose, too, the children sold candy during intermissions.

The music provided by the children was unaccompanied but showed a great deal of training and natural talent. Even the smallest pupils did their part in a way which did credit to themselves and to their teacher.

Several drills were given by the pupils. One in particular, a wand drill was very pretty. The little girls were dressed in white with silver crowns and wands and the boys carried wands too.

Almost the best features of the evening, however, were the dialogues which were so cleverly given that it seemed as though it was a real occurrence in life.

The second dialogues took place in a boarding school for young ladies. Three young girls were disobeying rules by preparing to entertain some young men from a neighboring college. The old professor searches their rooms and finds their eatables and other preparations. By means of whistling he communicates with one of the boys who is below the window and who thinks it is the girls who are in the room.

That evening the girls pull in two of the boys up in a basket into the room. When the basket is raised the third time they discover that its occupant is not Jack, the third boy, but the Professor himself. They decide to leave him hanging there but when he promises not to tell of their escapade they bring him into the room. On the arrival of the third boy they begin to enjoy themselves. At first the professor does not join in the fun, but at last he begins to feel young himself.

Then the head mistress of the school enters and is going to report it all to the faculty. However, after some coaxing she joins them, "at the request of a member of the Faculty" and "to chaperone the girls." The maid and man of odd jobs who come to warn the young people are at first dumfounded at the sight of the Professor and Miss Judkins but they too are persuaded to join the feast and all have a merry evening of it.

The Marmora Masonic Quartette, Mr. Baker, Mr. Sanderson, Mr. Yates and Mr. Riggs provided a number of amusing selections during the evening.

The Rev. Mr. Fowler of Bonarlaw acted as chairman for the evening and helped the smaller pupils by keeping good order that they might be heard. Miss Gemmell, teacher of the pupils, is indeed to be congratulated on her training of the pupils and for the successful way in which the whole program was carried out.

On Monday Mr. Airhart visited his summer camp in Millbridge.

The barn of Mr. Alvin Dracup at Wellman's Corners was burned Friday night.

The Christmas reports of the Continuation school are out and the pupils seem to have made good progress under their teachers.

RESIGNATION OF HODGES ACCEPTED.

"A Queer Reward" Was Bitter Comment of British Miners' Secretary.

LONDON, Dec. 17. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—"A queer reward" remarked Frank Hodges yesterday, referring to the action of the miners' conference Saturday in accepting his resignation from the secretaryship of their organization after his successful electoral fight on the question of a re-organization of the mining industry. He added that he did not complain and that the action of the conference stood unless the workmen themselves reversed it.

Mr. Hodges pointed out that a card vote taken indicated that the districts voted in accordance with ancient mandates though in many cases contrary to personal judgment. He declared that some delegates were quite prepared to imperil the best interests of the members in order to gratify their spleen, ill-will and jealousy. Mr. Hodges pointed out that roughly 280,000,000 tons of coal will be produced this year, only 7,000,000 short of the highest record.

SEVERAL VESSELS LOAD WITH GRAIN.

May Make Last Trip Down the Lakes If the Weather Permits.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Dec. 16.—With weather conditions as favorable as they have been during the whole season, the movement of vessels is almost at a standstill and the Lake Shippers' Clearance Association is issuing no report and probably one more will conclude their roports for the season. Two United States' boats, the J. J. Sullivan and the Price McKinney arrived here at two o'clock yesterday afternoon and will load grain and may possibly clear. If there is any chance of difficulty in getting down the lakes, however, they will winter here.

The forty-seventh annual report of the Women's Missionary Society was presented by the secretary, Mrs. A. Porteous, showing a membership of 117, with an average attendance of 39. The Messenger has 130 subscribers. A bale of new material, valued at $73 and a quantity of second-hand clothing was sent to the File Hill school, and $7.00 in cash for shoes. The Home Helpers' secretary reported 18 home helpers and contribution of $10.87 to the general fund. The Strangers' secretary reported 20 visits made to strangers, also a number of visits made to sick people in the hospitals. The Literature secretary reported literature sent regularly to Hall's Bridge. The W.M.S. took for book study during the year a volume entitled "Building the Nation." The Thankoffering this year amounted to $1,014.50.

The report recorded with sorrow the deaths of several members, in Mrs. L. D. W. Magie, Miss Kerr, Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Eakins.

Dr. Waters' Address

An interesting and instructive address was given at the conclusion of the business session, by Dr. J. Waters, returned missionary from India, whose thoughtful discourse was listened to with profound attention by the members.

"You women hold the key to the Christian conquest of India," declared the speaker. "Reach the women of India with the Gospel and you have reached the whole community, for, notwithstanding their ignorance and the degraded position which they occupy, they exert a mighty influence over the men. The women are very religious and exceedingly conservative. They treasure all the traditions of Hinduism, are saturated with superstition, and live in constant fear of evil spirits and under the domination of the vile Hindu priests. Young men go to college and perhaps complete their education in England, going back home full of resolutions to reform the home and community, to do away with idol worship and give to their wives and sisters the freedom of the women of the West. But the mother says 'nay,' and may beat her breast with a brick and knock her head against a wall until the son promises to drop all his "foolish notions" and live as an orthodox Hindu, so he, who on the platform is a regular Demosthenes in advocating reform, is under his old mother's thumb in the home. Win the mother and you have won the family."

Woman's Status Changed

"Time was when the daughters of India walked with the poise of free women, when their voices were heard in the councils of the nation and they were revered as the mothers of men and regarded as their equals. Then came the blighting curse of the laws of Manu, degrading women, declaring them to be the embodiment of impurity; worse than falsehood itself; declaring that the woman's only hope of salvation was in the faithful worship of her husband, no matter how loathsome or wicked he might be. These laws of Manu were endorsed by the Brahmin priests and were accepted by the women as the will of God."

"Into her condition of degradation she has carried a trail of her ancient glory, and under cruelest injustice and inhuman treatment, she has developed many of the most beautiful womanly graces; of gentleness, patience, long-suffering and self-effacement, living not for herself but for her family. Add to these qualities the grace of God in the heart and a freedom from the fear of demons that haunt her life, and you will have a character as noble as that of any of her Aryan sisters of the West."

Prominent Indian Women

The speaker then went on to mention a number of very prominent Indian Christian women; Paudita Ramabai, known the world over for her wonderful rescue work of the widows and orphans of her native land; Cornelia Sarabji, a distinguished authoress and lawyer who devotes her time to looking after the interests of women who, because confined in zenanas, are unable to appear in court, and Miss Helen Lachmi Gorch, the writer of the beautiful devotional hymn: "In the Secret of His Presence How My Soul Delights to Hide."

A New Era

The speaker referred to the new era dawning for women of India. More girls' primary and high schools are springing up, the governments of the provinces of Bombay and Madras have made compulsory the education of boys and have offered to meet the expense of compulsory education of girls in any municipality that wishes to enforce the law. The Madras Women's College receives support from Canada and is doing magnificent work in turning out strong Christian women capable of leadership. The Government is ready to give a scholarship to any worthy Indian girl desiring a higher education, provided she will agree to serve in a Government school on a good salary for five years after graduating.

"Men are becoming ashamed of the treatment accorded women and are very vigorously advocating reforms and in a recent Hindu conference resolutions were passed declaring that women must be educated, and in order to make this possible, the pardah system (confinement in zenanas) must be abolished; widows must be allowed to re-marry; the legal age for marriage must be raised to sixteen years; caste must be abolished, and the lower "untouchable" castes must be raised in status and allowed to worship in temples and drink out of public wells.

"Many women are coming out of pardah and appearing on public platforms, where they appeal with passionate patriotism for the display of greater self-sacrifice in pushing for home rule for their beloved Motherland. At the recent Delhi Congress no speaker received a more enthusiastic ovation than Mrs. Naidu, when she addressed the meetiug."

To illustrate how fast pardah is disappearing, the speaker told of a woman, the wife of the prime minister of Rutland state, who twenty years ago, had a canopy stretched from the carriage to the door of the bungalow when she came to visit Mrs. Waters; later she came in a closed carriage but simply covered her face when going from the carriage to the bungalow. In 1917, she would be a thing of the past within 15 years, and in 1922, she asked to see Dr. Waters and conversed with him with her face uncovered.

Matrimonial Advertisements

The latest number of "The Indian Social Reformer," a non-Christian paper, was shown, in which seven high caste widowers advertised for widows with a view to matrimony. Such a thing was unheard of a few years ago and the first man who was bold enough to marry a widow was so persecuted that he committed suicide.

The speaker then referred to the political situation of today and quoted a non-Christian journalist as saying that Mr. Ghandi had "turned India's face to Christ upon the Cross," and that "the status and prestige of the Christian missionaries of India never stood higher than it does today," and that "they have greatly enhanced possibilities."

His Own Work

Dr. Waters then spoke of his own work in Rutlam Hospital, where no less than 62% of the patients are women and children, although it is called a men's hospital. He has occasionally to examine a pardah woman through a small hole in a curtain just big enough to admit his hands, or see a patient's tongue protruding through a hole in a newspaper. The growing intelligence and confidence of the people was illustrated by the fact that the doctor is now allowed to treat an increasing number of typhoid cases, although there is a prejudice against giving the patient anything except water in which pearls have been soaked and keeping him on a starvation diet. Old women in the city go around with a large magnifying glass, diagnosing these cases by the 'pearl spots' on the chest.

After mentioning a number of interesting incidents in connection with his medical practice, the speaker concluded with an appeal for the hearty co-operation of the women in swelling the general mission funds of the church and continuing their efforts to adequately sustain and develop their own special work.

GEESE DIG UP VIKING GOLD.

Boy Tending Flock Finds Magnificent Brooch in Mud.

BERGEN, Norway, December 17. —An interesting archeological find has just been made in the province of Rogaland, Norway A small boy minding a flock of geese had driven them to the edge of a small pond, where they splashed and rooted about. When the boy came to drive them home he found a magnificent brooch of gold, dating from the Viking era, which the geese had scratched up from the mud.

The relic was taken to the Stavanger Museum, the curator of which asserts that the brooch is one of the finest examples of Viking goldsmiths' art yet discovered.

Fried Apples Delmonico

(Monsieur Filippini, one-time chef of Delmonico's, wrote a cook book for average home use. In his cook book he gives the following recipe for fried apples)

Peel and core three large, good sound apples. Slice them into slices half an inch thick. Dip them in cold milk, then roll them in flour. Melt one-half ounce Crisco in a frying pan. Place the apples in the pan and fry on a brisk fire until a nice golden color on both sides, or two minutes for each side. Remove them with a skimmer and dress on a hot dish with a folded napkin. Sprinkle with a little powdered sugar and serve. (This recipe printed by courtesy of the International Cook Book.)

Both the Ecuadorian Red Cross and the Colombian Red Cross are sending relief units to the devastated area.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

MR. MULLIGAN'S LETTER.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: Mr. Mulligan, the celebrated singer and evangelist, is indignant over the downward tendency of our town and over the poor quality of our representatives. Now, Mr. M. ought to run himself. But what can we expect of this ere town when the free people in it are all prohibited, and not allowed to think for themselves. I would expect dear Mr. M. and his friends would know more than us, but if he had had the creating of the world would he have created tobacco and alcohol? He would not. Now we are not to blame for creating sin and alcohol and tobacco and if this whole world is wrong it is God's fault, and not the council's, and I think the council should get credit for it. A man who would have created this whole world better than God ought to be able to run this ere town, and I know a whole lot of good pious women who can give God points and beat Him hollow on running anything but the own families. As a manager of a railway said once it is always the people who can't run nothin' themselves that can tell you how to run the railway—and that's the trouble.

We who know it all and are appointed over the whole darn world to run it, and everybody in it, can't run nothin', but talk, and giving us the ballot was only making a fool of votin' altogether. BANSHEE

REV. N. ROCHE AT LOCAL CATHEDRAL

"The Infallible Head of the Catholic Church"

Rev. N. Roche, C.S.B. of St. Michael's College, Toronto, was the special speaker at St. Peter's Cathedral last evening, on the subject: "The Infallibl, Head of the Catholic Church.' Rev. Father Roche's sermon was a concise, analytical exposition of the arguments advanced by the Catholic church in support of its claim that infallibility in matters of religion is vested in its Supreme Pontiff.

Taking as his text the words: "For this was I born, for this came I into the world, that I might give testimony to the truth," Father Roche spoke of the diversity of churches and doctrines in the modern world, quoted the Literary Digest of recent issue as saying that "it is all foolish ness to think that in our country one form of religion would not satisfy the religious and spiritual needs of all people,' and went on to point out that in Apostolic times there was only one form of religion in the world, the religion of Christ, which was intended for Jew and Gentile alike.

Doctrinal Divergence

The speaker declared that it was not a difference in interpretation of the Ten Commandments that had brought so many churches into existence, but merely a difference in doctrine. "Now doctrine means to everyone truth, certain truths concerning God that have been delivered by Our Lord Jesus Christ to constitute the faith and the belief of mankind. Our doctrine was taught by Him, when He said: "I come to give you an example. I come to teach the truth." That was the sublime purpose of His coming to the earth Therefore truth must be of the utmost importance, and so men believe that truth is so necessary that they have been led to make many divisions in the church of God.

"If then, truth is so important, is it not reasonable to believe that when the Son of God came down from Heaven to give His apostles the truth, that He would take some means of guarding against error corrupting His truth? Jesus knew the erring mind of man and the changeable aspect, the vagaries to which the human mind is prone, and it is not reasonable to expect that He would leave the earth without having made some preparation for preserving the truth which He came to teach in its entirety, free from admixture of error, down to the end of time.

"When Calvin and Luther and Henry Eighth and John Knox sought to reform the church, they agreed only in one thing that the Apostolic church was wrong. But they could not agree in other things, and there was bitter contention among them. Now if the church of God had fallen into error, who had the right to reform it? When Christ instituted His church, he did not ask advice from any of His followers. He made it from His own design, and shall we say then, that man was capable of reforming a church which Christ had brought down as the Bride of Heaven, and in whose formation He consulted no man? He said to His church: "Teach all nations all truth whatsoever I have taught you"; and then He gave it a guarantee; "I will be with you all days, even unto the consummation of the world"; also, "I will send you the Holy Spirit, to teach you the truth." Has the word of God failed when He said; "I will send you the Holy Spirit?"

Peter's Commission

Three important passages in Scripture were quoted: At Phillipi, the Lord said to Peter: "Thou art Peter, a rock, and upon this rock I will build My Church," and the attribute of that church followed: "and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." The gates of hell had prevailed in the Garden of Eden, again after the prophecy of a Redeemer to come, and again with the ancient religion, but here was something against which they should not prevail. Then again Christ said to Peter: "Satan hath desired thee, that he might sift thee as wheat, but I have prayed for thee, that they faith fail not, and thou, being once converted, confirm they brethren." Again, to Peter: "Lovest thau Me," and Peter said: "Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee," and Christ answered: "Feed my lambs, feed my sheep." Peter was the one apostle with a special commission. He was to act as the foundation for Christ's church, against which hell should not prevail, Christ Himself had prayed for him, alone among His followers, that his faith should not fail, he was to confirm his brethren and he was to feed the sheep and the lambs of the flock. Therefore Peter was infallible, and not only Peter, but his successors.

"In an unbroken line for nearly two thousand years, over two hundred and sixty successors of Peter have held the same Divine prerogatives. Have they fed the lamsb and sheep on poisonous food? Have they led them into destroying pastures? No. Infallibly, unshakably, they have held to the truth, without hesitation or doubt. "I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not." Therefore we say that in the infallible church there is an infallible pope, who, in succession down through the ages, has handed down, without increase or decrease and will until the end of time, the doctrine that Christ preached in its fullness to His apostles and to the saints. That is what infallibility means, a system by which the word of Christ, as He delivered it, is handed down by the popes in an unbroken channel, for your sake and for mine. The popes could not promulgate false doctrine. For instance, they could not begin to teach that there are only two persons in the Trinity, because they must adhere to the truth as Christ taught it upon earth. The popes have come in turn from many nations of the earth, they have been of varying degrees in culture and civilization, but, during nearly two thousand years, not one has ever contradicted the truth of Christ's doctrine."

"BLACK OXEN"

by GERTRUDE ATHERTON

Published by arrangement with Associated First National Pictures, Inc. Watch for the screen version produced by Frank Lloyd with Corinne Griffith as Countess Zattiany.

(Copyright, 1923, by Gertrude Atherton.)

XXVI.

Madame Zattiany stood before the long old-fashioned pier glass in her bedroom, a large cheerful room recently done over in white chintz sprayed with violets. The bright winter sun streamed in on a scene of confusion. Gowns were thrown over every chair and hats covered the bed. They all had the air of being tossed aside impatiently, as indeed they had been, and the maid with a last comprehensive look at her mistress began to gather thm up and carry them to the large wardrobes in the dressing-room.

Mary regarded herself critically. She had wished (not without malice!) to emphasize her youthful appearance, but not at the expense of dignity, and she felt that she had achieved the subtle combination in the frock of soft black velvet with long, sweeping lines and of an excessive simplicity; and a black velvet hat of medium size with a drooping brim that almost covered one eye. The long white gloves disappeared into her sleeves somewhere above the elbow and she wore a single string of pearls. She looked very Parisian, very elegant, as Mrs. Oglethorpe would have expressed it, and very assured. In spite of the mocking gleam in the one visible eye her face was serene and proud.

She had felt some trepidation on Tuesday when she had sought out Mrs. Oglethorpe and made her explanations, but she felt none whatever at the prospect of meeting these other twelve old friends. Whether they approved or resented, were indulgent or elevated their respectable noses and intimated, "You are no longer one of us," was a matter of profound indifference to Mary Zattiant. She would have avoided them all if it had been possible, but since she had deliberately permitted her hand to be forced she would take the situation humorously and amuse herself with whatever drama it might afford.

Elinor Goodrich. Mabel Lawrence. Polly Vane. Isabel Ruyler. Ellen de Lacey. Louise Prevost. She had been so intimate with all of them, not only in the schoolroom but when they were all in Society together. Now only her somewhat cynical sense of anticipation mitigated utter boredom at the thought of meeting them again. Of the other six she had still vaguer memories, although she recalled having heard that the beauty of her own last season, Lily Armstrong, had married one of the Tracys. She also was to be at the luncheon.

What on earth was she to talk to them about at the table? She could hardly tell them the story they expected before the servants. That would be for the later hour in the drawing-room—or would it be in that absurd old room of Jane's upstairs?

She recalled Elinor Tracy (Goodrich) and her enthusiastic admiration, which she had accepted as a matter-of-course, and given little beyond amiable tolerance in return. As she had told Clavering, she was not a woman's woman. She hoped Nelly had outgrown "gush." For some ten years after her marriage she had met her from time to time abroad, but she had not seen her for so long that she doubted if she would recognize her if they passed on the street. The only one of her old friends for whom she retained either interest or affection was Jane Oglethorpe, who, ten years older than herself, with a commanding personality unfolding rapidly at the dawn of their intimacy, had attracted deeply but subtly her own untried force of character and ruthless will. Embarrassment over, she had enjoyed their long hour together, and was glad to renew their intimacy, to find that her old friend's warm affection had lost nothing with years. And she had found her more interesting than in her youth.

She sighed a little as she looked back on her long hours of almost unbroken solitude in this old house. She had been comparatively happy at first—a blessed interval of rest and peace in this marvellously wealthy and prosperous city where the poor were kept out of sight, at least, where all the men were whole and where one never saw a gaunt woman's appealing eyes, or emanciated ragged children. Those untroubled hours had fled for ever and astonishment, impotent fury, and dire mental conflict had followed, but nevertheless she had dreamed—dreamed—and been glad of her freedom from social and all other duties. Now, probably these women and many more would swarm here.

Her mouth twisted as her maid helped her into the soft gray coat trimmed with blue fox. Ordeal! That would come on Saturday night. No wonder she was merely amused and totally indifferent today!

When she arrived at the house in Gramercy Park, purposely late, to give her entrance the effect Mrs. Oglethorpe had commanded, she heard an excited buzz of voices in the drawing-room as she was being relieved of her wrap. As she entered it ceased abruptly and she heard several hardly perceptible gasps. But the pause, before they all crowded about her, was too brief to be noticeable, and they shook her hand heartily or kissed her warmly. If their eyes were perhaps too studiously expressionless, their words and manner might have been those of old friends welcoming back one who had been long absent and nothing more. Conflicting emotions, born of undying femininity, were not evident for the moment. Mrs. Goodrich cried out at once how wonderfully well she looked, Mrs. Lawrence asked if she had stopped in Paris for her clothes, and Mrs. Vane if she found New York much changed. Nothing could have gone off better.

Mrs. Oglethorpe, in old-pile black velvet as usual, with a front and high-boned collar of yellow rose-point lace, stood in the background watching the comedy with a frank sardonic grin. If her guests had been faithless to the traditions in which they had been bred, she would have felt angry and ashamed, but the automatic manner in which they rose to the occasion and took the blow standing (Mrs. Oglethorpe often indulged in the vernacular of her son, her Janet, and her Lee) made her rock with silent mirth. She knew exactly how they felt!

The' were a fine-looking set of women and handsomely dressed, but they indisputably belonged to the old regime, and even Mrs. Tracy, the youngest of them, had something of what Mary Zattiany called that built-up look. They were fashionable but not smart. They carried themselves with a certain conscious rigidity and aloofness which even their daughters had abandoned and was a source of disrespectful amusement to their iniquitous granddaughters. Although Mrs. Goodrich, Mrs. Tracy and Mrs. Lawrence were more up to date in their general appearance, wearing slightly larger hats and fewer feathers, with narrow dog collars instead of whaleboned net, they were as disdainful as the others of every art that aims to preserve something of the effect of youth; although they were spickingly groomed. They accepted life as it was, and they had accepted it as every successive stage, serene in the knowledge that in this as in other things they were above the necessity of compromise and subterfuge. They were the fixed quantities in a world of shifting values.

In age they ranged from fifty-six to sixty-two, with the exception of Mrs. Tracy, who was a mere fifty-two. A few were stout, the others bony and gaunt. Their hair was white or gray. Only Mrs. Tracy, with her fresh complexion and soft brown hair, her plump little figure encased in modern corsets, had got on the blind side of nature, as Mrs. Oglethorpe had told Mary. The others were frankly elderly women, but of great dignity and distinction, some charm, and considerable honesty and simplicity. And their loyalty never failed them.

A MODERN SANTA CLAUS

THE world is getting so big and there are so many little folks and big folks in it who look forward to a visit from Santa Claus, all on the same day, that the genial old gentleman is forced by the pressure of his duties to discard his reindeer and his sleigh on occasions and to travel on the fast passenger trains that are speeding people home for Christmas Day. Nothing but the very best will do Santa Claus, and that is why, as you see here, he has chosen as his steed one of the huge locomotives of the Canadian National Railways. These locomotives, known as the 6000 type, are the biggest passenger locomotives in Canada. Santa Claus posed for this picture when he was inspecting the engine so that all the boys and girls, and grown-ups too, could be sure that he would reach them on Christmas Eve.

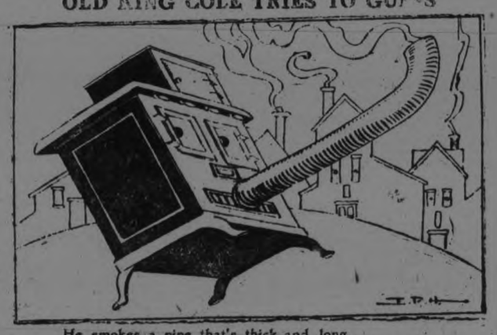
OLD KING COLE TRIES TO GUESS



He smokes a pipe that's thick and long.

"Make way for the Riddle Lady!" called Humpty Dumpty. "She's coming to ask another riddle."

Nancy and Nick ran to open the door of her coach, and out she stepped while all the Riddle Land people crowded round to hear. This was the riddle she asked:

"Who sits in a room
And never moves,
But hisses, roars and sputters,
He has four legs,
Yet not an arm,
And a dozen doors and shutters.

"He's black as a coal
And yet at times,
He turns a fiery red.
He eats great chunks
Of coal or wood.
He's certainly well fed.

"He's very smart
For he can cook
A meal to suit the king.
Can roast a duck,
Or bake a cake,
And never spoil a thing.

"He smokes a pkpe
That's thick and long,
And stretches to the wall,
But drops his ashes
In a pan,
And makes no dirt at all.

"If he's not fed
He catches cold
And has an awful chill.
Then matches are
His medicine,
And save a doctor bill.

"His habits are
As steady as
A sailor's beacon light;
Yet if you are
Not watching him
He'll go right out at night.

"He's loads of friends,
There's not a house,
From nobleman to peasant,
Where he's not welcome.
For, my dears.
He's useful, strong and pleasant."

"I'll bet you I know what it is," whispered Old King Cole to Nick. "I knew the answer the minute she said his pipe stretched to the wall. There is only one person who has a pipe that's longer than mine and that is—"

"I know what it is," shouted the Baker Man. "I knew it the minute you said that it could bake a cake. It's a—"

"It's a stove!" said Nancy, who had gotten tired of so much talking.

"Right!" cried the Riddle Lady. "And the prize today is a party. Sit down everybody. The stove has everything ready except the ice cream."

GOTHAM BUILDS 23RD SUBWAY

Hudson River Vehicular Tunnel, Costing $30,000,000, to Be Ready in 1926,

NEW YORK, Dec. 17. — Completion of the huge Hudson River vehicular tunnel, to connect the island of Manhattan with New Jersey, will add the twenty-third underground artery to the great network of subaqueous passageways that radiate from teeming New York and which are necessary to its swarming life as are the arteries in a man's body.

The underground tubes and tunnels, however, are only a part of the citys blood system, for in addition there are 15 bridges. These tunnels and bridges can not be equaled by any city in the world.

The bridges are of a total approximate length of 11 miles and the tunnels and tubes each average about three-fourths of a mile. Combined they carry 64 railroad, subway, elevated and surface car tracks, spreading in all directions from Manhattan. In addition there are roadways or vehicular traffic on virtually all the bridges.

Leads all Others

Leading all other underground passageways in size will be the new Hudson River vehicular tunnel, which is expected to be ready for use in 1926 at a cost of more than $30,000,000. Each of its twin tubes will measure 30 feet in diameter. It will be 9,250 feet long and more than 3,000 feet under the river. To carry off the poisonous exhaust gas from passenger cars and trucks a marvelous ventilating system is being installed.

Sixteen of the tubes under the East River carry subway trains of the rapid transit system. Without them the numberless workers now employed in Manhattan would have to look elsewhere for a living.

Thousands daily pass under the river for distances as great as a mile without once looking up from their papers or being impressed with the thought that they are actually speeding beneath a real river.

Queensboro the Longest

Of the bridges, the Queensboro bridge is the longest, with a total length of 7,449 feet. It is built on the cantilever principle, and its maximum span is 1,182 feet. The Williamsburg bridge comes next, with a length of 7,308 feet and a record maximum span of 1,600 feet. The Manhattan bridge is 6,855 feet long and the Brooklyn bridge, although more famous than the others, is only 6,016 feet long. The Manhattan bridge was the most expensive to build, costing $31,084,705. These four bridges cost a total of $97,959,133.

While these tunnels and bridges considered as a unit, are one of the wonders of the modern world, engineers say it will be necessary constantly to add to them if the city is to expand normally and achieve a natural growth. The taxpayers of New York no doubt often regret that their famous wonderland is entirely surrounded by water.

A COLLEGE WOMAN FINDS A NEW JOB TO AID HOUSEWIFE

You Can Never Tell Where a College Education Will Lead You.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—You can never tell where a college education will lead you.

Take Ethel Peyser, for instance. She devoted years of study to sociology, music, economics, biology and languages, collected an imposing assortment of diplomas and degrees, and everything pointed toward teaching as her life's work.

Instead, she became a home engineer. At least it's a more original sort of a job, and more interesting, she believes.

"My first job was on a woman's magazine," she relates. "It did not make many demands on my knowledge of languages, but it did require me to try out all sorts of household inventions from nutmeg graters to furnace drafts. It brought home to me pretty forcibly just how little the average woman knows about her home after all, and how she accepts without investigation the details that mean most in health and labor saving.

"Engineering, filtration, incineration, plumbing, ventilation—all are important factors in home making. Every valve, barometer and thermometer has a meaning all its own in the general scheme of the home.

"This is a side of home making that has nothing to do with what is commonly designated as the domestic instinct. It doesn't appeal to most women as much as interior decoration or embroidery, since it calls for a technical knowledge, but almost any woman can attain this if she will put her mind to it."

Because this phase of home making was so little explored by women, Miss Peyser delved into it. She has learned the mechanics of the home from attic to sub-basement.

Now she knows where the furnace ought to be and why, what you may expect from washing machines and mangles, that it pays to be on friendly terms with certain simple tools like saws files and pliers.

Today many actual fear of electric devcices and home mechanics take up with her their inventions. From her home in a New York hotel she directs the management of homes all over the country. She is consulted by architects, manufacturers of all the equipment that goes into homes, and by scores of inventors.

"I may be a pioneer in this sort of work," she concludes, "but others are sure to follow. And after all, I guess the best preparation there is for it is a good college education, which develops an instinct for investigation and a generous endowment of commonsense."

In the geological past there was once a sea shore where there are now mountains in eastern Kentucky.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

The care and precision with which a dinner table is set makes the correct and up-to-date hostess. No matter how elegant the linen, silver and china, careless or slovenly arrangement ruins the table.

Breakfast, as a family affair, is always a most informal meal. Even with house guests the meal is simple and the hour apt to be variable. But the same care should be in evidence as to the placing of silver and dishes as if the meal were of many courses and of great formality.

The linen may be doilies, a gay breakfast cloth spread over the bare table, runners and mats, or a large breakfast square used over the silencer.

The "set-up" usually consists of knife, fork, dessert spoon and butter spreader. If whole fruit is used a fruit knife should be placed at the extreme right. If half an orange or grapefruit is served the spoon is placed at the top of the plate. If soft-boiled eggs are served a teaspoon is placed at the right of the knife. If a knife is not needed it should not be placed on the table. Only the pieces of silver needed should be on the table.

Proper Positions

Forks are always placed with the tines upward, spoons with the bowl upward and knives with the cutting edge toward the plate. Forks are placed to the left and knives and spoons to the right of the plate. This silver is laid one inch from the edge of the table, each piece an equal distance from another

The butter spreader is placed across the upper right-hand side of the butter plate which is placed above the fork. This is the correct place for the bread and butter plate and butter spreader for any meal.

The order of service is as follows:

Fruit served on a small plate or the special dish for its service. This is placed on a larger plate. When the fruit is finished the spoon or knife should be placed across the fruit plate parallel with the edge of the table. The plate with the fruit is removed, leaving the large plate.

Service Plate

Next the cereal is served in cereal dishes. These are placed on the large plate. When the cereal is finished the spoon is left in the dish. If the next course is served at the table the large plate is removed with the cereal dish. If individual service is brought from the kitchen the large or "service" plate is left at each plate.

Finger bowls are often used after the fruit course at breakfast time. They may be placed on the table with the fruit if a maid is not in attendance. They should be put above the plate.

The water glass is placed above the knife and the napkin is laid beside the fork, an inch from the edge of the table. The corner should be at the lower right. Breakfast napkins are small, from 15 to 1 square and are folded oblong.

Good Start

If the coffee is served at the table the hostess puts the teaspoon on each saucer before it is passed.

The center piece may be a dish of fruit attractively arranged or a low bowl of flowers.

The early breakfast is perhaps the "sketchiest" meal of the day, for the average housekeeper usually has more duties than she has time for. But it's quite as expeditious to set a neat, precise table as a careless one, and the food tastes much better.

Finger bowls after fruit may seem unnecessary, but when you stop to think that they prevent stained napkins they are very much worthwhile.

FOLLOWING

"Wilt thou follow Me?"
The Saviour asked.
The road looked bright and fair.
And filled with youthful hope and zeal
I answered, "Anywhere."

"Wilt thou follow me?"
Again He asked.
The road looked dim ahead
But I gave one glance at His glowing face;
"To the end, Dear Lord," I said.

"Wilt thou follow on?"
I almost blanched,
For the road was rough and new,
But I felt the grip of His steady hand
"Yea, Lord, so I'm with you."

"Still followest thou?"
'Twas a tender tone.
And it thrilled my inmost heart.
I answered not, but He drew me close,
And I knew we would never part.

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

COLOR-BLINDNESS

Color-blindness is caused by disease of the optic enrve. In some cases it is the result of optic neuritis and partial atrophy from excessive use of alcohol or tobacco. When a patient is to be tested for color-blindness after a severe illness, in which the eyes and optic nerve are involved, great care must be taken that the conditions are perfectly normal before any such test is made.

Otherwise, total color-blindness may result instead of partial, by strain and excitement.

This rather peculiar affliction is also the result of injury through blows on the head, which may have caused you to see stars and rendered the nerve centers (optic nerve) incapable of conveying the true light or color sensation to the brain. Sometimes the brain cells are so injured by contact that ever so slight a jar renders color discrimination a difficult process.

Total color-blindness is rare. When this condition actually prevails, the entire solar spectrum seems to appear as a neutral gray or grayish tint. The person so afflicted loses the value of objects in size as well as color to a great extent.

Partial color-blindness is perceived in one-half of the field of vision only. The other half is normal in its distinction and color perception. Again, one may be able to distinguish colors near the eye, but at a gretaer distance he is color-blind, especially for green and red.

Color-blindness may be prevented to a certain extent. In diseases of children, in which the eyes suffer attacks and the optic nerve is involved, care of the eyes by binding to shut out light, or not using for a certain time, will often help. The health examination once or twice a year by your physician will detect the slightest color-blindness.

When the first symptoms show in later life, carefully avoid all habits, as drink, smoking or excessive reading, which may cause this affliction to increase.

Floating Specks Before The Eyes Means Liver Trouble

When specks start to float before the eyes, when everything seems to turn black for a few seconds and you feel as if you were going to faint, you can rest assured that your liver is not working properly.

The essential thing to do in all cases where the liver is slow, lazy or torpid, is to stir it up by the use of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and clear away the accumulated mass of waste and poisonous matter from the system.

Mr. Chas. Ayland, Frankville, Ont., writes:—"I used to be awfully bothered with floating specks before my eyes, headaches and sickness to my stomach. I took just half a vial of your Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and ever since I have felt as well as I ever did. Now I always keep them on hand."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

RECITAL AT CONSERVATORY

There was an exceptionally good attendance on Saturday afternoon in the studio at the Conservatory of Music for the programe given under the auspices of the Women's Art Association, by Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, assisted by Messrs. M. H. Park, R. A. Brown and Mrs. Harold W. Young, in a recital of British folk music. The afternoon's music, and the paper on "British Folk Song, written by Mrs. John Forbes Allan, read by Mrs. Park, was very much enjoyed. It provided one of the most entertaining of the series of afternoons given this season by the Womens Art Association, and the charming songs given by the trio of talented singers, with proficient accompaniment by Mrs. Young, were thoroughly appreciated and loudly applauded.

Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park's songs included an Irish group; "The Little Red Lark" and "Danny Boy" an English group; "Early one Morning" and "The Bailiff's Daughter of Islington," and a Scotch group; "Bonnie Sweet Bessie," "Leezie Lindsay," "Loch Lomond," and "The March of the Cameron Men."

Mr. M. H. Park sang "The Harp That Once Thro' Tara's Halls," "Oft in the Stilly Night," and "The Minstrel Boy," and Mr. R. A. Brown gave two seventeenth century numbers; "The Vicar of Bray" and "Down Among the Dead Men," and "John Peel," an old hunting song.

After the programme, tea was served from a table prettily arranged with red carnations and narcissus Tea hostesses were Mrs. J. A. Aylmer and Mrs. C. S. Cameron, assistants the Misses E. Borbridge, M. Masson, G. Glover.

Exhibit of carvings

An interesting exhibition on view during the afternoon was the work in wood carving of Mr. Charles Sorby of Gores Landing Mr. Sorby who is eighty-six years of age, showed some very dainty and pretty things in carefully carved woods, in ebony, with ivory embellishment, and in the natural brown woods of Canada. His collection included many examples of intricate and careful workmanship, in finely carved candlesticks, jewel cases and fancy boxes, picture frames and napkin rings.

British Folk Song

The paper on "British Folk Song," written by Mrs. John Forbes Allan, formerly of Peterboro, now of St. Catharines, was read by her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, and proved to be an extremely interesting and instructive discourse on the music of the people, with reference particularly to the folk song of the British Isles.

Mrs. Allan referred to the re-discovery in modern times of ancient folk-song lore, and its use as a basis for large symphonic works by British and Russian composers. "It is never written down, and yet it is one of the most permanent things on earth. Within an hour or two's journey from London in Sussex, Yorkshire, Cornwall and Devon you can find men of the country-side who sing narrative and other poems just as their forefathers sang them nearly a thousand years ago. It is purely melodic, harmonic only by accident."

"Stamford Forsyth says: "Under the myriad tiny acts of brain and muscle that are summed up in a single folk-song there is the real something, an impulse which comes from the soil itself."

"Its vitality lies in the fact that it is the sub-conscious attempt of the people to achieve exactly the same ends as those achieved consciously by the artist."

Examples of characteristic song were shown in the crisp, clear cut music, with its lack of sensuousness, of Norway, a land of simple, thrifty and vigorous people, and in the yearning, bitterness and sorrow typical of the life of the Russian peasant, introduced into the folk songs of that country, and influencing their composers, as exemplified in the works of Liszt for the Hungarians, Dvorak for Bohemia, Chopin for Poland, and Tschaikowsky and Rimsky- Korsakoff for Russia, all of whom introduced the folk song of their various countries into their compositions, thence into the main European stream, influencing the music of all nations."

In Germany, many gems were added to folk-song literature without much claim to originality of form or harmonic effect; in Italy literature without much claim to originality of form or harmonic effect; in Italy, it never held as much prominence as in other countries, the folk music of which was ranked by the Italians as higher than their own, as evidenced by their choice of French or Belginan songs for their Motets and Masses in preference to their own.

In France, the Troubadours of the south and the Trouveres of the north sang melodies which formed the basis of the country's folk songs; Burgundy has the novel combination of noels and drinking songs, while begging sons are common in Normandy. There is grave beauty and tenderness in the songs of Brittany, and beauty in "May Songs" of Champagne and Lorraine.

The minstrels, glee-men and harpers of England trusted to memory or improvisation for the times to which their tales should be sung. Mrs. Allan sketched the variations in English folk music, from the reigns of the 6th Edward, down to the quaint Shakespearian songs, and the inclusion of lively French tunes by the second Charles. The Jacobite influence was noticeable in the songs of Scotland, which were always impregnated with the spirit of independence and liberty, along with an atmosphere, of tenderness, pathos and great love of nature.

"The folk song of Ireland is generally regarded as being the finest in the world, not even excepting that of Russia or Britain. It has a variety unknown to any other country of songs, reels, jigs, marches, spinning tunes, plough songs, Fair songs and whistles. It is always characteristic of the people of that beautiful but perplexing island, abounding in humour and pathos, but clear and direct in its melody."

"In spite of everything, folk-song has flourished in its quite, persistent way right down through the age on to to-day. Evidence proves to us that in all ages there has been a universal dependence of the people on "Sung poetry." The number of folk-songs in existence cannot be stated, even approximately, but it is said that over 5,000 have been discovered in Britain alone, and they have won a very high regard in the esteem of the true music-lover of to-day.

Mr. Campbell McInnes of Toronto, is deserving of great praise for the ingerest he has awakened there for the folk-song and old street cries of far away, bygone days, when life was certainly more colorful and picturesque."

REV. J. ROLLINS BIDS FAREWELL TO ST. ANDREW'S

Regrets Severing of Kindly Fellowships in Peterboro-- Professor Masih Tells of Missionary Work in India.

CROWDED CHURCH

Rev. James Rollins last night said farewell to the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on the close of his ministry there. He will leave Peterboro this week to take up a charge in Renfrew, Ont.

In addressing the congregation for the last time yesterday, Mr. Rollins told how grateful he was that his lot had been cast with the kindly people of St. Andrew's Church and with the kindly people of this city. "I have appreciated very much the many fellowships I have enjoyed outside St. Andrew's Church," he said. "These began in the very first year in connection with the Nicholls Hospital Board; on which I served five years. I recall with gratitude the associations on that Board. Another source was the Peterboro Curlers' Club. I have been a curler thirty years, and I have never hidden the fact that I think the Curling Club is one of the most wholesome in the city of Peterboro, and offers a service to a great many men under wholesome conditions.

"I have had an abundance of contact with interesting characters when every Thursday night for over a year I helped to administer the Patriotic Committee. There was a really delightful association with men like Mr. Dobbin, ex-Mayor Buller, Dan. O'Connell, Mr. Lynch and others. It was a real privilege to get to know those men.

"Then came the war and my association with the officers and men of the 93rd Battalion." Mr. Rollins referred to the generosity of the church in liberating him during the war period that he might go overseas.

Peterboro Rangers and the Kiwanis Club were mentioned by the departing pastor as sources of pleasure to him. The contact established between St. Andrew's Church and Trinity through the yearly union services in summer had made him feel very kindly towards Trinity Church, he said.

The managers, elders and officers of the church were thanked for their good work; the ladies of the congregation received thanks for their ministry to the comfort of the minister and his family, and the choir, under Mr. Crane, was praised for its excellent work.

"I wish you God's richest and choicest gifts in all the coming days, and from my heart I thank you for all your kindness to me," Mr. Rollins concluded.

Heard About India.

Professor Yohan Masih, Principal of Indore College, and prominent in Presbyterian Church affairs in India, told something of the work of the missionaries in his country of nearly 400,000,000 population. There are 147 different languages in India, he said, and it is the most religious country in the world. There is religion in the way a Hindu cooks his food and in the way he eats it.

All India, he said, is striving for the truth in religion, and there can be no peace until she gets her desire. A native prayer is "From the unreal lead me to the real; from darkness lead me into the light; from death lead me to immortality." "That is what the people are seeking, and they are realizing that only Christ can supply their need. Salvation is full and free, but it is not cheap in India, for the new born Christian there must leave his father, mother, wife and children."

In a voice vibrant with emotion, and with a manner that was magnetic, holding the attention of the entire congregation, the speaker declared: "Solve the problem of India and you have solved the problem of the whole East. Only Christ can solve the problem of India."

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

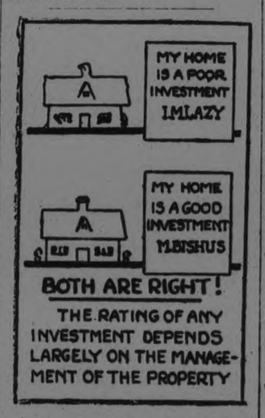
Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

The place for securities is in safe or a safety deposit box.

It frequently happens that, in cleaning out an old desk or bureau drawer, a valuable bond turns up. Perhaps the owner thought it was in his safety deposit box; perhaps he believed it was safe enough in the drawer.

At any rate a bureau or desk drawer is no place for bonds. They belong in a safety deposit box. A man wouldn't think of leaving money around in a drawer, especially as much money as a bond represents.

If a bond is not registered—and it probably isn't—that bond is worth as much to any one else as it is to the owner. It doesn't have to be indorsed before it can be sold. Both principal and interest are payable to bearer when due.



A home is one investment where a man has an opprotunity for personal management. As in most enterprises, success or failure depends largely on the management.

There is a difference between investing in stocks and bonds and a home. Ordinarily when a man invests in stocks and bonds he is concerned primarily in safety and income. The investment may be successful although he never ha anything to do with the management.

But a home is different. It is made of brick, stone, wood, or dirt. It is tangible, the owner sees it every day. It is part of him—he is responsible for its success or failure. He can't neglect it and still expect it to be a profitable investment.

Almost every one like to putter about the house, but few realize that the amount and efficiency of that effort may mean the success or failure of the investment.

GERMANY DESIRES TO BORROW MONEY

Wants a Loan to Buy Food This Winter

PARIS, Dec. 17. — (Canadian Press.)—Germany's request that the Reparations Commission agree to release its priority claim on Germany's resources to an extent necessary to permit Germany to borrow money abroad with which to buy needed food was delivered to the Reparations Commission to-day by the German War Burdens Commission. The request will probably be considered at Wednesday's meeting, but the present attitude of the French, it is stated semi-officially, is against granting the application.

HUERTA'S VIEW MEXICAN ISSUE

Movement is Socialistic and Not Conservative, Says Leader.

The following statement was cabled to the United Press from Vera Cruz by Adolfo de la Huerta, who is leading a revolt against the Obregon Government:

VERA CRUZ, December 17. —Our movement is essentially Socialistic, not conservative, as has been asserted by that octogenarian, Samuel Gompers, of Washington, D.C.

I want all the people of the United States of America and throughout the world to know that all the revolutionary principles acquired during the last ten years of fighting will be maintained.

The basis for development of these principles will be the constitution of 1917, of which the articles will be interpreted fairly, especially Article 28.

In a few more weeks the Mexican Republic will overthrow the Obregon Government which has violated our laws and profaned our democratic principles in endeavouring to promote General Galles—the most unpopular man ever known to Mexican history—as the next president.

In spite of the lack of funds, our army is fighting with enthusiasm, and in ten days our movements have gained entire control of the states of Yucatan, Quiantana, Roo, Campeche, Tabasco, Vera Cruz, Puebla, Oaxaca Guerrero, Jalisco, Colima, Zacatecas, Aguaz, Caclientes, and part control of Chiapas, Hidalgo, Micoacon, Tamaulipas, Chihuahua, Durango, and others.

The total forces collected from these states amounts to about 40,000 men.

Throughout Mexico public opinion is behind us.

SOCIAL EVENING AT MRS. W. RAMBO'S

Dear Mrs. Rambo,—

We your friends and co-workers in the Women's Association of Murray street Baptist church, desire to take this opportunity of expressing to you in some slight degree the esteem with which you are held and our appreciation of your valuable services to this society during the time you have been residing amongst us. We wish you to know that we deeply regret your removal from our midst, but we realize that our loss will be the gain of another community.

WILL TRY AND GET RED RYAN

Papers Issued to Have Ryan Deported and Brought to Toronto.

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press). — Extradition proceedings were instigated Saturday afternoon by Crown Attorney Eric Armour, K.C., to have "Red" Ryan brought from the United States to Canada. Mr. Armour stated last night that the Attorney-General's Department had issued the required papers to have the prisoner deported. On Sunday a telegram was despatched to Minneapolis, asking the police of that city if they would consent to drop their charges against Ryan and hand him over to the Toronto authorities.

If brought back he will be tried on charges of robbery while armed, arising out of the robbery at Oakwood and St. Clair Avenue Branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia on September 27 last, when $3,000 was stolen.

A BLOOD TRANSFUSION.

KINGSTON, December 17. Canadian Press. — Ray Woodcock, aged 18, son of Wellington Woodcock, of Tamworth, sustained serious injuries to his leg when chopping trees, nine miles north of Tamworth, and underwent an operation for the amputation of it. At the Hospital Dieu it was performed by Dr. I. G. Bogart, and was one of the most complicated surgical cases in recent years, because it was necessary to carry out transfusion and administer gas oxygen. His father gave two pints of his blood at the operation.

Woodcock was chopping down a tree when it fell. The bottom sprung back and injured his leg, causing three fractures, and crushing the bone at the knee. He is getting along nicely.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

How Laughter Originated in Triumphant Cries of Animals

SOUNDS emitted in triumph by carnivorous animals on seizing their prey is the origin of laughter, according to Dr. Cecil E. Reynolds, of Los Angeles. In the opinion of this California physician, all laughter has its source in triumph. Science in general explains that laughter is just one way of giving vent to emotions that have long been repressed. It causes this relief from depression in two ways—physical and mental. Physically it stimulates circulation, increases depth and rapidity of breathing, and drives more blood to the brain. These things bring a feeling of well being.

Psychologically, laughter interrupts gloomy trains of thought and morbid preoccupations. It uses up reserve stores of energy, both muscular and nervous; builds worn cells and relieves nervous tension.

Apart from its physiological mechanisms, Dr. Reynolds says laughter is an expression of an emotion. To say that it expresses pleasure he regards as obviously insufficient, since simple pleasantness is not an emotion. A certain amount of realisation must be added. Laughter he believes to be always an expression of a sense of triumph just as blushing indicates a sense of shame. The sense of triumph may be justifiable or unjustifiable, real or fictitious.

"It is a direct outcome of the dawn of gregarious habits," Dr. Reynolds goes on to say in the Southern California Practitioner, "and therefore we must study it as it exists in the prototype of our early ancestor, the ape.

"It is highly probable that the largest apes, after overcoming an enemy in mortal combat, give vent to a loud roar and drum upon the chest, I have been told that this roar is interrupted and staccato. The drumming has long been regarded as a summons to the mate, and we know that the baying of a foxhound serves to summon the rest of the pack. Now our early simian ancestors were almost certainly, like man, more carnivorous than modern apes, and if we grant this, they certainly hunted their prey in packs.

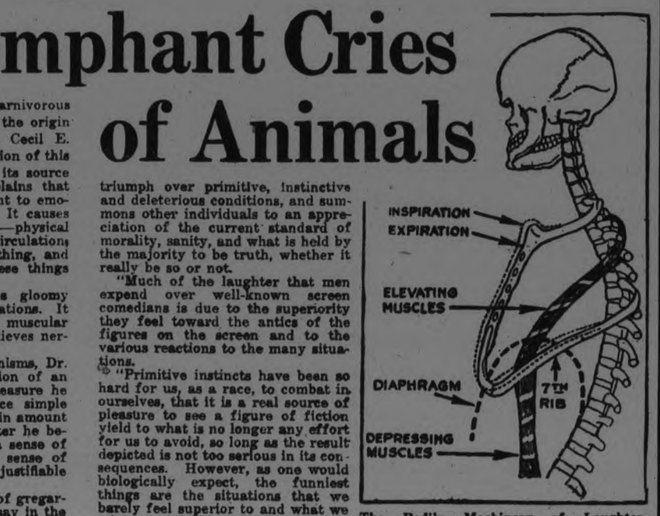
"Let us picture to ourselves in times of scarcity a herd of these savage, gorilla-like beasts ranging the forests in search of prey, and one stalwart fellow outstrips the pack and falls upon some unsuspecting fawn. If he follows the line of least resistance he will over-gorge himself in solitude, and not only will the pack suffer, but the individual as well. Consequently nature steps in, and the instinctive emotion of triumph temporarily overcomes the instinctive feeling of hunger. The emotion of triumph brings about a complex physiological act. The head is thrown back, the mouth is opened and the front teeth bared, and with quivering lower jaw a loud staccato roar is emitted. At the same time the eyes are tightly closed. The state is prolonged in direct proportion to the magnitude of the triumph and not only summons the pack to share in the triumph, but closes the individual's eyes to the immediate temptation.

"Hence this physiological complex is co-operative and altruistic as well as self-preservative.

"Average normal laughter to-day expresses a triumph over primitive, instinctive and deleterious conditions, and summons other individuals to an appreciation of the current standard of morality, sanity, and what is held by the majority to be truth, whether it really be so or not.

"Much of the laughter that men expend over well-known screen comedians is due to the superiority they feel toward the antics of the figures on the screen and to the various reactions to the many situations.

"Primitive instincts have been so hard for us, as a race, to combat in ourselves, that it is a real source of pleasure to see a figure of fiction yield to what is no longer any effort for us to avoid, so long as the result depicted is not too serious in its consequences. However, as one would biologically expect, the funniest things are the situations that we barely feel superior to and what we might conceivably fall prey to if unwary, but in regard to which we know better. We laugh at the comedian when he is unwise, we laugh with him when he triumphs over some one else in some unexpected fashion.



The Bodily Machinery of Laughter, Which Consists Chiefly of Two Sheets of Muscles Attached to the Seventh Rib—the Longest and Strongest of the Ribs—and the Large Muscles Called the Diaphragm.

"Of the varieties of laughter met with in daily life we often see in both the intellectual and the pseudo-intellectual what may be termed the 'deprecatory laugh.' This indicates that he feels a little ashamed to express triumph over such a comparatively simple situation, but he feels it due to confess that he is glad evolution has progressed so far, and will indicate the same to you by a cross between a smile and a chuckle; any greater expression would be unworthy. The opposite of this is the 'boisterous laugh'—usually of the fat and animal type of man, very cheering so long as you are in agreement with him, but apt to be just as animally ferocious when he is in disagreement with the herd.

"The unkind or 'scornful' laugh of the self-satisfied being is directly intended to express triumph over another individual usually of the same species, and hence is not co-operative and is really a perversion. It is, at best, an effort to bring the person laughed at into the particular group of thought of the laugher, and is a dangerous symptom, since that group may occur in 'paranoiac' laughter, which is familiar to alienists as an expression of self-superiority to all other individuals.

"The 'hysterical' laugh is very familiar. In its milder forms it sometimes begins by the patient joining in with others about some ordinary joke, but continues after the rest have ceased laughing. It soon attracts the attention of the others, and some recommence laughing a little and others pat the hysteric on the back and tell him to 'cheer up'; but the hysteric continues to laugh in even higher and higher key, and the sense of triumph within him extends from that over the original situation that was agreed upon by the rest, to embrace a fictitious sense of triumph over all his inward conflicts and complexes. This is subconscious.

"Often the hysterical laugh begins without apparent cause or in response to a situation that should produce anything but laughter from the viewpoint of the bystander, especially in women. It is not correct to say that this is merely an overflow of dammed-up emotional energy and leave it at that. If it has not a meaning in the conscious it has in the subconscious. In every emotional situation the subject must have some sort of realisation, and hysterical laughter, however foolish it appears, has a meaning and is not an unshaped discharge of energy at random. It means sometimes that in the patient's mind there is an illusory sense of triumph over conditions that, in fact, the patient is totally unable to react to rationally.

"Two types of laughter that are somewhat closely allied are the 'hypocritical' and the 'bitter.'

"The hypocritical laugh expresses a sense of triumph that is not felt in order to mislead the companion or herd into a belief that the laughter is in agreement with them, and the penalty he pays, if discovered, is analogous to that which the carnivorous animal would suffer if he roared in triumph when he had slain no prey. This also explains the suspicious hostility with which some regard a person when they do not know what he is laughing about even when there is no suspicion that he is laughing at them.

"The bitter laughter, also forced, expresses a triumph that is not felt, but in this case sufficient knowledge has been acquired to make a real triumph along a given line possible in future. It is, therefore, anticipatory and precautionary, as well as expressing a superiority to his former unequipped state. Of course, in modern life much humor is dependent upon compound triumphs, in which a point is gained without sacrificing the respect of the joker's fellows, as in the subtle and risque type of humor."

How Chinese Use as Drugs Bone Dust of Fossils

HOW Chinese "mine" the 2,000,000-year-old fossilized remains of prehistoric animals for use as medicine, to supply Chinese drug stores with "dragon's teeth" and "dragon's bones" is described in a report by Professor W. D. Matthew, curator of the Department of Vertebrate Palæontology at the American Museum of Natural History, on the fossil specimens collected by Walter Granger, the paleontologist of the Third Asiatic Expedition.

"China is one country where fossil teeth and bones have a considerable value quite aside from their scientific interest," says Prof. Matthew. "Fossils have been used as fertilizer, it is true, where they occur in cave deposits or rich pockets, and have been ground up and used for their phosphates. But in China they have quite another use, as medicine, and have been mined for centuries to supply the Chinese drug-shops with 'dragon's teeth' and 'dragon's bones,' a regular article of the Chinese pharmacopeia.

"There are, it appears, four ways of administering them. They may be ground to powder in a mortar and eaten raw. Or they may be ground and fried with oil in a skillet. Or the powder may be stirred up with sour wine and either drunk off fresh or the mixture left to settle, decanted and the clear liquid drunk. They are specific for certain nervous diseases, heart troubles and disorders of the liver. Without recommending the remedy for adoption in this country, it is perhaps permissible to point out that mixing with sour wine would result in a combination of bicarbonate and acid phosphate of lime that might really have some medicinal value, just what may be left to physicians to decide.

"The Granger collection covers a series of skulls and innumerable jaws, bones, teeth or other fragmentary material of many kinds of animals, probably of late Pliocene age. Stegedon, an extinct proboscidean intermediate between mastodon and elephant, is the largest animal present. A rhinoceros related to the living Indian species; a gigantic tapir, about the size of a horse; a buffalo, related to the Gaur of India; a large pig, larger and smaller deer and antelopes of several kinds, are the chief hoofed animals.

"The carnivora are represented by a tiger, a hyena, a 'parti-colored bear' (aeluropus), a sun bear, sand badger, a 'wild dog' (cyon), and a civet; the primates by a langhur and a new genus allied to the gibbon, while a large bamboorat, very abundant, is the sole representative of the rodent tribe. There are no horses and no true dogs, and other animals of the open plains are conspicuously absent, so that the collection is believed to represent the fauna that then inhabited the forests and foothills of South China. Some of the animals or their descendants still survive in South China, some have retreated to India or to Malay States, while others have become extinct.

"According to the views held by some of the best authorities on the ancestry of man, it is in just such a fauna as this that we might expect to find his ancestors of the late Tertiary time. The possibility of such a discovery was well understood, but as yet nothing of the kind has been found in China."

ALUMINUM Once Used for JEWELRY

FIFTY years ago the common metal which is called aluminum was so rare that it cost nearly $100 a pound, and was used almost solely in the making of jewelry. Now it costs rather less than twenty-five cents a pound, and is made into thousands of different articles, from teapots to motor-car parts; from wireless masts to nutmeg graters and soup plates!

Many years before anyone could claim to have seen aluminum its existence was suspected. The metal is obtained from a white powder, not unlike soda in appearance, which is one of the commonest chemical properties of the earth's crust. Known as alumina, this substance is the basis of clay, and its identity was first established not quite a century ago by a German chemist named Woehler.

Later a French scientist named De Ville succeeded in producing aluminum on a considerable scale, though not in sufficient quantities to justify its use outside jewelers' shops, where it was made into ornaments.

For fifty years after this the chemists of the world concentrated on the problem of obtaining aluminum in bulk, an American scientist, Charles Hall, whose laboratory was in his kitchen, finally being successful in the quest. Hall carried out numerous experiments, and was on the point of giving up when he found at the bottom of his crucible a tiny disc of the new metal, produced by a method that was both simple and cheap.

The discovery was made thirty-seven years ago, since when aluminum has been put to an astonishingly wide variety of uses. The part which this wonderful metal will play in the future is incalculable, for its lightness, durability, strength and cheapness render it one of the most valuable substances of the kind known to man.

Aluminum will neither rust nor tarnish, and it is so adaptable that it can be hammered into sheets no thicker than cardboard, or drawn out into very fine wire. One of its most remarkable characteristics is that it is a rapid conductor of heat, while it is also non-poisonous.

Preserves, meats and fruit will one day be packed in aluminum containers instead of in tins. Aluminum cooking utensils are already a feature of modern domestic life, and aluminum tea and dinner services are being put on the market in rapidly increasing numbers.

Experiments are being made with motor-cars built almost exclusively of the metal. Recently an aluminum-built car was tested at high speed on a railway track—a gruelling trial for any form of vehicle other than a railway engine. The car emerged from the ordeal as if it had been running on the smoothest of roads!

Aeroplanes of aluminum are likely to be common very soon. In the case of a crash a machine built of the metal will not only be less liable to suffer complete wreckage, but the pilot and passengers will be more safe, since risks from fire will be reduced to a minimum.

Aluminum has made it practicable for chemists to make certain precious stones, notably rubies and sapphires. Considerable numbers of these gems are manufactured by adding coloring substances to powdered alumina and annealing it by means of a specially charged blowpipe.

The metal also plays an important part in the iron and steel industries, being used in both as a means of purification. Small quantities of aluminum added to steel in the furnace disperse the gas and ensure the elimination of certain defects which at one time greatly hindered the production of first-class steel.

How TEA LEAVES Aid CROOKS

THE present-day counterfeiter is not necessarily one who specializes in the manufacture of home-made money, as has been proved in several recent instances when picture-fakers, "antique furniture" twisters and many others have had the searchlight of publicity shed upon their activities when investigations have been conducted in police courts.

The enterprise of the crook has no limits. If he cannot coin cash in one direction he will find some other outlet for his irrepressible enthusiasm for cheating the law and, incidentally, the public.

His latest exploit seems to be the conversion of specially procured copies of literary masterpieces into cute examples of "old originals" and early editions, much sought after by book-lovers.

The value of such works is usually judged by the apparent age of the volume. In dark salesrooms or gloomy second-hand bookshops a book that is yellow, "fusty" and fairly well worn is mostly assumed to have been in the world quite a long time; in fact, long enough to increase its value.

But if "all that glitters is not gold," certainly all those aged-looking "early editions" are not what they seem to be. The book counterfeiter has made an art of imparting the semblance of centuries to modern reprints of old writings, and so thoroughly does he do his work that even experts are sometimes deceived.

He begins with the covers, which are artificially faded, torn and cracked, and by the application of acids made to appear soiled in patches. Then he subjects the leaves to a treatment which generally consists of spraying them with a preparation made by steeping tea leaves in hot water.

This "lotion" turns them yellow, and after they have dried, all that remains to be done is to tear a few here and there, crease others, remove one or two and stick them in again, and make a few pencil markings to impart the impression that some previous owner had carefully emphasized passages of importance.

His concluding operations are to inscribe on the fly-leaf, in a pale brown ink, some name and date in old type copper-plate writing, and then insert between the leaves a few pressed flowers, which, besides simulating a habit very popular a few generations ago, also serve to give the volume an "old-fashioned" fragrance.

That the care taken in counterfeiting literature is worth while to the crook was demonstrated recently when in New York a collector gave $3,500 for a faked early edition of an old Scottish masterpiece. And the same thing happened in Cape Town last year when $1,000 was given for a volume worth only a dollar or two.

CRETONNE Covers for FLOWER Pots

IN wintertime when plants are kept indoors it is desirable that they be in keeping with the surroundings. It is not necessary to buy fancy jardinieres for this purpose. There are many practical and inexpensive covers for giving the common flower-pot an attractive appearance that can easily be made at home.

A Cretonne-Covered Flower Pot.

Crepe paper tied about the pots makes a very pretty cover but it lasts only a short time, as it soon becomes stained and tears to pieces. A good and serviceable cover like the one in the illustration can be made of cretonne. This cover is permanent, easy to make and attractive.

A contributor to the Pathfinder gives the following directions for making a cretonne cover: First select the material, then place the pot in its saucer and set both on the table. Cut a strip of paper a little larger than the circumference of the top of the pot and a little wider than the height of the pot. Now wrap this around the pot and saucer, making it fit tightly. Let the ends overlap and glue them together. Next, cut off the top of the paper cuff even with top of the pot, then slit the cuff down the side and use it as a pattern. A medium weight cardboard is cut by the pattern, leaving an extra inch at one end. Lap this end over the other and glue them together. Also cut the cretonne by the pattern, leaving an extra inch at the top and bottom and two inches at one end.

Make rings of glue around the top and bottom of the cardboard cuff on the inside, then lay cretonne on the outside. Turn over the surplus cretonne at the top and press it tightly to the glue. Do the bottom the same way, keeping the cretonne tight and smooth. After cutting the overlapping cretonne off around the pattern of the goods instead of straight up and down, glue it to the cretonne beneath it.

The Cost of King Solomon's Temple

THE money spent in constructing King Solomon's Temple, according to W. H. H. Smith, an authority on the subject, was sufficient to rebuild every government building in Washington one hundred times. This estimate is based on the cost of all government buildings in existence at the capital at the time of the completion of the Congressional Library.

King David purchased the site of King Solomon's Temple, which is Mount Moriah in Jerusalem, and amassed great treasures for the temple, but for some unknown reason the building was reserved to Solomon. Since the Hebrews had not cultivated the arts, Solomon went to Hiram, King of Tyre in Phoenicia, to obtain builders and skilful workers in stone, brass, and the cedar and cypress of Lebanon. It took seven and a half years to complete the structure, during which time King Solomon had to pay out each year 20,000 measures each of wheat and barley, and 20,000 "baths" (ancient Hebrew liquid measure) of wine and oil. The total cost of the building is disputed. Estimates range from thousands to millions of dollars.

The temple was divided into an inner and outer sanctuary. There was also an inner court with an altar for burnt offerings. Since we possess only a brief description of the first temple, and the technical terms used by the Bible are not always readily intelligible in modern times, there is a great diversity of opinion among writers who attempt to describe or reconstruct the temple in its architectural details. Some claim that the original temple was 150 feet long, 105 feet wide and 45 feet high, while others say it was only 90 feet long, 30 feet wide and 45 feet high. The original temple was destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar in 586 B. C. The Jews erected a new edifice in 516 B. C., but this, too, was destroyed.

How BUTTERFLIES Are Now MADE to ORDER

WHAT must surely be one of the most fascinating industries in the world is carried on in Southern France, where special butterfly farms have been established. Here, under scientific guidance, hundreds of beautiful specimens are bred.

Cross-breeding has been tried, and numerous experiments are conducted to obtain brilliant and original markings on the wings of these insects, which are afterwards sold to collectors or for the adornment of women's hats and dresses.

The farms are provided with special leafy trees and plants on which the eggs are hatched. Directly the young appear the branches are cut off and taken to a specially ventilated room, where they are placed in vases of water.

As soon as the tiny caterpillars have eaten up this first supply of leaves fresh branches are provided. Having been in an even temperature for about two weeks the young caterpillars are taken out into the open, where they are placed on plants that are protected from birds by long nets.

When they have become fully grown this protective net is removed, and soon they retire into cocoons or roll themselves up into leaves. These are collected and stored in specially ventilated boxes, where, in a very short time, butterflies of wonderful hues are evolved.

OLYMPIC TEAM WON IN OTTAWA

Defeated All-Star Aggregation By 6-2—Preparing For France.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16. — Canada's Olympic hockey team defeated an Ottawa all-star aggregation here last night by a score of six to two. The local representatives handicapped by lack of team play and short on condition made a most creditable showing against the squad that will carry the Maple Leaf in the coming tournament in France.

For one period the Ottawa team had a slight shade on the visitors, and the score of one goal each represents the play. In the second period, the Olympics came stronger while the locals failed to improve and the visitors took a three to one lead at the second rest.

It was in the final twenty minutes that the Olympics demonstrated their superiority. With tireless, machine-like precision they carried the attack to their opponents and gradually wore them down, assuming complete control of the situation in the closing minutes.

THE BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP WON BY THE Y.W.C.A.

One of the Fastest Games This Year Was Put on by De Laval and Y. W. C. A.

On Friday evening last, before a large and enthusiastic audience, the final games of the first half of the basketball league were played. All games were well played, but the star game was between the Y.W.C.A. and De Laval teams. De Lavals started the scoring with two or three well-placed baskets. The Y forwards soon found their goal, and the score favoured first one and then the other, ending at half-time with the Y 8 points ahead. The teams were very evenly matched and played excellent combination, making a very fast game. Until the last few minutes, it was touch and go as to who should be winner. The Y.W. landed the big end of the score, 38-26. This gives the Y.W. the first series.

Another group of games will be played after the New Year.

The line-ups:

De Laval — Forwards, B. Meredith and Gertrude Kirn (capt.); centres, Martha Kirn and Edna Forster; defence, Florence Giroux and M. Archambault; sub., F. Meredith.

Y.W.C.A. — Forwards, Gertrude Ginblett and Phyllis Young (capt.); centres, Mildred Sisson and Eva Outram; defence, Hazel Jackson and Carrie Cruickshanks; subs, F. Thompson, A. Sanderson, and V. Graham.

Normals beat Westclox 58-11, but this was due to the excellent work of Margaret Cameron (centre) and Margaret Jamieson, who rarely missed a shot. The Westclox showed that they had ability in team work, and their combination showed to good advantage.

The line-ups.

Westclox:

Forwards — Gerry McIlwain and Edith Scott.

Centres — Viola Martin and Marie Merritt.

Defence — Emma Wolf and Jean McIlwain.

Subs. — Pearl Bettes and Grace Northcott.

The Woollens and Quakers put up a good game, the former winning 28-13. The Quakers could only scare up five players, but the Woollens showed their good sportsmanship by playing one man short also. This game wa a little rougher than necessary, but all the teams show a vast improvement since the beginning of the season.

The line-ups:

Woollens — Forwards, Myrtle Bradley and Lorette Bradley.

Centre, Lily Slaughter.

Defence, Elda Bradley and Annie Loga...

Sub., Edna Mann.

Quakers — Forwards, L. Whalen and M. Frost.

Centre, M. Edwards.

Defence, M. Jackson and Irene Collins.

Referees, Miss C. Littlefield, Dr. Phyllis Young, and Walter Perks.

Linesmen, Messrs. Ashmore and Alcorn.

Timer, M. Griffin.

After the work was over, the players indulged in a less strenuous pastime. Refreshments were served in the big reception room, where all had a pleasant half-hour. Mrs. W. R. Carmack, Mrs. Adam Hall, and Mrs. Gerald Wood assisted.

Thursday night's game was reported as having been won by the Normals. This was a mistake, as the Woollens won 20-19.

PARKDALE DEFEATED.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 16.—Cleveland defeated the Parkdale Canoe Club of Toronto here last night in an exhibition hockey game by a score of 5 to 2.

SENATORS HELD AN EARLY LEAD

Scored Two Goals in Five Minutes Against Tigers In Pro. Opener.

HAMILTON, Dec. 16.— Hamilton's made over team of Pro Puck chasers, suffered defeat at the hands of Ottawa here on Saturday night in the N.H.L. opened by a score of 3 to 2. Showing more finish and style to their attack the champions opened a barrage on the Hamilton citadel early in the opening period and before five minutes of playing time had elapsed they were two goals in front. From then on they resorted to the old style of playing a five man defence and try as they did Hamilton could not penetrate it with success. Two amateurs made their pro debut with the Bengals on Saturday night namely "Shorty" and "Red" Green of Sudbury and both showed to advantage, the former with his borrowing in tactics made a hit with the fans while his brother, "Red" held Broadbent well in check throughout the entire game. Jess Spring, who made the jump a few weeks ago, did not get a chance to show his wares as manager Thompson used Reise, Randal and Prodger on the defence.

Hamilton appeared to have the material necessary for the making of a good team, but they lacked team play. Once this fault is remedied they should make it interesting for the other teams in the Calder circuit. Ken Randall, who made his debut as a Tiger, turned in a good game defensively, but when on the offensive he seemed content to shoot at the Ottawa twine from far outside the defence. With Reise it was the other extreme. Leo bored in as far as possible through the defence of the Ottawa club but defensively he appeared somewhat weak as it was his side of the rink that Ottawa circled to score their three counters.

FEW CHANGES COLLEGE RUGBY

Interference Rule Remains Same — Yard Penalties Made Uniform at Ten.

KINGSTON, Dec. 17— The rules commission of the Cirfumet on Saturday afternoon at the Royal Military College. The question of five yard running intereference came up for discussion but it was decided to leave the running interference rule alone for this year and no changes were made.

Penalties were increased for holding and such on the line while the fifteen yard penalty was reduced to ten yards making a uniform yards penalty. This was done to simplify matters for the officials. It was also decided to allow a man to mark a catch but he must do so by holding one hand above his head as a signal as well as making his mark He cannot run with the ball after he has made a mark catch.

An important change was made when it is decided that no player could be subbed and returned to the game in the same quarter. If a man were taken out in the first part of the first quarter he could not play again until the second quarter and so on. Head linesmen will be given more to do than call the three yards on the line and they will in future act as sort of second umpires.

OXFORD CANADIANS DEFEAT BELGIANS

University Team Played Exhibition on Way to Switzerland.

ANTWERP, Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuters.)—The Oxford University ice hockey team interrupted their journey to Murren to meet the Belgian Olympic team here last night which they defeated by four goals to three. The Belgians led at half time by three to one.

The Oxford team consisted of the Canadians, Dunlop, Brown, Heeney, Pitblado, Bonny, Chateau and Bennett.

The Belgians attacked and Louette scored their first goal which he shortly followed up with a second. A minute later Pitblado registered the first goal for Oxford and shortly before half time Louette added the third goal for the Belgians.

After the interval the game ran equally for a time but later the Belgians seemed to tire, having apparently exhausted themselves in the first half. The Canadians made a second goal and immediately afterwards Bennett put up the third for Oxford. An instant before the end of time the Canadians scored the fourth and winning goal.

TENNIS ROW WILL BRING A REFORM

TILDEN FLARE-UP PROMISES TO END SECRECY IN PICKING DOUBLES PAIR.

BY JOE WILLIAMS

Out of the current acrimonious and childish controversy involving William Tilden II, in this corner, gents, and the Davis Cup Committee, in that corner, will come one definite and needed reform: The silly secrecy which has habitually cloaked the selection of the doubles defending team in the past will be abolished.

Whether Tilden, greatest tennis player of his time, has a just quarrel with the committeemen, or their spokesman, Harold Hackett, himself a former champion, is not of great interest to the tennis world.

Hackett has charged that Tilden considered himself above advice in connection with the doubles match against the vanquished Australian team last summer. Tilden, in rebuttal, exudes the intimation that he has asked to employ the strategy of a generation ago.

To those who observe from the sidelines the affair has all the fragrance of a school-boy debate over the rightful ownership of a bright red lollypop. What makes the affair important is that it promises to bring to a head the need of certain progressive changes in the conduct of the Davis cup preliminaries.

It seems to us that Tilden is absolutely right in his stand that the identity of the doubles team should be made public two or four weeks in advance of the championship tournament. We see neither rhyme no reason in withholdin the name of the players until 12 or 36 hours before the match.

Must Practice Together.

Doubles is a form of tennis that places a high premium on team play and skillful court maneuvers. It is obvious that a doubles pair must practice together for a few days at least in order to become reasonably familiar with the other's style of play. That is why Bundy and McLoughlin were a great doubles pair 10 years ago. These two played together continuously.

Principals in Net Row.

HACKETT TILDEN

In Tilden's case it seems to us that the committee should have recognized the exceptionally urgent need of naming his partner at the earliest possible date. Tilden is not a great doubles player. Tilden is an individualist, a high-tensioned young gent, who is frightfully ill at ease if he not playing the whole game himself. At times he is a handicap rather than an asset.

For consistency of form and uniform skill it probably would be better to leave Tilden off the doubles team. It would be better perhaps, from the standpoint of assured success, but not from the box-office standpoint, and we have an idea that the box-office is quite as important in tennis as in any other sport.

The Ruth of Tennis.

Tilden is to tennis what Ruth is to baseball and court enthusiasts are not averse to paying their dollars to see him in action. But aside from this angle—we almost said sordid angle—is the consideration of color and action. There is more action and color to Tilden than any tennis player has displayed since the days of "Comet" McLoughlin's reign. A Davis cup match without Tilden would be somewhat like a rodeo without a Texas mustang.

It is not likely that Tilden will carry out his threat to withdraw from future cup competition, nor his it probable that the committee will do anything to heighten the present unpleasantness.

Tilden will again be a member of the doubles team next year and the committee—mark these words—will name his playing partner many days before the match.

Not because Tilden, the champion, has raised the point, but because it is the only logical and sensible thing to do—and even tennis associations can be logical and sensible at frequent intervals.

EARTHQUAKES ARE INVESTIGATED IN NORTHERN AMERICA.

Experts Seek Breaks in Crust of the American Continent—Only Happen at Lines of Weakness in Crust.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (Associated Press).—An exhaustive study of earthquakes in and near the American continent is being made by the weather bureau in cooperation with the Coast and Geodetic Survey, the Canadian meteorological officials, a number of universities and about 5,000 volunteer observers. Among the university records which are proving of great value are those kept by Father Tondorf, in charge of the seismological laboratory at Georgetown University, whose announcement that a violent earthquake had been registered by his instruments was the first news given the world of the Japanese disaster.

William J. Humphreys, professor of meteorological physics, has charge of the weather bureau's work. The purpose of the study, he said, primarily is to determine the exact locations of breaks and cracks in the earth's crust and to gain knowledge of the substructure of the land, although it is hoped eventually to develop a method by which earthquakes may be forecast and their danger minimized.

Only a persistent study, in the opinion of Father Tondorf, can lead to a scientific basis of forecasting earthquakes.

"The geography of earthquakes," he said, "is certain and invariable. No earthquake can happen except at lines of weakness in the earth's crust. Evidently these lines of weakness can only give when the stresses brought to bear on them become sufficiently great. Geological changes, discernible at the surface and within reach of mathematical computation, might presage fairly accurately the release of such stresses. On the basis that these releases of stresses do not happen suddenly but gradually, suitably installed pendula might betray these displacements."

The value of the earthquake data being accumulated by the weather bureau, Prof. Humphreys pointed out, is revealed chiefly in its application to large engineering undertakings particularly water supply systems.

Earthquakes of sufficient intensity to make a clear record upon seismological instruments, Prof. Humphreys explained, are located approximately, if not exactly, by comparing observations at various widely scattered points and studying different types of vibrations resulting from the breaking or slipping of a section of the earth's crust.

Father Tondorf said a theory worked out by Dr. Omori, head of the Imperial Earthquake Investigation Committee, who died recently, had a fair test in the recent Japanese catastrophe. Dr. Omori, from data extending over a period of 75 years, noted that when the lesser earthquakes were more frequent, disastrous ones were less likely to happen, and vice versa. Dr. Omori interpreted these smaller movements of the crust as so many factors in establishing an equilibrium in seismic areas. Having ascertained that the period of these lesser manifestations in Japan is six years, he predicted in 1921 that within six years after 1921 there would occur a destructive quake.

UNCHALLENGED CLAIM

A doctor, an architect and a bolshevik were discussing as to the priority of their occupations.

The doctor said:

"When Adam's side was opened and a rib removed to make woman, there was a surgical operation—medicine was the oldest trade."

The architect said:

"Yes, but when the earth was made, out of chaos, there was the building process, the use of materials according to a plan. The architect's is still older."

The bolshevik smiled and said:

"But who supplied the chaos?"—Farm Life.

ST. PATRICKS WON FROM CANADIENS

Missed Babe Dye But Defense Was Strong

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press).—St. Patrick's defeated the Canadiens here by 2 to 1 in the opening game here of the N.H.L. on Saturday night. St. Patrick's missed the accurate and deadly markmanship of Babe Dye, but their defence was so powerful that the Canadiens could not make any headway, and it was not until the game was almost over that Aurel Joliat scored the only counter for the Frenchmen. It was a well-contested struggle, with the Irish earning their one goal lead, although they were favored by good fortune in scoring both their goals, the puck hitting one of the visiting defence men before going past the ever-watchful Vezina.

The pace was very fast throughout, neither side showing lack of condition.

CORINTHIANS TO VISIT CANADA

Old Country Team Will Tour During Year 1924

All soccer fans will be glad to learn that the famous Amateur Corinthian Club of Old Country will tour Canada next year, under the auspices of the Dominion Football Association.

The local representative, Mr. Fred Sutcliffe, of Ontario Football Association, received official notification from secretary of O.F.A. of the proposed tour with the two suggested itinerary of games which will start in Montreal, then travel across the Dominion and back again to sail for England.

This very important matter will have to be considered by the president, Jack Cairns, of P. and D.F.A., so that he will call a special meeting at the earliest convenience and notify the O.F.A. officails of their decision.

It would be a great boost to local soccer if the Corinthians could play a game here between their games in Montreal and Toronto, which has three full open days.

GENERAL ELECTION FOR THE DOMINION

Opinion of Robert Forke of the Federal Farmer Group.

BRANDON, Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press).—A general election next summer was declared to be a possibility if the King Government loses Kent County, N.B., by-election by Robert Forke, leader of the Progressive party, when interviewed here yesterday.

If the Government is defeated in Kent it would be without a majority, and would have to look to the Progressive party for its support, declared Mr. Forke, who added,

"The measures of support the Progressives will extend will be determined by the attitude the Government will take with regard to our policies."

Mr. Forke said he still favored the "broadening-out policy," and that there was no doubt that the attitude of Ontario Progressives seems to favor a policy of widening-out to what may be termed a "people's party," which, to all intents and purposes, is what the Progressive party aims to be.

RYAN TELLS OF BREAKING JAIL

Surrounded Five Days in Swamp With Nothing to Eat--Says Doughty Didn't Kill Anyone.

RYAN IS THROUGH

TORONTO, December 17 (Special to The Examiner). — In a special despatch from Minneapolis, "Red" Ryan, held by the police of Minneapolis on several charges of bank robbery, described his escape with five other convicts from the Penitentiary at Portsmouth, Kingston last September.

"I'm through" said Ryan according to an interview with the bandit.

"I can never get another pal that I would trust like Art Brown. Why, it was us two guys who framed that break at Kingston. Simpson, Bryants, and McMullen were dropin's. Art only had eighteen months more to serve on his stretch, but when he found that I was going over, he sure had to go along.

"I was the last one over the big wall, and had to shove that pitchfork into one of them guards. Of course, I had nothing against him, but he stood in my way and had a gun, so I slammed him good and hard. It's easy to get out of prison, but making a good getaway, well, that's another thing.

"We went through the hail of bullets as we went through the mob of guards as we started out in that old car, and say, you should have seen it. When we left that old bus, it looked like a sieve. But them ginks couldn't shoot low.

No Food or Drink.

"Then they surrounded us in that old swamp, and will you believe me when I tell you that they kept us there for five days. We didn't have a thing to eat and nothing but the slough water to drink. Art and I got an old car one night, and we slipped out and drove all night. We never once stopped, and we got to Toronto before daylight. We got some clothes there ,for you see we had still on them prison rags.

"Of course, we had to have some change ,so we fired up that job of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

"Ryan stated that he did not want to go back to Canada, as food was poor. "Grub at Kingston was worst of all," he said.

Ryan added that he had met Jack Doughty at the Penitentiary, but he was "kinda quiet, and never hit it much with the bunch. You couldn't make any of the boys who know Doughty think he ever killed anybody."

LABOUR BUREAU WORK SLOWS UP

Not Much Demand Until After Christmas

The report from the employment bureau for the week ending December the 15th, shows a decrease of 21 applicants and one placement. Last week there were 24 applicants and 29 placements as compared with the preceding week, when there were 45 new applicants and 30 placements. Although this slump is anticipated at this time of the year it is expected that a large shipment of men to the bush will be made after Christmas. The wages in the bush are very good now, ranging from $40 to $50 per month. There is also a number of openings for men on the farms at present, but the wages are so poor the men claim, that very few will accept them. The farmers are offering around $10 per month, but an odd one is paying as high as $30 per month, which is considered a very good wage. The factories around the city are mostly filled and very few men are being taken on. Last year at this time it was also very slack, but things picked up after Christmas. During the last few weeks a few men have accepted positions on the farms and any men that have been sent to the bush have been experienced men.

Financial News and Views

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — | New York Stock Exchange — and Curb Prices —

Today's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17. — (United Press).—Wall Street found developments over the week-end to be highly constructive, especially the agreement of France and Belgium to hold limited conferences with Germany, and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's definition of his tax reduction programme. The industrials were buoyant in the early dealings under the lead of Corn Products, which spurted 2½ points, a new high record at 155½. Continental Can, reached a new high on the movement at 50 7-8, and most of the active oils scored substantial gains. Some apprehension was created by the proposal of McAdoo adherents to introduce a radical rail measure in the House, but the fear was allayed by the assurances from administration circles that such a measure would stand no chance of enactment. This encouragement was reflected in the action of representative rails in the first fifteen minutes. North-Western, Baltimore and Ohio, Southrn Railway and other representative issues scored fractional gains. Heavy profit-taking came into the industrials after the week-end buying orders had been executed. Recessions of one to two points took place in Baldwin, Chandler and other leaders of last week's advance, but the reaction was prevented from gaining much headway by the conspicuous strength of the oils under the lead of Standard Oil of California, which reached a new high on the movement at 59½, reflecting the turn for the better in the oil situation in that company's territory. With the gradual reduction in the crude oil output in the fields of the Los Angeles basin an advance in prices in those fields is rumored. One could conclude from the pessimistic gossip on the oil industry that many oil companies would show deficits for the current year. It is refreshing, therefore, to read that the cash dividends of the Standard Oil group this year will run close to $138,000,000. This is $86,000,000 more than the United States steel shareholders will receive. Standard Oil has accumulated eight months' supply of crude at rock bottom prices. This will be converted into finished products at a good profit. If consumption continues on the increase no one would care to forecast a poor year for either Standard Oil or the independents next year.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"JAVA HEAD" OPENS AT CAPITOL THEATRE TONIGHT

Received everywhere with intense satisfaction "Java Head,' a new George Melford production for Paramount, is at the Capitol to-day and Tuesday only. The story by Joseph Hergesheimer, picturized by Mr. Melford and the leading characters portrayed by featured players of prominence including Leatrice Joy, Jacqueline Logan, Raymond Hatton, George Fawcett and Albert Roscoe, constitues entertainment of the finest quality.

Those who have read the novel which deals with the fortunes of a skipper of the old clipper days of the lat, forties, and a Chinese maiden of high degree, will be charmed with the picture. The story is one of intense drama and appeal.

The artistry of the featured players is manifested in every scene. Leatrice Joy is excellent as the beautiful Manchu maiden, while Jacqueline Logan gives a sympathetic portrayal of the role of Nettie Vollar, one of the principals in the love triangle which is developed by the story. Albert Roscoe as the skipper, George Fawcett, as the stern grandfather of Nettie and Raymond Hatton as a vengeful drug addict contribute largely to the success of the presentation.

AT THE ROYAL.

GENE STRATTON - PORTER'S FAMOUS NOVEL, "MICHAEL O'HALLORAN," AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT.

This is a story of Mickey, the newsboy with the philosophy of a sage and the courage of a Spartan, whose motto of "Se square," paves the way for his birthright of happiness, and incidentally reveals the light to a mismated pair, in what is conceded to be a romance of real life, with its tenderest emotions and appealing heart-interest. It is the story of this manly newsboy and his ward—Peaches—whom he found with a crippled back, adopted as "his family," and cared for until she was cured. It tells, too, of Mickey's part in the marital life of James and Nellie Minturn, who have reached the breaking point in their domestic happiness, and the influence he brings to bear in the romance of Douglas Bruce and Leslie Winton, to say nothing of the cheer he radiates in the household of Peter Harding and his wife, and finally it tells of Mickey's own love story with the waif he had found years before.

"Mickey" O'Halloran is a character of unusual charm, possessed of a ready Irish wit and sprightliness, combined with independence, common sense, and a joyous, happy nature. The story of his struggles to take care of "Peaches," his devotion to his friends and his own self-sacrifice, is one of the most appealing that has ever come from the pen of Mrs. Stratton-Porter, combining, as it does, all of the author's works, a deep feeling for nature, the charm of the woods, the flowers and all outdoor life.

In "Michael O'Halloran," Mrs. Stratton-Porter chose for her nature settings the fastness of the tamarack swamps of Northern Indiana, where orchids, fringed gentians and cardinal flowers carpet the marshy ground and the thrush starts the day with his glorious song. It fairly radiates happiness and contentment and brings home to you with telling effect the truths of a bigger and better life for humanity.

There is in "Michael O'Halloran" that "something" that will more than appeal to motion picture audiences the world over. It will instill in them a sprightliness of youth, and vividly recall the days when they, too, looked upon life with the quaint, though inspiring, viewpoint that characterizes the sunny disposed newsie.

AT THE GRAND.

"TWIN BEDS" AT GRAND.

Rex Stock Company Producing a Splendid Comedy This Week-end.

(Kingston Whig.)

On Thursday evening at the Grand Opera House, Rex Snelgrove and his popular players certainly produced a winner, both in regard to the number of laughs "Twin Beds" created, and as to the quality of the acting. Those who enjoy a good laugh should not miss "Twin Beds" in which all our favorite stars "shone" brilliantly.

The story of the play runs thus: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hawkins, (Rex and Zana), have a very cosy and comfortable flat, and are happy, although friend husabnd has a great grouch on because his wife is very fond of entertaining, and they seldom have an evening to themselves. The climax comes when all the people of the apartment are gathered in the Hawkins flat, at least all the desirables. However, Mrs. Hawkins' desires their company, but hubby very much desires their absence, especially that of Signor Monti, (William Yule) who it appears to him, is becoming too fond of Mrs. Hawkins' company. The signor happens to be a tenor singer and he proceeds to sing all over the place, greatly to the chagrin of Mr. Hawkins. The signor's wife, (Hazel Williams) declares to Mr. Hawkins that when her husband begins to sing his love-songs to his "adored ones" it is time to act, and they proceed to plan to get out of each other's way. They decide to move (each family not knowing where the other is going), and finally land up at the same apartment house. When Mr. Hawkins goes out one evening to attend a club meeting, and Signor Monti comes home "tipsy" and gets into the Hawkins' apartment by mistake, and incidentally Mr. Hawkins' bed, the fun is fast and furious. How the signor finally is gotten out of the Hawkins' flat after a great trial to Mrs. Hawkins, and a great deal of fun for the audience, furnishes good entertainment.

It is scarcely necessary to say that Rex filled his role to perfection, as "we all know Rex," and were never disappointed with his offering. Zana Vaughn was her usual charming and winsome self. However, we might say that she seems to be more winsome every time she appears. Miss Vaughn possesses a rare charm, and an unusually fine voice.

A Toronto gentleman in the audience was heard to remark: "Kingston theatregoers are indeed fortunate to have in their midst so charming and capable an actress as Zana Vaughn, she is cetrainly wonderful."

Hazel Williams admirably filled the role of the signor's wife. One of the spectators was heard to remark: "Wasn't she great; she is certaintly full of pep." Mr. Yule had an opportunity to star, and he was splendid. "Bill's" friends should certainly see him as "Signor Monti." Betty Leslie, one of Rex's new members, as "Nora," the maid, took her part well. The other members of the cast were good. All are deserving of praise. The scenery was of the best, and altogether "Twin Beds" was a most enjoyable performance.

Between the acts, two special vaudeville numbers were presented and received with great applause, Hazel Williams and Billy Seymour delighted the audience with a splendid song and dance number, and Fred Dampier favored with one of his humorous recitations.

At the Grand for three days, commencing to-night.

SIR JOHN MARTIN-HARVEY.

Peterboro stage-goers, who on previous visits of Sir John Martin-Harvey have seen the eminent British actor as Sidney Carton in "The Only Way," as Reresby in "The Breed of the Treshams," and in the title role of "David Garrick," had an opportunity on Saturday of witnessing him play another famous role, that of Count Skariartina, in "A Cigarette Maker's Romance," Charles Hannan's stage version of the well-known novel by F. Marion Crawford. Described by Sir John himself as a "simple little play," the part of the Count is nevertheless one of the most difficult in one sense in his repertoire inasmuch as the suspense must be sustained from his first appearance until the denouement, and it is a masterpiece of stage artistry as played by Martin-Harvey.

The march of time brings to this wonderful actor a fuller measure of mellow genius, and leaves him with the old fire and inspiration and unimpaired physical attributes, not the least of which is the music of his voice. The part of Count Skariartina, in which the aristocrat, deprived of his memory by an accident, lives in humble circumstances as a worker in a cigarette factory, and yet carries in his brain the conviction that his rich friends are coming to restore him to his old station in life, is one that gives Sir John every opportunity to demonstrate his power and talent, and in none of his other roles has he been seen to better advantage. His portrayal of the mingled love and despair of the Count as the booming clock strikes the midnight hour and he seeks to convince himself there is a footstep on the stair, even as the consciousness strikes into his heart that the day has passed, and no one has come, will long be remembered by those who saw it on Saturday night. There has been nothing finer on the stage of the Grand in many a moon than that dramatic moment.

The audience was by no means a capacity one but Sir John was given an ovation at the end of each act, and after the final curtain the storm of applause compelled the famous actor to acknowledge in a brief speech the thanks of his associates and himself. Referring to the size of the audience he made the reassuring statement that it would not be allowed to interfere with a return to Peterboro on some other occasion.

The supporting company were of excellent assistance, Miss De Silva (Lady Martin-Harvey), was sympathetic and convincing as Viera, and Miss Marie Linden gave a capable performance as the mercenary Akulina. Gordon MacLeod's presentation of Dumnoff always stood out, and the veteran actor, Alfred Iberson contributed a splendid bit as Christian. The other roles down to the smallest were in the hands of artists who knew their business, and the result was that the artistry of the star was given a suitable background by the sterling work of his associates.

The visit of Sir John Martin-Harvey will probably be the biggest event of the present theatrical season.

LANDSLIDE KILLED FOUR QUEBEC MEN

Ten Children Left Fatherless When Their Fathers Were Buried Alive -- Rescue Parties Failed.

KENOGAMI, Que., Dec. 17. — (Canadian Press.) — A landslide which occurred on the Levesque farm, a short distance from Price Brothers' Mills here, on Saturday caused the death of four men. They were buried alive and though rescue parties worked feverishly to relieve the entombed men, they did not get through in time. The victims, Joseph Lebel, 42 years, [illegible] nine children; Adelard Tremblay, [illegible] years, father of one child; Georges Levesque, 25 years, residing in Jonquieres, and Victor Levesque, 25 years, son of the owner of the farm where the accident happened.

In the last few days large quantities of sand had been removed from the sand pit on the Levesque farm to be used for road work. On Saturady a small slide occurred, but the workmen who were around did not pay much attention to it. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon a second one took place and the four men were buried alive. The sand rolled down on a width of 150 feet and the four men, who were working together, were buried deep. A fifth man who was buried, succeeded in making his escape .It took seven hours' work by 50 men to remove the twenty feet of sand covering the victims and to reach three bodies, the fourth one being located only yesterday morning.

DYNASTIC CRISIS MAY BE OVER FOR PRESENT

ATHENS, Dec. 17. — (Canadian Press).—The belief that a dynastic crisis is imminent in Greece is expressed in some quarters here, and the departure of King George is regarded as among the possibilities of the situation. Republicans are busily arranging demonstrations in Athens and throughout Macedonia and Thrace in favor of removing the dynasty.

APPEAL TAKEN BEFORE COURT OSGOODE HALL

City's Appeal From Judgment of County Judge Being Heard Today--Several Interested Spectators From Peterboro

ARGUMENT TAKEN

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—(Special.)—The battle over payment of the salary of Samuel Newhall, Chief of Police, was renewed at Osgoode Hall this morning when the First Division Court of Ontario heard the city's appeal from the judgment of Judge Ward of Northumberland county, who held the municipality liable for payment of the salary in dispute.

When the case opened at Osgoode Hall to-day, G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., and Joseph Wearing, City Solicitor, appeared for Peterborough, R. R. Hall, K.C., ex-M.P.P., was present for the Police Chief

The back benches were filled, and prominent among the occupants were Mayor Taylor, Ald Dr. Holloway, Ald. Phelan and Chief Newhall.

Mr. Gordon reviewed the dispute The Police Commissioners asked for $28,000. The Council cut the total to $25,000. When the $25,000 was exhausted the Commission, in effect, said to Chief Newhall, "we have no money, sue the city, the city holds the purse strings."

Mr. Gordon incidentally said that the Newhall action was not the proper course. Proceedings ought to have been taken under a mandamus. Mr. Gordon argued that the municipality's powers of raising money were limited.

City Denies Liability.

"Was there any liability on the part of the city," a Judge wanted to know.

Mr. Gordon answered in the negative.

Mr. Justice Ferguson—"The Council cannot incur liability unless the estimates cover it."

Mr. Gordon— "That is so, my Lord. "I say," continued Mr. Gordon, "that we are prohibited from paying any sum not named in the estimates."

Sir William Mulock—"Was Chief Newhall's salaty in the estimates?" "Yes."

Sir William—"Then can it be said that you approved of the Chief's salary?"

Mr. Gordon—"No, we approved of $25,000."

Society

URAEMIC POISONINNG GIVEN CAUSE DEATH

TORONTO, December 17. — Canadian Press. — Thomas S. O'Connor private secretary to H. J. Daly, president of the defunct Home Bank, and who was held on $30,000 bail as a material witness for the crown in prosecution of the directors and the officials of the suspended institution, died at St. Michael's Hospital early this morning from uraemic poisoning.

O'Cononr was placed in the institution yesterday morning following complaints of pains in the head which he attributed to a fall while entering his apartment on Jarvis street on Friday night. Injury is said to have been contributory to his death, but in the opinion of Dr. Silverthorne, of the hospital staff, cause was uraemic poisoning resulting from kidney trouble.

According to the ...ties, O'Connor went to the hospital yesterday morning to visit a... Miss Loretto O'Connor, who was a nurse in attendance on H. J. Daly, and is now confined to the institution with an attack of pleurisy.

Immediately after entering his sister's ward he complained of terrific pains in his head. Miss O'Connor advised him to have an examination made, and on this being done he was found to be suffering from compression of the brain caused probably by a fall. Further examination revealed him to be a victim of uraemic poisoning brought about by prolonged and acute kidney trouble.

Everything possible was done by the medical and surgical staffs of the hospital to safe his life, but it was apparent at midnight that death was a matter of only a few hours. He died four hours later.

Chaos and Anarchy Would Follow its Withdrawal Declares Indian Professor.

ROTARY LUNCHEON

That the withdrawal of Great Britain from India would result in chaos and anarchy even worse than in Russia was the opinion emphatically expressed by Professor Yohan Masih of India in the course of a most instructive address upon the political situation in India before the Peterborough Rotary Club at its luncheon to-day, Prof. Masih, who made it clear at the beginning that he was not a politician, nor had his visit to Canada any connection with political propaganda, sketched the conditions in India and recent political history with the sure hand of a speaker who knew his subject thoroughly.

There were three primary causes for unrest and agitation in India, he declared, first the Bible, second British rule and third Western education, and if these were withdrawn India would drop back into the sleep from which there was no awakening.

The speaker described the condition of India, cursed by the caste system— with over 2,000 distinct castes, including 50,000,000 "untouchables," with 176 different dialects, with many different religious beliefs, with hundreds of states under native rule. Ninety per cent. of the people lived in villages and were so busily occupied that they had no time to worry about home rule or politics. Only 6 per cent of the people were literate, so that it could be judged how many of the inhabitants were really concerned with the agitation for home rule. There were three chief political parties, the Home Rulers, the Liberal or Moderate party who looked to self government some time in the future, and the third party thoroughly satisfied with present conditions.

Professor Masih pointed out some significant dates in India's history, the commencement of Western education in 1834, Queen Victoria's proclamation in 1858, the victory of Japan over Russia in 1904, and the Chelmsford-Montague Act in 1919. He sketched the career of Gandhi and told of how much that leader was loved by his fellow countrymen, although it was felt that his policy of non-co-operation could not be a successful one and it was not being generally followed.

The speaker referred to the success of the Home Rule party in the recent elections and said that he could not venture a prophesy as to how they would act now that they had responsibility laid upon them.

India had received many blessings from British rule and its withdrawal from the country would be a catastrophe, the speaker said.

A very hearty vote of thanks was passed to Prof. Masih.

Rotarian Dr. McPherson presented a report of the crippled children's work and Rotarian Dr. McNair dealt with the programme of the Christmas cheer committee.

NATIVE TELLS INDIA'S NEED

Development of the Huge Country Described by Professor Yohan Masih --Church Growing Rapidly.

At Knox church yesterday morning a striking sermon was given by Professor Yohan Masih, a noted Indian scholar and Christain. Mr. Masih took for his text the verses, beginning "Watchman, What of the Night?" from the 21st chapter of Isaiah.

The speaker declared that India had been groping along for centuries, but with her face turned always to the north. "In years to come, a truly Christian India will sweep the whole world into the kingdom of heaven. There are people in India who are still superstitious and worship idols, but there are a great many who believe in and worship Jesus Christ."

Professor Masih referred to the changes in the ancient caste law, which once forbade a member of one caste to wed another caste member. "To-day there are fifty millions of people in India who are still bound down by the rules of caste, but it is expected that before long, this stronghold of Hinduism will fall. The children of these "Untouchables," as they are called, may be very highly educated but cannot use their learning as they are allowed so little liberty. If a Hindu of one caste married outside his group, his children would be disinherited. Many women have broken away from this law and are now making public speeches against its ruliings, in different part of the country, trying to gain rights for themselves and for others. Four provinces in India will not grant women the franchise. Schools and colleges of India are now overflowing with boys and girls who, if they could be made to realize the Christian conception of the Master, would be very religious. Many Christian Indians are praying to Christ to solve the problems of their country, and even no-Christians believe in the veracity of the Old and New Testaments. The hardest obstacle in teaching the Hindu about Christ is that he demands to see Him before he will thoroughly believe in Him, and it is a vision of Christ that the people want, instead of teachers and missionaries. Nowhere in the world is the church of God growing as rapidly as in India. The Christian population in the last ten years has increased by twenty-three per cent, and the population itself by a little over one per cent. It is hoped that before long the whole of India will be Christian.

NAT MILLS FOUND WITH THROAT CUT

Was Formerly Employed as Engineer in Peterboro Plant of Canadian General.

MONTREAL, December 17 (Special to The Examiner). — In a vacant boathouse on the Richelieu River, near Iberville, Que., the body of N. C. Mills, aged 45, of Iberville, was found with the throat gashed shortly after two o'clock on the afternoon of 14th December.

Mills, who is reported to have been depressed because of his inability to obtain employment, had been missing from home for ten days.

A blood-stained razor was found close to his body.

The discovery was made by a man named Denault, who is employed in an Iberville pottery. He was paddling his canoe close to the shore past the property of R. Delong-Champs, of Iberville, when he noticed that the lock on the boathouse door was broken.

As he knew that the boathouse had been closed for the winter by its owner, his suspicions were aroused, and his subsequent investigation led to the finding of Mills' body.

Mills was formerly a resident of Peterborough, where he worked for the Canadian General Electric Co.

Later he lived in Montreal but moved to Iberville with his wife and children six months ago. Since that time he had obtained only occasional employment from manufacturing plants in the neighbourhood, and was consequently in low spirits.

Ten days ago he left his home without mentioning whither he was bound or leaving a written message, and from the condition of his body it is believed that it was about this time that he met his death.

The body was removed to the St. John's Morgue and an inquest was held the next day by Coroner Chevalier.

A verdict of suicide while temporarily insane was returned.

CAPTURE TELLER AFTER LONG RUN

Wanted on Charge of Sealing $18,000 from Imperial Bank.

TORONTO, December 17. — Canadian Press. — After a chase covering 15,000 miles across the continent, and back again, lasting a year, Harry C Davison, teller of the Imperial Bank, Edmonton, Alta, wanted since November, 1922, on a charge of stealing $18,000 of the bank funds, was arested in Toronto to-day by Detective Sergeant Arthur Levitt, of the police headquarters

Levitt arested Davison at noon today in the head office of the Imperial Bank, Wellington and Leader Davison returned to Toronto today, in the custody of a Pinkerton detective. He was apprehended in Atlanta, Ga., on Saturday, due to the activities of the Toronto office of the Pinkerton National Detective agency When he was located in Atlanta, Davison decided to return to Toronto to confer with the authorities of the Imperial Bank. He will be taken back to Edmonton to stand trial.

Since Davidson left Edmonton a year ago last November, he has been travelling through the United States. He went to the Western Coast and was in San Diego. Later he worked his way across the continent to the Southern States, where he was traced to Atlanta by the Pinkerton Agency.

Davison's arrest is due to a hobby. He had a fondness for buying a certain make of automobile, and his ultimate arrest followed a smash-up he was in in Florida with his machine last summer.

Levitt was sent to the bank at noon and brought Davison to Court Street Station.

The Imperial Bank authorities told The Examiner that Davison sent a wire from Atlanta that he wanted to surrender and to send for him so he could come back and get the matter off his mind.

Davison has been with the Imperial Bank eleven years. He served overseas and most of his service with the bank was in the West, being transferred from post to post. He worked in Toronto a few months. He is 27 years of age.

FOREIGN BANKS OFFER GERMANY BIG LOAN IF ALLIES GIVE SANCTION

Can Get Credit Up to Seventy Millions For Grain Purchases Abroad on Condition of Priority to Reparation Debt.

FRENCH DENY NEED.

PARIS, Dec. 18. — (Canadian Press)—Germany's request for authority to pledge the resources of the Reich as a guarantee for a loan of from $50,000,000 to $70,000,000 with which to buy grain abroad was delivered in written form to the Reparation Commission Monday.

It received little support in French official circles, where it was declared there was no conclusive evidence that food was lacking in Germany. It was remarked that the manifestations in Germany had been provoked, not by a dearth of eatables, but by the inability of a great proportion of the population to pay the prices demanded by the holders of foodstuffs.

Those close to Premier Poincare declared that the first thing needed in Germany was a renovation of the financial system, after which in their opinion plenty of food would be forthcoming in the country itself. A foreign loan, they said, would avail nothing unless the food were bought to be distributed gratis to the inhabitants, because if the latter had to pay for the imported goods the same difficulties would arise as now exist; only a few would be able to find the funds with which to buy.

French Will Oppose.

The Reparation Commission will probably consider the request at Wednesday's meeting. It was regarded as likely in official last night that Louis Barthou would oppose releasing the Allies' pledges for the purpose of guaranteeing a loan. It was said he could contend that if the German Government would give whole-hearted co-operation to the proposed experts' committee, the problem of restoring its finances to a reasonable working basis could be accomplished in a few months.

The feeling in Reparation Commission circles is that the Berlin Government will give the necessary co-operation, and the situation is regarded as better than at any previous time since Germany made her demand for a moratorium. There is a disposition to push the organization of the expert committees and it is possible the names of the experts to be invited will be finally chosen at Friday's regular meeting.

Need Food Imports.

The text of the note, which was made public this afternoon, says the results of the last cereal harvest show that Germany will be required to import 1,500,000 tons of bread cereals and also 70,000 tons of fats by August, 1924.

"The credit negotiations which have already been opened," continues the note, "have revealed the fact that the foreign banks are in principle prepared to grant credit to the amount of $50,000,000 to $70,000,000 for three years, but only on condition that it be given priority over Germany's reparation obligations."

The note concludes with the request of the German Government that the Reparation Commision declare in principle that a three years' credit, not exceeding $70,000,000, for bread cereals and fats may be given priority in accordance with Paragraph 2, of Article 251, of the Treaty of Versailles.

"In view of the urgency of the question," it adds, "the German Government requests the Reparation Commission to come to a decision as quickly as possible."

THE WEATHER.

The thermometer was down to nine above the zero mark this morning. This is the lowest point this season to date, but in other years below zero mornings have usually occurred several times by this time. The U. S. Weather Bureau, which does a little long range forecasting at times, gives the following as probable for the period between Dec. 17 to 22 for this section: "Rains at the beginning and again after the middle of the week. Temperature normal or slightly above until the latter part of the week, when colder weather is probable." Here is what an Oxford County farmer says: "I have spent 53 years on a farm in this district, and this is the first fall in which the plow could be used every day without exception up to and including Dec 10th. There have been days, of course when we could not plow, but frost had nothing to do with it. It is true that we have had a number of rather sharp frosts, but there have been none which would prevent us using the plow, and that is where I contend the exception comes in."—W. P.

Newborn Gold Mark Stimulaies Trade

BERLIN, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—Monday marked the official birth of gold mark figures on the Bourse quotations list, but it made little practical difference so far as the previous quotations have been understood in the trillions.

The tradesmen for some days have been eliminating the cumbersome rows of ciphers from the price lists and the sight of the old-fashioned marks and pfennigs has stimulated a more cheerful feeling. It came as a sort of revelation, however, to find that under the new dispensation certain of the smaller fry among the shares were quoted only in pfennigs instead of billions of marks.

A law to compel the traders to keep their books and balance sheets in gold marks from January 1, will be enacted before the new year under the Government's emergency powers. Private companies henceforth must have capital not less than 5,000 gold shares not below 500, while the minima for limited liability companies are 500 and 10 respectively.

SENATE STRUCK DELAYING SNAG

Election of I. C. C. Chairman Creates Deadlock With Fourteen Unavailing Ballots.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—The deadlock in the United States Senate over the election of an Interstate Commerce Committee chairman continued Monday but the House perfected its organization by approving its standing committee slates.

Five more ballots were taken by the Senate which resumed voting today with the expectation that the Republican insurgents would give their support to Senator Smith, of South Carolina, the ranking Democrat on the Committee. This vote with that of the Democrats would result in his election.

The insurgents supported first Senator Howell, Republican, Nebraska, and then Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan.

The fifth ballot—the fourteenth since the deadlock began—found Cummins and Smith again tied with 38 each, while Couzens had twelve. The House action enabled committees confronted with pressing legislation to get down to work.

Russia's new bid for recognition, by the United States reached the White House and was referred to the State Department.

Plans were begun for hearing the contest against Senator Mayfield, Democrat, Texas, by the Senate Elections Committee.

Senator Hiram Johnson announced that he would file in the independent column on the South Dakota presidential primary ballot.

Final estimates of the Department of Agriculture placed the value of the principal farm crops in the United States this year at $8,322,629,000, compared with the revised figures for last year of $7,449,804,00.

The House recessed until Thursday after adopting and sending to the Senate a resolution providing for a congressional recess from Thursday until Thursday, January 3.

LIBARAY FOR THE BLIND AFFECTED BY MARK DROP

LEIPSIG, Dec. 18.—(Associated Press)—Germany's largest library for the blind must close its doors if private subscriptions are not immediately received to carry on the work. This library has been serving blind persons all over Europe and is said to have more readers than any similar institution in the world.

There are 2,300 readers who patronize it in Germany alone and it sends books to 990 cities and villages in various parts of Europe. This German central library for the blind was founded by private subscriptions in Leipsig 30 years ago, but its funds are insufficient to weather the mark shrinkage.

TUT'S CASKET IS WONDERFUL ART

Revealed For First Time In Bizarre Beauty of Almost Overwhelming Impressiveness.

LUXOR, Egypt, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—All preconceived ideas of Tutankhamen's golden shrine were upset by the sight of this impressive coffin, for the first time disclosed in almost its full proportions by the removal of the partition wall, when the correspondent visited the tomb Monday morning.

The first impression of this gigantic receptacle for the dead, its sides resplendent with chaste decorations of blue and gold, set against a background of brightly-colored paintings on yellow, was almost overwhelming. The feeling was of something incredibly bizarre—something that seemed utterly to banish the presence of death in this casket of wonderful artistry.

One of the first details to catch the eye was the fact that the golden lid of the canopy does not, as one imagined from the view obtained from the opening in the wall, slope down from one end to the other. It rises again at the other end, giving a graceful curved effect which is declared by competent authority to be unique in Egyptology. The lid is not solid, but hollowed out, roofing over a space of about four feet between the first and second shrines.

In this space the correspondent was able to see—for the doors of the first shrine had been removed—a remarkable species of wooden rack, or scaffolding, erected to carry the immense golden-spangled linen pall resting over the second shrine. It is very like open wooden cage-work, and is painted a glistening black with heavily gilded carved feet.

Mr. Carter left for Cairo Monday night, ostensibly on private business, but it is believed his trip was occasioned by some dissension with the Egyptian Department of Antiquities. It is probable the work on the tomb will be suspended during his absence.

HIGHER TAX ON TRUCK DRIVERS

Owners Will Have to Contribute to Highway Upkeep.

TORONTO, Dec. 18.—((Canadian Press).—"I am not going too far when I warn truck owners that when the laws are revised and tariff changes they are going to have to pay considerably higher percentage toward the maintenance of highway's than they are to-day," said Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Public works and highways who last night addressed Ontario motor truck owners' association here.

He thought probably that tax on gasoline would be very equitable way of levying on motorists generally.

Belgium Endorses Note On German Proposals.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 18.—The Cabinet has endorsed the text of the note to be forwarded to the German Government in answer to the recent German proposals. The text is identical with the French note in sense, if not in phrasing, the two governments having concerted on the reply.

The Belgian Government particularly expresses gratification that the Belgian technical investigations have been accepted as a basis for future negotiations for the solution of the reparations problem. As to the Ruhr and the Rhineland, the Belgian note makes the same reservations as France.

GROUP GOVERNMENT IN BRITAIN PRESENTS NEW SITUATION TO LEADERS

Some Understanding Between Two of the Three Parties Assumed Necessary to Secure Stability—Liberals and Moderate Conservatives Intimate Neutrality to Labor.

A CHRISTMAS "BOX."

LONDON, Dec. 18. — A crucial question was raised immediately the general elections disclosed that, temporarily at least, the nation was committed to the group system in its parliamentory government. This question of how the government shall be carried on still remains unanswered, and, although most of the political leaders have scattered to their various country residences for Christmas vacation, it is not doubted that all of them are engaged in figuring on how to meet an entirely novel situation when Parliament reassembles on January 8.

Their perplexity is not diminished by the hope that resort to another general election might solve the problem, for it is regarded as almost a certainty that another election would only confirm the present position; hence, none of the leaders is anxious to force further elections.

What Alignment.

As a government with any sort of stability can only be secured through some agreement or understanding between two parties, the questions arises whether that inevitable understanding is to be between the Conservatives and Liberals, or between the Liberals and Laborites. This may be answered at the Liberal Party meeting to-day, which is to be held to decide on policy and elect a leader. Both Mr. Asquith and Mr. Lloyd George have publicly repudiated any desire or intention to hinder Labor's constitutional right to succeed to power.

The more moderate sections of the Conservative Party have adopted a similar attitude, but there is an extreme action of that party, represented by such men as Austen Chamberlain and Lord Birkenhead, whose sole preoccupation is how to keep Labor out. Birkenhead is especially vocal on this theme, even going so far as to advocate Conservative suppor. to a Liberal Government if the reverse process is found impracticable.

Liberals Neutral.

Lord Birkenhead's views would find big support in the big financial and banking circles, where also the advent of a Labor Government excites apprehension. Were there any ambiguity in the attitude of Mr. Lloyd George since the Liberal reconciliation, Lord Birkenhead's ideas might appear more formidable, since Lloyd George, Birkenhead and Chamberlain were close associates in the late coalition government. Mr. Lloyd George, however, seems to have yoked himself firmly to the fortunes of the Liberal Party, and to be disposed to adopt a policy of more or less benevolent neutrality towards Labor; hence, it is generally assumed that when Parliament reassembles the Government will be defeated in the early days of the session. The King would then follow the constitutional practice and invite J. Ramsay MacDonald as the leader of the next strongest party in the House to form a ministry, which, so long as it refrained from strikingly controversial measures, might depend upon general support from the Liberals.

WOMAN FINED FOR AIDING IN ESCAPE

Wife of John Lockwood Recently Recaptured, Pleaded Guilty to Charge

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press.)—Miss Gertrude Lockwood charged with aiding in the escape of John D. Lockwood from the Industrial Farm on November 5 last, appeared before Judge M. J. Kenny in District Court this afternoon and pleaded guilty and was fined seventy-five dollars and costs or three months in prison.

A. L. Smith, charged with "misprision" a misdemeanor at common law, or concealing the whereabouts of a prisoner and failing to notify a magistrate of that knowledge, pleaded guilty and was also fined seventy-five dollars and costs or three months. Smith was also charged with being an accessory after the fact, but all other charges against the two were not proceeded with by the Crown.

Italian Elections Are Expected Soon

ROME, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—The formal signing of the decree for the dissolution of parliament and the call for new elections is expected at an early date, according to parliamentary circles, where there is evidence of the lining up of the different groups for the campaign.

The various Socialist factions are striving for union amongst themselves. Many of the deputies are turning to Facism, and it is learned that Signor Carnazza, one of the leaders of the Social-Democrats, will be given a Fascist card. He is expected to have a strong influence for the Fascisti in his own district in Sicily, where the Fascisti are weak.

Another evidence of the imminence of the transfer of Deputies Acerbo, Acerbonna and Bardi, who hold the grade of lieutenant-generals in the military, from commands, to reserve list, as the new election law prohibits generals from becoming candidates in the district under their command.

Says De Valera, Stack and Barton Should Be Permitted to Go Before the U. S. Consul and Testify.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Supreme Court Justice Wagner yesterday signed a formal order putting into effect his ruling that Eamonn De Valera, Austin Stack and Robert P. Barton should be permitted to go before the United States Consul in Ireland between January 10 and February 28, 1924, and testify before the trial in injunction proceedings which the Irish Free State brought in the Supreme Court here two years ago to obtain possession of $2,500,000, the proceeds of the Irish Republic Bond sale in this country.

Justice Wagner's order provides that if the Free State officials interfere with De Valera or his aides testifying before the United States Consul at Dublin, they shall forfeit their right to press their suit to gain possession of the funds on deposit here.

Simcoe Woman An Heir to Millions

CHICAGO, December 18 (Canadian Press). — Miss Sarah M. O'Carr, Simcoe, Ont., is one of seven second cousins who should divide the $6,000,000 estate of the late Edwin B. Jennings, Chicago capitalist, according to Attorney F. B. Williams.

Attorney Williams has presented the claims of the cousins to Judge Frederick W. Elliott, who has the case under advisement.

Despite all his journeyings through thirteen states, his searches for names on tombstones, and his time spent in the reading of thousands of volumes of birth records and family Bibles, Attorney Williams was unable to find other heirs to the Jennings millions, he said.

Rhineland Security Police Accused of Wantonly Shooting Into Defenceless Crowds During Rhineland Disturbances

AGENTS OF BERLIN.

DUESSELDORF, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press)—Forty persons were placed on trial Monday before a French courtmartial charged with murder and other crimes in connection with the recent separatist movement in the Rhineland. The defendants are German officials and members of the Security Police.

At the opening of the courtmartial Herr Brauetigam, on behalf of the defendants, challenged the competency of the courtmartial to try the accused. The president of the court, however, ruled against him, contending that the occupation forces were empowered to take whatever measure they saw fit, not only for the protection of the occupational personnel, but for the maintenance of public order when the native police force was considered inadequate.

Prussian Brutality.

The accusation against the defendants shows that the prosecution will attempt to prove the police, acting under orders emanating, indirectly from Berlin, made detailed plans in advance to break up separatists demonstrations at all costs, and that the security police without sufficient provocation fire ruthlessly into defenceless crowds, regardless of sex, age or nationality. The prosecutor also will seek to prove that the security police brutally maltreated hundreds of persons and rifled their pockets of large sums of money and valuables regardless whether they were separatists or not.

French Connivance.

The defence, besides seeking to disprove these charges, will make counter-charges alleging that some 1,400 separatists were armed with revolvers or clubs, or both, during the disorders. It also will try to establish that the French railroad administration furnished free transportation to come to Duesseldorf, with at least the indirect purpose of disturbing public order.
